The special evangelistic campaign held in Gospel Hall during the past two weeks is drawing to a close. Many have heard the burning messages from the lips of Evangelist Harold Harper, messages concerning man's lost estate and God's wonderful remedy through the Lord Jesus Christ.

The address last evening was preceded by the singing of old and Gospel hymns, after which Rev. Mr. Doner, of Bethany Tabernacle, led in prayer.

The theme of last evening's sermon was "The Name of Jesus." Beginning with its use first in the Incarnation of our Lord in Matt. I, the speaker traced His pathway from the cradle to the cross, where He is seen in Humiliation in Jew. XIX. Wonderful truths are these, said the speaker for the human mind to conceive. When we think of who Jesus was in a past eternity and see Him stooping to such depths of shame in order that we might be saved. Continuing he showed the name of Jesus in Exaltation as seen in Phil. II. He has gone up to heaven, said the evangelist, God's guarantee of satisfaction in John XIX. Wonderful truths Christ. Finally he spoke of His name in Salvation, quoting Acts, IV: 12. An earnest appeal was made to all to trust in the Man who bears the name of Jesus Christ the Lord.

He will speak again to-night at 8 o'clock. All interested in their souls welfare should attend these closing meetings.

Burgomaster Maxe Will Be Liberated

Belgian Official Arrested Three Years Ago for "Irreconcilable Attitude."

London, September 19.—Germany, at the request of King Alfonso, of Spain, is about to restore to liberty Adolphe Maxe, the burgomaster of Brussels, according to the reports received by the Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company from Berlin.

Recent despatches from Germany have said that Burgomaster Maxe was seriously ill in prison at Celle, a Prussian town 23 miles north-east of Hanover, and that King Alfonso of Spain was intervening in his behalf. The burgomaster was arrested at Brussels on September 28, 1914, for his "irreconcilable attitude," according to an announcement made by the German Military Government of Belgium.

Detroit's Send-Off For 25,000 Troops

WINDSOR AND NEAR-BY TOWNS ON CANADIAN SIDE WERE REPRESENTED.

Detroit, September 19.—Under perfect weather conditions one million citizens of Detroit and its environs gathered along the line of march yesterday afternoon to bid farewell to twelve thousand young men, the city's contribution to the world war under the selective draft. So overwhelming was the crowd which assembled that long before the time set for the parade to move, the police despite the fact that every available officer on the force was on duty, found themselves powerless to cope with the mass of humanity which packed Woodward avenue, the city's main thoroughfare, from curb to curb.

Starting one hour late, the twelve divisions, numbering 25,000 men, were compelled to march only three abreast a large part of the distance, and it was close to eight p.m. before the last of the soldiers had passed the reviewing stand at the city hall, where Brigadier-General Julius A. Penn, commander of the 170th Brigade at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, took the salute.

While the drafted men were naturally the centre of interest, the appearance of the 21st Regt., Essex Fusiliers, of Windsor, under command of Lieut.-Colonel S. C. Robinson, and headed by its magnificent band of 40 pieces, evoked warm applause. Although its ranks have been sadly decimated by the war, the men who turned out to-day had much to be proud of.

Organized in 1885, the 21st Regiment bears the honored distinction of having been reviewed by three Presidents of the United States, and its presence in to-day's parade was by special invitation from Mayor Marx and the city council.

The day was made a legal holiday in Windsor, and practically the entire Canadian border turned out. Mayor C. R. Tuson of Windsor marched with Mayor Marx of Detroit, and headed the municipal deputations, later occupying a seat on the grand stand.

A TIME FOR CO-OPERATION

(New York Journal of Commerce.)

There has never been a period in human history comparable with that which we are now going through. It completely upsets the ordinary working of what have become established principles on account of necessity for prompt and energetic action in what is entirely outside of the normal requirements of peace activities.

What we need now is co-operation of all the various intereus of the people with each other and with the Government, and it is necessary that its spirit should be displayed on the side of the Government as well as on that of the people who have made themselves its subjects as well as its source. There must be sacrifices in this process, but they will be sacrifices to a great cause on whose ardent support and assured triumph, the security and prosperity of the future will depend.

TUTOR OF FAMOUS FIGHTERS DIES

Word has been received of the death in Sydney, Australia, of Laurence (Larry) Foley, known the world over as the discoverer and instructor of Peter Jackson, Bob Fitzsimmons and and Young Griffo, three of the greatest exponents of the fistic game the world has ever known. Foley, at the time when Fitz, Griffo and Jackson were in their prime, received countless offers to visit this country, but he refused steadfastly to leave his native land.

Foley was over 70 years of age at the time of his death, which was caused by heart failure. He was an ardent believer in all sorts of physical training, and he preserved the vigour of his system both mental and physical to the end.

Foley, a pugilist himself in his early days, was the connecting link between the two codes of boxing, the London Prize Ring rules and the Marquis of Queensberry rules, in Australia. His bout with Abe Hicken over thirty-eight years ago marked the passing of the old order of fight rules from the antipodes. Foley was one of the first of the pugilists in Australia to be offered booking on the stage, his first appearance being in the cast of a production of "As You Like It," in which production Foley enacted the role of "Charles, the Wrestler."

CANADIAN SOLDIERS WILL HAVE TO WAIT FOR THEIR PENSIONS

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.— Canada's soldiers must wait for their pension provision. Since June last the Government's pension bill has been on the Parliamentary order paper. From day to day it stood over while the Government proceeded with partisan legislation designed to "win the election." To-day, when the matter was brought before the House by the Liberals when the estimates were under consideration, Hon. Dr. Reid announced that "not having had time to prepare a proper pension bill or go into the question, we are just asking for a vote such as we have put in the estimates in order to pay the pensions that it is now necessary to pay from day to day."

Mr. Fred F. Pardee, Chief Liberal Whip, made a strong appeal for larger-hearted and more substantial consideration of returned and wounded soldiers, and the prompt preparation of an adequate pension measure. He protested against the Government plan to cut off any man who was permanently injured with a maximum of a mere $100. Any soldier who returned so incapacitated that he was unable to carry on the work in which he had engaged previous to his enlistment was, Mr. Pardee maintained, "entitled to care and assistance from the State as a matter of right, of humanity, and of ordinary justice." Mr. Pardee wanted to know if the Government had considered a comprehensive pension plan, and whether it had devoted its attention to the pension policy of the United States Congress.

Sir George Foster, who was temporarily leading the House, replied that no final action had yet been taken by the United States Congress, but promised Mr. Pardee that his suggestions would be looked into and carefully considered.

Arraigned for Lethargy.

Mr. E. M. Macdonald vigorously arraigned the Government for its lethargy in the matter of pension legislation. The Finance Minister had had the resolution providing for the creation of the Pensions Board and for revisions on the order paper since June 11, and nothing had been done. The Government was too busy with electioneering legislation to give time and attention to the soldiers' pensions. Mr. Macdonald maintained that when the Parliamentary Committee made its report on pensions a year ago the Premier had agreed to consult with the leader of the Opposition as to the appointment of Commissioners. The Premier had never done so. The Government, said Mr. Macdonald, had been remiss in its duty in allowing the resolution to stand on the order paper for three months without any action.

Failure to Act a Scandal.

"The Canadian Northern was more important," suggested Mr. A. B. Copp. Mr. Macdonald characterized the Government's failure to act as a scandal. The whole question of paying men at the front more, of insuring men, and of paying their dependents pensions should be considered together.

Hon. Frank Oliver thought it was fortunate for the soldiers and their dependents that the regime of the Borden Government, with its lethargy and inaction on such matters, was nearly at an end.

Argentine's Position Not Yet Decided

(By Charles P. Stewart, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 20. —Whether Argentina will break with Germany depends in a large measure on the vote of the House of Representatives to-day. The overwhelming Senate vote for a diplomatic rupture was expected to be reflected in the decision of the lower house.

Buenos Aires received the news of the Senate's 23 to 1 decision in favour of severance of relations with Germany in excited demonstrations. The police authorities, apprised of the vote, promptly stationed all reserves in the down town streets so that disorder was practically eliminated. The general public's excitement in the situation was attributed by big crowds on all down town streets until a late hour last night, and a jam of excited curious men who assembled to-day.

In some circles to-day it was pointed out that President Irigoyen has it in his power to override even the decision of both houses by exercise of his veto against a break.

Tension in the city was aggravated to-day by the imminance of a general strike on all Argentine railways.

CENTRE SPAN IN PLACE AT 2 P.M. TO-DAY

Canadian Press Despatch:

QUEBEC, Sept. 20.—Last span of the Quebec Bridge was placed in position at 3:28 p.m.

QUEBEC, Sept. 20.—At two o'clock this afternoon the final lift was practically completed. After this the pins which will bolt the span to the cantilever arms, were to be inserted to complete the work.

QUEBEC, Sept. 20. —A twenty-five mile an hour wind held up operations in connection with the raising of the span, which had only thirty more feet to travel, when the engineers took their places at the raising jacks this morning. For several hours a careful watch was kept on the span to see if the wind caused it to swing, which would make it dangerous to continue lifting. It was decided to go ahead, and at ten-thirty the span had only twenty feet more to travel.

Home Complexion Peeler Works Wonders

To keep the face, neck, arms and hands truly beautiful and youthful in appearance, the treatment which seems most sensible is one which will actually remove the skin itself immediately it begins to age, fade, coarsen or discolor. The only known treatment which will do this, aside from a painful expensive surgical operation, is the application of ordinary mercolised wax, which is as harmless as it is effective.

The wax is put on at night, just as you apply cold cream, and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead and half-dead surface skin in almost invisible flaky particles, a little each day, no discomfort being experienced. With the disappearance of the old cuticle the newer, healthier skin underneath gradually appears, richly beautiful with the flush of youth. This mercolised wax, which you can get at any drug store in original package, is indeed a veritable wonder-worker.

Many a good woman thinks she has discharged her duty to her husband by praying for him.

Statement of Receipts For Fines, etc., Collected by License Inspector

Peterborough has a credit balance in the record of receipts for fines, etc., collected by license inspectors under the Ontario Temperance Act. The total expenditures for the enforcement of the law during the period named above was $646.77, while the receipt for fines amounted to $1,340, leaving a credit balance of $517.23. Twenty license districts out of a total of fifty-seven show a balance. Despite this the total cost of administration is $6,199.10 in excess of the total receipts covering the entire province.

QUEBEC BRIDGE SAFELY BOLTED YESTERDAY

Greatest Cantilever Bridge in World Now An Accomplished Fact

SIRENS HERALD FEAT

MONTHS WILL ELAPSE YET BEFORE TRAINS CROSS THE STRUCTURE.

QUEBEC, Sept. 21.—With the bolting into place yesterday afternoon of the big centre span of the Quebec bridge, the greatest engineering feat of its kind ever attempted was completed, and Canada became the possessor of the largest cantilever bridge in the world. The work was completed at precisely 3.28.

The great structure, which is 3,239 feet long and contains 80,000,000 pounds of steel and cost in the neighborhood of $20,000,000 to build, was all but completed to-day after eleven years of labour, the original structure having been started back in 1906.

MANY HAVE LOST LIVES

During its construction 78 men have lost their lives and a monetary loss of $8,500,000 has been sustained through two collapses, the first one costing the lives of 70 men when the south cantilever arm collapsed in 1907, and the second in 1916 when the centre span went into the St. Lawrence through the breaking of a casting in the hoisting apparatus.

On completion of the construction work, the bridge will be handed over to the railways for the laying of tracks.

There was a great demonstration when this was completed, the few vessels within sight of the bridge received the signal that all was finished and they immediately burst into a siren scream of victory which spread quickly along the river till it reached Quebec where the church bells joined in with a merry peal. Flags were unfurled everywhere in response to the Mayor's request that some recognition should be given on the conclusion of this great engineering feat.

THREE YEARS TO PAINT.

While the actual completion of the structural portion of the bridge can now be considered as complete, it will be some months before trains can be run over it. The bridge will be turned over to the gang of men, who will be permanently employed upon it. This gang will consist of railway workers and painters. The latter will have a steady job. It will take three years to paint the bridge, at a cost of $35,000, and when the men have finished at one end they will start again at the other.

Union Stock Yards— Receipts 36 cars, with 365 head of cattle, 60 calves, 415 hogs, and 1,143 sheep and lambs.

There was a quiet and rather draggy market, with a slow clean-up for the week end. There was very little demand for the quantity of cattle offering, consisting for the most part of left-overs, with a few fresh arrivals, but no choice quality among them. Butcher heifers appeared to meet no demand, except at big concessions. The general tone of the market is weak and 40c. to 50c. lower than last week.

British Penetrate German Lines On Flanders Front

Over Two Thousand Prisoners Counted So Far—Many Strong Positions Captured—Several More Villages in British Hands—Offensive Began Yesterday—Advance is Progressing on Wide Front.

STRONGHOLDS CAPTURED

Canadian Press Despatch:

British Headquarters in France, Sept. 21.—Big British victory southeast of Ypres. Advance made on an eight mile front by the English and Australians, who captured many strong posts. Two thousand prisoners so far counted. The advance is progressing. Several more villages are in British hands.

MILE IN DEPTH.

The British offensive, which began at dawn yesterday over a wide front east of the Ypres salient, found the attacking forces late to-day holding many new positions of vital importance and continuing the fight in German territory along a line which in many places represented an average gain of a mile in depth.

Such redoubtable strongholds as Nuns Wood, Glencorse Wood, Inverness Copz and Shrewsberry Forest, which have withstood numerous fierce assaults recently, were entirely overrun by the British, who reached points well beyond them. Heavy fighting was continuing at close range at various points and the Germans were massing troops with the evident intention of delivering a counter attack. It was a day of great success for British arms for the possession of the wooded heights which they captured east of Ypres is unquestionably of crucial importance since these dominating positions form the keystone of the German structure of defence in this sector. The greatest gains have been made between St. Julien and Hollebeke, which was as had been planned, for within this stretch of country lie important defences just mentioned.

REPORT CONFIRMED.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Field Marshal Haig in later reports to-day regarding the British offensive on the Belgian front to the east of Ypres, when British troops pushed through the German lines for a distance of more than a mile, says that the completeness of the British success is confirmed by a detailed account of the battle.

PARADED IN PROTEST.

20,000 Men in Montevideo Demonstrate Against German Methods.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 20.—Upwards of 20,000 men marched through the principal streets of Montevideo last night to register their protest against the action of the German Minister to Argentina. Count Von Luxburg, in sending cipher telegrams through the Swedish Legation at Buenos Aires, in which he suggested that Argentinian vessels be "sunk without a trace." There were no disorders. Strong police forces are protecting the German bank and clubs and business houses.

TAX PROPOSAL WITHDRAWN.

Instead, Australia Will Further Tax Bachelors and Widowers.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 20.—Owing to the opposition of ministerial supporters the Government has withdrawn the proposal to tax unenlisted persons. It is now proposed to impose a super-tax of five per cent. on the incomes of all bachelors and widowers, irrespective of age.

The Senate has passed the war-time profits and the oil bounty bills. The latter grants a bonus of 4½ cents a gallon on oil produced from shales in Australia.

She Went Days Without Food

When Hospital Treatment Failed an Operation Was Advised— But Cure Was Effected Without the Use of the Knife.

GLACE BAY, N.S., Sept. 21.—Here is a case which sorely puzzled the hospital doctors. It was evident that the great suffering from pain under the left shoulder-blade was due to torpidity of the liver, but no medical treatment seemed to do any good.

In fact medicines failed, and the doctors said an operation was the only hope. But Mrs. Watkins hesitated before the enormous risk of an operation, and decided to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills first.

The result was that she was perfectly cured three years ago, and feels now that she can report the cure as thorough and lasting. This is not an isolated case, but proves that this great medicine cures when ordinary prescriptions fail.

Mrs. Annie Watkins, Glace Bay, New Harbor, N.S., writes: "I think it is time for me to give my experience with your wonderful Kidney-Liver Pills. For seven months I suffered with what the doctor called indigestion, but whatever it was, I suffered terribly. The pain would start under my left shoulder and pass down my side until it reached the pit of my stomach. It just seemed as if the flesh were being torn from the bone. At times I used to go without food from one morning until the next. I had no energy left for work at all. At last our doctor sent me to the hospital for a month. For four days and nights I never broke my fast except for a drink of water. After four weeks' treatment there I returned home, and was back only four days when the pain came back worse than ever. Then I was told I would have to undergo an operation, but I would not consent to that. At last I read about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and started to take them. At first I did not notice much difference, but still I kept on using them, and by the time four boxes were used I was perfectly well again. That was in 1914, so you see I can safely say that I was cured. I shall always be grateful to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, as they did more for me than four doctors."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Refuse substitutes, for they only disappoint.

CANADA HASN'T ASKED FOR RETURN OF MEN

SIR ROBERT BORDEN ANSWERS QUERY ABOUT THE FIRST C.E. FORCE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—When the House met there was still some uncertainty as to whether prorogation would take place yesterday.

Sir Robert Borden, replying to a question asked by Hon Charles Murphy, said that so far as could be ascertained no steps had been taken by the Australian Government to bring back home the first fifty thousand Australians sent to take part in the war. Sir Robert said that the matter had been brought up in the Commonwealth Parliament, but that no action had been taken.

Mr. Murphy then asked if any such action had been taken in regard to Canada's First Expeditionary Forces. "No," the Prime Minister replied.

Hon Rodolphe Lemieux asked if Deputy Speaker Rainville represented the attitude of the Government in the letter to his constituents read in the House Wednesday, in which he stated that the sons of farmers would be exempt from military service.

The Prime Minister repeated his statement of Wednesday that the Military Service Board had not yet presented its regulations to the Governor-in-Council.

A GLORIOUS EDIFICE.

Rheims Cathedral May Become Pantheon for Heroic Dead.

The proposal to convert the shattered cathedral of Rheims into a pantheon for the heroic dead of all the allied nations at the end of the world war attracts attention once more to this great Gothic edifice.

Pronounced by many students of architecture the most beautiful structure produced during the middle ages, the Cathedral of Rheims is also one of the world's most historic edifices, some of the most inspiring and magnificent episodes in the life of the French nation having taken place within its walls. It is the matchless beauty and symmetry of the cathedral's west facade which distinguishes it above all other ecclesiastical buildings of the mdyen age. This front of the edifice, which has been so frequently pictured since its disfigurement by the shell-fire of German gunners, has three recessed portals which are decorated with more than 530 statues of saints, apostles, martyrs, vices, virtues, and historic figures, together with sculptured scenes of famous events. Above the portals is the indescribably beautiful rose window, fully forty feet in diameter, while to the right and left the massive yet graceful twin towers rise to a height of more than 260 feet. The spires which were designed to crown the towers were never built, although they had been started and were destroyed in the great fire of 1481, which consumed the roof and five lead spires of the north transept.

The most notable piece of statuary of the cathedral is the figure of Christ in benediction, over the smaller of the two portals of the north transept. This statue, known as 'Lo Beau Dieu,' has been described as 'a work of such beauty that it may be considered the most solemn creation of its time.'

The wonderful simplicity and severity of its architectural outlines, free from the trappings of period "restorations," can be attributed in large measure to the fact that the cathedral was rushed to completion in the space of thirty years (1212-1242) by the Archbishop Alberic Humbert, who employed the services of four great architects—Bernard de Soissons, Gauthier de Reims, Jean d'Orbais, and Jean Loups. During the latter half of the thirteenth century the completed structure was found to be entirely too small to accommodate the vast court assemblages which gathered to witness the coronations of the kings of France, so the nave was lengthened during the fourteenth century, under the supervision of Robert De Courcy, from thirteenth century designs.

The history of the cathedral of Rheims may be said properly to date from the fifth century, even though the structure was not begun until more than 700 years later. It was Christmas day of the year 496 that St. Remigius baptized Clovis and anointed him king of the Franks in the little basilica which stood on the site now occupied by the cathedral. Upon that occasion, according to legend, a dove flew down from heaven bearing a vase (Ampulla Remensis), filled with inexhaustible oil, with which the king was christened. This sacred vessel was retained in the cathedral and offered the excuse for holding the subsequent coronations at Rheims. It was shattered during the French revolution, but a fragment containing a particle of the oil was supposed to have been preserved and placed in a new ampoule, which was used for the last time at the coronation of Charles X. in 1825.

After Clovis, Pepin the Short was crowned at Rheims by Pope Stephen II.; Charlemagne, by Pope Leo III., and Louis the Debonnair by Pope Stephen IV. Beginning with the Capetian dynasty all the kings of France were crowned either in the earlier church, which occupied the site, or in the present cathedral, except Hugh Capet, who was anointed at Noyon; Henry IV., who was invested at Chartres; Napoleon, who crowned himself in the Cathedral of Notre Dame, in Paris, and Louis XVIII., Louis Philippe, and Napoleon III., none of whom was ever formally crowned.

In all this long line of Rheims coronations the most famous was that of Charles VII., who received the kingdom of France at the hands of the most heroic feminine figure of all history, Joan of Arc. At the coronation of this unworthy monarch the Maid of Orleans stood holding the standard of France and at the conclusion of the ceremony she knelt, and, embracing his knees, said, "Noble king, now is accomplished the will of God, which commanded me to bring you to this city of Rheims to receive your holy unction—now that you are at last King and that the kingdom of France is yours."

The great organ of the Rheims cathedral was installed in 1481 (the year of the great fire), by the master instrument maker, Oudin Hestre. Among the most highly prized possessions of the church are its famous tapestries, fourteen of which were the gift of Robert de Lenoncourt in 1530. Others were presented by Cardinal de Lorraine, in 1570, and the superb "tapisseries de Peper-sack" (a weaver who worked for the Duke of Mantua), were given by Archbishop Henri of Lorraine, in 1628. The French Government, in 1848, added to the cathedral's rich collection two Gobelin tapestries woven from Raphael's cartoons of St. Paul at Lystra and on Mars hill.

that you [illegible] for your [illegible] buy Zam-Buk, because Zam-Buk is all medicine—not 6% medicine and 94% animal fat as ordinary ointments are.

The herbal extracts and vegetable oils of which Zam-Buk is composed are so wonderfully blended and refined that Zam-Buk possesses unusual power of penetration. Instead of remaining on the surface skin, as ordinary ointments do (owing to the amount of coarse animal fat they contain), Zam-Buk literally soaks through until it reaches the "root" of the disease, which is always in the underlying tissues. Then it cures from the "root" up, which is the only thorough and permanent way of curing skin troubles, and is why Zam-Buk succeeds when other treatments fail.

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, pimples, blotches, psoriasis, chronic sores, blood-poisoning, teething rash, boils, piles, cuts, burns and scalds. All dealers or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

Australian Casualties.

The Australian casualties from the beginning of the war up to May 21, 1917, were 60,793, according to a statement issued by the Defense Department. They were divided as follows: Dead, 24,106; wounded, 31,585; missing, 5,102. It was explained that the men listed as wounded did not include those who had gone back to the trenches.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Don't use prepared shampoos, or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Passion Players Called.

The calling of Anton Lang to the service of the Bavarian army, may puzzle many Canadians who, a year or two ago, believed him dead. For it was in 1915 that the Christ of the famous passion plays was reported killed in battle, and hundreds of letters poured into the tiny mountain village, freighted with inquiries and all too hasty messages of sympathy. For Anton Lang at that time had not even gone to war.

As a matter of fact, were the German rulers to keep to their pact—a task evidently as beyond their grasp in internal as in foreign affairs—none of the peasant players of Oberammergau would be called to the colors. In 1632 upper Bavaria was swept by a pestilence which wiped out villages by the score. The peasants of Omerammergau, in order to avert the general ruin, instigated this elaborate passion play. The plague departed and Duke Maximilian entered into solemn covenant with the villagers that they should always be spared the hardships of war so long as the custom of presenting the holy drama continued.

Could Not Tell the Difference.

"The Germans," said Admiral Chocheprat of the French mission, during his visit to New York—"the Germans don't know what humanity means. When they talk about being humane they remind me of little Marius.

"Marius was very proud of the new kittens, and went one day to get them to show to a visitor.

"As he returned through the hall the kittens made a frightful noise, and his mother called:

"'Don't hurt the kittens, Marius!'

"'No, mother, I won't,' said he. 'I'm carrying them very carefully by their stems.'"

WOMEN'S STOMACH TROUBLES

The Great Woman's Medicine Often Just What Is Needed.

We are so used to thinking of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy exclusively for female ills that we are apt to overlook the fact that it is one of the best remedies for disorders of the stomach.

For stomach trouble of women it is especially adapted, as it works in complete harmony with the female organism, since it contains the extracts of the best tonic roots and herbs. It tones up the digestive system, and increases the appetite and strength. Here is what one woman writes showing what this medicine does:—

Newfield, N. Y.—"I am so pleased to say I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as an economical and beneficial remedy in most ailments pertaining to women. At least I found it so by only taking two bottles. I had indigestion in a bad form and I am now feeling in the best of health and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BURR WILLIAMS, R.D. No. 28, Newfield, N.Y.

Many women suffer from that "all gone feeling," and "feel so faint," while doing their work. Ten chances to one their digestive system is all out of order. A teaspoonful of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after each meal should completely remedy this condition in a few days.

A WONDERFUL SEARCHLIGHT.

The Most Powerful in the World, It Almost Rivals the Sun.

It is ten feet high, its mirror has a diameter of five feet, and it weighs three tons. Its beam is as brilliant as the sun at 8 o'clock in the morning or 4 in the afternoon, New York latitude, and you can read a newspaper by its light thirty miles away. The heat of its focused beam is so intense that it will set paper afire at a distance of 250 feet. It has a candle power of more than one and a quarter billion.

These are a few astonishing facts in the Popular Science Monthly about the Sperry searchlight, the invention of Elmer A. Sperry of Brooklyn, who is already known as the inventor of the airplane stabilizer and ship gyroscope bearing his name and the first electric arc light.

One of the most powerful beacons along the coast is the Sandy Hook lighthouse. But the Sperry searchlight is twenty-two times more brilliant than that light. Were the Sperry lamp substituted for the light on the beacon a ship passing out to sea could be bathed in light until it disappeared below the horizon. By swinging the light back and forth across the sky it has been made visible 200 miles away. If navy use the Sperry lamp illuminated a tract ten times more brilliantly than any other projector devised.

LEAD THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Common Sense Points the Way to Reaching a Ripe Old Age.

It is astonishing how many old people there are in almost every community in New England. Every day there is recorded in the press the passing of some one who has reached the ninetieth, and quite frequently there is mention of a centenarian. These people, generally speaking, die in the rural districts, but the cities are not without a group of them.

These events indicate that there is no necessity for any one who takes proper care of himself to fail to reach old age. Longevity is merely a matter of caring for oneself and keeping in a cheerful frame of mind. An important factor also in long life is to indulge in some occupation, if only for a few hours daily, in order that the mind and body shall have normal exercise. Drones seldom live long.

It is noteworthy in all the interviews which visitors have with the very aged that the latter invariably explain that they attribute their longevity to leading the simple life. They eat sparingly of the most nourishing food that agrees with them, are temperate in the use of all liquids, obtain plenty of sleep, indulge daily in very light exercise and do not worry.

Whoever follows these simple rules can count on living about as long as he or she desires

A Bit of Human Nature.

The other day a husky and rather rough looking driver was having trouble with his horse and, suddenly losing his temper, started to beat him. A number of men rushed toward him with the intention of stopping him when his arms were suddenly arrested in midair. The would be resisters paused, too, and looked. Standing close by the man was a little girl, of not more than four years—just looking—looking. Not a word was spoken; no pen could describe the look on the little one's face, but the heavy driver stopped his beating and spoke kindly to his horse. Strangely, too, the horse mored, and there was no trace of the incident except a dark underneath the driver's tan, a few damp eyes among the spectators and a happy smile on the little girl's face

Ireland's Shamrock.

The shamrock of Ireland is an indigenous species of clover which trails along the ground among the grass in meadows. The trefoil leaves are not more than one-fourth the size of the smallest clover in America and are pure green in color, without any of the brown shading of white and pink clovers. The creeping stem is hard and fibrous and is difficult to dislodge from the earth. On St. Patrick's day the true shamrock has to be searched out from among the grass, for though comparatively plentiful at that season, it grows close to the ground. Later it bears a tiny blossom.

Hot Air as a Polisher.

Hot air is used for polishing. The articles to be treated are placed in a basket in a centrifugal machine driven at a very high speed and heated air is blown from a pipe through the basket. A high polish is thus produced very rapidly. Nickel plated articles that have become tarnished are made bright in a few minutes. Wet metal, fresh from the bath, needs no preliminary drying, for the current of air dries and polishes it at the same moment.

Best Time For Black Bass.

Early morning is the best for black bass on smaller streams, later part of the day till sundown very good. Cloudy days midday good, especially if cool. For fly fishing for bass early morning hours and an hour before dark best time. If full moon even later gets the big ones.

"The Carnegie Foundation's recent resolution to the effect that the only way to insure a permanent world peace is to crush Germany," said Capt. W. E. Dame of the Rough Riders, in his New York office, "reminds me of the stocky, well-dressed chap in the police station.

"A big, burly drunk had been brought in on a stretcher, and the sergeant said to the stocky chap rather sternly:

"'What have you got to say for yourself?'

"'Sergeant,' said the stocky chap, 'I have merely been acting the part of a peacemaker.'

"'But, good gracious,' said the sergeant, 'you broke six of this man's ribs.'

"'It was the only way,' said the stocky chap, 'to get peace.'"—Washington Star.

HOW THE LUTZOW SANK

STORY OF JUTLAND BATTLE TOLD BY GERMAN.

The First Description of Admiral Beatty's Victory From the Point of View of the Teuton Sailors to Reach English-speaking Public Comes From The Hague.

SCENES on board the German flagship Lutzow during the Jutland naval battle, when some of the newest and largest of the German battle cruisers were battered or sunk by Admiral Beatty's British squadron in June, 1916, are vividly described by P. Krug, one of the Lutzow's survivors, in a pamphlet which has just been published at The Hague. It is believed to be the first detailed story of that great battle, from the point of view of the German sailor, to reach the public eye.

Torpedoed by a British warship early in the engagement, the Lutzow, which was the flagship of Admiral Hipper, was hammered unmercifully by the big guns of the British vessels, and soon became a complete wreck, a "ship of the dead," as Krug describes her.

According to his story, twenty-seven German sailors were trapped in the Diesel dynamo room before the battle had been long in progress and remained there when the Lutzow, a disabled hulk, was abandoned and sent to the bottom by a torpedo from a German destroyer. Two of these imprisoned men had been driven insane and were kept tied by their shipmates.

After describing the first part of the battle and telling how the arrival of British battleships turned the tables on the Germans, Krug writes:

"Suddenly the entire ship is roughly shaken. The colossus heaves far over, and everything that is not fixed is upset. The first direct hit! The torpedo pierces the fore part of the ship. Its effects are terrible. Iron, wood, metal, parts of bodies, smashed ship's implements are all interwixed, and the electric light, by chance spared, continues to shine upon this sight.

"Two decks lower, in the Diesel dynamo room, there is still life. That compartment has not been hit, and 27 men in the pride of life have been spared, but the chamber is shut off from all others, for the water is rushing into all sections. They are doomed to death. Several 38-centimeter shells squarely hit their mark, working terrible havoc. The first hits the wireless department. Of the twelve living men who a moment ago were seated before the apparatus, there is nothing more to be seen. Nothing is left but a smoking heap of ruins. The second shot pierces the fore part of the ship. The entire fore part of the vessel as far as the Diesel motor room was past saving.

"Another broadside meant for the Lutzow fell short, but a torpedo boat close by disappeared, leaving only a few odd pieces of wood and a smashed lifeboat drifting round. It is now half past seven, and the hostile circle grows ever smaller. The Lutzow and the Seydlitz lie with their bows deep in the water; both are badly mauled. The fore part of the Lutzow was in flames. Shells burst against the ship's side in rapid succession. A terrible sight is presented on board the Lutzow, and it needs iron nerves to look upon it coolly. Hundreds have lost their lives, while many have lain for hours in torture, and the fight is not yet over. The bow is now crushed in, and is entirely submerged. The four screws are already sticking half out of the water, so that the Lutzow can only make eight to ten knots an hour as against the normal 32.

The Admiral decides to transfer to the Moltke. He gives orders to turn and get away from the scene of the fight, but the Lutzow has not gone a mile before she receives a broadside of 38-centimeter shells. The entire ship was filled with the poisonous fumes of the shells, and anyone who failed to affix his gas mask was doomed to be suffocated.

"It was three-quarters of an hour before the lighting installation was restored. Then for the first time could the extent of the damage wrought by the salvo be seen. One of the shells had landed in the sick bay. Here there were three doctors and fifteen attendants besides 160 to 180 wounded. Of all these only four remained alive. These four were hurled into the next compartment by the air pressure; there they lay unconscious.

"The Lutzow was now a complete wreck. Corpses drifted past. From the bows up to the first 30-centimeter gun-turret the ship lay submerged. The other gun-turrets were completely disabled, with the guns sticking out in all directions. On deck lay the bodies of sailors in their torn uniforms in the midst of the empty shell cases. From the masts, fluttered torn flags, twisted signal lines, and pieces of wire of the wireless installation. Had not the look-out man and the three officers on the commander's bridge given signs of life, the Lutzow would have truly resembled a ship of the dead. Below, on the battery deck and in the coal bunkers, there still lay innumerable wounded, but there was no longer a doctor to attend to them.

"Night came on and hope was entertained of getting away without a further encounter. But at 3 o'clock in the night news of the approach of two British cruisers and five destroyers was received, and just at that critical time the fore and middle bulkheads gave way.

"Orders were given to carry quickly the wounded to the stern. Then the order rings out: 'All hands muster in division order abaft.' A tumult arises on the lower deck, for everybody is now bent on saving his life. It is impossible in that short space of time to bring up all the wounded, for they are scattered everywhere. Eighteen men had the good fortune to be carried up, but all the rest who could not walk or crawl had to be left behind.

"The 27 men shut up in the Diesel dynamo chamber had heard the order through the speaking-tube for help, and it was learned that two of their number lay bound because they had become insane. Inspired by their sense of duty, these sealed-up men had continued to carry on their work in order to provide the ship with light.

"The torpedo-boats now quickly took off the crew of the Lutzow, and those left behind were doomed to death. It was resolved that no piece of the vessel should fall into the enemy's hands. An order was given and a torpedo cleft the waters. Just then seven men were to be seen running like madmen round the red deck. Over-fatigued as they were, they had apparently dropped off to sleep and only just awakened. As the torpedo exploded, the Lutzow's bow quickly dipped, and the stern rose until she stood on end. Then she heeled over and sank, forming a great whirlpool that carried everything within it into the depths.

"When the roll was called it appeared that there were 1,003 survivors of the Lutzow: 597 men had perished in the battle."

"I SPY STRANGERS."

Cry Clears All But Members From House of Commons.

The cry of "Who goes home?" in Parliament comes down from the days when the highwayman and the footpad threatened the late traveler. It used to be as much as a member's life was worth—and certainly more than his pocket was worth—to go home alone. So when the hour struck there was a cry of "Who goes home?"—that parties of a dozen or more might be formed to go across the park to the corner, or to Pall Mall.

It is not generally known that a member may have all strangers ejected from the House if he wishes to be "nasty."

He has only to rise and say, "Mr. Speaker, sir, I spy strangers"—as if he had just that moment caught sight of the people in the strangers' distinguished strangers', peers', and even press galleries—and the whole lot must be turned out.

When the late King Edward was Prince of Wales he strolled into the Commons to listen to a debate, and the late Mr. Joseph Biggar, a very imp of mischief, caught sight of him. In an instant he was on his feet. "Mr. Speaker, sir, I spy strangers!" he called, and the heir-apparent to the throne had to walk out. It is more than probable that he enjoyed the joke.

Cossacks Are Not Awful.

If inclination to say a good word for Cossacks had not been a stranger to so many minds, possibly the present very obvious opportunity to do just that would not come as the surprise it does to most of us. We have been accustomed to think of the Cossacks only as the ruthless instruments of an archaic despotism—to picture them as wild horsemen riding through a crowd of helpless civilians and beating them brutally with heavy whips.

That conception, of course, is not without excuse, but, had observation been a little more careful it would, or at any rate, might have been seen that in all these cases the Cossacks were illustrating the soldierly quality of executing without question the orders that had come down to them from the commander-in-chief of the army of which they were a trusted and highly efficient part. Responsibility for their acts rested on other shoulders than their own—all of it, as responsibility is counted in every military organization—and that the Cossacks have intelligence as well as courage has been shown by the attitude which they have taken since the revolution gave them their first chance without disloyalty to act on their own judgment and initiative.

While so many other sections of the Russian army became utterly demoralized as soon as the Czar fell, the Cossacks have preserved their sense of discipline. They have indulged in no wild vagaries in regard to a ruinous and treacherous peace with the enemies of free Russia and her allies, and they have made plain their determination to support the new Government as faithfully as they did its predecessor. The address which they have sent to Petrograd contrasts most agreeably in its good sense with most of the other expressions of opinion that have come from the Russian soldiers around whose name cluster no such evil associations as around that of the Cossacks, and it is upon the latter, evidently, that the provisional government can rely most confidentially for help in carrying out its plans.—New York Times.

A CLASSIC SPOT.

Something About Ancient Plain of Thessaly.

Students of the ancient history of Greece will once more discover some use for their knowledge in viewing the Allied campaign near Salonica. Thessaly, says The Christian Science Monitor, is the district of Northern Greece between Macedonia and the more purely Hellenic section to the south, and between the hill country of Epirus and the Aegean Sea, so, at any rate, geographers would describe it. Just twenty years ago, when the Greek troops were flying in disorder across its plains, hard pressed by the victorious forces of Edhem Pasha, all the world was hearing about Thessaly.

War was doing them what it always does, that is teaching people geography, and such places as Larisa and such natural features as the Pindus Mountains, became household words; while Ossa and Pelion stepped out of the dignity of the classics into the full glare of the modern newspaper.

Now to-day, as the French forces, moving down from Salonica, cross the River Salamvria, enter Larissa, and proceed systematically to the occupation of the whole province, attention is drawn once again to this old land amid the world's old lands. Curiously enough, however, although an old land, Thessaly has no really important history, and it has never been the home of a great people. Its history, indeed, is closely connected with its geography.

The great fertile plain has ever offered a sore temptation to the people of the hills which surrounded it, and it was just this fertility which first induced the Thessalians to leave their homes in the hills of Epirus and descend into the rich country which lies, some sixty miles square, between the Cambunian Mountains on the north and Othys on the south, and between the Pindus in the west and the continuous line of Ossa and Pelion in the east.

The Thessalians, in two successive waves, drove the Boeotians and the Dorians southward, and settled in the land. That was all in the remote period before Greek civilization had begun to develop. Thessaly next came prominently into notice at that critical period in the history of classical Greece when Xerxes, with his Persian hosts, was threatening the liberties of the great city states of the peninsula. During the years that had intervened the Thessalian had waxed fat. His land was fertile, while its spacious surface presented none of those elevations so dear to the heart of the founder of warlike cities.

There was never in Thessaly anything like the great democratic city states of Greece proper. It was, on the contrary, the natural home of powerful aristocracies, and such families as the Aleuadae of Larissa, and the Scopadae of Grannon were famous in their time. Thessaly never developed the high patriotism of Greece, and so, in the time of the Persian wars, the Aleuadae of Larissa threw in their lot with the Persian against their Greek neighbors.

When a common cause did unite the oligarchies of Thessaly the combination was, of course, a powerful one. Such confederations, however, occurred but seldom, and were never lasting. So it went on all through the centuries of the Christian era. Immigrants came to the fertile lands of Thessaly from different parts of the Balkans, and the general complexion of its population was different in different centuries.

It has always, however, been very largely Greek, and even before 1881, when, in accordance with the terms of the Treaty of Berlin, the district was formally handed over to Greece by the Porte, this was so much the case that Greek was everywhere used as the official language. Greece has certainly done well by Thessaly. Trade has been fostered, and the interior of the country has been opened up by means of railways, while the port of Volo, the only outlet for trade in the whole district, has become a busy place of traffic.

Holland's Outlook Considered Ominous

"BE READY TO WARD OFF POSSIBLE TRANSGRESSIONS," SAYS QUEEN.

The Hague, September 20.—In the speech from the throne read by the Premier at the opening of the states general yesterday afternoon, Queen Wilhelmina made an appeal for the collaboration of the people, without distinction of class, "in order to maintain ourselves amidst the growing distress of the nations."

The prospects for the Winter, said the speech, were not very satisfactory. "We continue to be obliged, amid fiercely contending enemies, to hold ourselves ready to ward off possible transgressions," it continued. "It becomes continually more difficult to supply our people with the necessaries of life and the raw material for our industries. Measures will shortly be placed before you for the purpose of providing for the most urgent needs."

The speech points out that traffic between Holland and her colonies is being hampered in increasing measure, while the lack of tonnage prevents importation in adequate degree.

PUBLIC OPINION

WAR BRIDES.

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

Mars and Venus have still more than a passing acquaintance, but to many a youth and many a maid whose dream of love in a cottage is deferred the sudden mobilization is no laughing business. A woman's imagination is quick in these matters, and it does to minimize the risk. The wounded soldier is her soldier and "the white face of the uncomplaining dead" is hers. Her heart detects the sound of battle, though the Maxims are far beyond the range of the ear; her own intuitions, which she trusts beyond man's logic, are messengers of dismal tidings when naught is certainly known. Perhaps in the haste of the going and the bustle of departure a glamour attaches to the warrior exceeding the effect he produces as a mere civilian. If he seems more of a man in khaki than in mufti, that is all his gain. The girl left behind will think more of the man who goes than of the man who might go and refuses for the sake of ease or safety. Abroad they have an uncomfortable way of quizzing the man who is not at the front. Soon the tennis absentee and the cotillon slacker may become equally unfashionable here.

THE "OBSTINATE NATION."

(Christian Science Monitor.)

What saved the liberties of Europe at this juncture—Mr. Gerard makes no secret of it—was the sudden entry of England into the war. For three years the "obstinate nation" (the Kaiser's words to Mr. Gerard) has kept up the war. For three years its fleet has cleared the seas of German shipping. During three years it has built up vast armies, financed half of Europe, and instead of sending half a dozen divisions to assist France, has put into the field some millions of trained soldiers. British troops fought with the Japanese at Kai Chau. British troops pressed from the Persian Gulf into Bagdad, driving the Turks before them. British troops flung the Turks back from the Suez Canal, and advanced to the walls of Jerusalem. British troops kept the Turks busy, in the Gallipoli, during critical months, and landed at Salonika to help to hold up the Bulgarian attack. And yet the bargain with the Dual Alliance was the British fleet to aid the armies of France and Russia, and only a few divisions to reinforce the French across the channel. No man living knows the story of the German conspiracy, and how it miscarried, more completely than Mr. Gerard. And the story of that conspiracy, as he is telling it to the world to-day, is something that should be known by the world.

PLATINUM PROFITS.

These agents in two years have purchased platinum valued at $43,500, which cost the jeweller a little over $10,000 to obtain.

THE WORLD'S BEST SELLER.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

It is interesting to learn that the American Bible Society's presses have been running sixteen hours a day since May 1, and that, while 400,000 copies of the Bible have been printed in the meantime, the concern is still a long way behind its orders. These orders include 1,000,000 Bibles for the Y. M. C. A. That organization recently, it is said, searched high and low in an unsuccessful effort to obtain 500,000 pocket Testaments for soldiers. The New York Bible Society is appealing for funds with which to purchase Bibles for the army and navy. According to authorities on the subject, even with the war demand left out of the account, there never was a time when the Book of Books was more popular in the United States than it is to-day.

Help to Save Canada's Fruit Crop

A Practical Thrift Suggestion

This year, as never before, every quart of Canada's fruit crop should be used to the very best advantage. Though it all ripens within four months, it can be made to supply every table, every day in the year, at moderate cost.

Canning and preserving, done at home at the time when each fruit is cheapest, provide in delicious and economical form the daily fruit so necessary in a wholesome diet. Fruit put up at home is much cheaper than that which you buy, and the slight increase in its cost, due to the higher price of sugar, is small compared with the mounting cost of other foods.

Successful preserving and canning are by no means difficult, either, if you are careful to boil everything, and use

BRITISH CONSOLIDATE THEIR POSITIONS AFTER YESTERDAY'S COMPLETE VICTORY

Local Attacks Cleared Up a Number of Strong Points and Completed the Capture of Objectives Field Marshal Haig Announces---Many German Counter Attacks Caught in the Open Were Repulsed With Heavy Losses.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 21.—A later report issued by Field Marshal Haig is as follows:

During the evening, local attacks delivered by us in the neighbourhood of lower hamlets and northeast of Langemarck cleared up a number of strong points and completed the capture of our objectives in these localities. It is now established that in many counter attacks delivered by considerable forces of the enemy during the afternoon and evening his casualties were unusually great. The clear light of day enabled our troops to obtain warning of impending attacks and in every case the advancing lines of German infantry were destroyed by concentrated fire from our rifles and machine guns.

The obstinacy with which the enemy constantly repeated his attacks only added to his losses without recovering for him any of the valuable ground which we had won. Exhausted by his previous efforts the enemy made no counter attacks during the night, and our troops were able to consolidate the positions undisturbed. Our own losses in the battle were light.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 21.—This afternoon's advises announce the resumption of the British attacks during this morning southwest of Cheluvelt where a position desired by the British was still held by the Germans. This was assaulted by the British forces which advanced to the attack at 9:20 o'clock.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 21.—A despatch from Berne, Switzerland, received by the British Admiralty through wireless press says: "Emperor William has passed through Budapest, Hungary, on his way to Sofia, the Bulgarian capital. It is believed to be the Emperor's intention to try to smooth over the difficulties which have arisen between Bulgaria and Germany. Germany and Austria have demanded military aid which Bulgaria has refused. On the other hand Bulgaria has asked similar aid which the Central Powers have refused."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, September 21.—Troops of the German Crown Prince last night attacked French positions on Mont Haut in the Champagne region, but the official statement to-day says they were repulsed with serious losses.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 21.—An explosion has occurred in a munitions factory in Ireland. Nine persons were killed and a number injured.

Illiterate Immigrants Not Desired

(Canadian Press Despatch).

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—By an overwhelming vote after a long discussion, the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress to-day passed a resolution, favouring a Government literacy test so that all immigrants shall be required to read and write in some language or tongue. Congress considered illiterate immigrants undesirable and believed that the present conditions in Europe would still further increase such immigration unless checked by Canadian law. Congress then tackled the question of soldiers' pay, and proceeded to discuss a resolution that the pay be increased to $2 a day, with a proportionate increase in separation allowances.

No Regulations To Exempt Farmers

Premier Reiterates His Statement in Regard to Rainville Letter.

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—Sir Robert Borden yesterday afternoon reiterated his statement of Wednesday that as far as the Government was concerned no regulations were in effect in regard to the exemption of farmers from military service.

In replying to Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux the Prime Minister explained that drafting of regulations was in the hands of the Advisory Military Council. He had no information that any regulations had yet been sent on to the Central Appeal Judge, by whom they must be approved.

The question arose out of the circulation of a letter among his constituents by J. H. Rainville, Deputy Speaker, assuring the farmers that they need have no fear about bringing their sons before the tribunals.

To Edmond Proulx, of Prescott, Sir Edward Kemp stated that medical officers would be attached to the mobilization centres to be established.

Korniloff To Be Tried By Jury At The Front

Petrograd, September 21.—General Korniloff, leader of the recent revolt, it has been decided definitely, will be tried by court martial with a jury. At the instance of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates the government has agreed that the trial shall be held at the front instead of in Petrograd.

Fine Stock Shown At Durham Fair

EXHIBIT OF PRESERVED FRUITS —COOKING AND FANCY WORK WAS FEATURE.

BOWMANVILLE, Sept. 20.—Another West Durham Fall Fair passed into history and it beat all former records People came long distances by automobile, there being about 400 on the grounds and near them. Weather was ideal. A prominent feature here is the exhibition in the Main Building, which this year was a distinct credit to the ladies of Durham, their displays of fancy work, domestic articles, cooking, preserved fruits, pickles, fine arts and woodwork were all very excellent. The exhibit of plants and flowers, too, was the best ever seen here.

The high standard and popularity of this Society's exhibition comes from the extensive classes of horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, taking second place only to the Canadian National in Central and Eastern Ontario. The automobile is thinning out the carriage class very rapidly and in place of 20 to 30 single drivers, as seen here ten to fifteen years ago, only three or four were in evidence yesterday, but in Clysdale, agricultural and general purpose classes the competition was of the keenest character.

Chief Thompson couldn't hear anything that sounded like cattle, but it's a great country and all that

GERMAN AGENTS MENACING THE LIFE OF THE NEW RUSSIA

Teutonic Intrigue Reaching Even Into the Winter Palace—Russia Has Reached the Reign of Terror Period To-day

EXECUTIONS DEMANDED

(By Wm. C. Shepperd, Copyright 1917.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 21.—Russia has reached the "reign of terror" period to-day. To-day the cry is for blood, for wholesale executions.

Bolsheviki members of the Petrograd Council of Workmen and Soldiers are demanding the lives of former Foreign Secretary Paul N. Miliukoff, Michael Rodzianko, President of the Duma, and twenty other Duma members.

Nothing could more strikingly show the horrible distortion of the mental perspective developed by German propoganda of incalculable strength, than this growth of the guillotine spirit in Russia. The Bolsheviki are pacifists, they demand universal brotherhood and an end of killing. To ensure this they demand executions.

Germany's propaganda, more than Germany's armies, menaces the life of Russian democracy to-day.

The Teutonic intrigue is reaching even into the winter palace to attempt Premier Kerensky's life.

It tempted Korniloff to revolt. It is spreading unbelievably scandalous story of Russia's great leaders to create dissension in the new democracy.

It had succeeded in befuddling the Russian public almost to the point of hopelessness when I left—to the point where the insane cry is for blood.

Russia's armies are holding at bay ninety and a half divisions of German troops, 1,857,000 men, while Germany concentrates on her intrigue. Russian army officers are keeping together enough of their forces to stop the German war machine. They are super heroes.

At home, Premier Kerensky is an open target for a concentrated campaign of malignant villification, scandal, intrigue, and even attempted assassination.

Not alone have the German agents attacked Kerensky by word of mouth. They even sought his life.

The winter palace, a dreadful memory of the old autocracy days, is to-day a gruesome place of death and tragedy and mystery. Its lower windows are now all blown out. Lower rooms, close to where Kerensky works, were charred in a mysterious fire two weeks ago.

At the time when Korniloff was marching on Petrograd, German agents spread the report that the British government favoured his revolution and the pulling down of Kerensky. How well they did this work is indicated in the fact that the British government actually sent a guard of sixty soldiers to the Embassy, fearing possible attacks by Russians enraged at the thought that Kerensky was menaced.

The arm of the German secret service even reached out to Russian Grand Army Headquarters. Gen. Korniloff himself was deluded into the belief that all Allied ambassadors would favour his revolutionary move. This belief was in no small measure responsible for his open rebellion. And Korniloff's bitter enmity towards Germany is known to every Russian.

Apparently capital punishment in the whole army has been abolished. Premier Kerensky finds it impossible further to carry out his policy of iron handed discipline in the army. Capital punishment has again been put into the hands of the Soldiers' committee and that means its total abolition.

Kerensky's bravery and idealism in the face of unparalleled criticism, slander and attacks on his life, is unquestioned. But his surrender of concessions to the Bolsheviki, the fanatical extremist group, who at any time may start an armed demonstration in favour of peace, is injuring the progress of the war.

Dozens of British Ships Saved By Smoke-box System

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The Press Association hears on high naval authority that the new defensive measures against submarine warfare are meeting with success, justifying the hope of a further reduction in the losses, and says it can be stated on official authority that the results of the past month give cause for growing confidence.

According to an Admiralty statement dozens of ships have been saved by the smoke-box system, which the Admiralty during the past few months has supplied a majority of British merchantmen.

FIRST CALL WILL BE MADE EARLY NEXT MONTH

OTTAWA, September 20.—Although a final decision has not yet been reached, it is understood that, according to present plans, the Government will issue the first call under the military service act some time during the first week in October. The machinery for enforcing and administering the act is being speeded up as rapidly as possible, and by the end of next week it is expected that all the Local Exemption Tribunals will have been named and ready for business. The regulations by order in Council governing the details of the administration of the act will then be promulgated.

Within a month from the calling of the first class, namely, unmarried men and widowers without children between the ages of 20 and 34, the Government expects to secure 25,000 men. This will be, according to present plans, the limit of the first draft of the hundred thousand men to be ultimately secured under the act. The second 25,000 will probably not be called to the colours until after the New Year.

First Duty Of Class One Men Is To Be Examined Immediately

Registrar For the Province Says Medical Sheet Must Accompany Claim For Exemption---Capt. K. C. McPherson of the Dominion Executive of the Great War Veterans in the City---To-day's General Military News.

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—More and more must it be impressed upon the men in class one, under the military service act, that before he reports for service (which means sending in his name on a form supplied for that purpose by the post-office), or applies for exemption, he must undergo a medical examination before a duly qualified medical board. The reason for that is, that after his medical examination is completed, the draftee is given a copy of his medical sheet, which gives the particulars of his examination, and that copy must be attached to the report for service or the application for exemption, as the case may be.

Emphasis is laid upon this point because according to Mr. Glyn Osler, Registrar for the Province under the act, already applications giving detailed reasons for exemption have been forwarded to him, apparently in good faith. These applications are of no use, and no application for exemption should be made until the proclamation is issued. It is not known when the proclamation will be issued, but when it comes it will be plain enough that every person will recognize it.

Medical Examination First.

Mr. Osler outlined yesterday the procedure for a person who wishes to apply for exemption, and how to do it, when the proclamation has bee issued. There is a regular form, that can be obtained from any post-office, and is filled in, and handed back to the postmaster. It must be remembered that when this application for exemption is handed in again to the postmaster, it must contain with it the medical sheet of the applicant. The person who gives in his application to the postoffice receives in exchange a counterfoil, which is in effect, a receipt, and, until he gets a certificate of exemption, is his only proof that he has applied for exemption. Certain authorized persons, probably the police, can demand of any likely-looking man at any time after the proclamation has been issued, proof that he has reported for service or applied for exemption, and, if he is in the first class, it might be very inconvenient if he could not produce the counterfoil.

Handling the Applicants.

All applications will be sent to Mr. Osler, and he and his staff will sort them out and allocate each man to his proper tribunal. The guiding principle of allocation will be to have each man appear before the tribunal nearest to him, but, as Mr. Osler pointed out, with so much arrangement in a short time, there probably will be cases where men will have to go a longer distance than they should in order to appear before a tribunal, and they will have to make the best of it. The Registrar will say as to the tribunal before which each man will appear, and there will be no appeal from his choice, although of course an appeal from the decision of the tribunal is permissible.

Government to Have Counsel.

Mr. Osler states that as far as he knows, an applicant cannot be represented by counsel before the Exemption Board. Before each tribunal however, will be a representative of the military authorities, who will have in his possesson such knowledge as Ottawa has of each applicant, and who will plead that he be not exempted. He my even have the right of cross-examining the applicant. Mr. Osler pointed out that this representative would really present the Government side of the case, and that this person, if he thought that the applicant should be exempted, would say so, and would not oppose the application. In England there is counsel for both the Government and the applicant, but aparently for Cnaada the aplicant must conduct his own case. The applicant must also pay his own expenses which, of course, will only be for lost time, as the hearing of his case costs nothing. It is thought that all hearings will be private.

Business Grounds Exemption.

Employers can apply for exemption for employees, but separate applications must be made for each individual, and be accompanied by each individual's medical history. Mr. Osler was of the opinion that cases for exemption on personal or domestic grounds would be decided before cases for exemption on business grounds. This order of procedure will be followed, because a man exempted on personal grounds would be found able to take the place of a man who otherwise would be exempted on business grounds. Thus, the number of exemptions would be reduced.

It is understood that the Government has under consideration some method whereby men who lose time and money coming to a Medical Board for examination will be repaid for their loss. Just how this will be done has not been worked out in detail.

The important thing for the man who is soon to be called up to remember is that he must be medically examined before he applies for exemption or reports for service, and that applications for exemption are good only on the forms provided by the postoffice, and which will not likely be available for use until after the proclamation is issued.

Big Victory For The British In Flanders

BRITISH BARRAGE THE MOST DEADLY OF THE WHOLE WAR

Five Distinct Lines of Fire Made a Veritable Loom of Death Ahead of the Advance—Air Nearly Clogged With Shells.

AN INFERNO OF STEEL

(By William Philip Simms, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 21.—Behind an inferno of bursting steel, British troops "carried on" still further to-day into German positions along the Ypres-Menin Road. Probably the greatest artillery duel of the whole war raged last night over the eight miles on which Field Marshal Haig's troops struck early yesterday morning. The Germans poured a terrific barrage to cover the counter attacks, and the British interposed a wall of shells before the enemy's advances, or ahead of their own troops.

Shaken German prisoners examined to-day after the first sweep of the great offensive declared the British barrage fire heralding the infantry assault was the most deadly in the history of the war. The first push carried the British forward nearly a mile.

The British were not content with a single wall of bursting shells ahead of their troops. Not even two or three or four walls was enough—but actually five distinct lines of fire were thrown to pulverize resistance. With almost superhuman ingenuity the five lines of fire were made to merge in forward and backward and sideway sweeps.

It was a veritable "loom of death" weaving its terrors further and further into the enemy lines. Barrage passed through barrage until it seemed the air was clogged with shells.

A STUBBORN RESISTANCE.

The Germans everywhere put up stubborn resistance, especially from dugouts and machine-gun emplacements of concrete, which had survived the terrific barrage fire. The enemy's guns retaliated heavily in spots, especially on the ends and to the right of the attacking centre.

Inverness Copse, Glencorse Wood, Nonnebosscher Wood and Dumbarton Lakes were scenes of particularly fierce fighting. The enemy were keenly alive to the importance of holding the heights which formed the centre of the attack, and they struggled desperately against the British wave. Unlike previous offensive blows struck recently, the British used very they were not needed as the depth of ourable for their utilization. Also few tanks. The ground was not favthe British artillery fire was greater than has hitherto been seen anywhere in the war.

GROUND WAS HEAVY.

The ground over which the attack was made was heavy. Showers during the night made the going even heavier. Throughout the morning the clouds hung only six hundred feet above the ground, and a high wind whipped a stinging mist in the faces of the fighters.

According to pre-arranged plans great numbers of British airmen participated in the attack. They earned the right to be called "aerial cavalry" hereafter. At five hundred feet altitude and less during the thickest of the infantry fighting they swooped above the German lines watching for open bodies of troops, and finding them, ducked down sometimes so low that their wheels seemed almost to touch the helmets of the Teutons, their machine guns spattering death.

It was the first battle in which the airmen were formally assigned to the task of machine-gunning infantry.

HARMONY IN DRESS

Styles are being followed out now-a-days in every article of dress, and especially for the street the entire costume from head to foot is arranged to harmonize correctly. Millinery is not the only part of an outfit given particular attention; the shoes are now as important as the hat. To meet this special demand, D. Zacks has a particularly fine line of ladies' fall and winter boots in the wanted shades, pretty styles, and any heel desired, at surprisingly low prices. GEN. HAIG'S REPORT

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Sept. 20. —(By the Associated Press). — The British at daybreak to-day launched a heavy offensive against the German defences about the Ypres salient along an extended front, which has its centre around Inverness Copse, and astride the Ypres-Roulers road, a little south-east of Langemarck. From the first moment of going over the top the assault proceeded with marked success, especially in the crucial sector between the Ypres-Roulers Railway and Hollebeke, where the British early in the day had forced their way forward over marshy ground and through woods filled with machine guns to a considerable depth, and were continuing the bitter fight in the neighbourhood of the famous Inverness Copse, Nun's Wood and Glencorse Wood, where much blood has been shed since the Allies began the battle of Flanders on July 31.

An Important Advance.

If the attacking forces maintain the positions to which they have advanced in this section, they will have accomplished one of the most remarkable and most important achievements in recent months. The German infantry made the most determined resistance in their attempt to retain this vital ground, and their artillery retaliated heavily against the British big guns.

This phase of the battle of Flanders, which bids fair to become known as the battle of Menin Road, because it centres in the territory astride the Menin Road, began at 5.40 o'clock. The infantry advance was preceded by a barrage of greater depth than ever before witnessed. Five distinct barrages, in fact, were dropped ahead of the men as they began their journey into this difficult terrain. The tremendous curtain of bursting steel did its work well, and the troops pushed forward rapidly toward their objectives.

Fair weather lately had improved the ground somewhat, but the mud still lies deep over wide reaches of it, and the whole territory is covered with water-filled shell holes, tangled barbed wire and shattered trees. The German defences consisted largely of concrete redoubts scattered in profusion over the entire country, and from these they have been able to pour a wicked stream of bullets into the ranks of the advancing troops. Every little elevation also hold its machine gun emplacements, and all the woods were literally choked with rapid-firers.

Magnificent Artillery Work.

The British encountered hard fighting at many places, but the magnificent artillery preparation had done much to make the first stage of their drive easier. The past week must have been one of misery for the German troops lying out in this section. A great number of big guns have been pouring a steady stream of high explosive shells into their territory, and every now and then the British have put down a barrage which swept the land like a broom. It is known that many German batteries have been silenced in the past few days.

The Germans knew that an attack was coming, but it appears that they were unaware of the exact locality, at least until the time for the offensive arrived. A light rain fell last night, but it cleared this morning, and the visibility is improving.

GENERAL HAIG'S REPORT.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The text of the report of Field Marshal Haig to-night follows:

"Our attack this morning east of Ypres was made on a front of about eight miles, between the Ypres-Comines Railway and the Ypres-Staden Railway. Great success attended our troops, and positions of considerable military importance have been won. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy.

"The assembling of the regiments detailed for the attack was carried out without incident, although rain fell steadily during the night. Our first objectives, captured at an early hour, included a number of concreted strong points and fortified farms, for the possession of which heavy fighting had taken place during previous attacks.

"North Country regiments carried the Inverness Copse. Australian troops stormed Glencorse Wood and Nonneboshen. Scottish and South African brigades took Potsdam, Vampire and Borey Farms. West Lancashire Territorials carried Iberian Farm, and the strong point known as Gallipoli. Our troops then advanced to assault their final objectives.

Reached Final Objectives.

"On our right English county troops reached the line of their final objectives after sharp fighting in the woods north of the Ypres - Comines

PLAYING AT PATRIOTISM AND WORKING AT POLITICS.

It did not need the fact of Deputy Speaker Rainville, an old associate of Henri Bourassa, sending broadcast through Quebec a letter intimating that he was authorized to assure the people that the government would make concessions in regard to the exemption from conscription, "to farmers' sons and industrials" to show that the government is playing at patriotism and working at politics—party politics. The government by promising and encouraging anti-British Nationalism, soured the public spirit of Quebec against recruiting, and the government's policy of conscription tended to alienate Quebec support at the polls. Now it seems, if the Rainville incident is reliable, that while conscription is to be ruthlessly applied elsewhere, its conditions in the Province of Quebec are mollified, if not nullified, in the interest of lining up the electors on the government side in the coming general election.

The government appeals for soldiers in the name of patriotism, but like the politician in respect of a voter, it seems to have little use for him after he has done his bit, and comes home in bits. At any rate party interests seem to have first call. As early as June the government tabled a resolution preliminary to soldiers' pension legislation, but that has been neglected, as the interests of the returned soldiers seem to have been neglected, till the fag end of the session, and then only to be held over, like the repentance of Felix, under the reasoning of St. Paul, "till a more convenient season"—after the elections.

We couldn't wait for soldiers till after an election, but the soldiers who have filled the breach, and got done up in the process, can wait for a fair recognition of their services. The Pension Act had to wait—more important legislation—in a party sense—more productive of the "sinews" had to be attended to. Much time was occupied in the Northern Railway Railway legislation and the Quebec and Saguenay legislation, one of these measures so flagrant that it would not bear discussion, and had to be forced through by the use of the gag. We had a perfectly good Franchise Act, but it hadn't enough party "side" to it, and a disfranchising measure took up more time than three Soldiers' Pension Bills—a win-the-election franchise bill that also would not bear discussion and was jammed through in party interests, while the soldiers' interests were shelved—cold-shouldered into cold storage. That was a small matter—the partizan election machinery was made so much all right that Premier Borden is credited with telling a final pre-election caucus—

"We have prepared the machinery for the winning of the election. ....It is for each one of you to see that that machinery is worked out to your advantage."

The government closes its career on the eve of a war-time appeal to the confidence of the people, not in a burst of patriotism but in chuckling congratulations over the perfection of its sinister "machinery" to win a party advantage.

Premier Borden promises the franchise to women after the election — "How to cook a hare: first, catch the hare."

A LESSON IN SACRIFICE.

The Ottawa Journal-Press, not unfriendly to the government's proteges, the food profiteers, has the following:

"A friendly mathematician has figured out that Sir Joseph Flavelle's personal income from the pork packing business for the last year, was a trifle over $15 an hour, or 25 cents a minute, night and day, Sundays and week days. Figuring on a basis of a 48-hour week his wage was $53 an hour. It is to be hoped that Sir Joseph had other sources of revenue.

Surely, when we see what sacrifices some are making for the cause, we can submit with better grace to the Food Controller's demand for short rations, meatless days, and green fodder menus.

The recipes for Apple Tapioca Pudding, Escalloped Potatoes and Bran Gems, mentioned above, are as follows:—

(Wheat and meat saving recipes by Domestic Science Experts of the Canadian Food Controller's Office.)

Apple Tapioca Pudding:—
3-4 cup pearl or 1-2 cup minute tapioca.
Cold water.
2 1-2 cups boiling water.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
7 sour apples.
1-2 cup sugar.

Soak the tapioca an hour, and cook it in a double boiler. Pare and slice the apples and arrange in a buttered pudding dish. Add the sugar, pour over the tapioca, and bake in a moderate oven until the apples are soft. Serve with sugar and cream. Minute tapioca requires no soaking.

Escalloped Potatoes:—

Butter a baking dish well. Put in a layer of potatoes, sliced thinly. Sprinkle with salt, and pepper, and dredge with flour. Repeat. Add milk until it may be seen through the top layer. Add bits of butter. Bake in the oven until the potato is soft.

Bran Gems:—
1 1-2 cup of flour.
3-4 cup of bran.

1-3 cup molasses.
3-4 teaspoon soda.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons melted dripping.

Mix and sift dry ingredients; add milk to molasses, and combine mixtures; then add butter.

The Cold Storage Interests And The Consumers' Interests

Pending the report of the Cold-storage Commission on the trading figures supplied by the Manager of the William Davies Company, the public will not rest satisfied with vague and indefinite replies to questions that demand an answer. Facts have been brought to light in the course of the inquiry that involve the Minister of Finance as well as the William Davies Company in responsibility for the writing off in the past two years of $547,591, not charged to costs, on which no war tax was levied. A searching scrutiny must be made of the justice of this transaction. For the five years, 1913-17, the company set aside a total of $834,000 for reserve fund, in addition to very considerable sums written off against depreciation of plant and buildings. The transfer in war times of three-quarters of a million dollars to reserve fund in two years is a startling disposal of excessive profits which the Finance Minister, as well as the William Davies Company must be asked to justify. It is not overlooked by the public that beneath the maze of figures salient facts emerge that place the William Davies Company on its defence. What were the net profits of the company for 1917? This is the point on which the public eye is fixed. The deductions made by the company under the head of reserve fund, depreciation, bonuses, etc., are well known methods of disposing of excessive profits. Are these "deductions" warranted, in view of the sacrifices which other citizens are called upon to make for the Allied cause, and in view of the prohibitive prices of bacon, ... have gone to swell these bloated profits? The whole question at issue between the Davies Company and the public is summed up in the profits for 1917, which the Commission's auditor reports to have been $1,827,494, or ninety per cent. of the company's capital of $2,000,000. Just what deductions could legitimately be made from this sum for depreciation and other charges is a question the commission must decide, in view of its bearing upon the profits tax. The next point on which the public calls for searching investigation is the question of the relations between the Davies Company and its "worst competitors," the Harris Abattoir Company. So far as these relations have been revealed by the evidence of Mr. Fox it appears to the public as a case of competition between the right hand and the left. The case presented by the Davies Company is unsatisfactory in the extreme.

But the William Davies Company does not stand alone at the bar of public opinion. Had Canada followed the lead of other belligerent countries it would have been impossible for this cold-storage monopoly to set aside half a million dollars as a reserve fund in this fourth year of war. The failure of the Borden Government to conscript excessive profits, and to place wealth as well as men at the service of the nation in this war, is responsible for the huge profits made out of the food of the people. The Cold-storage Commission is a government order to shut the stable door after the horse has been stolen. The public will await the finding of this Commission, but will that report, like the report on the high cost of living, pigeon-holed two years ago, be followed up by government inaction? There does not seem to be much hope of obtaining any redress from the present government, if its attitude as to the duties of the Food Controller may be taken as a guide to its intentions. There would have been no need for a Cold-storage Commission were the Government sincere in its professions of sympathy with the harassed consumer. All that the country insists upon in the protection of the public from the profiteers could have been carried out by a Food Controller who lived up to his autocratic and high-sounding title. As matters stand the control of food in Canada is in the hands of owners of cold-storage plants.

What has the government done to relieve the consumer and to restore freedom of trade? It appoints a Food Controller to whom is delegated the power to regulate prices. Has the Food Controller done aught to alleviate the distress, beyond an appeal to the public to eat less bacon? When is the Food Controller going to tackle the only practical plan for controlling the cold-storage controllers—the regulation of prices? In no other way can the law of supply and demand be released from cold-storage where it has been incarcerated for years. Why has the government failed to make the delegated functions of the Food Controller operative? Can any valid excuse be offered for the remissness of Sir Robert Borden in the urgent matter of the high cost of living? Are he and his Government so completely under the thumb of the Big Interests that no action dare be taken to alleviate the hardships under which the people are suffering at the hands of war profiteers? These are questions that must be answered. — The Globe.

Annual Harvest Festival Service In St. George's Church

Inspiring Sermon by the Bishop of the Diocese—Apostle Paul's Three Exhortations

The annual Harvest Festival service was fittingly observed last evening in St. George's church, Braidwood Avenue. The church which was appropriately decorated for the occasion was filled to capacity. Included in the gathering was a representation of St. John's, St. Luke's and All Saint's churches. Special music was provided by the choir. The service was conducted by the Rev. James Price, Rector of St. George's church, assisted by the Rev. William Archbold of St. John's church and a number of lay readers. The Right Rev. J. F. Sweeny, Bishop of the diocese preached the harvest festival sermon which was based on the apostle Paul's injunction found in the fifth chapter of the first apistle to the Thessalonians, sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth verses.

"Rejoice evermore."

"Pray without ceasing."

"In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

APPRECIATION.

In his opening remarks, Bishop Sweeny publicly expressed his appreciation of the good work being accomplished by the lay workers of the city, whom he had the pleasure of meeting earlier in the day. The speaker also warmly commended on the librality of the late Dr. George Burnham, who in his will provided substantial sums for each of the Anglican churches of the city, including five hundred for St. George's church. "Would to God that many more people would be so influenced in this and other places," said the speaker in commenting upon the great burden that confronts the church of to-day. Bishop Sweeny compared the Book of God with the fruits of the harvest.

The great apostle was a man who practiced what he preached, said the speaker, in referring to the letters of the Apostle Paul. It is very remarkable that Paul in his writings should say "rejoice evermore," when we consider the trials and tribulations through which he passed.

Paul was thrown into prison, yet he sang and prayed in the prison cell. Of course, he practiced what he preached. It is easy to keep smiling when everything looks bright, but it is more difficult to smile and rejoice under adverse conditions as did the apostle Paul.

"Pray without ceasing," said the apostle Paul. Don't be content with the prayer of the morning and evening or even the small prayer which some of you may utter during the noon hour. Pray at all times and with a heart full of thankfulness for God's abundant mercies. I take it that Paul intended that our whole life should be one upbreathing of prayer and offering of thankfulness.

THANKFULNESS

"In everything give thanks," was Paul's third exhortation. Thankfulness is one of the special things for which we are gathered together this evening. In this pretty church decorated with the fruits of the harvest, I believe that the abundant harvest is in a measure due to the wave of special prayers offered by the churches throughout the Province during the seedtime and harvest periods. We must not think that our thanks are due only on this occasion but at all times. In this time of stress and struggle there has never been a time when our prayerful thanks were more needed."

During the course of the service it was intimated that an addition would be made to St. George's church in the near future. At the present time the parish is depleted of its eligible male members, owing to the demands of war.

"PRETTY BABY" MAKES A HIT

Jimmie Hodges and Jean Tynes Turn Them Away

(From the Cleveland Press).

With the eccentric nut comedian, Jimmie Hodges, as the central laugh figure supported by his lovely co-star, Jean Tyne, and a big time company, including a wealth of feminine beauty "Pretty Baby" is the ear tickling, eye pleasing farce with music which is opening the season at the New Palace. Scores were turned away last night, unable to gain admittance to the theatre as the house was over sold before the performance even started.

"Pretty Baby" is a high speed combination of fun, girls, song, dance and scenic spectacles. One of the biggest scenes is the patriotic number in which each branch of the service, including the Red Cross and finally General Pershing and President Wilson are presented while a swinging war song, "Hello France," is being sung.

Hodges is a nut comedian of the best school. He has the trick of making his freakish observations seem extemporaneous which of course makes them all the funnier. while in Jean Tynes, the company is graced by a girl of great personal beauty, possessing a charming singing voice. Elmer Condy, the black face funster, Al Garbelle, the light comedian and dancing demon, and Norman Coudy, a remarkable basso, are some of the other principals whose work makes "Pretty Baby" a big time musical comedy.

City Foreman Is Fully Convinced

Suffered Twenty-five Years and Spent Hundreds Without Relief

"My first bottle of Tanlac convinced me that I had found the right medicine at last, for although I had suffered for twenty-five years, and had spent hundreds of dollars in a vain search for health, a few bottles of this wonderful preparation have entirely relieved me of all my troubles, was the remarkable statement made by Thomas Simms, city foreman of concrete construction work and residing at 96 Edinburgh Avenue, Hamilton, the other day.

Ever since my stomach got in such a terrible condition, continued Mr. Simms, I have been spending money and trying everything I could hear of to get my health back. I even tried specialists abroad without getting well. My appetite failed entirely and I just had to force down everything I ate. My wife had a hard time trying to fix up something that I could eat with safety, for strong foods, such as meats, potatoes, would make me miserable for hours. After eating anything I would swell up so with gas that I would almost choke. My heart would flutter and act so strangely that I was greatly alarmed. I was constantly belching up sour, undigested food, and many a time cramps in my stomach would almost draw me double, actually had to give up two different jobs on account of my shape.

When I read in the papers where Tanlac relieved Mr. McKeenan, after he had suffered for twenty years, I felt encouraged to get me a bottle. It wasn't long before I felt my appetite returning and I was enjoying my meals for the first time in many years. I have taken four bottles in all and I can now eat anything I want, meats, potatoes, and other things I wouldn't have dared to touch a few weeks ago, and I never have any trouble with gas or anything else. Those swellings never bother me, my heart is acting all right, my indigestion seems to be entirely gone and I am felling better in every way than I have in many a year. I have taken Tanlac laxative tablets, too, and they act more like nature than anything else I have ever tried.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by Warne Drug Co., Limited, in Havelock, by A. C. Denike.

FOOD NECESSITIES LACKING IN OSTEND

HAVRE, Sept. 20. — Milk, butter, eggs and vegetables are not obtainable in Ostend, Belgium, according to a deserter from the German army, who has arrived here. Meat is scarce and when obtainable the administration of the commune distributes seventy-five grammes weekly to each person. Coffee, he says, brings 25f. a kilogram and sugar is not obtainable. Three hundred grammes of bread is distributed daily to each person by the American Relief Commission.

The residents of Ostend, he adds, are depressed by the misery they are undergoing, but are always hopeful of victory. The general morale of the population is good.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

The Advance Of Leather

What Figures Show

Since war was declared over 25,000,000 pairs of men's boots have left America, and with the United States now in it they will need at least 4,000,000 pairs for their army and 850,000 pair for the navy.

Leather for harness since war was declared by the United States over $20,000,000.00 worth of orders have already been placed, and these are but a few of a long series of extra demands begun five years ago, and coupled with a cutting off of supply brought about by war conditions, together with the increased cost of living, they have raised the price of calf skin and sole leather over 100 p.c. in that short time.

Linings, thread, laces, stains, blackings, gums and polishes, which all play an important part in the making of shoes are all higher, some several hundred per cent. Labour and overhead expenses have gone steadily up. In view of these facts is it any wonder that you are asked to pay more for your shoes.

Mr. Wyatt Goes to The Globe Tailoring Co.

Mr. Joseph L. Wyatt, the well-known merchant tailor of East City, recently accepted a position with the Globe Tailoring Co., corner of George and Brock Streets, and commenced his duties a few days ago. Mr. Wyatt assumes the duties of local manager for the Globe Co., and will have full charge of the ordered work and sales of the store. Mr. Wyatt brings with him to the Globe the benefit of his long years of experience in the merchant tailoring business which he has carried on in his own tailor shop in East City. Patrons of the Globe Tailoring Co. will thus have the services of a practical tailor to take their measures and advise with them relative to all orders left for suits and overcoats, and give advice as to the quality of clothes and details of making.

Banquet Tendered To Bishop Sweeny

Empress Hotel Was the Scene of An Informal Gathering

In connection with the harvest Thanksgiving services held at St. George's Anglican church, South Peterborough last evening, a dinner was tendered at the Empress Hotel at 6 o'clock, as a welcome and reception to His Lordship, the Bishop of Toronto (Dr. Sweeny.)

There were present, the Lord Bishop of the diocese, the guest of honour, the Rev. Jas. Price, Rector of St. George's, Mr. W. F. Johnston and Dr. Holloway, churchwardens of St. John's Anglican church and the following lay readers and assistants: Messrs. C. Spence in charge of the Brownton Anglican Mission of St. Alban's, T. Grieves, A. Kingdon, F. Russell, Stewart and J. J. Turner.

A very pleasant hour was spent, after which a half-hour was devoted to general and informal conversation; at the conclusion of which the party was motored to the church of St. George, to take part in the Thanksgiving service, by Messrs. Muldrum and Turner, returning in same in motor to the Empress Hotel at the conclusion of the service.

YOUNGSTER IS PAINFULLY HURT

Donald Davidson, the ten year old son of Mr. Archie Davidson, 22 Rubidge street, was the victim of an unusual and painful accident at the C.P.R. freight sheds yesterday afternoon. The little fellow had been watching the operation of unloading a freight car and finally realizing that he was late for his papers, started to run over to George street. In his hurry he tried to run between two freight cars and struck his head on a protruding piece of iron, with the result that he sustained a deep gash across his forehead, which bled freely. P. C. Blade secured a car and took the injured boy to Dr. Harvey's office, where his wound was dressed, four stitches being required to close the wound. The little fellow was then taken to his home.

'Miracle Girl' Gives Army Edison to 3rd Regiment. N. G. J. N.

ASHBURY PARK, N.J.—Anna Case, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., who sings exclusively for the New Edison Recording Laboratories, on Saturday presented an Army and Navy Model to the Third New Jersey Regiment of which Colonel Thomas D. Landon is head. Miss Case motored to Sea Girt, where the regiment is in camp, and surprised the "boys of the Third" with a "war phonograph" and a number of records. She sang "Our America," a song of her own composition, arranged for by the band by Bandmaster Stark of the Edison Storage Battery Band, and the "Star Spangled Banner." She also sang in direct comparison with her own voice as recreated on the New Edison. The soldiers made it the big day of the year at Sea Girt. Colonel Landon showered praises upon Miss Case for her gift, and particularly dwelt upon her career. Being a New Jersey girl, the gift was considered more appropriate for a New Jersey Regiment said the Colonel. Then he told them of the plucky fight Miss Case made and of her being proud of her humble origin. She is the daughter of a blacksmith and he said she is not afraid to let it be known. Governor Edge introduced Miss Case to the Camp. She was taken on a tour of inspection by Colonel Landon who pointed out the camp kitchen and other interesting sights. Thursday she was the guest of Governor Edge at dinner.

Call in and hear some of the records by Miss Case on the New Edison.

IT IS UP TO THE FAIR BOARD AND CITIZENS GENERALLY

Proposition From Mr. Harold A. Morrow Gives the Central Exhibition a Decided Advantage

Mr. Harold A. Morrow, representing himself and Mr. R. A. Morrow, met a small committee of Exhibition Directors last night and made a verbal proposition regarding the Fair Grounds, which was so eminently fair and satisfactory to the Committee that nothing is left for the Directors but to take advantage of it and make the Peterborough Central the greatest Exhibition between Toronto and Ottawa. Irish blood will be added to the Board at the annual meeting and it is believed when the business men, the manufacturers and citizens generally are advised of the proposition from Mr. Morrow, which will be submitted in writing shortly, that there will be united co-operation on a very large scale to take advantage of the mutual benefits of a first-class Exhibition in this city.

Big Victory For The British

Canal and in the neighbourhood of Tower Hamlets.

"In the centre North Country and Australian battalions penetrated the German positions to a depth of over a mile, and captured the whole of their objectives, including Hamlet, Veldhock and the western portion of Polygon Wood.

"Farther north Sevenkote was captured, and London and Highland Territorials carried the second line of farms, including Rose Farm, Quebec Farm and Wurst Farm, on the line of their final objectives.

"During the morning the weather cleared, and our airplanes were able to take a more active part in the battle, indicating the position of our troops and reporting hostile concentrations to our artillery. In this way a number of German counter-attacks were broken up, while others were repulsed by the rifle and machine gun fire of our infantry.

"No accurate estimate of the number of prisoners captured can yet be given, but they are known to exceed 3,000. We also captured a few guns."

HENRY B. WALTHALL IN "LITTLE SHOES"

Charlie Chaplin in the Emigrant, One of His Latest and Best

A wonderfully good programme is being presented to-night and to-morrow at the Empire Theatre. "Little Shoes" will be found to be one of the best liked Pictures we have shown.

Is the adult's love as pure as that of the child?

Henry B. Walthall, the foremost emotional actor of the screen, was asked this question during a discussion of "Little Shoes," his current Essanay feature. He replied:

"I do not believe it is."

"Little shoes," written by Eleanor M. Ingram, the noted novelist, is a story of a love born in childhood, which kept a man and woman in the path of righteousness, finally uniting them in marriage. It presents Mr. Walthall in one of the most delightful roles of his world-famed career—that of the great lover.

Charlie Chaplin will be seen in the Emigrant, one of the latest and best of his productions.

EVANGELIST HARPER AT GOSPEL HALL

"Eternal Life in Christ." Such was the subject of the sermon preached by Evangelist Harold Harper in the Gospel Hall last evening. Reading from the lesson, John x., and taking for his text verses 10 and 11, the speaker showed conclusively man's need of life, because that, spiritually, man is dead. Physical death is the separation of the soul from the body, but spiritual death is the separation of the soul from God, its Creator. Man at one time enjoyed life toward God before the entrance of sin into the universe. But sin did its deadly work, separating man from his God. Jesus came to give life. But it could only be given on the basis of death, and that death must be of one who could bring a reconciliation between God and His sinning creatures. Jesus Christ alone could meet those conditions, being both God and man in one person. He died and rose again, and on the basis of that death and resurrection, God is giving as a free gift eternal life to any one who will accept it. It cannot be bought or prayed for, said Mr. Harper. It must be taken on God's terms, and that is to freely receive it. Those who receive the gift are eternally saved.

"What from Christ the soul can sever
Bound by everlasting bands?
Once in Him in Him forever,
Thus the eternal covenant stands;
None shall pluck thee
From the strength of Israel's hands."

Mr. Harper will speak again tonight at 8 o'clock. Come and hear the Gospel message.

WAS FOUND IN A DAZED CONDITION

Shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Donald Davidson, aged ten years, was found by P. C. Blade on the Market Square in a dazed condition. It appears that the youngster, who resides at 222 Rubidge street, had been running through the C.P.R. freight sheds when he fell and struck his forehead on the side of a freight car. The boy was removed to his home and Dr. Harvey summoned. It required four stitches to close the wound.

MANY CATTLE ARE DYING OF BLACKLEG

There Is Only One Way to Prevent This Dreaded Disease!

A great many farmers of this County have lost valuable cattle within the last few days from Blackleg. A disease which is very prevalent at this season of the year.

If cattle contract this disease there appears to be no effective remedy, and it cannot be cured. When cattle die, the carcass of the victim should be promptly burned or buried deep and covered with quick lime.

Burning is much to be preferred as a protection to surviving cattle.

There is only one sure way to prevent this disease and that is to vaccinate them and this treatment will prevent the disease in cattle, just as sure as smallpox can be prevented in people.

Either write or go to J. Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter street and you will be furnished with literature and full particulars how to prevent this dreaded disease

CHAPERONS FOR CHORUS GIRLS

Three Professional "Dragons" With the "Pretty Baby" Company

Did you ever hear of chaperons for chorus girls? No. Well, the big chorus of the "Pretty Baby" company which will appear at "The Grand" next Wednesday, Sept. 26, have chaperons, not only in New York, but when they go "on the road" as well.

There are three mothers of girls in the company, officially engaged by Jimmie Hodges, the owner of the organization, to travel with the troupe and guard the girls. They are responsible for every girl in the troupe and no girl can accept an invitation from a man, or go anywhere in a social way, without the consent of one of the chaperons.

The chaperons are Mrs. Tynes, mother of Jean Tynes, who is Mr. Hodges' stage partner; Mrs. Eviston, mother of Edna Eviston, one of the shining lights of the company; and Mrs. Howard, mother of the famous Howard sisters.

The three mothers find their task a real sinecure, for not a girl in the company has ever tried to throw off or evade their authority.

The girls understand exactly what is expected of them, and they never fail to secure the consent of one of the chaperons if she wishes to accept an invitation.

So if you want the company of one of the beauties of the "Pretty Baby" company to supper, or if you want to take her for an auto ride or to tea or luncheon, look up Mrs. Tynes, Mrs. Eviston or Mrs. Howard and state your case. They'll receive you and hear you.

Money To Influence The Congress

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Secretary of State Lansing to-day made public an astounding addition to the series of disclosures covering German intrigues in America and elsewhere, in a message sent by Count Von Bernstorff in January of this year to the Berlin Foreign Office, requesting authority to pay out $50,000 to influence Congress through an unnamed organization, apparently known to the Berlin authorities. Count Von Bernstorff indicated in his message that money had been paid this organization on former occasions to perform the same work.

MONARCH LOOKS FOR A WIFE.

Marriage With Princess of an Entente Allied Country Regarded Desirable.

ATHENS, Sept. 21.—The prospects of a matrimonial alliance for King Alexander are being widely discussed and have become an affair of State.

Since he ascended the throne and Greece joined the entente the view has been held that the marriage of the young King with a princess of one of the entente countries would be more in the interests of Greece than a private alliance. King Alexander has made it known, however, that he did not approve this view, that his desire being to marry a young Greek woman of high character, the daughter of a court official. This desire is arousing objections for reasons of State.

Canadian Food Far Too High Says The British Controller

Unnecessary Burden is Placed on the Backs of Canadian People — Baron Rhondda Virtually Makes a Demand on Mr. Hanna to End Profiteering.

UP TO MR. HANNA.

"I now am able to limit the profits derived by those engaged in the food industries of the United Kingdom. We examine the books and apply a system of cost and expense. I expect to hear that Mr. Hoover and Mr. Hanna have taken similar steps, so that we will be able to assure the people that the existing high prices of imported food do not represent profiteering."—Food Controller Rhondda of Great Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Inauguration of a new food economy campaign in Great Britain was announced to-day by Baron Rhondda, the Food Controller.

"If voluntary measures fail," he said, "I shall have no compunction in putting the nation on compulsory rations."

Baron Rhondda added that the danger of the situation did not lie in the submarine peril but in the world's shortage of cereals, meats and fats.

Baron Rhondda made this statement to correspondents here after telling them that the minimum foodstuff requirements for Canada and the United States during the forthcoming twelve months would be more than 10,000,000 tons, representing an expenditure of £250,000,000.

The Food Controller also announced measures for stabilizing the sugar trade, with a committee in New York to supervise Cuban purchases.

"The establishment of this committee and of a meats and fats executive," said Baron Rhondda, "is typical of the way in which we are all now working together to solve the allied food problem with the least possible dislocation of trade and in a united determination that the armies and civil populations shall be provided at a fair price with food enough to assure victory.

AVOID COMPETITIVE BUYING

"Most of the money is to be spent in the United States for cereals, hog products, sugar and meat. In view of the foregoing it is necessary to emphasize the vital importance of the continuance of the closest possible co-operation between Mr. Hoover, the American Food Controller and Mr. Hanna, Food Controller of Canada, and myself. Several steps in this direction have been taken. The first is the formation by France, Italy and Great Britain of a meats and fats executive. In the future all Entente allied purchases of bacon, ham, lard, butter and cheese in the United States will be pooled through this executive, thus eliminating competitive buying between the allies, which raises prices in the United States and at home.

"A special mission representing the Ministry of Food shortly will be leaving here for New York. Owen Hugh Smith, who has been Minister of Munitions, will head the mission, which will be attached to Lord Northcliffe's organization. Mr. Smith will be accompanied by various experts on food production and purchase."

Baron Rhondda also announced that Sir Joseph White Todd, a member of the British Sugar Commission, and J. R. Drake, a London broker, were going to New York as the British members of Mr. Hoover's sugar committee.

Baron Rhondda said that he welcomed the appointment of Louis F. Sheldon as representative of the United States Food Administration in London. His work already had been productive of excellent results, and Baron Rhondda suggested that Canada should make a similar appointment.

MUST REDUCE PRICES

"I hope that the exportable surplus of Canadian and American primary foodstuffs would be much larger than the present estimates as the result of the food economies by which the United States and Canadian homes are helping to win the war, just as surely as is the production of munitions," Baron Rhondda said. "Every American woman is in a position to bring the inevitable atonement for the brutal outrages in Belgium, Armenia, Serbia, and the sinking of the Lusitania and other horrors, by her day-by-day economies. They need have no fear that their sacrifices will be wasted here.

"Unless the Entente allies are able to import the supplies necessary for the armies and the populations, victory may slip from our grasp. Regarding rices of to-day, we are paying the United States and Canada more than double the range that existed before the war. I have heard it asked: 'What does that matter as long as the purchases are financed by the United States?'

"My answer is that unless prices determined upon are fair an unnecessary burden is placed on the backs of the allied Governments, European consumers, American and Canadian taxpayers and, reactively, on every food consumer in America for the sole benefit of a small section of the community.

"I am anxiously watching the price, and the available supply, across the water, of foodstuffs for cattle upon which depend largely the price of meat and bacon. Unless the existing high levels are reduced, the poorer classes in the United Kingdom, France and Italy, are faced with many privations."

Baron Rhondda said that he expected soon to register all food traders here, and that if a few persist in disobeying orders they will be struck off the list and thereby forced out of business.

Britain Wants 10,000,000 Tons Of Foodstuffs From America

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Warning that unless the allies are able to import supplies to feed the army and civilians "victory may slip from their grasp," was voiced by Lord Rhondda, Food Controller, in an interview to-day.

"Britain, during the next twelve months will require ten million tons, or a billion dollars' worth, of foodstuffs from the United States and Canada," he declared.

This great supply of foodstuffs, Lord Rhondda said, would include mostly cereals, sugar and hog products.

The Food Controller also announced measures for stabling the sugar trade, with a committee in New York to supervise Cuban purchases.

"The establishment of this committee and of a meats and fats executive," said Baron Rhondda, "is typical of the way in which we are all now working together to solve the allied food problem with the least possible dislocation of trade and in a united determination that the armies and civil populations shall be provided at a fair price with food enough to assure victory."

"You should weigh your words," said the orator's friend. "Yes," chimed in another friend; "and we don't mind if you give us short weight at that."

An evangelist was exhorting his hearers to flee from the wrath to come. "I warn you," he thundered, "there will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth."

At this point an old woman of the congregation stood up. "Sir, I have no teeth."

"Madam," returned the preacher, sternly, "teeth will be provided.' — Lehigh "Burr."

Roumanian Soldiers' Wounds Are Dressed With Sawdust

Washington, September 21. — Roumania is so short of medical supplies that wounds of her soldiers are being dressed with sawdust, says a cablegram received here from the American Red Cross Commission to Roumania which left Jassy yesterday, after being enthusiastically received at Petrograd. The cablegram adds that the Roumanian railroad system is badly crippled and that there is urgent need for ambulance transport, with drivers and mechanics.

TWO FULL MOONS THIS MONTH

First Time This Has Occurred in Eighteen Years.

Not since the year 1899 has the distinction of possessing two full moons fallen to the lot of any month. The moon's wanderings have again brought its position up to a point where it appears, in the present month, in two full phases, one on Saturday, September 1, and the other on Sunday, September 30.

The time required by the moon to complete its cycle from full moon to full moon is 29½ days. This period is called its synodic revolution, and is what we ordinarily speak of as the lunar month. This period is liable to slight variation. It sometimes amounts to a little over half a day one way or the other. A complete revolution of the nodes takes place every 18.6 years. After the lapse of this period, the motion is repeated in the same manner.

MILITARY NEWS

the public that enquiries concerning members of the Canadian expeditionary force should not be sent to the Canadian authorities in England. A deluge of such communications has been addressed thus, and it has only resulted in delay and unnecessary correspondence inasmuch as all information is sent by Canadian headquarters in England to the militia headquarters at Ottawa. All available information is despatched from London by cable to the record office at Ottawa, which is able to impart the same information from two weeks to a month earlier than could be done by the authorities overseas.

Mrs. Jos. Reynolds, 593 Patterson street, has received the following letter from her nephew, Driver Joe Reynolds, of the 4th Battery:

Dear Aunt,—Just a line to let you know that I am well, hoping you all at home are the same. Sorry for not writing sooner, but kept putting it off but finely sat down to-night. I have been on pass in England. I have been back about four weeks. I had a pretty good time ten days, but I got tired of it and was glad to get back, but wouldn't of cared if it was home. I see by the paper the other day where they were going to try and let the first contingent go home at Christmas for six weeks. That will be all right if it comes off. I was talking to a fellow yesterday. I knew his face, but I didn't know his name, so I went and asked if he was from home. He said yes, so he asked my name. I told him. He said his name was Doupe; he was a painter. I think he and Abe Duncan were in partnership. He knew Uncle Joe and Frank and Father, but he didn't know me. He was looking very old when I saw him at home and he looks much older now. It sure puts age on one if we stay here long enough. Things are pretty lively out here at present. The weather hasn't been any too good, but let us hope it will soon be over and get back to civilization again, and I have got a good story to tell. They say experience teaches, but I have paid for mine and never forget it. I have seen many a fellow fall. We have had a bad blow a few days ago. Couldn't tell you of course. Well I will close for this time as it is getting dark. I remain,

Your nephew,
Driver Joe Reynolds,

Mrs. Geo. Sadler has received the following letter in regard to the death of her son, formerly of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles:

No. 1 C. C. S.
B. E. F.
Aug. 23, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Sadler,—You will have heard long before you receive this letter of the sad death of your son, G. Sadler. He was admitted to this hospital early yesterday morning suffering from this horrible gas. He was in a state of collapse on admission here and in spite of all our efforts to restore him he passed away half an hour afterwards. I should like to offer you my very sincere sympathy in your great loss and I can feel for you very deeply for I have just lost my youngest brother in Flanders. We must, however, be glad that their sufferings are past and I am sure we can be very proud of what they have done for our Mother Country.

I said the prayers for the dying over your son and gave him God's blessing, but he was unconscious and of course suffering no pain. I laid him to rest in our cemetery yesterday afternoon. I thought of you and yours so far away and felt how much you would have liked to be there. It will comfort you to know that he had a reverent burial in as beautiful spot. His personal belongings are being forwarded.

With renewed sympathy,
Yours sincerely,
K. A. LAKE,
Church of England Chaplain.

"We are very proud of the magnificent work that the Canadian have done around Lens."

BREAD DROPPED TWO CENTS A LOAF

At a meeting of the Lindsay bakers held on Saturday night it was decided that owing to the drop in flour they would agree to sell bread at 20c per three-pound loaf.

For some weeks the grocers have been supplying the demand at the latter price and purchasing the product in Peterboro and Toronto. Quite a demand has been created for the staff of life coming from the latter places, so the Lindsay men fearing lest trade should dwindle away, took proceedings to block any further inroads of outside bakers and came down two points.

FIRST GAME IN THE WORLD'S SERIES IN CHICAGO ON OCT. 6th

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20.—When the silver half-dollar tossed by President Navin of the Detroit Club fell "tails up" after President Harry Hempstead of the New York Nationals had called "heads" the National Commission here to-day officially announced that Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago Americans, had won the toss, and had the privilege of saying where the first game of the new World's Series should be played.

Shortly afterward it was announced the series will open on the grounds of the Chicago Americans, on October 6, while the second game will be played there on Sunday, October 7. On October 8 the two ball teams will be found travelling on their way to New York, where the third and fourth games of the series will be played on October 9 and 10. October 11 will see the players travelling back westward, and the fifth game, if five games are necessary, will be played at Chicago.

Then, in case another game is found to be required, a two-day wait will take place, Saturday, October 13, and Sunday, October 14, being open, and the sixth game being played at New York on October 15.

In the toss of the coin Chicago was thrice lucky. The first toss made by Mr. Navin fell on the floor after Mr. Hampstead had called "heads," and was declared "no toss." The same thing happened to the second toss, but in each of these tosses it was found that the coin had fallen "tails." It was not until the third toss had stayed on the table that Comiskey was declared the winner.

The Commission selected Umpires O'Loughlin and Evans of the American League, and Umpires Klem and Rigler of the National League, to officiate.

That the soldiers who are now doing battle for the country, as well as those who are preparing to fight for liberty, were remembered was indicated by an announcement that a 1,000-word story will be cabled to France after each game, for the benefit of the soldiers there, while an exhibition game before the soldiers at either Fort Sheridan or Mineola, Long Island, will be played after the series is over. In addition to this a special invitation to attend all of the games will be sent President Wilson, and Generals Barry, Carter, Bell and McCain, while at the opening game in Chicago 1,500 seats have been set aside, reserved for the soldiers at Fort Sheridan. The Commission also decided to give 1 per cent. of the total of the revenue of the games to the hat and ball fund of the soldiers in France.

The headquarters of the Commission during the New York series will be at the Waldorff, and while in Chicago, at the Congress Hotel.

The admissions are as follows: At Chicago, individual box seats, $5; grand stand, reserved, $1.50; pavilion, $1; bleachers, 50c. At New York, boxes (four seats to a box), $25; upper grand stand, $3; lower grand stand (open), $2; pavilion, $1.

Rich Brewer Gets Gov't Position That Should Be Soldier's

OTTAWA, Sept. 20.—Stinging criticism of the Postoffice administration in relation to the declared policy of the Government regarding the appointment of returned wounded soldiers to positions in the civil service was made by Mr. Fred Pardee in Parliament last night, during the consideration of the Postoffice supplementary estimates.

Mr. Pardee instanced the case of the postoffice at New Hamburg, Ont. The postmaster had died, and 90 per cent. of the residents had signed a petition asking that the appointment be given to his son, who was shortly expected home from service at the front, having lost a leg and the index finger of one hand.

"That boy," said Mr. Pardee, "has, I understand, a mother and sisters dependent upon him. If the Government meant what it said, here was surely a case where it should have acted, but instead it gave the job to a man named Rau, a rich brewer, who did not need the job, purely for political reasons. "It is a 'raw' deal for the wounded soldier," declared Mr. Pardee, warmly.

Hon. C. J. Doherty, acting Postmaster-General, made no defence, while Hon. Dr. Reid volunteered the information that Mr. Pardee could not direct charges against him or the Customs Department, because he "always give the preference to returned soldiers."

Hon. Arthur Meighen said he felt assured that the information given the House by Mr. Pardee could not be the full information. He did not know the facts himself, but he would make enquiries of the member for Waterloo, who was absent, and hoped to have an explanation to give the House to-morrow.

Foe's Positions Pulverized By The British Shells

(By Wm. Simms, United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Sept. 21.—German positions over the eight-mile front and mile depth seized by the British in their great blow east of Ypres were literally pulverized by the British barrage.

Troops which advanced to the new ground declared to-day they had never seen such a fire.

German pill boxes—concrete cylinders for machine guns—were shattered or blown completely out of the ground. Gun crews by the score were found piled dead in their concrete traps.

Great shell holes of the previous fighting which has been lined with concrete and organized by the Germans as machine gun emplacements, were found crowded with corpses.

It seemed that little escaped the web of death woven by five separate barrage walls which crossed and criss-crossed constantly ahead of the British.

Fourteen Potatoes From One Peeling

Mrs. James Clark, 100 Dublin street, brings to the support of seed potato peelings her experience in this summer's greater production. To test the claims that were put forward in the spring she planted the peeling of one potato. Mrs. Clark made no effort to coddle it into exceptional results, but gave it a place between two rows of tomatoes. From this ribbon of seed she has harvested fourteen potatoes weighing in the aggregate 3 1-4 pounds. This surpasses Mr. G. O. Cameron's experiments conducted with potato peelings, this year, but it substantiates his results and suggests the question why plant potatoes when the peelings produce such a crop. Mrs. Clark's variety was the Beauty of Hebron.

Preacher Buys Real Estate At Bobcaygeon

BOBCAYGEON, Sept. 21.—Real estate is on the move. On Saturday Rev. A. L. Phelps, B.A., of Aldophus town, who spent two years here as a probationer in the Methodist ministry, and who summers here when possible, concluded a bargain with Mr. George Tinney for his last remaining possessions of Cottage Point. Rev. Mr. Phelps loves the outdoors and the woods. No doubt that is where he draws some of his realistic pictures and makes his poetry run so smoothly.

Lens Garrison Eager To Evacuate The City

(By Stewart Lyon.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 21.—Pressure upon the defences of Lens is unrelenting. Posts have again been pushed out into "No Man's Land" in the region southeast of St. Laurent. The Germans are being literally squeezed out of Lens, and prisoners declare the garrison would welcome the order to evacuate. Enemy orders are still to hold on at all costs; but there is reason to believe the cost is becoming too great, since the occupation by us of the northern suburbs permits the projection of gas into the town from the north as well as from the south and west.

Montreal Newspaper Ceases Publication

Daily Mail gives up its Fight against Financial Obstacles.

Montreal, September 20.—The Daily Mail has ceased publication after an uphill fight against financial obstacles. There was no issue of the Daily Mail yesterday morning, and Mr. M. E. Nichols, president and managing director of the Daily Mail Company, refused to say whether publication would be resumed or not. He would not make any statement. The Mail was established on October 8th, 1913. It was Conservative in politics, but somewhat independent of party.

Various rumours have been afloat as to the outcome of the Mail's financial troubles, one of them being that a syndicate of local Liberals have been negotiating for its purchase.

JAPANESE SOLDIERS SEIZE TOWN IN CHINA

SEVERAL WERE KILLED IN A DISPUTE OVER LUMBER INTERESTS.

Pekin, September 21.—A clash between Chinese and Japanese soldiers and policemen has occurred along the Yalu River over the question of lumber interests. Two Chinese and one Japanese were killed and many others wounded. Japanese troops have crossed into Manchuria and seized the Chinese town of Tsianheien, which they are holding pending an investigation.

The Chinese government alleges that the trouble was started by the employees of a lumber company, and denies all responsibility. The Japanese officials declare that Chinese soldiers incited the trouble.

Bobcaygeon Woman Left Her Estate For God's Use Only

Her Will Again Before Toronto Court—Christian Scientists Claim That All Was Left to the Church—Counsel Debate the Validity

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—The much litigated will of the late Miss Mary Helen Orr, of Bobcaygeon, which received much publicity at the first hearing before Mr. Justice Sutherland, and again when he delivered judgment upholding some of the clauses of the will and declaring others invalid, is once again before the courts, this time before the Appellate Division.

Miss Orr died June 29, 1916, leaving a $200,000 estate to be disposed of according to a will made in 1912. Of her property, $125,000 is in Ontario and $75,000 in Chicago. The estate was left in trust, $10,000 was to go to the mother church in Boston, to be used in spreading the truth. Mr. Justice Sutherland held that this was the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston. A bequest of $10,000, to be used in building churches, from $100 to $300 to each church, was also held valid. Another $10,000 was left to Bobcaygeon for such purposes as will elevate the community spiritually.

VOIDED THIS BEQUEST.

Mr. Justice Sutherland held that the churches of Bobcaygeon of different sects should share in this sum, and directed a reference to the Master in Chambers to determine just who was included. A bequest was held void which provided $50,000 for a fund "toward helping to supply such institutions as may in the near future be demonstrated to show that God's people are willing to help others to see the light that is so real, near, and universal for all who will receive. These institutions may take the place of what are at present called hospitals, poor houses, gaols, and penitentiaries, or any place that is maintained for the uplifting of humanity." This clause Mr. Justice Sutherland described as "vague, visionary, chimerical, and impracticable." The conclusion of her will was that "the whole of my estate must be used for God only."

SCIENTISTS' CLAIM.

J. F. Hellmuth, K.C., with E. C. Cattanach, represented the Mother Church at Boston. They argued that it was the intention of the testatrix that all her property should go to advance the cause of Christian Science. There was, they said, a charitable interest throughout the will and that if the purpose was obscure in any of the clauses, then the doctrine of cy-pres should apply, and that which had lapsed should be devoted to a similar purpose. They declared that there was a good residuary clause. The expression that "all my estate must be used for God only" means, as the testatrix was a Christian Scientist, that the whole of her estate must be used for God as revealed by the Bible and by Mrs. Baker Eddy.

AGAINST CRIMINAL CODE

E. D. Armour, K.C., for the official Guardian, argued that the belief was one that offended against the Criminal Code, and that the church was therefore not such an institution as could accept a gift for charitable purposes. The Scientist, he said, practised a system of healing without resource to doctors.

WHAT IS CHARITY?

R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., offered many authorities as to the legal meaning of charity. Gifts to individuals, he pointed out, however poor they might be, were not charity nor were gifts to a class of individuals. Charity must be public. On the other hand, it had been held that a bequest of money to be devoted to objects of "general public utility" was too wide. Mr. McLaughlin admitted that the question as to whether bequests for pious purposes were charitable had been decided both ways. He quoted a case where it was held that a bequest to provide lights and tapers, though for a pious purpose, had no ingredient of charity in it. In the same way a gift to a convent had been held not a charitable bequest.

Mr. McLaughlin also argued that the doctrines of the church were contrary to public policy.

Chief Justice Meredith:—"It was once held in high places that it was mischievous to teach that there was no such thing as witchcraft."

Mr. McLaughlin:—"Because the human race has made errors in judgment is no reason why we should cease to exercise the faculty of judgment."

Chief Justice Meredith:—"What is judgment, anyway? I don't think it is right for anyone to set up his own notions of right or wrong to prevent enquiry in any direction."

Mr. McLaughlin—"How about a society for the promotion of polygamy?"

Chief Justice Meredith—"The practice, no. But I don't know that there would be any harm in a society to show that polygamy is a good thing for the human race."

SUBVERSIVE DOCTRINES

Mr. McLaughlin—"Further, their principles are contrary to morality and public policy. They deny knowledge. Mrs. Eddy's book teaches that science, which I suppose would include jurisprudence, are the apples on the tree of good and evil, which Adam and Eve were forbidden to eat."

Chief Justice Meredith remarked that a judgment that a bequest for an essay on Natural Theology was void because it was subversive of Christianity had been reversed.

Mr. McLaughlin declared that Natural Theology expressed belief in pure reason. Christian Science, he declared, was opposed to reason.

"Don't scientific people teach that I don't see you?" queried the chief.

The repartee plumbed considerable depths of metaphysics, and Mr. McLaughlin remarked: "I could keep at this all day."

"Perhaps some of us could not stand it all day," commented Mr. Justice Maclaren.

Chief Justice—"There is still hope. I should say, that you might become a Christian Scientist."

Mr. McLaughlin remarked that our army in France was not suffering to any considerable extent from typhoid or enteric.

Sir William—"That is because of their faith, not because of the antitoxin! A very large proportion of supposed physical ills are fancy."

WHAT FOLLY!

Mr. McLaughlin—"What folly to say that there is no hookworm in Texas, that there is no San Jose scale on fruit trees."

Sir William—"They would never tell you such a thing."

Mr. McLaughlin—"They tell you that there are no such things as worms in children. It is in their book. They don't believe in cold, but wear clothes and buy coal like the rest of us. They don't believe in the pangs of hunger, but they eat like the rest of us."

Sir William—"It is strange that it should be strongest in the most cultured city in America."

Mr. McLaughlin—"Because people are wealthy and cultured does not say that they are rational."

Argument was not concluded.

Tractor Plough Is Working In 50-Acre Field

LINDSAY, Sept. 22.—A number of Lindsay citizens visited the farm of Mr. Herb Graham, west of the town on Thursday afternoon, when the Government tractor plough was at work. The land is ideal in every respect and the working of the tractor could not be seen to a better advantage in the county.

The field in which the plough was working contained 50 acres, which is as level as a prairie and vertile as a cabbage garden. Unlike most ground at this time of the year the soil is quite loose, due of course to the nature of the soil which is a rich clay loam.

Every time the plough made a round turning three acres each one foot wide about one-third of an acre was ploughed. After viewing the implement and having some snapshots of the party taken by Miss Graham, a number of the men took a walk through the immense cattle stables of Mr. Graham, which are the most modern to be found, and several head of cattle are now in feeding for next spring's market.

New Drug Acts on Every Organ of Body

Makes Your Cheeks Rosy.

A pale face, sallow complexion, weak stomach, clogged liver, painful kidneys, catarrh affections, rheumatic pain, run-down and anemic conditions of the whole system are caused from an impure, thin and watery condition of the blood. All these organs of the body are directly dependant on the blood for their source of strength. It will be a great boom to all these thousands of weak, anaemic, nervous, run-down people to hear and learn about this new drug "Ironized Phosphorus with Iron." After each meal and at bedtime take from two to three of these tablets with a little water. You will note that you will get results after the first few doses the iron acts immediately upon the blood while the phosphorus goes direct to the spine, the center of the nervous system.

As soon as you get the blood purified and the nerves soothed, the stomach, liver and kidneys begin to do their work and in 6 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent. stronger. Your blood pressure will be increased, making your cheeks rosy and you once more have that vigorous, vivacious, keen, bright, alert feeling of boyhood days. The new drug is dispensed by F. G. Webber.

Meeting of The Otonabee Council

Want New Highway Opened Up General Business

At the regular meeting of the Otonabee township Council a communication was received from E. W. Beatty, vice president of the C.P.R., enclosing a plan and profile of crossing of the C.P.R. tracks between the 5th and 6th Concession; this part of the concession line has never been opened for travel but the Council has been requested by the local residents to have it opened now. Mr. Beatty stated that the railway officials objected strongly to the proposed crossing, as the view from the highway is obstructed by dense bush on both sides of the track with a curve and a hill of 50 feet high on the north side and a

Dear Sir,—Would you put a copy of this letter in your most valued paper to-night—from yesterday's Toronto paper, adding by request of two ladies from the British Isles who were very pleased to see that there are some ladies in Canada who believe in fair play. We ourselves know what our people in Great Britain are suffering and have gone through since the war started to save not only themselves but Canada too, who could not have saved herself had it not been for our navy. From one who has sent husband and two sons to do their bit.

A SOLDIER'S WIFE.

The enclosed article is as follows:

Britain's Great Fighters.

To Editor of The Mail and Empire:

Sir,—It was with great pleasure the letter from "A Mother of Soldiers" was read in The Mail and Empire of September 18, referring to how little one hears in the press of Canada of the doing of any part of the British army, except the Canadians. If the influential papers and public men of Canada realized the harm that is being done by the special featuring of Canadians something would be done to offset it. The belief seems to be quite general amongst those who only read Canadian papers that England is making Canadians do all the fighting. May I give an extract from a letter lately received, "Oh, why does England hang back? What would poor France have done if it had not been for Canada?" This seems absurd to any well-informed person, but I have heard this opinion expressed in various ways scores of times, such as "What a shame of England to put the Canadians to the front and save themselves." I am a Canadian of two generations and am just as proud of our soldiers and what they have done as I can be. I have had four near relatives killed at the front, and have eight still there, but think the sooner a little fair play is shown in the press to the British soldier the better. The British put the belief that England is letting the overseas soldiers and her allies do the fighting for her, down to German propaganda. It may be so, but if the press of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa are recording only the exploits of their own troops, the Germans won't have much trouble with their propoganda. The English are so afraid of boasting and have carried their reticence about what they do to such an extent that they are the most misjudged people in the world. I wonder how many Canadians knew English troops were fighting at Lens. I did not, until I read it in a Canadian soldier's letter. Surely there is enough glory to go around, and the British Tommy is one of the finest soldiers on earth.

Yours, etc.,

Cattle Receipts Were Heavy This Week

Also Heavy Runs of Sheep and Lambs—But Hogs Were Scarce

Receipts of cattle in the Toronto market this week were unexpectedly heavy. This was somewhat of a surprise to the trade, seeing that there is an abundance of good pasture and consequently no compelling necessity to rush cattle to market that would have improved with a few more weeks on the grass. The rush brought far too many cattle in a half-fed condition and generally of poor average quality. Early in the week there was a good demand for choice handy butcher cattle, and for heavy, well-finished steers suitable for export. Both classes were scarce and prices were firm. In the medium and common qualities there was anything but scarcity, and buyers had plenty to choose from, with the result that prices weakened early and continued on the easy side all through the week.

The total decline for the general run of butcher cattle for the week was from 40c. to 50c., as compared with the week before prices.

Stockers and feeders of fair to good quality were not so hard hit as the butcher cattle. There was a steady demand all through the week, quite a few farmers visiting the market for a personal look over the stock offering. Prices early in the week, influenced by the general weaker tone of the market, were inclined to ease off a little, but later on recovered, the week-end markets closing about steady with the previous week for good quality stock.

There is a good steady market for choice quality milkers and springers. Calves were fairly steady.

There were heavy runs of sheep and lambs, and the market early went off half a dollar, but remained steady at that.

Hog receipts were again disappointingly small, and though the packers for one day succeeded in knocking off 50c., the next day saw the market recovered to the earlier level at $18 fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

Home Health Club

By Dr. David H. Reeder

Table Manners: I see a look of astonishment on some of your faces as you exclaim: "Now, how in the world is Dr. Reeder going to connect our table manners with our health," and I answer, "Easy."

My little boys are very patriotic, they are "doing their bit" this summer by keeping the table well supplied with all kinds of fresh vegetables and plenty of chickens. They have two acres of garden and it has kept them quite busy. They remembered a little boy back here in the city, who had told them once that he had never been in the country in his life, although he is ten years old. His father, an Englishman, was employed as a baker, but he had enlisted and gone to Canada for transportation to Europe, where he would do all that he could for democracy. One day the boys asked their mother if they could not send for the little fellow and give him a week at least of real country life with apples right off the trees, and good, clean food right from the garden.

Of course he was sent for and the wonder and delight expressed by the little fellow more than repaid them, but when he came to the table they were simply dumbfounded. They have been carefully taught how to eat properly, to chew their food well, and to not drink when food is in the mouth, that the natural secretions of the mouth should be well mixed with the food in order to digest it and make them grow.

Of course they are active, normal, hearty boys and many times the restraints imposed by table manners has seemed to them a punishment and they could not fully understand the purpose of it all, but when they saw the little stranger rush frantically to the table and without waiting for Grace or for the others to be seated grab two slices of bread and spread them quickly with butter, and begin to eat, they first looked with startled eyes at their mother and then at one another, and then, boy-like, they broke into uproarious, convulsive laughter. The little stranger was too deeply absorbed to notice it and for fear of hurting his feelings they at once pretended to have discovered a huge joke that was unrelated to his actions, while their mother gently helped the little fellow to generous portions of various foods. He watched her and when she was about to put certain things on his plate would call out sharply, "I don't like that!" or "I don't want that! give me more of that." It was a big task for the first few meals to keep order at the table, but gradually the little fellow found it was not necessary to eat so fast in order to get his share, the food was plentiful and wholesome, but it took much patient and careful admonition to induce him to chew and get a real taste of it. He was greatly surprised to find that some of the things he formerly would not eat had a delightful taste and were good.

I have seldom seen a change take place so rapidly in a human being. His parents had, we learned, always served plenty of food but only a limited time was allowed for eating. Like many men and boys I have known, there was a boast that a hearty meal could be eaten in a few moments why waste time at the table?

The boy's face had that old, pinched, starved look that is so often seen in children that are not well nourished, but within the week the roses began to appear on his cheeks and his boyish laugh was as hearty and as wholesome as that of my own boys. Children learn quickly, and he was bright and it did not take him long to learn at least a few of the most important table manners, and the result will be helpful all through his life.

Mrs. B. has written about a big crop of boils that keep coming on various portions of her body and so far, in spite of many remedies and doctor's prescriptions, she has found no relief.

One of the troubles of the old methods of treating boils is the fact that instead of removing the cause, the disease is usually increased or made worse. Several years ago I wrote upon this subject and I told you that all kinds of greasy ointments, poultices and similar methods of treatment but spread the trouble and that the sufferer should use what is called in Vol. 2 of the Home Health Club books, A Soapy Blanket Fomentation. The trouble is nearly always to be found externally and therefore internal medicine is not at all necessary. Absolute cleanliness is imperative and boils will continue to come on those with delicate skins if irritating greases or poultices are used. In some aggravated cases it will be found necessary to not only take the soapy blanket fomentation as directed in Vol. 2, but to change the clothing from the skin out daily, especially being sure to put on freshly laundered under clothing each morning and even changing the pillows cases and sheets of your bed daily.

In some cases the application of the soapy blanket fomentation 3 or 4 times will be sufficient but the entire body must be sponged each night before retiring with acetic acid about 10 per cent. Commercial acid is about 32 per cent., so if to each ounce of the Commercial acid you add 2 ounces of water, you will have it about right.

The Right Time: The time at which it is most necessary to cleanse the mouth is at bed-time. When the mouth is quiet during sleep, the cheeks and gums not rubbing the gums and teeth and the saliva not flowing, it is then that germs do their worst work, especially if there is decomposing food in the mouth. They are undisturbed. Teeth should certainly be cleansed on retiring at night and on arising in the morning. If you cannot clean your mouth more than once in 24 hours clean it at bed-time. A large tooth brush is almost useless because it cannot be properly handled. A large brush may cover more teeth but it cannot be used so as to rub the teeth and the gums in the proper way. The right brush should have a tuft of bristles at the end and a long slender neck between the bristles and the handle, so that it may move with ease and comfort in the corners of the mouth when brushing far back on the rear teeth. If the bristles part of a brush is too large it fills the mouth so as to prevent reaching way back of the last teeth, one of the most important places to brush.

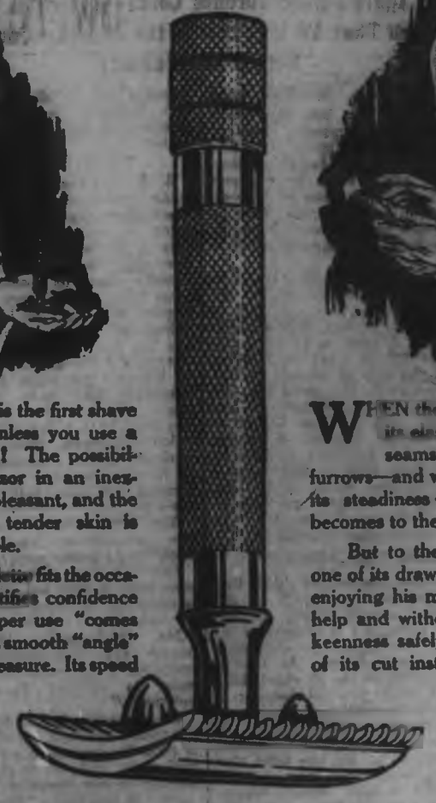
For Your First Shave or Your Ten-Thousandth

HOW proud an occasion is the first shave—yet how anxious, unless you use a Gillette Safety Razor! The possibilities of the old-fashioned razor in an inexperienced hand are not all pleasant, and the sensation it leaves on the tender skin is usually anything but agreeable.

On the other hand the Gillette fits the occasion perfectly. Its safety justifies confidence befitting a veteran. Its proper use "comes natural" and the feeling of its smooth "angle" stroke is actually a physical pleasure. Its speed promotes promptness, and the time it saves, increasing every year in value, is worth hundreds of dollars during a man's productive years.



WHEN the skin of the face begins to lose its elasticity—when wrinkles become seams, and seams deepen into furrows—and when the hand begins to lose its steadiness—what a burden shaving becomes to the man without a Gillette!

But to the man who has one, age loses one of its drawbacks. He can keep right on enjoying his morning shave independent of help and without fear of trouble. With its keenness safely guarded, and the closeness of its cut instantly adjustable, the Gillette serves "three-score" as well as "twenty-one", and with every passing year becomes more truly a friend indeed.

Every week of shaving without a Gillette is a sacrifice of time and comfort. Why deny yourself any longer—or your son either?

Standard Gillette Sets, "Bulldogs" and "Aristocrats" cost $5.00 each—Pocket Editions $5. and $6.—Combination Sets $6.50 up—at Drug, Jewelry and Hardware Stores. 209

HOW TO STORE VEGETABLES

STORING VEGETABLES FOR WINTER USE.

S. C. Johnston, Toronto.

Vegetables which have been grown to perfection during the summer months with great diligence and care, and gathered while in a prime condition, may be stored for winter use. They will, however, deteriorate rapidly in flavour, and in some cases decompose so much that they are not useable if proper care had not been exercised in placing them away for winter keeping. Unfortunately, many of the common methods employed on farms and commercial vegetable gardens do not apply to the average backyard garden, in that conditions are very different, and the quantities of vegetables stored are not nearly so abundant as in the former case. The following general information is given in the hope that many of the dwellers in the cities, towns and villages will have more success in keeping some crops which they have grown or purchased in the fall for winter use.

In all cases it must be remembered that vegetables should receive careful handling. They should not be thrown from one part of the cellar to anstrips of board a couple of inches wide or thrown in cellar windows. Unfortunately many people have the idea that because a cabbage is only a large vegetable it can with impunity be treated much more carelessly than were it a piece of firewood. The vegetables should be the very best specimens grown in the garden, not too large, but firm and solid, and free from disease or other blemish. Poor stunted plants should be consumed in the early fall and the best ones placed away for winter purposes.

Quite possibly the cellar of the home is one of the best places to store the winter's supply of vegetables if it is properly handled. It must be dry, frost proof and have abundant facilities for easy airing of the vegetable compartment. The most common mistake made by many city dwellers lies in the fact that they keep their cellars too warm and do not provide for the circulation of fresh air. It is nearly always quite unnecessary to close the cellar windows before well on into December, and further, just because the window has been closed once it does not necessarily need to remain closed until April. The vegetable room should be thoroughly aired often so that the atmosphere does not become stagnant. Care must however be exercised that the vegetables are not allowed to freeze. Where the heating appliances of the house are in the cellar it is almost essential and advisable that that portion of the cellar farthest from these appliances be used for storing the vegetables. A portion may be partitioned off, and rough boards only need be used for this purpose. Such a room should, for the best results include at least one window on the sunny side of the house. This compartment may be arranged in a series of shelves and nails may be driven into the joints from which some vegetables may be suspended.

Potatoes.—In the city home there is no better arrangement than building bins which hold two to three bushels of tubers. While it is not absolutely necessary to keep the potatoes from direct contact with the floor, it is better if this is followed out. Narrow strips of board a couple of inches wide may be laid on the floor and the potatoes placed on these. The potatoes in these bins should not receive any light, and to prevent this they may be covered with pieces of canvas or carpet. By the middle of winter it will be necessary to carefully sort over the tubers and remove any which have commenced to decay. One tuber which has developed a rot will spread the disease to all those close to it. Possibly in the month of March the potatoes will have commenced to sprout, and they must be again sorted over and all the sprouts removed. It is advisable that these sprouts be removed before they are of any length, as they can then be easily broken off by a gentle pressure of the thumb.

Onions.—Onions should be thoroughly dry and well cured before being taken into the cellar in the fall. Dampness in onions especially causes decay. The bulbs should be placed in slat boxes which allow a free circulation of air through the whole box. These, too, should be sorted over and any spoiled ones removed, and also any which have started to grow, placed by themselves.

Squash.—This vegetable seems to be the most difficult one to keep, as they are very susceptible to cold and moisture and must be kept warm and dry. They will possibly keep in a better condition for a longer period if they are kept in a room just a little warmer than the compartment in which other vegetables are kept. A room through which a chimney passes is in many cases recommended. Some recommend that they be kept on shelves and others that they be kept in barrels packed in excelsior or straw. If however only a few are to be kept they can be covered with rugs or bags and will come through the winter all right.

Beets, Carrots, Parsnips, Salsify and Turnips.—These are handled somewhat differently from other vegetables. They require more moisture than others for the best results and should be immersed or covered with moist sand. Packing boxes are sometimes used for this purpose. An inch of slightly moistened sand is placed in the bottom of the box and then a layer of vegetables, and so on until the box is filled. If this seems too elaborate a plan for handling these roots they may simply be piled on the floor and covered with earth.

Celery.—This plant may be stored during the early winter months with fair success. Before any severe frost in the fall the plants with roots on should be taken up and placed in a box containing a couple of inches of moist sand. The roots should be placed as close together as possible. The room should be kept practically dark and a free circulation of air should be allowed. Towards Christmas the heads should be taken out and used.

Cabbage.—In the late fall before permanent freezing up, the cabbage should be pulled up and stored for winter use. A few of the outside leaves may be taken off. They may be piled on shelves so arranged that the air will circulate freely around them or they may be tied up in bunches of three and suspended from the ceiling. A pit may be made in the dryest part of the garden and the cabbages piled in the form of a pyramid. They should be piled heads down and the succeeding layers bringing the pit to a peak at the top. Earth should be thrown over them as the season advances. If the pit is at all large an air vent should be left. This may be a piece of stone, pipe or a piece of tile set in the peak of the pit. In severe weather the ventilator should be filled with straw or excelsior.

Tomatoes.—Sometimes in the fall, one sees a tomato vine covered with fruits which under ordinary circumstances would be of little use through freezing. If the whole vine is pulled up and taken to the cellar before it has been frosted the fruit will ripen and may be used up until Christmas in many cases. The vine should be suspended from the ceiling and the windows should be practically darkened.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Satin is the favored material for separate skirts. A large number of shirred and pleated tunics are seen. The lines are straight and rather long.

The severely tailored hat has gone out of vogue for anything but sports wear. Ribbon, ostrich fancies and paradise are favored for trimming the more elaborate models.

The new fall suit skirts are ankle length and slightly narrower than last season's models. The accompanying jackets are wrist and finger-tip length, and some of them slip on over the head.

The favorite suit shades are navy, beige and all shades of brown, from the light tan to the darker tobacco tones. A great deal of green and blue is being used for separate dresses, and evening frocks show an extensive use of spangled effects.

Advance News Of The Fall Fashions

Conservatism is the Keynote of the Day

ENTER THE HIGH COLLAR

New York, Sept. 18.

"Fashion will out," is a new adaptation of an old saying that is perfectly true these days of strenuousness. Fashion has ever shown herself to be an ever-ready ally of patriotism, and it is with these logan of "Preparadness" that she has advanced ideas for the fall wardrobe of the Woman Patriotic.

The windows along Fifty Avenue are filled to overflowing with all the latest designs of the fashion world. There are smart dresses to be worn on the street without a coat, there are stunning coats, and there are suits to please the most fastidious. So you see we can all plunge into the planning of our wardrobe with the assurance that the styles of early autumn are ready for our inspection.

Conservatism is the keynote, conservatism developed in the 4th degree. A charming example was a blue serge and a satin dress I saw the other day. The pattern skirt was of satin with a tunic of the serge slashed in the front. Instead of a collar there was a band of white Hercules braid following the line of the surplice closing. This square meshed braid takes the exact shape of the bias collar, making it especially suitable for this use.

When the Tunic Points the Way to Slimness.

Side Drapery versus Straight Silhouette.

The side drapery and the straight silhouette are still battling for supremacy. The long tunic is particularly smart for the walking costume. The beige serge dress illustrated here is stunning, each detail being so carefully worked out as to make a perfect whole. The long tight sleeves are quite a feature this autumn. The novel shaping of the collar, the use of tassels instead of buttons, and the touch of embroidery on the skirt all make for that distinction so eagerly sought by the woman of taste.

Heroes and Colorings.

Just at present there is quite a vogue in Paris for naming the suits and dresses after prominent Americans. Wilson, Pershing, Roosevelt and Lincoln have all been so honored! In the lovely new colors decreed by Fashion they are quite irresistible. Gray, in every shade, is fashionable. Smoke, mist, steel, chinchilla and the gray browns such as castor and beaver, are the dominating colors for the street costumes. Munition gray, rust brown and terra cotta, are especially smart. I saw a charming dress at one of the big hotels the other evening of champagne-colored jersey cloth combined with raven-blue satin. Indeed, the softness of the vivid autumn colorings is one of the most striking things about the present mode. Of course our national colors are displayed everywhere, but not so obviously as at first. We are using a great many different shades of red and blue so that one need not go dressed as the American flag in order to "show one's colors."

Beads and More Beads.

Everything is beaded, from slippers to hats and back again. It is not really surprising, for the effect gained by a handful of beads in harmonious colorings against a somber background is delightful. Tube shaped beads are the latest arrivals. Sometimes the formality of a belt is entirely dispensed with, these tube shaped beads simulating a belt and buckle. Iridescent beads, bronze green, and green purple, made a simple little frock of dull green crepe de Chine quite marvellous. Braiding and embroidery promise to play as important a part in the scheme of things this year as last.

WHICH?

"This bulk tea is the best I could buy at the price, Mrs. Brown, but I believe you will like Red Rose better.

"We use Red Rose at home and like the rich flavor. My wife says it goes further."

Hundreds of grocers are making statements somewhat like this.

They have sold Red Rose Tea for many years and have found the quality so good that they use it in their homes.

Most grocers naturally like to make an extra profit on their bulk tea, but they cannot help recommending Red Rose Tea because they know it's worth the price.

They know it goes further because it consists chiefly of the teas from Assam in Northern India, the strongest, richest teas grown anywhere in the world.

Red Rose tastes better and goes further.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAS. SUTHERLAND)

The angel, continuing what he had said relative to the affairs of Persia, adds, that from the first year of Darius, he was employed to confirm him in favorable dispositions towards the Jews. He then shows Daniel the succession of the Persian and Grecian empire. After notice of Xerses and his expedition he passes on to the destruction of the Persian empire by Alexander, his death, and the division of his kingdom between four of his captains.

The kings of Syria and Egypt alone are noticed, because Judea was between their dominions and affected by their contests.

The following statement relates to the events which occurred during the continuance of these governments and which also refers to Antiochus Epiphanes, who was a most cruel and violent persecutor of the Jews.

See what decaying and perishing things worldly pomp and possessions are and the power by which they are gotten. Never was the vanity of the world and its greatest things more evidently shown than in the history of Alexander, called the Great. From this let us learn, first, that God sets up one and puts down another as he pleases, advances some from small and humble beginnings, and depresses others that were very high. Secondly, this world is full of wars and fightings, which come from men's lusts, and make it a theatre of sin and misery. Thirdly, all the changes and revolutions of states and kingdoms, and every event, even the most minute and contingent, were plainly and perfectly foreseen by the God of heaven and earth, and to him nothing is new. Fourthly, No word of God shall fall to the ground but what he has designed, what he has declared shall infallibly come to pass, and even the acts of men will serve his purpose. Fifthly, That for the right understanding of parts of Scriptures it is sometimes necessary to refer to secular authors and historians, which show the accomplishment of what is there foretold. We have therefore reason to bless God for the human learning and knowledge, with which many have done service by illustrating Divine truths. Sixth, Those whom the world calls noble and famous are often accounted of God as of little use. Seventh, While the potsherds of the earth strive with each other they prevail and are prevailed against, deceive and are being deceived; but those who know God will trust in him, and he will enable them to stand firm and bear their cross and maintain the conflict.

The general interpretation of the prophecy appears satisfactory; but the remainder is very difficult, and the commentators differ very much respecting it. From Antiochus the account appears to pass to Antichrist in a manner not very easy to perceive. There is however little cause to doubt that reference is made to the Roman Empire or fourth monarchy in its pagan and early Christian state. We may expect that the great outline of this revelation to the prophet was to coincide with the revelations in the former visions, including the destructions caused by the Mohammedan and other powers, and the latter part seems to relate to events yet future.

Let us learn from hence that the predictions of Scripture not only confirm the doctrines contained therein but tend to establish faith in the over-ruling Providence of God. The purposes of God must be accomplished, let who will fall or stand. When God's time is come to bring the proud oppressors to their end none will be able to help them; perhaps few would be inclined to help them, for those who desire to be feared by all when in their power, and authority will find themselves loved by few when they come to be in distress, few will offer to help or pray for them; and if the Lord do not help, who can?

The end of the Lord's indignation against his people approaches, as well as the end of his patience towards his enemies. If the world escapes the fate of all those who reject Christ and neglect or oppose his gospel, let us make the oracles of God our standard of truth, and of duty, the foundation of our hope, and the light of our pathway through this dark world, to the glorious inheritance of the saints in light.

The name Michael signifies "who is like God," and this name with the title of the great Prince, points out the Divine Saviour; Christ stood for the children of our people when he was made sin and a curse for them, stood in their room and stead as a sacrifice for them. He stands for them now in the intercession he ever lives to make within the veil, and after the destruction of Antichrist, Christ shall stand at the latter day upon the earth, shall appear for the complete redemption of all his redeemed.

When Christ appears he will recompense tribulation to those who trouble his people; there will be a time of trouble such as there never was before, but he will work salvation for his people, at that time his people shall be delivered. They were written in the book of life, and their names will be found written there at the end of the world.

There shall be a distinguishing resurrection of those who sleep in the dust. When upon the appearing of Michael our Prince, his gospel is preached, many of those who sleep in the dust, both Jew and Gentile, shall be awakened by it out of heathenism or Judaism. The multitude that sleep in the dust shall awake, many shall arise to life and many to shame and contempt. The awakening of those who sleep in the dust is very different from the resurrection mentioned in Rev. 20:4-6, and the language accords with that of the New Testament, respecting the general resurrection—the closing event of all.

There is a glory reserved for all the saints in the future state, for all that are wise in winning souls. He that winneth souls is wise. Those who turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever. Those who turn men to righteousness, who turn sinners from the errors of their ways, and help to save their souls from death, James 5:20, will share in the glory of those that they have helped to heaven, which will add to their own glory.

The prophecy of those times though sealed up then would be of great use to those who should live in the latter days. At that time this hid treasure shall be opened and many shall search into it, and shall be led to search the other Scriptures which will increase their knowledge and help them to improve their acquaintance with God.

In this latter days much light has been thrown on prophetic parts of Scriptures. Daniel saw two angels, one on each side of the river, and upon or above the waters of the river was "the man clothed in linen," — doubtless Christ our spotless High Priest, who rules over many peoples of which the waters are an emblem. One of the angels inquired how long it should be to the end of these wonders? A solemn reply is made that it would be for a time, times and a half—the period mentioned in the 7th chapter of this book and in the Revelations. It signifies 1260 prophetic days or years. Daniel not understanding this made further enquiry, but was reminded that the words were to be closed and sealed up to the time of the end. The Lord would purify and sanctify many by these troubles. The wicked would not understand but the wise would understand by the teaching of the Holy Spirit. The wicked will not understand, they are wicked and hate the light and will not come to it. John 3:19-20.

Daniel must comfort himself with the pleasing prospect of his own happiness in time and in eternity. Go thou thy way, thou hast finished thy testimony, done thy work; thou shalt rest from thy labours.

O, man, greatly beloved of God! May every reader have this blissful experience at last.

Gin Pills
FOR THE KIDNEYS

Succeeded Where Operation Failed!

"Jolicure, Que.

"During August last I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder. He had decided on an operation and was assisted by another doctor. They said the calculus was larger than a hens egg and too hard to crush and they could not take it out. . . . was recommended by a friend to try Gin Pills. I bought a box and found relief from the pain at once. . . I did not expect that they would relieve me of the stone, but to my great joy I passed the stone on October 3rd and am now a well man and very happy.

End Of War Is A Long Way Off

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 20—Belief that the end of the war is yet far off and that America has not fully awakened to its seriousness, is expressed in a letter written by Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the British Admiralty, to George E. Ecker of this city. Ecker was West Virginian Manager for the Pittsburg Lumber Company at the time the present head of the British navy as a boy of nineteen or twenty was tallying logs and inspecting lumber at Nicoliette, near here. The letter in part follows:

"I think we are a long way from the end of the war. I think that America is finding it a little difficult to realize—just as Great Britain did in the early days of the war—that it is a long way between declaring war and putting your whole back into it; and that both determination and sacrifice are called for if the nation is going to acquit itself with credit, but I have no doubt at all that eventually America will do so.

"President Wilson is a great man, and realizes what is wanted, and when the nation understands, as it does not yet understand, I have no doubt it will respond.

"It is a disadvantage which all democratic and peace-loving people who have never planned for a big war, such as Great Britain and the United States, suffered from, that they realize slowly what war means. We realized it slowly even with the help of our heavy casualties in our small army in August, 1914, but perhaps with the national imagination to help them, which is much stronger with them than with us. America may realize it more quickly."

WAR SUBSTITUTES FAILED.

Poison Wouldn't Kill—Rope Broke—Hun Ate Stew—Died.

According to an Amsterdown despatch, a Prague newspaper relates the story of an artist there who found it impossible to kill himself with poison or a rope, but succeeded in his aim by eating a restaurant stew. The newspaper's account of the tragedy is as follows.

"Tired of life at 45, the artist procured a portion of a violent poison and tried to poison himself with it. In vain he awaited a fatal effect, and on the following day had the remains of the vial analyzed. It was a 'war substitute' poison. He then procured a rope and hanged himself, but the rope was made of paper pulp, and it broke.

"The twofold failure of his attempt at suicide the man regarded as a sign of fate, and a fresh joy in life inspired him. Proceeding to a certain well known restaurant he ordered and consumed an alleged meat stew. It was a war substitute stew, and two hours later he was dead."

Love makes the world go round and men go broke.

What women say causes more trouble than what men think.

MAXWELL

Most Miles per Gallon — Most Miles on Tires

We have not deviated from our fixed one chassis model policy.

But we have refined and developed the Maxwell.

The new compensating under-slung rear springs mean comfort for you and preservation of your car.

This is the type of spring used in the newest models of many of the highest priced cars.

The wheel base is six inches longer—the frame has been strengthened—the windshield sloped, the body lines made more graceful and the body made roomier.

But the Maxwell price stands at a figure which still makes it "the world's greatest motor car value."

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

The road along which the man of business travels in pursuit of happiness or wealth is not a macadamized one, nor does it ordinarily lead by pleasant scenes and well-springs of delight; on the contrary it is a rough and rugged path, beset with "wait-a-bit" thorns and full of pitfalls, which can only be avoided by the watchful care of circumspection. After every day's journey over this rough turnpike road, the wayfarer needs something more than rest, he requires solace, and he deserves it. He is weary of the dull prose of life and athirst for the poetry. Happy is the business man who can find that solace and that poetry at home. Warm greetings from happy hearts, fond glances from bright eyes, the welcome shouts from children, and a thousand little arrangements for our comfort and enjoyment that silently tell of thoughtful and expectant love; the gentle ministration that disencumber us into an old, easy seat before we are aware of it; these and little tokens of affection and sympathy constitutes the poetry that reconciles us to the prose in life.

* * *

The mother's heart does not need soft satin and lace and embroidered linens and rose-hooded candles to make itself felt. It beats just as devotedly and happily under cheap cottons as under silken folds; it watches in the silence of the night by the lowly couch of the sufferer as tenderly as it does by the side of some little patient in the splendid mansion; it reaches out to the convict behind prison doors with the same love that glories in the success of a renowned statesman. Mother love in its countless combinations furnishes a theme as old as the hills perhaps, but one from which the noblest of inspirations are drawn. In nearly all relations of life from those of blood to those of friendship, wonderful combinations can be made—combinations which illustrate to the world the great heights which a pure love can attain, combinations which act as gigantic reflectors which not only send light into dark places but which draw all within reach into the circle of their brightness.

* * *

Words of cheer are words of help. Words of gloom are words of harm. There is a bright side and a dark side to every phase of life, and to every hour of time. If we speak of the bright side we bring the brightness into prominence; if we speak of the dark side, we deepen its shadows. It is in our power to help or to hinder by a word any and every person whom we are with. If we see a look of health or of hope in the face of an acquaintance whom we casually meet, and we tell him so, he goes on his way with new life in his veins. If we see a look of failing strength, and of heaviness of heart in one to whom we speak, and we emphasize the fact that he looks poorly, we give him a push downward as our contribution to the forces which affect his course.

* * *

An idle and vacant life, even with all the aid amusement can give, is not calculated to be a happy one; and this simply because Providence has constituted us with a view to activity, as that was to be the means of accommodating the raw materials of the physical world to our needs. Idleness therefore injures and disorganises, while activity alone will preserve health and prolong life. Who are the happy people of this world? Those who have something and not too much to do, that something being suitable to their tastes. Who are the unhappy ones? Alas! What a large portion of the class is composed of those who, having all their needs supplied from other sources, do not need to labor.

* * *

Good breeding is like affection; one cannot have too much of it.

* * *

The best capital in nine cases out of ten a young man can start in the world with, is robust health, sound morals, a fair intelligence, a will to work his way honestly, bravely, and if it be possible a trade, whether he follows it for a livelihood or not. He can always fall back on a trade when other paths are closed. The path of success in business is invariably the path of common sense. Notwithstanding all that is said about "lucky hits" the best kind of success in every man's life is not that which comes by accident. The only "good time coming" we are justified in hoping for is that which we are capable of making for ourselves.

* * *

Plan out your life on a big scale, whether you are a farmer's daughter, or a shepherdess among the hills, or the flattered pet of a drawing room filled with statuary and pictures and bric-a-brac. Stop where you are and make a plan for your lifetime. You cannot be satisfied with a life of frivolity and giggle and indiscretion. Trust the world and it will cheat you if it does not destroy you.

* * *

Women are the majority in the church on earth, and it is reasonable to suppose they will be three-fourths of the population of heaven.

* *

Would that our busy toilers could realise that they must enjoy passing days, if they would be happy. The pleasure to which they look forward seldom comes. The man or woman who has not learned contentment and how to find delight in the present, has little reason to expect it in the future.

* * *

Love is the great homemaker that makes even drudgery of housekeeping a pleasure and home life a foretaste of the bliss of heaven. One cannot get too much love into one's home-making, but easily too little.

FARMERS—
Protect Your Interests

There is great danger from fire during the threshing season. We respectfully offer the following suggestions as precautionary measures:

1.—Use coal as fuel if possible.

2.—Do not thresh when a heavy wind blows directly into your barn.

3.—Be sure that an adequate supply of water is close at hand in accordance with the conditions of your insurance policy.

4.—See that the engine is at least 20 feet from the nearest building or stack.

5.—When stopped during meal time see to it that a competent person is left in charge of the engine with plenty of water at hand.

6.—Allow no smoking about your buildings at any time.

7.—Remember that any thresher not using a proper screen or spark arrester is liable to imprisonment and fine.

By keeping these points in mind you may save yourself and the Company heavy loss.

PUBLIC OPINION

DUTY.

(Wall Street Journal.)

A well-known banker is proudly exhibiting four letters from somewhere in France. Their cryptic contents typify the heroism which prompts England's sons to answer duty's call from all parts of the world. When the war broke out the banker had two Englishmen in his employ—George and William. They were brothers. George the elder, immediately volunteered and sailed for England. He was sent to the western front. The first letter he wrote told that he had been made a corporal. The second described his appointment as lieutenant. The third simply said he had been made a captain. Meanwhile the younger brother, William, had also volunteered, and he was placed in George's command. The fourth letter the banker received was from William. Here is the way in concludes: "George was hit by a shell today. It struck him squarely in the forehead, and he died instantly, just like every true soldier wishes to die, if die he must. Back of the lines is his grave. When the war is over relatives will visit the little mound to honour a man who did his duty. I am captain of the company now, and the chances are that there will be two lying in that narrow plot before you receive this note."

WORK OR FIGHT.

(From the Prairie Farmer.)

The prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, Ind., says that "in every town and village there are a few box whittlers — men who do not like to work under any circumstances. They should be made to work, both for their own benefit and for the good of the general public." Able bodied men who will not work should be branded as traitors to our country. The best of our young manhood is marching to the front to preserve the country for the rest of us, and, compared with their sacrifices, no demand that can be made on those who remain at home is too great. The Red Cross has adopted the slogan, "Give or fight." Along with that should go the slogan "Work or fight."

VIVE LA FRANCE!

(Chicago Tribune.)

The real France—strong, serious, devoted, patient, kind, and endlessly courageous — observant travellers knew from old. The war has not redeemed France. It has merely revealed France. The most unobservant of travellers looks back, now, to things he saw and was too prejudiced to recognize at the time, and cries, "This is the news to me—this superb revelation of French character. Those people were not frivolous. They were not degenerate. Mentally, morally, spiritually, and even physically, they were preparing for Verdun. I told you so!"

He did not. He told us the exact opposite. But let that pass! In this way he is contributing to the world wide, ringing cheer of "Vive la France!"

After every day's journey over this rough turnpike road, the wayfarer needs something more than rest, he requires solace, and he deserves it. He is weary of the dull prose of life and athirst for the poetry. Happy is the business man who can find that solace and that poetry at home. Warm greetings from happy hearts, fond glances from bright eyes, the welcome shouts from children, and a thousand little arrangements for our comfort and enjoyment that silently tell of thoughtful and expectant love; the gentle ministration that disencumber us into an old, easy seat before we are aware of it; these and little tokens of affection and sympathy constitutes the poetry that reconciles us to the prose in life.

* * *

The mother's heart does not need soft satin and lace and embroidered linens and rose-hooded candles to make itself felt. It beats just as devotedly and happily under cheap cottons as under silken folds; it watches in the silence of the night by the lowly couch of the sufferer as tenderly as it does by the side of some little patient in the splendid mansion; it reaches out to the convict behind prison doors with the same love that glories in the success of a renowned statesman. Mother love in its countless combinations furnishes a theme as old as the hills perhaps, but one from which the noblest of inspirations are drawn. In nearly all relations of life from those of blood to those of friendship, wonderful combinations can be made—combinations which illustrate to the world the great heights which a pure love can attain, combinations which act as gigantic reflectors which not only send light into dark places but which draw all within reach into the circle of their brightness.

* * *

Words of cheer are words of help. Words of gloom are words of harm. There is a bright side and a dark side to every phase of life, and to every hour of time. If we speak of the bright side we bring the brightness into prominence; if we speak of the dark side, we deepen its shadows. It is in our power to help or to hinder by a word any and every person whom we are with. If we see a look of health or of hope in the face of an acquaintance whom we casually meet, and we tell him so, he goes on his way with new life in his veins. If we see a look of failing strength, and of heaviness of heart in one to whom we speak, and we emphasize the fact that he looks poorly, we give him a push downward as our contribution to the forces which affect his course.

* * *

An idle and vacant life, even with all the aid amusement can give, is not calculated to be a happy one; and this simply because Providence has constituted us with a view to activity, as that was to be the means of accommodating the raw materials of the physical world to our needs. Idleness therefore injures and disorganizes, while activity alone will preserve health and prolong life. Who are the happy people of this world? Those who have something and not too much to do, that something being suitable to their tastes. Who are the unhappy ones? Alas! What a large portion of the class is composed of those who, having all their needs supplied from other sources, do not need to labor.

* * *

Good breeding is like affection; one cannot have too much of it.

* * *

The best capital in nine cases out of ten a young man can start in the world with, is robust health, sound morals, a fair intelligence, a will to work his way honestly, bravely, and if it be possible a trade, whether he follows it for a livelihood or not. He can always fall back on a trade when other paths are closed. The path of success in business is invariably the path of common sense. Notwithstanding all that is said about "lucky hits" the best kind of success in every man's life is not that which comes by accident. The only "good time coming" we are justified in hoping for is that which we are capable of making for ourselves.

* * *

Plan out your life on a big scale, whether you are a farmer's daughter, or a shepherdess among the hills, or the flattered pet of a drawing room filled with statuary and pictures and bric-a-brac. Stop where you are and make a plan for your lifetime. You cannot be satisfied with a life of frivolity and giggle and indiscretion. Trust the world and it will cheat you if it does not destroy you.

* * *

Women are the majority in the church on earth, and it is reasonable to suppose they will be three-fourths of the population of heaven.

* * *

Would that our busy toilers could realise that they must enjoy passing days, if they would be happy. The pleasure to which they look forward seldom comes. The man or woman who has not learned contentment and how to find delight in the present, has little reason to expect it in the future.

* * *

Love is the great homemaker that makes even drudgery of housekeeping a pleasure and home life a foretaste of the bliss of heaven. One cannot get too much love into one's home-making, but easily too little.

FARMERS—
Protect Your Interests

There is great danger from fire during the threshing season. We respectfully offer the following suggestions as precautionary measures:

1.—Use coal as fuel if possible.

2.—Do not thresh when a heavy wind blows directly into your barn.

3.—Be sure that an adequate supply of water is close at hand in accordance with the conditions of your insurance policy.

4.—See that the engine is at least 20 feet from the nearest building or stack.

5.—When stopped during meal time see to it that a competent person is left in charge of the engine with plenty of water at hand.

6.—Allow no smoking about your buildings at any time.

7.—Remember that any thresher not using a proper screen or spark arrester is liable to imprisonment and fine.

By keeping these points in mind you may save yourself and the Company heavy loss.

PUBLIC OPINION

DUTY.

(Wall Street Journal.)

A well-known banker is proudly exhibiting four letters from somewhere in France. Their cryptic contents typify the heroism which prompts England's sons to answer duty's call from all parts of the world. When the war broke out the banker had two Englishmen in his employ—George and William. They were brothers. George the elder, immediately volunteered and sailed for England. He was sent to the western front. The first letter he wrote told that he had been made a corporal. The second described his appointment as lieutenant. The third simply said he had been made a captain. Meanwhile the younger brother, William, had also volunteered, and he was placed in George's command. The fourth letter the banker received was from William. Here is the way in concludes: "George was hit by a shell today. It struck him squarely in the forehead, and he died instantly, just like every true soldier wishes to die, if die he must. Back of the lines is his grave. When the war is over relatives will visit the little mound to honour a man who did his duty. I am captain of the company now, and the chances are that there will be two lying in that narrow plot or I will receive this note."

WORK OR FIGHT.

(From the Prairie Farmer.)

The prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, Ind., says that "in every town and village there are a few box whittlers — men who do not like to work under any circumstances. They should be made to work. Both for their own benefit and for the good of the general public." Able bodied men who will not work should be branded as traitors to our country. The best of our young manhood is marching to the front to preserve the country for the rest of us, and, compared with their sacrifices, no demand that can be made on those who remain at home is too great. The Red Cross has adopted the slogan, "Give or fight." Along with that should go the slogan "Work or fight."

VIVE LA FRANCE!

(Chicago Tribune.)

The real France—strong, serious, devoted, patient, kind, and endlessly courageous — observant travellers knew from old. The war has not redeemed France. It has merely revealed France. The most unobservant of travellers looks back, now, to things he saw and was too prejudiced to recognize at the time, and cries, "This is no news to me—this superb revelation of French character. Those people were not frivolous. They were not degenerate. Mentally, morally, spiritually, and even physically, they were preparing for Verdun. I told you so!"

He did not. He told us the exact opposite. But let that pass. In his way he is contributing to the world wide, ringing, cheer of "Vive la France!"

ANNAMITES SMALL BUT GOOD FIGHTERS

SMALLEST SOLDIERS FROM INDO CHINA, FRENCH COLONIES WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES—

Annamite troops, "the little brown men, of France's colonies in Indo-China have just had their baptism of fire on the Western front.

The Annamites are the smallest men participating in the European conflict, yet they have acquitted themselves in the fighting in a manner that gives them rank alongside with the troops of greater physical endowment. The Annamite battalions are composed entirely of volunteers. Their first public appearance was on July 14, 1916, the French national holiday, when along with the Russians, Canadian, English, Belgian and Australian troops, they participated in the military parade at Paris.

Almost without exception they are students from the French schools, colleges and universities in Indo-China.

The announcement there early in 1916, that volunteer battalions would be formed for service in France, resulted almost in the depletion of the French educational institutions. The students enlisted almost to a man.

In the battalion now serving in France are Annamites with the rank of count, with the rank of mandarin of the first second and third classes, and with various other distinctions of east and nobility. Amongst themselves all the courtesies to which these ranks give title are scrupulously observed.

But when the battalions are formed for fighting or other service on the French front, the counts and the mandarins become merely private soldiers that they temporarily are, and the brothers of all the rest.

When the Annamites were first brought to France there was no idea of using them as fighting troops. Their small statue seemed to prelude that. They were drilled and employed in all of the various services of the rear such as convoy chauffeurs, road builders, forestration work and similar occupations. Their constant proximity to the front, however, soon aroused in them an ardent desire to participate in the fighting, and now, after a little more than a year of faithful service in the auxiliary service of the French army, they have been given their chance to establish their right to be in the fighting ranks. Their place there seems too, to have been permanently won.

SERBIAN GIRLS SENT TO THE TURKISH HAREMS

(From the London Daily Express.)

'Our young girls, who would have been the mothers of our race in a new world of peace, are being taken by force by the enemy in great numbers and sent to the Turkish harems."

In these words Mr. Pasitch, Prime Minister of Serbia, told the Daily Express of the culminating horror perpetrated on the Serbian people.

"It is impossible," he said, "to estimate with any exactitude the number of our young women thus sent to slavery, but we have plenty of evidence that it has been going on for about sixteen months and that it has been done on a wholesale scale.

"Some girls thus torn from our Serbian villages are taken first to Bulgaria and then sent to the harems of Constantinople. Others are sent to various centres of 'civilisation' in Asia Minor. Abduction, rapine and pillage have been carried out with such thoroughness that whole villages no longer exist.

"We have received some of our information from prisoners whom we have captured on the Salonika front. They give horrible evidence of the traffic in girls which is being carried on by the Turks and Bulgarians. We have obtained further information, including that of a schoolmaster living in one of the villages occupied by the enemy, who has managed to get some evidence through in spite of the Bulgarians.

"It is most difficult to do anything effective to rescue any of these girls from the clutches of the Bulgarians and Turks. I am certain that Great Britain, champion of the tortured and oppressed, will do all she can after the war to restore to freedom and homes as many as possible of these victims of cruelty and aggression."

MR. MARRIOTT

78 Loss Ave., Ottawa, Ont., August 9th, 1915.

"I think it my duty to tell you what "Fruit-a-tives" has done for me. Three years ago, I began to feel run-down and tired, and suffered very much from Liver and Kidney Trouble. Having read of "Fruit-a-tives", I thought I would try them. The result was surprising. During the 8½ years past, I have taken them regularly and would not change for anything. I have not had an hour's sickness since I commenced using "Fruit-a-tives", and I know now what I haven't known for a good many years—that is, the blessing of a healthy body and clear thinking brain".

SUFFERED TERRIBLY
For Four Days and Nights From DIARRHOEA

Diarrhoea arises from many causes such as change of diet change of water change of climate, catching cold, the eating of unripe fruits or anything that will cause an excess of bile.

On the first sign of any looseness of the bowels it should not be neglected, but should be looked after immediately, for if not diarrhoea, dysentery or some other serious bowel complaint may ensue.

Miss Florence Harfield, 325 Lauder Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with a violent attack of diarrhoea. I suffered terribly with it for four days and nights, and finally I became so weak I did not think I could stand it any longer. My sister advised me to try a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I did so, and after I had taken three doses I felt a whole lot relieved. I kept on taking it, and by the time I had taken six doses, the diarrhoea had completely stopped. I think it a wonderful remedy, as it is so quick to act. I will recommend it to all my friends."

There are so many spurious "Strawberry" preparations sold that you should see that the name "Dr. Fowler's" is on every bottle you buy. Price 35c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RECIPES WORTH KEEPING AT HAND

Save Late Beets.

Select a well drained location, make a shallow excavation about 6 inches deep, line it with straw, hay, leaves or similar material and place the beets in a conical pile on the lining. Make the bottom of the pile about the same size as but not larger than the bottom of the excavation.

Cover the beets with the same material as that used for lining the bottom of the pit and carry it up several inches above the apex of the pile of vegetables, having it extend through the direct covering. This serves as a ventilating flue, and it should be covered with a piece of tin or a short board as a protection from rain.

The dirt covering should be two or three inches thick when the vegetables are stored, and it should be increased as severely cold weather approaches until it is a foot or more in thickness, or sufficient to protect from freezing. In finishing the pit the dirt should be firmed with the back of the shovel in order to make it as nearly waterproof as possible.

The shallow trench around the base of the pit should have an outlet for carrying off the water. Supplement the dirt covering with manure, straw, corn fodder, or other protective material. Use several small pits instead of one large one, as the entire contents may be removed when the pit is opened.

A great mind doesn't necessarily require a large hat.

Every now and again don't you get one of those fearful headaches that drive you to do anything to get relief? Remember, though, its a mistake to just "smother" the pain without removing the cause. Nearly all headaches have their beginning in the stomach, liver or bowels, and the best remedy is Chamberlain's Tablets, which tone the liver, sweeten the stomach and cleanse the bowels. This not only cures the headache but prevents its return.

All dealers 25 cents or by mail from Chamberlain Medicine Co., Toronto. 39

BRITISH WARSHIPS SHELL GERMAN NAVAL WORKS

The Enemy Counter Attacks in Flanders Are Checked

"AT THE END OF TWO HOURS OF FIERCE FIGHTING OUR WHOLE LINE WAS INTACT" SAYS HAIG

British Field Marshal Reports the Complete Failure of German Counter Attacks Against Newly Won Positions in Flanders---"West Lancashire and London Troops Repelled Enemy's Infantry With Great Loss" the Official Statement Announces

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, September 22.—Fighting is still raging to-day in the neighborhood of Tower Hamlets, which has been the scene of almost continuous strife since the offensive of the British to the east of Ypres on the Belgian front, began. On the left the British line was reported to be intact, but no news of the situation on the left could be had.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 22.—The troops of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria continued last night to launch heavy counter attacks against the new British lines east of Ypres on the Belgian front, Field Marshal Haig in his report to-day to the War Office, says that the Germans used considerable forces in their attacks without gaining any result except to heavily increase their losses.

The text of the statement says: "At one point the enemy troops succeeded in penetrating a short distance into our new positions but they were immediately and completely driven out by our local counter-attack. At all other points, the West Lancashire and London troops repulsed the enemy's infantry, with great loss. At the end of two hours of fierce fighting our whole line was intact. The attack was delivered with great determination, and the enemy's losses were exceedingly severe."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 22.—Incomplete parts of the reply of Germany and Austria to Pope Benedict's peace plea, which arrived before press time, are given prominence in the morning newspapers. The tenor of the head lines reflects British attitude.

One paper captions the documents as "hypocritical claptrap from Berlin and Vienna. The Daily Mail characterizes the Austrian reply as a vague document—"The Allies' peace conditions stand on record. Germany has not as yet the slighest intention of accepting them. From them the Allies will never recede." The Graphic declares—"Meanwhile, President Wilson must surely be disillusioned as to the distinction between the German Government and the German people. The real hope of the Allies does not lie in divided Germany nor in Papal Notes, but in relentless blows on the German armies, such as Sir Douglas Haig has just delivered." The Chronicle says that it is impossible to suspect the earnestness of the Austrian Emperor's reply, adding—"Sincerity breathes through every part of this remarkable utterance." Emperor Charles has always spoken in a different "accent from the violence and harshness of Berlin."

(By William G. Shepherd, U.P. Staff Correspondent.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.)

STOCKHOLM, September 22.—The American embassy at Petrograd was under guard of a large detachment of Russian soldiers last week, and for the past two days the American legation here has been unable to communicate with Ambassador Francis. No apprehension is felt. There have been no arrivals from Stockholm for several days past. Ordinarily this port is filled with travellers going to and coming from Petrograd.

German Naval Works Shelled By British

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 22.—British warships this morning bombarded German naval works in Belgium, with satisfactory results. Three German sea planes were shot down by British air planes.

Airplanes Active in the New Offensive

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 22.—A report of the activities of the British aviators during the recent battle says: "While the attack was in progress airplanes fired from their machine guns over 28,000 rounds, from heights ranging between 100 and 1,000 feet, at the German infantry, in their trenches and shellholes, and at the reinforcements coming up to battle. All night bombs were dropped on two tons, and on Ledegham, Roulers and Menin railway stations. In the middle of the day the German aircraft became very active, attempting to interfere with our artillery and our bombing and low-flying machines. In the evening when the weather improved they kept well to the east of the lines, and were not inclined to fight. Two hostile machines were destroyed, and six were driven down out of control. Ten of our machines are missing."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Petrograd, Sept. 22.—The Russian troops have retired to the right bank of the Dvina River, in the region of Jacobstadt, it was officially announced to-day by the Russian war office.

The text of the Russian statement follows: "On the northern front in the region of Riga yesterday after intense artillery preparation enemy detachments attacked in the direction of Sisseral. The attack broke down owing to the tenacity of our advanced guards, which were supported by our artillery."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, September 22.—There was violent artillery activity last night on the Aisne front and on both banks of the Meuse in Verdun. Enemy surprise attacks against our small posts near La Royere, south of the Miette and the region northwest of Rheims, were repulsed by our fire.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT SUNDAY.

Cobourg, September 22.—An automobile accident happened at Cold Springs when a car driven by A. Cauley, of Cobourg, in coming in from Rice Lake, was struck by a car driven by William Buttars, of Plainville. Buttars' car was coming out from the church shed and struck Cauley's car at the rear wheel, overturning the latter and breaking the wheel and the frame. Buttars ran his car up the road a piece and ran into the ditch, breaking the front part of his new car. While the occupants of both cars received quite a shaking up, luckily no one was seriously injured.

It's up to a man to foot his bills after reciving a legacy.

VETERANS ENJOY VISIT FROM CAPT. KEN C. McPHERSON

Member of the Dominion Executive of the Great War Veteran's Association Gives Local Returned Men Some Interesting Information in Regard to Pensions

IMPROVEMENTS SUGGESTED

A large number of the members of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association gathered in the club rooms at the Barrie Building last night to meet Capt. Kenneth C. McPherson, of Ottawa, a member of the Dominion Executive of the G.W.V.A. and a gentleman who has been most active in the interests of returned soldiers generally. Capt. McPherson was overseas with the 2nd Canadian Divisional Engineers, of which Lieut.-Col. T. W. H. Young, of Peterborough was for a long period the medical officer.

The members of the Peterborough branch greatly enjoyed Captain McPherson's visit and should profit by it as well as the Dominion Executive member was able to give some very interesting and profitable information to the War Veterans in regard to pensions and similar matters. Capt. McPherson went into details in regard to requests made by the Dominion Executive of the G.W.V.A. upon the Government and pointed out what had already been accomplished along this line, notably the granting of three months' pay to a soldier upon his discharge and the doing away with the hiatus that formerly existed between the time that a man was discharged and the time that his pension was granted and under the new condition a soldier's pay continues until his pension commences.

Improvements in the pension scheme as suggested by the G.W.V.A. were explained by Capt. McPherson who also dealt with the question of increased pay for the soldier. The Ottawa man does not believe in granting more pay to the single man, but he is firmly of the opinion that the separation allowance of the married soldier should be increased from $20 to $30 with an additional allowance of $5 for each child, thus leaving the Patriotic Fund to take care of only the exceptional cases.

Many other points of interest were dealt with in the course of the evening and the members of the local branch were given a clearer conception of the work that is being accomplished by the Dominion Executive of the organization to which they are

The local medical board will be ready to examine men under the Military Service Act by the middle of next week, it is announced to-day. The Board would like the employers of labour to send in as early as possible—the first of the week—the probable number of men they will require examined. This is optional with the employers, but the board feels that this co-operation between the board and the employers will result in as little dislocation of business and manufacturing pursuits as could be expected.

The Examiner has received the following Canadain Press Despatch from Ottawa to-day:

OTTAWA, Sept. 22.—Class "A" men only will be called to the colours when the first proclamation is issued under the terms of the Military Service Act. In this class are men fit, from a medical point of view, for actual combatant service. Men in lower medical classifications will not be required to go on active service, perhaps for some considerable time, even if at all.

OFFICER PROMOTED.

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—The promotion of Major E. M. Lewis, M.P., to the temporary rank of lieutenant-colonel, while specially employed, is announced in militia orders gazetted to-day.

LOCATED AT BARRIEFIELD.

Kingston, Sept.—Captains J. H. Box, M.C.; George Burwell, M.C., and A. G. Howson, graduate of Queen's Medical College, and who spent two and a half years in active service with the Royal Army Medical Corps, have joined the C. A. M. C. and are at Barriefield Camp.

WINNIPEG ATHLETIC HEROES

Two well-known Winnipeg athletes, Francis Caldwell and Les Moffatt, have been decorated for bravely in France. Major Moffatt and Major Caldwell both won the Military Cross. Major Caldwell held an isolated post for 35 hours and carried out a most successful attack, while Major Moffatt took a forward position and repulsed several German attempts to recover it. Both were prominent as amateur hockey stars at Winnipeg. They played in Toronto with the Winnipeg All-Stars several years ago.

Speaking of the exhibition given by Sergt. Cooper, Secretary of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. at Lindsay, on Thursday, the Lindsay Warder says:

After this came the feature number of the evening, sword exercises, as performed by Sergt. Cooper an old veteran of many campaigns. Sergt. Cooper, who has the distinction of having served under Kitchener in Africa, gave an amazing exhibition of wonderful dexterity with the sword, performing seemingly impossible feats with the eye of a master.

Given A Year In Reformatory

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 22. —Robert King, aged thirty-seven, was sentenced to one year in the Ontario Reformatory, having pleaded guilty to having seduced a fifteen year old girl, by Judge Reade this morning. The defence asked for suspended sentence so he might marry the girl.

"It is no sovereign remedy to be permitted to marry the girl when such a crime is committed," said the Judge. "If he had loved the girl and wanted to marry her he would not have committed the offence. To mate her with such a man would only be adding to the punishment she is sure to suffer. There are no extenuating circumstances, and to meet the requirements of the statutes, I will sentence you to a term in prison."

A Dainty Dandelion And Beautiful Asters

Mr. J. H. Callander, 585 Weller street, an enthusiastic and successful horticulturist and florist, has left with the Examiner a rare plant in this latitude, a dainty tall flower, the leontodon autumnale, or autumn dandelion. It has dainty leaves, richly green, of the same shape, but much smaller and miniture flowers, borne on long, delicate stems, the same as the ordinary pestilent, persistent and never-dying dandelion, taraxacum dens leonis.

This autumn has been very favourable to late blooming flower plants, such as the aster and perennial flox, etc. Speaking of asters, it may be mentioned that Mr. J. H. Heal, 343 St. Joseph street, has one of the most, if not the most, beautiful and conspicuous stands of vari-coloured asters in the city. They are the admiration of every passer by and in proof that love of man goes with love of flowers, Mr. Heal is as generous in treating his friends to the bloom, as he is generous in planting and assiduous in care.

ENEMY'S HEAVY LOSSES IN BATTLES WITH THE FRENCH

Statistics Made Available To-day Show That Germany Has Lost at Least 142,500 Men in Three Great Military Operations

INTERESTING FIGURES

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Henry Wood, U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 22.—Germany has lost at least 142,500 men in just three great military operations by the French in a single year, according to statistics made available to the United Press to-day.

These figures showed:

In Flanders, between Mercken and Hollebeke, during the six weeks following July 18, the Germans engaged 35 divisions (525,000 men) and withdrew 27 divisions (405,000 men) on account of losses. The custom of the German General Staff is to withdraw a division when its losses are from 2,000 to 3,000 men. Figuring the losses of the 27 divisions withdrawn at 2,500 each, the total German casualties for this campaign would be 67,500.

In the same period along the Somme a year ago, the Germans engaged 24 divisions (510,000 men) and withdrew 22 (330,000 men). Total losses probably 55,000.

During and since the French attack on Verdun (August 20), the Germans there engaged sixteen divisions (240,000 men) and withdrew eight (120,000 men). Total losses probably 20,000.

British Arms Never Had to Tackle a Harder Proposition Than in the Fighting This Week in Flanders

ANZACS IN LIMELIGHT

LONDON, Sept. 21 (via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—Telegraphing from British Headquarters in Flanders, Reuter's correspondent says:

"The more one hears about yesterday's great fight the more one admires the masterly tactics and indomitable gallantry displayed. Never has a British army had to tackle a tougher proposition than that set by the attack on a defensive area of great depth, held so densely that it may be estimated that there was an average of over four Germans to every yard of front.

"To the Anzacs and some of the British troops which served General Plummer so well at Messines fell what might have been expected to prove the stiffest part of the great day's task. They acquitted themselves nobly. For the Australians it was the most completely successful achievement of their glorious career. The English and Scottish battalions co-operating on their flanks added new lustre to their imperishable laurels. If I have heard any complaint against the Anzacs it is one they can bear with equanimity—namely, that they want rather too quickly. They dodged a barrage fire so close that they were upon the Huns before the latter could spring from their trenching positions.

A Picturesque Incident.

"A particularly fine and picturesque incident occurred when they carried a strong point dubbed 'Anzac.' A man, whose name should become immortal in the history of the Commonwealth, suddenly sprang up on the parapet, and, amid a hurricane of cheers, planted the blue and white starred ensign of Australia where it could be seen far and wide. It was an act of proud defiance of the Hune.

"Farther north the South Africans were doing splendid work. They swept forward toward their mark with irresistible elan, and although it is yet too early to gather the full story of the deeds of these springboks, who are still amidst the smoke pall overhauling the front, I know they have taken a noble part in the great adventure.

Fought at Concert Pitch.

Regarding the homeland troops they fought throughout at very concert pitch, and with their traditional dash and valor. The Germans simply could not withstand those waves of khaki. The Kilties and with the famous English line regiments, and who shall say that either occupies best of it in that glorious competition? They got there, one and all, and they made up their minds to stay.

Holding Our Gains.

"Throughout the day the enemy's guns pounded away, and there were many counter-attacks, either launched and beaten back or broken up before the assembled masses could deploy. I watched, late into the night, the lurid, palpitating sky, and wondered what the undulating thunder might be recording? But this morning we are holding on to our gains just as Vimy and Messines, and, aided by beneficent weather, who are consolidating, so that every hour lessens the chances of success of the most desperate efforts the enemy can make.

Enemy at Disadvantage.

"The strategic significance of yesterday's victory must eventually manifest itself unmistakably. The value of this gain cannot be measured by the mere acreage of recovered territory, though that is substantial. It was a battle for the commanding position, and we have won a victory which leaves the enemy in this wide tract of Flanders at a serious disadvantage."

A PERFECT END TO A HARD DAY

Is when you can sit down in the evening and read comfortable and know that your eyes will stand the strain. But if your eyes trouble you at all it shows that the strain is too much for them. They need to be attended to by Dr. Lacey, 410 George street.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 22, 1917

TIME FOR SERVING AND SAVING.

It is reasonably indisputable that the present and recent rate of remuneration for all sorts of labour—skilled and unskilled—is at the highest point ever reached. Though the cream of these high wages is absorbed in and diluted by the high cost of living, yet the community of commerce and trade derives large advantages.

It, however, depends entirely upon the recipients of high wages whether they are a benefit or an injury. If the possession of abundant means induces extravagant expenditure, and tends to develop habits of lavish outlay, the benefit of high wages is doubtful. In that event those that get high wages are living in a fool's paradise.

The conditions of extraordinary wage increase cannot, in the nature of things, become permanent. Good authorities assert that, once the war is over, wages will begin to fall, and may not be long in reaching the ante-bellum level, if not a lower one. Then, if extravagant and spend-all-you-earn habits are formed by practice, the drop will be a sharp one and the working man will be badly equipped in his philosophy of living for meeting the emergency.

But if, on the contrary, the worker sees the wisdom of making hay while the sun shines, and putting it under cover, that is, saving and storing a liberal share of his liberal earnings, he will have a position that will hold comfortable conditions, when things come to a slump and the war releases large competition in both skilled and unskilled labour. What we earn only counts in relation to what we save, what we make a wise use of.

This war will either make us or mar us. It has given us new outlook, new ideals, new ambitions, and new opportunities. If we heed the lessons it should teach us, we shall be bettered individually and nationally. If we ignore the lessons, if we miss the opportunities, it will be the worse for us.

It is pitifully suggested to housewives —"Don't stuff your husbands, but husband your stuff."

HEARTENING THE BOYS.

There has come to The Examiner a copy of the "Canadian Daily Record," a journal published by the War Records Office, London, and a copy sent daily to every Canadian soldier in England and France. It is a modest little sheet but must be a ray of sunshine to every recipient. It is composed of a summary of Canadian general news, including sporting intelligence, as well as comments and excerpts from Canadian papers.

When we appreciate, as we can do by a little thinking, how our battered Canadian soldier boys in the mud or dust, mire, and blood and discomfort of trench life, must become a prey to the deadly monotony of battle routine, cut off from all home associations, with little change but for the worse—a dose of shrapnel or a whiff of gas—we can fancy how a home newspaper, in itself a long letter from home, with a hundred little items of personal interest add appeal, comes as a benediction and a boon.

It wouldn't be much to do, but would count much, if those who receive local papers would forward them after reading, to some Peterborough soldiers—the addresses can easily be secured—they would be casting unestimable cheer into the dreariness of the soldiers' army life. These gallant fellows are doing what we are not doing—what we can't do or don't do—and in the process reflecting glory upon Canada and Canadian valour. They are doing it for us, and we can help and cheer them in a wonderful way, by sending them often a letter from home in the form of a home newspaper, all the more cheering if it becomes a personal kindness by means of the sender's name going with it.

It seems that there is no local organised way of doing this; and it seems that the idea might be easily worked out in a practical organised way.

The value of getting home literature to soldiers is shown by the importance the United States postal authorities attach to it. The Postmaster-General of the United States has caused to be printed in every magazine publication of any kind, an official notice to the effect that if a stamp is placed on the magazine and it is handed to any postal official, without any trouble of wrapping, the post office authorities will see that it gets into the hands of some American soldier or sailor in training at home or on service abroad.

Our own government may not adopt this idea; but we at home in Peterborough might consider the matter seriously, and do something definite and cheering for the soldiers from home who are fighting for us; for the boys we know. We owe them much, and can't do too much for them, and we might well do such a little thing as sending them regularly and systematically newspaper letters from home.

Evidently all the hogs in Canada are not fed on pens and turned into bacon.

THE QUEBEC BRIDGE.

It is a far cry from General Wolfe's troops climbing the steeps of Cape Diamond some hundred and fifty years ago, to the Quebec Bridge today, flinging its giant stretch of steel across the river at this point, representing the greatest engineering feat of recorded time on this continent, and the greatest cantilever bridge in existence in any part of the world. A war-time work, the bridge is the greatest accomplishment of peace conditions, and is a high-water mark in Canadian progress and achievement, and possibility. It is the work altogether of Canadian engineering brains and Canadian structural skill, and permits the most important economy in transcontinental transportation, the saving of time. When the bridge is completed and railed, it will cut off half a day of the time of the railway journey from Halifax to Winnipeg and the farthest west.

The completion of the bridge by the successful placing of the fateful middle span, gives the country relief. For days the people of Canada, as well as the span itself, were in suspense. It was recognised that the hoisting 150 feet, of a tremendous mass of steel, wide enough to carry two railway tracks, two street car tracks and two roadways; of a length of 600 feet—about the distance between Brock and Simcoe streets—and weighing ten million pounds, was a hardy risky undertaking. It as therefore a great relief when engineering skill and patience accomplished the great task.

We Canadians, without being boastful, can think well of ourselves. While our soldiers have been winning laurels in old France, abreast of the best fighting forces of the world, the Canadian soldiers of peace have been winning a big victory over time and space, height and depth, in "New France."

The total trade of Canada — outward and inward—this year almost reaches the wonderful total of 2,500 million dollars.

THE GHOULS OF TRADE.

All Canada is called upon to pinch and save as a measure of war-winning; and all Canada is pinched by high prices. It is no wonder that the whole country is in arms against the spoilation of the food profiteers, who are coining the sacrifice of us all, and the blood and very lives of our soldiers into ill-gotten gain. In condemnation of this there is no politics. The hand and voice of the journals friendly to the government, as well as the voice of Labour Congresses and church courts, are raised against the predatory assaults of the food profiteers. There is no party politics in the condemnation. The General Executive of Home Missions and Social Service of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, on Thursday passed the following significant resolution:

"Whereas our own and other nations are making great sacrifices in connection with the war,

"And whereas, it has come to light that certain individuals and groups of individuals are taking advantage of the war conditions to exact from the State and the public generally exorbitant profits by exploiting the necessaries of life—

"Resolved, that the General Executive of Home Missions and Social Service of the Presbyterian Church in Canada voice their protest against all such profiteering, and request that stringent measures be taken by the authorities concerned to prevent as far as possible, these unpatriotic, unworthy and shameful practices and that the Church, through its pulpits and otherwise, express its indignation because of these practices."

When the country is being combed for money; when everybody from childhood to old age is importuned to save money to loan to the government for war purposes, it seems an enormity of guilt that money by the millions should be diverted from the common store, the common cause, to swell the fatness of private and corporate purses.

Our Food Controller calls for millions of appetite controllers.

Mother, said little Evelyn, may I go out and play with the other children now?

You may play with the little girls, sweetheart, but not with the boys; the little boys are too rough.

But, mother, rejoined the little miss, if I find a nice, smooth little boy, can I play with him?—New York Times.

The Government, Margarine And The Children's Dry Bread

On questions concerning agriculture and food production generally there is no better authority in Canada than Dr. J. W. Robertson, long a chief officer of the Dominion's Department of Agriculture, later head of the Macdonald Agricultural College, and now cooperating with the Food Controller in advising the people respecting the need of economy in the use of foods. Dr. Robertson addressed a meeting in Montreal on Thursday night, at which one of his audience drew his attention to a matter which we discussed in our issue of last week—the continued prohibition of margarine in Canada. The report says:

"Professor Robertson gave it as his opinion in response to a questioner, that oleomargarine was just as valuable in nutritive properties, pound for pound, as butter for all ordinary purposes. The only reason it had not been allowed in Canada was that dairymen felt that it had been sold in the past not as a substitute for butter, but as a counterfeit of butter. The government did not want to precipitate a conflict on this question during war time. The speaker had at one time made oleomargarine. It could be made so much like butter that he had known two experts unable to decide between two articles which was butter and which was oleomargarine. Butter seemed better in the hospitals as it was richer in the vitamens so necessary to digestibility."

Dr. Robertson no doubt stated the situation correctly. But is it not a humiliating position to place our government in? If the farmers' objections to the use of margarine now had any reasonable ground, the government would, of course, be right in deferring to their view. But Dr. Robertson's remarks show very clearly that there is no sound objection now to allowing the people to purchase a cheap food that is so much needed in these times of stress. Years ago margarine was produced under conditions that gave good ground for treating it as unwholesome. But these conditions have long passed away. Margarine, as made to-day, is recognized in every civilized country except Canada as a legitimate article of commerce. Our farmers are very human. They are naturally inclined to look out for what they believe to be their own interests. When somebody tells them that the use of margarine will reduce the price of butter, they are disposed than others to be fair and the other hand, the farmers of our country are of the most intelligent classes, and they surely are not less les disposed than others to be fair and just to their fellow-countrymen, when all the facts of the case are laid before them. If the proper steps had been taken to inform the farmers of the truth of the margarine question there is no room for doubt that the most intelligent and representative among them would have seen the injustice of the present law and would have assented to its repeal, or at least to its suspension during the war. Dr. Robertson, if assigned to such a duty, could in half an hour's discussion satisfy any intelligent farmers' meeting of the absurdity of the prohibition in war time and of the cruel injustice (the words are none too strong) that it does to the poorer classes, who are so hard pressed by the present food prices. When there is an almost unlimited demand for butter, and the article sells readily for between forty and fifty cents a pound, it is folly to think that the producer of it requires any form of protection. As to the substitution of margarine for butter, we have abundance of laws to guard against fraud of that kind and there is no difficulty in enforcing them.

When the price of butter began to soar to figures beyond the reach of the poorer classes the Government's Department of Agriculture should have taken up the margarine question immediately, and having satisfied itself that, as Dr. Robertson shows, the article is pure and nutritious the Department, by its literature and its speakers, should have placed the truth of the matter before the farmers of the country, and then taken steps to give the Canadian people the right to purchase this food stuff which is not denied to the people of any other civilized country. We refuse to believe that the farmers of Canada, a most intelligent and probably on the whole the most prosperous class of our people, desire their poorer class citizens to be denied the privilege of buying this cheap food. To the workingman whose children eat dry bread, the Government virtually say: "We know this is wrong. We know that margarine is wholesome and cheap. We know that if you lived anywhere else in the wide world you would be free to use it in your home. But as we are afraid of the votes of the farmers, and we are not willing to take the trouble of educating the farmers in the truth of the matter, your children must still eat dry bread."

Is there any exaggeration in this? Is it not a fair and correct statement of the attitude that is taken on this margarine question by the Government and Parliament of Canada? —Journal of Commerce.

Home Canning Is Not Affected By Gov't Regulation

Hanover People Refused to Put Up Supplies of Fruit.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—Because they had heard that the food controller had ordered the confiscation of all canned fruit and vegetables over 50 pint jars per family, the people of Hanover, Ont., have refused to do any canning under any circumstances. One of the citizens wired Dr. A. H. Arnott, secretary of the organization of resources committee, asking for confirmation or denial of the rumor. Dr. Abbott wired back that while the order-in-council of August 24 prohibited the sale and purchase of certain canned vegetables, there had never been any suggestion of confiscation, the idea being to compel the use of fresh vegetables. The regulation does not affect the use of privately canned goods.

ENGLISH, SCOTCH AND IRISH FIGHTERS.

An American recently returned from service at the front with Canadian troops tells of the difference in preparations for battle of the English soldier as compared with the Scotch and Irish. When getting ready for attack, the English soldier carefully goes over mechanism of his rifle to see the locks are working properly, the barrel free of mud and so forth.

The Scot and the Irishman pay no attention to mud on lock, stock or barrel, but each very carefully polishes his bayonet on his sleeve. The battle over, the English soldiers may be observed proudly escorting back groups of prisoners, while the Scotch and Irish come back empty handed. Asked about prisoners, they reply: "Prisoners! Never saw any."

TELLS STORY OF MURDER OF THE BELGIAN PRINCE CREW

William Snell, One of Three Who Essayed, Gives First Complete Story of U-Boat Commander's Savagery

AN ATLANTIC PORT—The New York Herald publishes the complete story of the atrocious attempt of a Prussian U-boat commander to murder the entire crew of the steamship Belgian Prince, after the men of that vessel had gone aboard the submarine at the commander's invitation. It is the first time the detailed story has been published.

It was obtained by the Herald at first hand from William Snell, of No. 1,102 Thirty-second street, Newport News, who is one of the three who managed to escape death. The other forty-eight of the crew perished. The captain's fate is problematical. He was sent below aboard the submarine, and Enell says nothing more was seen of him by the others of the Belgian Prince's personnel. Snell, who is a negro, was the second cook aboard the Belgian Prince. In some respects his story contradicts the cabled accounts.

"The Belgian Prince left Philadelphia for Liverpool last June 24, with a cargo of ammunition and supplies," said Snell, "and reached Liverpool on July 15. There she reloaded with China clay and salt, and on July 27 started on her way back to America, Newport News being her objective point.

"On July 31, at eight o'clock in the evening, while I was in my cabin writing a letter, I heard an explosion, and soon after that another one. The first one was a shell, which tore into the side of the vessel; the second one a shell which put our wireless apparatus out of commission. These details I learned afterward when I got on deck. But the moment I heard the noise I knew that we were being attacked, and I put on my lifebelt and ran to the deck.

"Every man of the crew had been drilled and knew just what to do, and so there was no confusion. Three lifeboats were lowered and we were then ordered to gather alongside the submarine on the starboard side of the Belgian Prince. Machine guns on the deck of the U-boat were aimed at us and her crew also were armed with revolvers which covered us.

Commander Spoke English.

"The commander, speaking very good English, ordered us to throw up our hands. We did so, and he then asked, 'Where's the captain?'

"'Here I am,' answered our captain, and the commander told him to get aboard. The commander of the U-boat was a man of perhaps twenty-seven years or so, smooth shaven and good looking. At first he was rather pleasant, but this soon wore off, and he became extremely grouchy after awhile and frowned and seemed ready to kill every one of us.

"'Where are your papers?' asked the commander. And after our captain had given them to him he ordered our captain to follow him below. A few minutes afterward the commander returned to the deck alone.

"'Are there any gunners among you?' asked the commander. There were nine, but the first officer was afraid not only that the gunners would be put to death, but that all of us would have to suffer on account of them, so he said, 'We had some, but they were all killed.'

"'Well, if there are no gunners among you,' he said, 'bring your boats alongside, and all hands come on deck.'

"Nine of the submarine's crew held revolvers at our faces while we were getting aboard. And we were then lined up forward of the conning tower. The commander also held a revolver in one hand while with the other he 'frisked' us to see whether any of us had weapons in our clothes. When he got through, he asked: 'Has any one among you any kind of weapon?' To which all of us replied negatively, except that most of us had jack knives.

Made Them Remove Lifebelts.

"'Well, now take off your lifebelts,' was his next order, 'and lay them down on the deck.' He seemed to take a greater dislike to some of us than to others, for he picked up some of the lifebelts and threw them into the sea.

"Just then another officer of the U boat spoke to the commander in German. I could not understand what he said. The one who spoke German appeared to be of higher rank than the commander, because as soon as he had finished talking the commander ordered his men to get into our two larger lifeboats and throw the oars overboard; then, after removing to his own vessel all the provisions and whisky and whatever other supplies we had, he himself removed the plugs and the lifeboats immediately began filling with water. But they did not sink. I have heard it said since that the submarine crew used axes to destroy the lifeboats. I may have been too excited at the time to notice everything that was going on, but I hardly believe that this is true. In fact, one of our boats—the captain's boat—which had been run alongside the U-boat on the port side while the other two were on the starboard side, was not touched at all.

"After the lifeboats had filled with water they were cut loose from the U-boat and they began drifting away.

"The commander then pushed us forward, away from the conning tower. Four Germans entered our captain's boat, and put off to the Belgian Prince, probably with bombs to blow up the vessel.

Alone on U-Boat's Deck.

"The next thing we knew, the commander ducked into the conning tower, and closed the cap over it, and we, of the Belgian Prince, were left alone on the submarine's deck. At almost the same moment we heard a whirring sound below, and presently the submarine started off at a lively clip. The Belgian Prince was soon left far behind. We must have gone about fourteen miles in the direction away from shore—the Irish coast was about 175 miles away—when I began feeling the water come up over my feet. Some of the others laughed and kept on chatting, and one of the men asked me for a cigarette. I told them I couldn't understand how they could take it so easy when it was plain that we were going to be drowned. Most of the men still laughed. They could not believe it possible that human beings could be fiendish enough to do such a thing.

"When we were ordered to put our life belts on the deck I folded mine up before laying it down and then stood on it. Afterwards I slipped it under my mackintosh; and now, when I saw that the submarine was getting lower and lower in the water, I slipped the life belt over my head and jumped into the water.

"The reason I jumped was because I was afraid that when the submarine submerged the suction would drag us down to death. Scarcely had I struck out swimming and gotten a few yards away from the submarine before she went down with a peculiar sound, as if some body had hit the surface of the water with a broad slab—something like a loud 'whup.'

"The men began hollering, 'Help! help!' It was awful. There we were, hundreds of miles from human help. The impossibility of obtaining help made the cries of the men so much more frightful. It was now about nine o'clock and dark; still I could distinguish forms near me. They were men swimming, and among them nearest to me was a seaman whom I knew well but never knew his name. He too recognized me. 'Cook,' he said, 'can you see her?' He meant the Belgian Prince, toward which we were swimming. I couldn't. It was too dark and beginning to become misty, and she was so far away.

Sees Companion Drown.

"'Let me rest my hands on you,' the man pleaded. I feared for my own life and said 'No, I can't.'

"'Well, goodby,' he said, after a little while, 'I can't go any further. Pray for me.' And then I heard a gurgling sound and could not see him any more. We had been in the water more than half an hour. He was less than ten yards from me.

"At eleven o'clock I could still see some men afloat. The water was calm on the surface, but the undercurrents were frightfully strong and gripped and pulled around and around. I am a lifebelt undoubtedly saved me. I am a good swimmer and strong, but nobody without aid could last over night in such a swirl of currents.

"When daylight came I could see the Belgian Prince. She was still a mile away. I saw the four men coming down from the vessel and enter the little boat. They were the four who had been sent from the submarine. I hollered, but when I was carried up on the crest of a swell and saw the submarine coming toward the little boat I stopped yelling and pretended to be dead. The water all around was strewn with bodies.

"I could see three of the men get aboard the submarine. The fourth stayed in the little boat. The submarine submerged. Then I began hollering again, hoping the men would have pity and pick me up. Half an hour after this a British patrol boat came along and picked me up, and also the felolw in the boat. He proved to be George Saliski, an able seaman aboard the Belgian Prince. How he got into the boat is a puzzle to me. He told the authorities in London that he had fellow in the boat. He proved to be possible. Besides the man was perfectly dry. His clothes had not been wet at all. Before I left London I heard he had been interned as a German.

The other man who was saved was Thomas Bowman, the chief engineer. He found a log of wood. He tried to save a young apprentice, but the poor lad died in Bowman's arms before rescue came."

Had Piles For Ten Years

AND TRIED NEARLY EVERYTHING EXCEPT A SURGICAL OPERATION WITHOUT OBTAINING RELIEF — TELLS HOW COMPLETE CURE WAS EFFECTED.

Brantford, September 22.—There is reported here three cures of chronic cases of piles. In all three cases many treatments were tried before it was discovered that Dr. Chase's Ointment is about the only real cure for this distressing ailment.

Mrs. A. Oates, 22 Gilkinson street, Brantford, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for ever so long and am particularly indebted to it for a cure from piles. I had suffered from this annoying trouble for ten years, and tried nearly everything that I heard of. After using Dr. Chase's Ointment for a short while I was completely cured."

Mrs. Wm. Shantz, 155 Albert street, Kitchener, Ont., writes: "For several years I was troubled with bleeding piles. I tried different remedies for relief without success. I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of the benefits other people were receiving from Dr. Chase's Ointment so I sent to your office for a sample box. I found it gave me such relief that I went to a drug store and purchased a full sized box. I have used several boxes since, and have derived more benefit from its use than any remedy I have ever used."

Mrs. F. Cussons, Victoria street, Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "About two years and a half ago I was suffering from piles. I had tried many different remedies for this distressing trouble, but nothing helped me. Finally I got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and after using it found that I was completely cured, and have not been bothered in this way since. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. There are no rivals to Dr. Chase's Ointment as a treatment for piles. Be sure to get the genuine.

WAR ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The marriage of Miss Daisy Polk, of San Francisco to General Maris Joseph Louis Robert de Buyer of the French army, which took place in the village of Vitrimont, near Luneville, in Lorraine, yesterday was the culmination of a romance begun nearly a year ago, when Miss Polk's automobile broke down one day near Vitrimont, where she has been in charge of the reconstruction of the village.

General de Buyer happened to pass by and offered the services of his chauffeur to repair the break, thus beginning the acquaintance, which led to the ceremony of to-day.

The marriage took place in the church which was the first building restored in the village. The ceremony was of the simplest possible order, as the General's nephew was killed at Verdun a month ago.

Miss Polk, by her marriage, becomes Countess de Buyer-Mimeure. After leaving St. Cyr, Count de Buyer-Mimeure entered the cavalry and at the beginning of the war was a temporary General of Brigade, taking command of the Sixth Brigade of Cuirassiers. He was appointed to the command of a division in 1915. Taking command of the third cavalry corps and in 1916 of the second army corps. He was cited for brilliant services performed and was promoted to Commander of the Legion of honour.

HOME DEFENCE

The safeguarding of your home and all it means to you is not a matter of armies and ships alone. The comfort and happiness of your family are exposed to the attacks of enemies much nearer to them than the marauding Huns of Central Europe.

What will become of your home and your wife and your children, if you be suddenly stricken down as thousands of others have been?

Will there be any bulwark of defence to keep the home and the family from destruction?

You can most easily provide such a line of defence by means of a life assurance policy. Home Defence is its purpose and it fulfills that purpose as nothing else can.

Real Wonder-Worker For Wrinkled Faces

Those who have tried all sorts of so-called "wrinkle-removers" in a vain effort to lose those unwelcome trace of age, illness or worry, can scarcely find words to express their delight with the wonderful saxolite formula, once they have given it a trial. The success of this method is due not alone to its marvelous effectiveness—upon the deepest lines and crowsfeet, as well as upon the very fine ones—but also to its suprising quick action and its entire harmlessness. Its simplicity and its inexpensiveness are other commendable features, for one need only dissolve one ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel, and bathe the face in this solution. At once a remarkable transformation is beheld.

It is not only the effect on wrinkles and creases that is so noticeable, but facial contour is remarkably improved and the face looks much younger. One should be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered saxolite. The lotion, being so refreshing is particularly grateful to tired faces.

"Laws for the Better Protection of Women and Children," Mrs. Cruikshank, convenor.

"Suppression of Objectionable Printed Matter," Mrs. Canniff, convenor.

"Care of the Mentally Deficient," Miss Lundy, convenor.

"Immigration," Mrs. Douglas, convenor.

"Public Health," Mrs. Mann, convenor.

"Professions and Employment for Women," Miss Denison, convenor.

"Food Conservation," Mrs. Morris, convenor.

Each convenor gave a five minute talk on the work done by their committees and the work they hoped to do along their particular line. These talks were most interesting and instructive, and it is to be regretted that more of the women of Peterborough do not avail themselves of these opportunities of learning what is being done in town and throughout Canada for their benefit and that of their children. These meetings are open to the public. They are held once a month and all who are interested are made welcome.

The report of the Playground committee was unfortunately one of those held over for a future meeting, but the exhibition of the children's work in the shape of rafia baskets, tags, set and needle work was a mute testimony to the growing success of one side of this movement. When the sun is shining and the little childlren can play in the sand and the older ones can swing and dance and play ball, it is a comparatively easy task to manage a playground, but when the mercury runs up to the 80's or the rain comes then it is that the supervisor requires all the patience and tact at her command. It was on such days as these that this work was done and little hands that seemed almost too small to hold a needle were taught to fashion these little bits of handiwork.

Mrs. Morris' talk on the conservation of food was a most timely one. The matter of asking the government to take some steps towards getting the bakers to make a more general use of whole wheat flour was also taken up.

Press Comment On Sweden's Confession

"An Admission of Guilt."

Buffalo Commercial:—"The somewhat labored explanation of the Swedish government of how it allowed itself to become the clearing house for sending military information to Germany from this side of the water, is, in substance, an admission of guilt."

"Should be Accepted."

Philadelphia Public Ledger:—"Unsatisfactory as the explanations of the Swedish government may be to the Allies, there is something to be said in favor of accepting them, at least for the moment."

"Easy for Prussian Plotting."

Norwich, (Conn.) Bulletin:—"The excuse which has been offered that the Swedish minister did not know what was going on or that he did not know the character of the messages, simply shows the ease with which Germany was able to carry out its scheme."

"A Humiliating Confession."

Boston Globe:—"If the Germans sent an improper communication, Sweden will ask an explanation from Berlin. And Sweden promises not to let it happen again.

"No more humiliating confession wel could be made by a government. Sweden's foreign office has been long prostituted in the German interest."

"Has No Valid Defence."

Albany Journal:—"The fact seems to be that the Swedish government has no valid defence. If its representatives really were ignorant of the contents of the messages it must be believed that they preferred to be left in ignorance because they knew that if they were told what the messages contained they would be compelled to refuse to transmit them."

"A Lame Apology."

Brooklyn Eagle:—"The Swedish government having resolved not to recall Baron Lowen from Buenos Ayres, gives as an excuse its conviction that the Minister made himself the intermediary of the German representative in good faith and did not know the hideous character of the messages he transmitted in code. A lamer apology was never made for an official act."

"Accepted at its Face Value."

New York World:—"The statement of the Swedish Foreign Office, explaining and apologizing for the misuse of its diplomatic pouches by the representative of the German government at Buenos Ayres will be accepted at its face value. It is well understood that neutrals in this war have been confronted by many difficulties. The United States, which during its long neutrality suffered so much from belligerent aggression, may easily be charitable."

Few Price Changes During the Week

Grocery Market Steady During the Week—Flour Settling Down

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

The grocery market during the week was one devoid of any sensational changes. Butter was strong on all markets with no indication of any easier feeling. Eggs on the other hand showed an easier feeling owing to a lighter export demand in conjunction with a good supply. Cheese prices are steady, and as any change in the standard price is unlikely at this time, there is no likelihood of any variation in this price for some time.

Prices in canned goods have shown no variation, other than a slightly stronger feeling in sockeye salmon. The report that the cheaper grades of salmon are running again, and there is a possibility of a better pack, has given a certain unsteadiness to these lines, though these reports are not authentic enough as yet to result in any decline. The probabilities of the tomato and corn pack are far from satisfactory. The pack of tomatoes to date has been very light, and only a fractional pack can be expected. There is a suggestion of probable decline in corn syrup from some sources, owing to the heavy corn crop, but no definite change has been noted. The coffee market has been active during the week, with a very slight change in favour of lower prices. Mocha coffee is practically unobtainable. Spices are reaching almost prohibitive prices in most lines. Cloves advanced strongly during the week on the primary market, which has led to a stronger feeling in the secondary markets, though no actual change has taken place. The sugar market is practically dormant, pending some more definite arrangement on the American market. Transactions have been extremely light, and such as there have been have represented mostly sales from second hands.

Flour seems to be settling down to a more steady tone. The millers seem to be generally of the opinion that the present price is quite in conformity with the set price on wheat, and that therefore this price is likely to be more or less standard.

Curing Skin Troubles

So many people, both men and women, suffer from skin troubles, such as eczema, blotches, pimples and irritation that a word of advice is necessary. It is a great mistake for such sufferers and those with bad complexions to smear themselves with greasy ointments. Often they could not do anything worse, for the grease clogs the pores of the troubled skin and their condition actually becomes worse.

When there are pimples or eruptions, or an irritating or itching rash, a soothing boracic solution may help to allay the irritation, but of course that does not cure the trouble. Skin complaints come from an impure condition of the blood, and will persist until the blood is thoroughly purified. It is well known that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have effected the best results in many forms of skin disorders and blemishes. This is due to the fact that these pills make new, rich blood, and that this new blood attacks the impurities that give rise to skin troubles and disperse them; so that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure skin disorders from within the system—the only sure way.

It should be added that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a beneficial effect upon the general health. They increase the appetite and energy and cure diseases that arise from impure blood.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fishing Good On Chemong Lake

A Few Twenty Pounders Are Being Caught—Calf Has the Rabies

BRIDGENORTH, Sept. 22. — The fishing has been better this last week in Chemong Lake than any time during the summer. Some people have caught as many as five in a day. Some weighing as high as twenty pounds.

Ducks are not very numerous as yet, but will be more plentiful as the weather gets cooler and they are driven from the other lakes by the hunters.

A Presentation.

The young folks of the Epworth League presented Mr. Henry Fraser with a very beautiful cane and address on Monday night last. It was Mr. Fraser's 71st birthday, and he has always attended the League and has always been very helpful at the meetings. Mr. Fraser, who was taken entirely by surprise, made a very suitable reply and thanked the young folk for the gift. After refreshments were served and the singing of "God Save the King," the meeting closed.

Mr. Baldwin and Miss Baldwin left their cottage on Saturday for their home in Toronto, after spending the summer in Chemong.

There are quite a number of cottagers in Chemong Park yet. Some have come lately and some on account of the fine weather are still remaining.

Good Crops.

Adjutant McElhiney has a fine crop of potatoes on his lot in the Park. He has made his vacation both pleasant and profitable.

The farmers are not making much headway with their plowing on account of the dry weather.

Calf Has Rabies.

Mr. Ray, of the 4th Line of Smith, has a calf that is supposed to have the rabies. The veterinary surgeon has been consulted and he says the symptoms looked as if rabies was the trouble. A dog was seen in the vicinity among some sheep that acted in a very peculiar manner, but was not killed.

A heavy wire double broiler is ostm convenient for steak broiling.

Is there any logic in buying something claimed to be as good as the ORIGINAL Dandruff Germ Destroyer?

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

LARGE ADDITION TO LONDON PLANT OF CORN FLAKES

Building to Cost $50,000 Will Be Erected at Present Site

MORE MEN EMPLOYED

Contracts Are Let and Permit Secured to Start Work Now

Announcement is made through the City Industrial Department of an addition which will probably exceed in cost the sum of $50,000 to the well-known plant of the Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flake Company, Limited, on Dundas street east, makers of Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes. This amount will include buildings, storage tanks and machinery. The additional buildings will be of brick and concrete, a three story building of 30x60 feet, and a one story building of larger dimensions. This addition to the plant will, when completed, require the employment of a number of additional men. Six large fire-proof storage tanks will be erected. The contract for the buildings and grain tanks has been let the Archibald & Holmes Company of Winnipeg, the contractors who are building the new Hunt mill.

The increased demand for the original Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes in the red, white and green package, so well known and which has been made here in London for over eleven years, necessitates this considerable addition.

SILVER STOCKS

Special attention is directed to the announcement of Messrs. Chas. A. Stoneham & Co., of 23 Melinda St., Toronto, (head office 41 Broad street, New York), who anticipate a substantial advance of silver and silver-lead stocks. Messrs. Stoneham & Co. are thorough experts in the silver market. They issue a weekly market letter, which is sent free to any applicant. This letter contains highly important information regarding the silver market and is of great use and benefit to the stock speculator. There is little doubt about it, the demand for silver at the present time is so great that dollar silver may be looked for in a very short time. It is eight years since Chas. A. Stoneham & Co. opened their branch office in Toronto. During that time they have built up a large clientele, and also established a reputation for fair, straight forward dealing.

A RUMOUR THAT HAD NO FOUNDATION IS CORRECTED

The Toronto Star has the following:

Flight Lieut. G. Leslie E. Stevens of Peterborough Ont., who is at present home on leave after two years' active service, writes to The Star to disclaim any connection with the McReynolds case. He has been in Washington, D.C., for the last two weeks, and owing to his absence from home his name was erroneously connected with the affair by certain people. Lieut. Stevens will shortly leave for the front again.

As a matter of fact the officer mentioned in connection with the case in question was a member of the Royal Flying Corps while Lieut. Stevens is a Flight Lieut. in the Royal Naval Air Service.

95 Per Cent. of Illness Due To One Cause

Physicians agree that 95 per cent. of all illness is possibly only because of accumulated waste in the Colon (Lower Intestine).

In fact, the most eminent of the World's Specialists claim that if the Colon were always kept clean the average life of humanity would be doubled.

There is now a new and simple method of cleaning the Colon of this poisonous waste, and keeping it clean, pure and healthy. Of curing Constipation and the depressing bilious attack which makes us dull, blue and inert—without any spirit of ambition.

That method is Internal Bathing with warm water, administered by the "J. B. L. Cascade," aptly termed "Nature's Cure."

Over 500,000 people are now enthusiastically using this modern warm water cure, and physicians are prescribing it everywhere. It is making sick folks well and well folks better, stronger, more ambitious, energetic and confidential.

This letter from Mr. A. Maclean of Conger Lumber Co., Parry Sound, Ont., a sufferer for 35 years from Constipation, is very valuable:

Parry Sound, Ont.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, Toronto:

Dear Doctor,—I have used the J. B. L. Cascade since I received it 21 days ago with wonderful results. Before I started this treatment I could not pass one day without taking medicines, since have not taken one dose, and feel so much better in every way.

I have been troubled with Constipation for the past 35 or 40 years, and of course, at my age cannot expect a speedy cure, as I am now in my 70th year, but the relief it has already given me is a promise of the good it will do for me.

I think a good many orders will come from Parry Sound as the treatment becomes known.

I cannot speak too highly of the Cascade treatment, and will surely talk much about it.

Yours gratefully,
A. Maclean.

The "J. B. L. Cascade" is now being explained and shown at Warne Drug Company, Peterborough and they will be glad to explain its action and also to you in detail.

If you cannot call, you should write today to Chas. A. Tyrrell, M.D., 153 College street, Toronto, for booklet, "Why Man of To-day is Only 56 Per Cent. Efficient."

To the woman who carries her age well life isn't much of a burden.

Remanded For Another Week

Alleged Pickpockets Returned to Jail While Prosecution Completes Enquiry

Bail was again refused the four prisoners who are held on a general charge of vagrancy and picking pockets, and they were remanded by Police Magistrate Dumble until Friday, September 28th. Mr. G. N. Gordon made a strong plea for the release of the men at $1,000 each, but the court was obdurate. The men, Francis Davis, Sam Searting, Thos. Flynn and Owen Foley, looked little the worse of their week in jail. Mr. Gordon objected to Chief Thompson's request for another remand. The prosecution was not ready to proceed and the Chief explained that the Crown Attorney was out of the city.

Mr. Gordon—At Camp Borden on a pleasure trip; that's no reason why these men should languish in jail.

Will the court fix bail at $1,000 each?

Magistrate Dumble—Is that satisfactory, Chief?

Mr. Gordon—$1,000 is not much to the Chief, but it is to the rest of us.

Chief Thompsons reply was a plain categorical "No," and with the next breath he called the adjournment of the court.

Jimmie Hodges in "Pretty Baby" With Jean Tynes

"Pretty Baby," the sensational Musical Comedy, with Jimmie Hodges and Jean Tynes in the leading roles, which comes to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday, September 26, is probably the most elaborate, from a scenic standpoint, of any production to play here this season.

There are five complete and elaborate scenes and settings; twenty odd song numbers; ten big dancing numbers and many electrical novelties.

The scene in the last act, atop a skyscraper, forming the "New York Roof Garden," with Broadway and its millions of lights in the immediate background, is a stage picture that one will remember for many a long day.

HARDWARE AND METAL MARKETS

Trade Continues Good—Lead Products Easier

The majority of the price changes this week come from Western Canada, and follow advances which took place previously in the Eastern markets. Trade continues good and fall lines are moving freely. Retailers are exercising caution in buying, and are buying in smaller quantities and more often than formerly. There is a feeling that prices on many lines will not go higher, and that in some cases declines may be expected. Some lines of building papers have declined in price. Lead products are easier, following recent declines in pig lead. There is a good demand for stoves and ranges and some manufacturers are unable to fill orders. So far as price changes on hardware lines are concerned this has been a quiet week, compared with any previous week in the past year. Unusual market developments are certain, however, for some years to come. Reports from the United States indicate that the Government's long awaited price plan for iron and steel will soon be announced. It is being awaited by all branches of the trade. The situation is badly confused and the official announcement, it is hoped, will clear the air. Retail hardware merchants report a good demand for motor accessories of all kinds. Wholesalers are steadily increasing their stocks of this line.—"Hardware and Metal."

WILL MAKE NO DIFFERENCE TO AMERICA

(By Carld D. Groat.)

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. — Germany's and Austria's acceptance of the Pope's peace proffer failed to swerve the United States government to-day in its announced determination to make no peace while Kaiserism exists.

Authorities declared that the war preparations will go on, that the struggle itself will continue despite the Teuton replies, and they pointed out that the Hohenzollerns always talk peace with their mouths, while their hearts plot murder and intrigue.

The Bernstorff fifty thousand dollar fund to influence Congress was held up as a striking example of what German peace talk amounts to. Bernstorff was talking peace—but it was a peace that would tie America's hands and keep one more enemy off Germany's back.

Say Convoy Was Attacked By Many Subs

Canadian Press Despatch:

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 22. — The Associated Press to-day carries the following: Passengers who arrived from England to-day on an American steamship, brought circumstantial reports that five British steamships and two destroyers, out of a convoy fleet of six which left Lough, Swilly, Ireland, on Sept. 3rd, were sunk by German submarines within a few hours of the port of departure. The five vessels it was said, convoyed by destroyers, put to sea shortly after midnight, and they were attacked by massed submarines at daylight the following morning. The news of the disaster was learned when the destroyers which escaped put back to port bringing the survivors of the torpedoed merchantmen and war vessels. Probably two submarines were sunk by the destroyers.

LABOUR UNREST IS ATTRIBUTED TO BIG GAINS OF PROFITEERS

Atlantic City, September 21.—Direct responsibility for strikes and the spirit of unrest in the ranks of labor since the war began was placed on the shoulders of unpatriotic, profiteering American businessmen, by Mr. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, today, addressing the war convention of American businessmen with the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"I have told labor," said Wilson, "that this is no time for them to insist on the recognition of their unions nor to force changes of standards they could not change in peace time; that this programme endangers the future liberty of our people.

"I now tell you American business men that this is no time to stand upon your prejudices, nor to insist upon profiteering, as many of your members have been doing. If you couldn't collect abnormal profits in normal times, you shouldn't take advantage of the necessities of your country in this time of crisis."

Labor has been restless, Wilson said, because word has gone forth that the iron and steel manufacturers are making 200 to 400 per cent., and men of other great industries are making enormous profits.

"This feeling has been justified," Wilson continued. "My investigations of the coal industry in the Eastern States proved it in one of many instances, because we found producers were extorting a five and six dollar margin on coal.

"You should welcome price fixing on your products, because it means a logical standard of pay for labor. Let labor and yourselves find a ground that is acceptable, if not satisfactory, to insure the greatest amount of production at the least cost in cash and labor."

Even a spinster may have the matrimonial fever, but it doesn't always terminate to her liking.

PETITIONS SENT TO ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO SECURE RELEASE

London, September 21.—The petitions containing the names of 4,400 citizens who appealed to the Minister of Justice, for the release of Miss Margaret Thompson from the county jail, were mailed on Tuesday to Hon. I. B. Lucas, the attorney-general of the province.

The petitions were returned some time ago by the Dominion Department of Justice with the information that the Minister of Justice had no jurisdiction because the woman was sent to jail because of contempt of court arising out of a civil and not a criminal case.

The case of Miss Thompson has been taken up by the Men's Federation and will be carried through until Miss Thompson is released.

Miss Thompson has been in jail now nearly three months and is still determined not to disclose the information concerning her niece, despite court orders that she do so.

If the appeal to the Attorney-General fails no other course remains but to appeal to a high court judge.

PLENTY OF HARD COAL BUT SOFT COAL IS SHY

Washington, September 21 — Reports to the Geological Survey indicate that while there will be sufficient anthracite coal for domestic consumption in the east there may not be enough bituminous coal to keep industrial plants going at their present capacity. Production of bituminous coal during August showed a falling off of 3,000,000 tons.

Canadian interests withdrew approximately 1,7000,000 tons of bituminous coal from the U.S. during the period that elapsed between the government's fixing a flat coal price and the placing of the embargo. They are reported to have obtained this large stock by bidding from 25c to 50c per ton higher than the price set by the American government. Other contributing factors to the situation are the growing needs of France and Italy for coal.

ARMY NEEDS MISUNDERSTOOD.

Popular Misconception as to C. E. F. are Being Cleared Up.

OTTAWA, Sept. 22. — Serious misunderstandings with regard to the Military Service Act are being cleared up as a result of the educational campaign now being conducted by the Military Service Council. This non-partisan body is now established here and its activities cover the Dominion from coast to coast.

It has been found out that the majority of people had an idea that men selected for service under the Military Service Act would be paid at the rate of a few cents a day, this being part of the popular conception of "conscription." As a matter of fact, of course, selected men will receive exactly the same pay as those who have volunteered, with all the incidental benefits from the various funds.

Again, there was an idea widespread that all the men who have gone overseas are fighting troops, ready to enter the trenches at a moment's notice. This idea was at the root of much honest disapproval of the Military Service Act, which was held to be unnecessary. As a matter of fact, again, there are a hundred and one different and essential branches of the service behind the lines for which men are constantly needed. Besides, only men in the highest physical condition are permitted to go to the front line trenches. To understand this actual situation of the considerable number of men in reserve may not mean — and in this case, does not mean — the existence of adequate reinforcements fit and ready to join particular units when urgently needed to save the military situation. BAD RAW MILK BLAMED FOR Septic Sore Throat

It is reported that one per cent of the population of an Ontario town of 1200 inhabitants recently died of Septic Sore Throat, and the cause has been traced to BAD UN-PASTEURIZED MILK. That would mean, if such an outbreak occurred in Peterborough, about 230 of our population.

In the case of the Ontario town, 237 cases were reported and investigation showed that of that number nearly one per cent of the total population died and 20 per cent of all the inhabitants were seriously sick.

Bad Raw Milk was the cause. Septic Sore Throat, so the Doctors' say, is a disease spread by impure milk, and they strongly recommend the use of

INTERESTING DEMONSTRATION NEXT WEEK

Making of War Bread and Canning Will Be Illustrated

A good deal of interest is already being evidenced by the women of the city in the demonstration to be given in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, under the auspices of the Women's Committee of the Conservation Department.

Miss Marjorie Williams of Markham who is considered one of the very best demonstrators in Canada, will demonstrate on Tuesday afternoon the canning of vegetables—beets, carrots, corn, tomatoes and cauliflower, and on Wednesday afternoon the making of War Breads.

The demonstration will be followed by a practical talk on these subjects and Miss Williams will answer any questions.

The demonstration will begin promptly at 2.30 p.m., and each lady will be asked to contribute 5c. towards defraying incidental expenses.

FNED $10.00 AND COSTS.

Cobourg, Sept. 22.—L. Lyon became acquainted with a stranger with a bottle of whiskey and both started to celebrate the anniversary of September 16, 1916. As a consequence he was run in for being drunk and settled with a $10 fine and $4.85 costs.

Practice doesn't always make perfect, but it makes some lawyers and doctors wealthy.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Sore corns, hard corns soft corns or any kind of corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This new drug is an ether compound, and while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heel footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.

FAREWELL TO HAROLD HARPER

Sunday night, in the Gospel Hall, will be the last meeting he will conduct in Peterborough. Everyone should hear this farewell address. This series of meetings has been the most helpful and far reaching in their effect on heart and life than any ever held in Gospel Hall, and Mr. Harper will always be a welcome visitor. All wish him God's speed and blessing.

IT is always safe to send a Dominion Express Money Order. Five dollars cost three cents.

Few Boys in Large Class At Peterboro' Business College

The Peterborough Business College is reaching its stride in the new fall term with a new record attendance, improved facilities for the classes and certain changes in the curriculum. There are over seventy students of whom only seven are boys, and the wide radius of their homes indicates the growing fame of this educational institution which under the supervision and management of Mr. J. A. McKone counts new successes with each succeeding year. Simcoe, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Lakefield, Hastings, Millbrook, Campbellford, Cobourg, Port Hope and other towns have sent some of their brightest youth to prepare for business and commercial careers. The main class room has been enlarged by the inclusion of the former typewriting department which has been removed to the large adjoining room. This alteration was necessitated by the increased attendance. The Gregg system of shorthand has been adopted and will gradually displace the Pitman system. Mr. McKone states that the Gregg is a simplified system that has already proved popular with the new class. A noticeable feature this year is an apparent decline in the appeal of bookkeeping. Most of the students are specializing in stenography.

The night classes will open on October 3rd with the prospect of a large attendance.

Downfall of the House of Romanoff

Even Shorn of Picturesque Rumours, Story of the Czar and His Family Is Stranger Than Fiction

A few weeks ago this despatch came to New York from Petrograd:

"A crowd pressed against the steel-barred fence about Tsarskoe Selo to-day, watching every movement of seven figures in peasant dress who were doing peasants' work.

"A year ago the little man in peasant's smock could have wiped the whole irreverent gathering out by the crooking of one of those fingers that now grasped a spade. A year ago the fragile little boy was potential ruler over every one of those who came today to watch him dig.

"For it was the one-time lord of the world's mightiest domain, Nicholas, late Czar and Autocrat of All the Russia, who was the humble form directing the planting. The others were those whom free Russia now calls Mrs. Romanoff, and Olga, Tatiana, Marie, Anastasia, and Alexis Romanoff."

In that despatch is well summarized the most sudden and greatest downfall in history. So sweeping was the cataclysm that made Czar Nicholas II. of Russia plain Mr. Romanoff that the world, after gasping and rubbing its eyes, has almost forgotten him amid the sensational events that have burst upon his erstwhile domain, amid the admiration or execration aroused by the new figures that have fought their way to the centre of the stage and struggled to hold it, as the drama of the Russian revolution moves forward act by act.

"Think of the Czar being sent to Siberia!" exclaimed the world. And it let it go at that. This war has piled on effects too lavishly; audiences are getting blase.

Exactly what has happened to Nicholas Romanoff and his family between the day when the leaders of free Russia forced him to abdicate, and the day when he was placed on a train, amid the jeers of bystanders who were before practically his serfs, and shipped along the hopeless route to Siberia, travelled by so many thousands of those who dared to lift a finger or utter a syllable against any member of Nicholas' family? Of course much of what has been written about the vicissitudes of Mr. and Mrs. Romanoff and their children is rumour. But, even shorn of this, the story of the Romanoffs since their fall from high estate is a treasure house for future moralists and novelists and dramatists.

Czar Nicholas II. abdicated on March 15, 1917. During his last moments as Autocrat of All the Russias he was on a railway train, hastening from the front to Petrograd, whence rumours of the grave disorders that were to culminate in his dethronement had reached him. The train got as far as Pskoff, some distance from the capital. There it was boarded by a deputation of eminent Russians, among them General Russky. It did not take the Czar long to see that his reign was over.

"What is it desired that I should do?" he asked.

"Abdicate the throne," was the reply of the deputation.

A manifesto of abdication, largely prepared in advance, was presented to Nicholas, and he signed it at once.

At Tsarskoe Selo the dethroned imperial family was guarded with laxity at first. But rumours came that members of their suite, imprisoned with them, were conspiring against the republican Government, so many of their retinue were removed and the regime under which the prisoners lived was made stricter.

The commandant at the Tsarskoe Selo palace, Captain Kotzebue, gave a newspaper correspondent who visited the ex-Czar's prison two weeks after his abdication these interesting details about the daily life of Nicholas and his family:

"He is in perfectly good health and fairly good spirits. When he is with his own entourage he has fits of crying. From 11 to 3 daily he is allowed to walk for recreation in the railed garden between the east and west wings of the palace.

"The former Emperor's chief occupation is shoveling snow in the garden, which he enjoys greatly. He shows boyish interest in what is said and written of him. He does not resent abuse. At present he is chiefly desirous of obtaining foreign papers, which are virtually unobtainable.

"The former Empress is in better health. Grand Duke Alexis, the former heir to the throne, has recovered entirely. When he heard of his father's dethronement he cried bitterly, not, in my opinion, from appreciation of the situation, but merely because he was affected by his parents' misery. The other children are better, except Grand Duchess Marie.

"All letters and communications to the Court are brought here first. I am the censor."

Toward the end of March came the report that the ex-Czar's lands were to be confiscated. It was estimated that Nicholas, who as Czar had owned 400,000,000 acres of land and enjoyed an income running far up into the millions, owned only about $500,000 in cash and securities. His wife, it was said at the same time, still had some $550,000, his son about $2,750,000, owing to the fact that his allowances had accumulated for years. The fortunes of the ex-Czar's four daughters were estimated as follows: Olga, $1,750,000; Tatiana, $2,000,000; Marie, $1,850,000; Anastasia, $1,650,000.

The soldiers guarding the ex-Czar were rebuked for laxity last May after their commander had found them sitting about smoking and talking to bystanders.

In June some of the Russian extremists started an agitation in favour of taking the ex-Czar and his family from Tsarskoe Selo and putting them into a real prison at Kronstadt. Extremists also demanded that they be put to work in the gold mines of Siberia, only to be met with hilarity. Yet two months later their wishes were destined to be fulfilled, at least in part. Whether or not the Romanoff family, now in Siberia, are to be set to work in mines remains to be seen.

In June, also, the question came up as to whether Nicholas Romanoff, ex-autocrat of all the Russias, should be raised to equality with the humble peasants of his realm by being allowed to vote. It was decided after some debate that the privilege should be extended to Mr. Romanoff.

Early in July came the news that the Provisional Government of Russia had confiscated property of the ex-Czar valued at $700,000,000, and once more the world got an inkling of what a tremendous fall from vast wealth to poverty had been imposed by fate upon Nicholas Romanoff. The upkeep of his Court, it was computed, had cost Russia $3,500,000 a year. In addition to this, his wife had received $100,000 yearly for allowance and upkeep fees, the Czarevitch about $50,000 a year, besides special allowances, and each of the imperial children $10,000 a year from the day of their birth.

By the middle of July Nicholas Romanoff had apparently become reconciled to the idea of republican government in his former domains, for he petitioned the Provisional Government to be permitted to subscribe to the Russian "Loan of Freedom." He added that the amount of his subscription depended on whether or not the new Russian Government intended to support him and his family, and stated that his personal fortune amounted to 900,000 rubles, ($450,000,) while his wife had 1,000,000 rubles, his son 1,500,000, his daughter Olga 3,000,000, and his other daughters between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 rubles each. A few days later a report was published that the ex-Czar's request had been granted.

In the middle of August it was stated that the ex-Emperor and his family were to be removed from Tsarskoe Selo to Siberia, to which thousands of friends of Russian freedom had been deported during the reigns of Nicholas II. and his predecessors, where many had succumbed to the bitterly cold climate and the cruel treatment meted out by the henchmen of the Romanoffs. Such a perfect climax in the tragedy of the Romanoffs seemed impossible.

Yet it was true. For once real life lived up to fiction and drama.

Then came this official announcement:

"Owing to reasons of State, the Government decided to transfer to a new residence the ex-Emperor and ex-Empress, who are detained under guard. The place selected was Tobolsk, where they were sent after requisite measures were taken to insure their safety. With them went, of their own free will, their children and certain of their entourage."

That is the last detail which has reached America of the tragedy of Nicholas Romanoff.

There is a certain Brooklyn man who takes a great interest in his household. So the other day, just before he left his office, he telephoned to his wife to ask whether she wanted him to bring anything home.

"Yes," said the wife, "I wish you would stop and get some tea. And you might as well, while you're at it, get a set of china, too."

"China?" gasped the husband.

"Yes. Of course, we've got some, but cook says there's not enough to last the week out."—Harper's magazine.

Newlywed—"Why don't you marry, old top? You're broke all the time anyway!"

Mental Effects Of Weather Conditions

Every person knows of the times when all things appear dark and gloomy, when little ills are magnified into terrible evils, and when what is called a fit of the "blues" has full sway. These depressed mental states are most frequent on dull, humid days, when the air is muggy and the pressure low, or when thunderstorms are imminent, and the electrical potential or the wind has changed. On such days domestic animals become restless; the hens sit on the fence and oil their feathers, and the cat is morose and peevish.

Teachers often note that their charges are restless and ill-tempered during such weather and commercial travellers cease to waste their time in canvassing their customers, knowing that on such a day it is no use to try to do business.

Effect of Bad Weather.

A physician bears witness to the extraordinary effect of bad weather on work. On damp, foggy days, or on days when the air was charged with electricity and thunderstorms were impending, the result of his studies would be full of faulty deductions and misconceptions, and what then appeared clear to him seemed later to be filled with errors.

In a large factory from 10 to 20 per cent. less work is turned out on damp days and in threatening weather. The superintendent in receiving orders to be delivered at a certain time takes this factor into calculation.

Ministers all know that their congregations are as impressible by weather conditions as mercury. The most eloquent sermon passes over their head on a very hot day, in which there is not a breath of morning air; while if the sun shines brightly and there is a little warm wind, all the powers of the soul are called upon, and every faculty of the mind is alert and open to the slightest impression.

On fine days the shopkeepers know that their sales will run up, as the people are gay and expansive.

Wet, windy, or sloppy weather has on the contrary, such an influence on the spirits of some people that they dislike to go out of doors, or to put themselves to the least exertion.

Effect on Diseases.

A medical statistician alleges that the number of deaths caused by diseases of the nervous system is 50 per cent. greater on days with abnormally high temperature than on days with normal temperature, and that equable conditions in moisture and temperature are essential to the successful treatment of these diseases.

REVEALING THE LOCATION.

(Life.)

Early in the war I. B. adopted a French soldier and furnishes him with a monthly allowance of tobacco. Incidentally, he is also lubricating his rusty French by carrying on a correspondence with his "Filleul de guerre," who writes him from the trenches "somewhere in France."

In a recent letter, the soldier informed his American benefactor that "Hier j'ai tue deux Boches. Ils sont alles a l'enfer." (Yesterday I killed two Boches. They went straight to hell.) The censor wrote between the lines, "Il est defendu de dire ou est l'ennemi." (It is forbidden to tell where the enemy is!).

"Isn't Brown eccentric?" "No; merely crazy. He has no money.

LUX

To give sweater coats a new lease of life

Now that sweater coats are getting more expensive, it is more than ever desirable that you wash yours with LUX. Of all things a sweater coat, which is seen so much, must be kept soft, fluffy, fleecy and "new" in appearance. You can keep yours that way and wash it again and again if you do this:

Pour boiling water over LUX flakes—pure essence of soap—allowing 3 or 4 tablespoonfuls for every gallon of water you use. Whip into a creamy lather—a few seconds is needed. Then put in the garment and stir it about. Let it soak until cool enough for your hands to squeeze the water out of the coat—the dirt just runs away. Rinse in two or three relays of tepid water, and hang to dry.

Very simple. Anyone can do it—just a few minutes' work and you get a result that the most expert French cleaner might well envy.

LUX won't shrink woollens. Won't hurt any fabric or color that pure water can safely touch.

BRITISH STEAMER IS SUNK

Canadian Press Despatch:

A NATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 22. — The British steamer Lanegra, 3,318 tons, on her way from Buenos Ayres to Havre, with a cargo of Argentine beef, was torpedoed three times and sunk by a German submarine 45 miles off Plymouth. The survivors of the crew arrived here to-day. Eight were lost.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

The regular meeting of Lansdowne Juvenile Lodge No. 38, S.O.E.B.S., was held last evening, Friday, Sept. 21, when the newly elected officers were installed by Bro. H. Beal, D. D., supported by the following members of the Senior Lodge: Bros. W. G. Shiner, R. Waram, C. Wood, B. Lennon, A. Follis, J. Trussler, H. Bowden, F. Smith, H. Land and A. Kingdon.

Previous to the installation thirteen new members were initiated into the mysteries of the Order, each newly-elected officer taking his place alongside of a Senior Officer, who instructed them in their duties.

It was indeed a pleasure to see how apt the boys were in their respective positions, and it will only be a short time before each one will be proficient in filling their chairs.

The Order now boasts a membership of thirty members, under whose name a Charter has been issued, and there are many more in prospect, thus starting the new lodge on its fraternal career under the most auspicious circumstances.

After the initiation a brief business meeting was held with Bro. Rene Follis in the chair.

Business being disposed of, Bros. Waram, Shiner and Follis complimented the boys on the excellent showing they had made and also on the excellent behaviour shown by the boys, and for their business-like ability in settling down to business so rapidly. The best wishes of the Senior Lodge goes out to Lansdowne Juvenile for their success and usefulness in the years to come. Following are the new officers:

WEDDING BELLS

KITNEY—LEE.

At 3 o'clock on Wednesday, September 19th, at St. James' Church, a very pretty wedding took place, when Miss Ada Lee became the bride of Mr. Ernest George Kitney, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kitney. The bride looked very pretty in white silk crepe de chine and carried white asters. She entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Gualt. She was assisted by Miss Clara Robinson, who wore a white silk dress and carried pink asters. Mr. Fred Kitney supported the groom. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of Mr. Robinson, brother-in-law of the bride, where the supper was partaken of. The bride's gifts were both numerous and costly, including silver spoons from the ladies of the I.I.M.D., where the bride was employed, and a most beautiful cushion worked by the elderly ladies of the Protestant Home, showing the esteem in which the young couple were held.

Mr. and Mrs. Kitney left on the 5.30 train for Toronto, Hamilton and points west. On their return they will reside in Otonabee.

HUGHES—FLOOD.

"A quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. Anthony's Church, Edmonton, Alta., on September 17th, when Helen Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Flood, 10438, 86th Avenue, and Robert O. Hughes, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father LaCoste.

The bride wore her travelling suit of taupe with hat to match and a corsage bouquet of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss M. I. Flood, who wore a navy blue suit. Mr Thos. F. McGee attended the bridegroom.

Miss Marion Flood played the wedding march and during the ceremony Mrs. F. P. Moher sang a solo. After the ceremony, the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents, where the wedding breakfast was served. The table and house throughout were decorated with sweet peas and asters.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes left on the 8.30 train for Banff, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will make their home at 106th Ave., and 97th street."

PRIMEAU—BOWEN.

At 7.30 a.m., Sept. 19th, the marriage was quietly solemnized of Miss Mary Albina Bowen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Bowen, and Mr. Arthur Jos. Primeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Primeau, Peterborough; Rev. Monsignor Murray officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, was prettily attired in a Burgandy Gabardine suit, with velvet hat to match. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Selina Bowen, who wore grey crepe de chene and grey velvet hat. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Alex. Primeau. The children of Mary and choir rendered very appropriate music. Miss Bessie Mulhall singing "Ave Maria." After the ceremony, refreshments were served at the bride's home. The bride received some costly and beautiful presents. After a short honeymoon in Detroit, Mich., the young couple will take up residence in Cobourg.— Cobourg World.

THEY NEVER SAW ANY PRISONERS

An American recently returned from service at the front with Canadian troops tells of the difference in preparations for battle of the English soldier as compared with the Scotch and Irish. When getting ready for attack, the English soldier carefully goes over mechanism of his rifle to see the locks are working properly, the barrel free of mud and so forth.

The Scot and the Irishman pay no attention to mud on the lock, stock or barrel, but each very carefully polishes his bayonet on his sleeve. The battle over, the English soldiers may be observed proudly escorting back groups of prisoners, while the Scotch and Irish come back empty handed. Asked about prisoners, they reply: "Prisoners! Never saw any!"

A Canadian officer inspecting the rifles of his men in a recently captured village in France. In the wear and tear of fighting a rifle is apt to become useless in a very short time and even dangerous to the man using it. Frequent inspection is, therefore, necessary. As soon as a rifle seems no longer serviceable, it is replaced by a new one and sent to be repaired.

: The World and the Wheat-Field - Will Hunger Stop the War? :

When an acre of winter wheat in Canada is worth $90—as in 1917—it is time to snatch a moist day on the farm when it's too wet for hauling in grain, to go ploughing for wheat.

But the tractor is the great wholesale method of getting the ground ready for crop. At a demonstration recently held in Nebraska, one tractor pulled three ploughs, another disked and drilled a field.

But if America while the war lasts should pull off one poor crop, how long would these spouts last at Liverpool?

50,000 Swedes expecting hunger, recently massed in Malmo, Sweden, to protest against food shortage. The American embargo to keep neutrals from supplying Germany with food may have had some effect. Europe's pantry is in America—including Canada. Sweden is suffering more from food shortage than half the nations at war. Hunger, the great leveller of mankind, may do more to put an end to the war than fighting or Socialist protests. A great strike mass-meeting was recently called in Stockholm as a protest against any more war. Similar outbreaks—so said a hand-bill—were being organised in many German cities. World-hunger—climaxing in Germany and Austria— may yet end the world war.

Among so many aerial bombardments of London it is one of the many wonders of the world that the great Westminster group of buildings has never been hit. More great administrative buildings are grouped together here over a radius of a mile or less than in any other similar area in the world. Even the old Abbey has never been struck—thank Heaven! And the greatest Parliament in the world continues to sit regardless of German bombs. This picture shows the American Legion marching over Westminster Bridge during the recent triumphal procession of Gen. Pershing's army through London.

If you didn't know Sir Douglas Haig to be a natural pose to the camera you might think he was posing for this picture. As a matter of fact, he is just telling Lloyd George what he knows about the way the war is going on the western front. And the British Premier keeps it pretty quiet. Neither does Gen. Joffre think that Haig is playing the loud pedal too much, considering all the British have done lately. As for Monsieur Thomas, French Minister of Munitions, off to the left—remember that he has been munition-ministering long than anybody else on that job in the [illegible].

When he reached England he found his chums were drafted into the 95th Reserve Battalion, so he gave up his stripes to go with the boys. FAMINE IN SILVER EXISTS

While bar silver continues to advance in price, the positive security behind the stocks of the Cobalt producers is also increasing.

A week ago the precious white metal was quoted at 96⅝ cents per ounce, whereas to-day $1.02½ per ounce is the official quotation. During this short period actual sales of this metal have been made at prices ranging from $1.07 to $1.10 per ounce, clearly showing the official quotations are purely nominal, as well as buyers are willing to pay almost any price in an effort to meet the unprecedented demand. Jeffery Farnol's New Romance

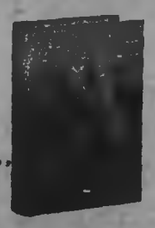
Author of "The Broad Highway," etc. of New York



"The Definite Object"

This story of American people and places, laid chiefly in that part of lower New York known as Hell's Kitchen, shows Jeffery Farnol at his best. His hero is a young millionaire, Geoffrey Ravenslee, skilled as an amateur boxer and automobile racer, but weary of living without an object in life. To his home up the Hudson comes a would-be burglar who is caught by Ravenslee. Seeing opportunity for adventure, Ravenslee agrees not to turn "Spike" over to the police, and accompanies the young tough home to Mulligan's Flats on Tenth Avenue. Here he meets many people; among them Spike's half-sister, Hermione, needle-expert and good angel of the neighborhood; Bud McGlania, the evil companion of Spike, who would have Hermione for his girl; Mrs. Ann Angelina Trapes, the widow who takes Geoffrey to board, and Spider Connolly, good-hearted prize-fighter. Adventure on adventure follows; the tale is written in high spirits, and Farnol is as thoroughly at home when describing a fist fight at O'Rourke's as he was in his previous books when unfolding a mediaeval contest at arms; while his knowledge of Tenth Avenue character and vernacular, acquired during his lean years as a scene painter in New York studios, is marvelous. The reader will follow with a zest the Quixotic career of Ravenslee through Hell's Kitchen until he wins and makes secure the love of one of Mr. Farnol's most appealing heroines.

GERMAN DEAD ON THE FIELD SHOW EXTENT OF VICTORY

British Headquarters in France, Sept. 22.—German officers taken prisoner in Menin road battle were impressed greatly with the magnitude of the British success, and have expressed keen dissatisfaction with their own higher command. They freely admit the great efficiency of the British artillery preparation before the attack, and characterize as awful those tremendous barrages which swept over the German territory ahead of the assaulting troops. The vast number of German bodies which lie in the muddy shell holes within the territory traversed by the British and the devastation wrought by the big guns give added strength to their testimony.

Full Text Of German Reply To Pope's Peace Proposals

Imperial Government Greets Pope's Peace Appeal With Special Sympathy—Kaiser Declares He Has Not Fallen From Ideal Although Sorely Tempted.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—Following is the complete text of the German reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposal:

"Herr Cardinal: Your Eminence has been good enough, together with your letter of August 2, to transmit to the Kaiser and King, my most gracious master, the note of His Holiness, the Pope, in which His Holiness, filled with grief at the devastation of the world war, makes an emphatic peace appeal to the heads of the belligerent peoples. The Kaiser-king has deigned to acquaint me with your Eminence's letter and to entrust the reply to me.

"His Majesty has been following for a considerable time with high respect and sincere gratiture, his Holiness' efforts in a spirit of true impartiality to alleviate as far as possible the sufferings of the war, and to hasten the end of hostilities. The Kaiser sees in the latest step of his Holiness fresh proof of his noble and humane feelings, and cherishes a lively desire that for the benefit of the entire world the papal appeal may meet with success.

The Kaiser's "Sacred Task."

"The effort of Pope Benedict is to pave the way to an understanding amongst all peoples, and might surely reckon on a sympathetic reception and the whole-hearted support from his Majesty, seeing that the Kaiser, since taking over the Government, has regarded it as his principal and most sacred task to preserve the blessings of peace for the German people and the world. In his first speech from the throne at the opening of the German Reichstag on June 25th, 1888, the Kaiser promised that his love of the German army and his position toward it should never lead him into temptation to cut short the benefits of peace unless war were a necessity, forced upon us by an attack on the Empire or its allies. The German army should safeguard peace for us and should peace, nevertheless be broken, it would be in a position to win it with honour. The Kaiser has, by his acts, fulfilled the promise he then made for 29 years of happy rule, despite provocations and temptations.

"In the crisis which led to the present world conflagration his Majesty's efforts were, up to the last moment, directed towards settling the conflict by peaceful means. After the war had broken out, against his wish and desire, the Kaiser in conjunction with his high allies, was the first solemnly to declare his readiness to enter into peace negotiations. The German people supported His Majesty in his keen deside for peace.

Sought Unhindered Competition.

"Germany sought within her national frontier the free development of her spiritual and material possessions and outside the Imperial territory unhindered competition with nations enjoying equal rights and equal esteem. The free play of forces in the world in peace wrestling with one another, would lead to the highest perfection of the noblest human possession. Disastrous concatenation (a series of links) of events in the year 1914 absolutely broke off all hopeful course of development and transformed Europe into a bloody armed arena.

"Appreciating the importance of his Holiness' declaration the Imperial Government has not failed to submit the suggestion contained therein to earnest and scrupulous examination. Special measures, which the Government has taken in closest contact with representatives of the German people, for discussing and answering the questions raised, prove how earnest by its desires, in accordance with his Holiness's desires, and the peace resolution of the Reichstag on July 19, to find a practical basis for a just and lasting peace.

"The Imperial Government greets with special sympathy the leading idea of the peace appeal wherein his Holiness clearly expresses the conviction that in the future the material power of arms must be superseded by the moral power of right. We are also convinced that the sick body of human society can only be healed by fortifying the moral strength of right. From this wound follow, according to his Holiness' view the simultaneous diminution of the armed forces of all States and the institution of obligatory arbitration for international disputes.

Share Pope's View.

"We share his Holiness' view that definite rules and a certain safeguard for a simultaneous and reciprocal limitation of armaments on land, on sea, and in the air, as well as for the true freedom of the community and high seas, are the things, in treating which — the new spirit that in the future should prevail in international relations — should find first hopeful expression. The task would then of itself arise to decide international differences of opinion, not by the use of armed forces, but by peaceful methods, especially by arbitration, whose high peace-producing effect we together with his Holiness fully recognize.

"The Imperial Government will in this respect support every proposal compatible with the vital interest of the German Empire and people.

"Germany, owing to her geographical situation and economic requirements, has to rely on peaceful intercourse with her neighbours and with distant countries. No people, therefore, has more reason than the German people to wish that instead of universal hatred and battle that a conciliatory fraternal spirit should prevail between nations.

"If the nations are guided by this spirit it will be recognized to their advantage that the important thing is to lay more stress upon what unites them in their relations. They will also succeed in settling individual points of conflict which are still undecided, in such a way that conditions of existence will be created which will be satisfactory to every nation and thereby a repetition of this great world catastrophe would appear impossible.

Signed By Michaelis.

"Only on this condition can a lasting peace be founded which would promote an intellectual rapprochement and a return to the economic prosperity of human society. This serious and sincere conviction encourages our confidence that our enemies also may see a suitable basis in the ideas submitted by his Holiness for approaching nearer to the preparation of future peace under conditions corresponding to a spirit of reasonableness and to the situation in Europe."

The document is signed by the Imperial Chancellor Michaelis and is addressed to Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State.

WHY ARE FAMILIES GROWING SMALLER?

Not Fashionable to Have Many Children—Large Families Are the Exception to the Rule—Many Reasons Given For This—What Are Real Reasons?

A very telling plea for larger families in Canada is made by Father Bernard Vaughan, speaking in London, Eng., who says:

"We are all proud of our estate, but I would like to see more than one white man to the square mile in Australia and more than two to the square mile in Canada. The humiliating point about it is that their sparse sprinkling of white population is chiefly due to volition and disease," and he adds that inevitably there will be a still greater drop in the birth rate after the war. He suggests that parents with more than four children to the family must be rewarded.

While it is all very well to speak of rewarding parents with more than four children, it appears as though a better expedient might be found. For instance, why not reward the parents of twins, triplets and quadruplets? This might be productive of more immediate results—four for the price of one! Make the reward high enough to be a reward, and then Father Vaughan might have to be called on to help in the Christenings; automobiles would have to stop running on our streets, there would be so many happy children playing there, and who can say but that we might have to learn to eat grass and pasture half the farms with our families?

WHY THE SMALL FAMILIES?

But, joking aside, it is time to ask why we are moving so rapidly toward the small families in Ontario. It cannot be denied that the average family of to-day is much smaller than that of the previous generation. The Sun has made enquiry among many scores of people, and has found that the average family of to-day among those questioned, contains exactly five children, while the family of the father or mother, as the case may be, contained 8.3 children.

When asked as to the reason for the decline in the number of children, many explanations are given. "Families are too expensive when it costs so much to live," said one man with a practical eye; "Women aren't so well able to bear children to-day as their mothers were," said a young mother; "They haven't got the nerve that their mothers had," said another.

"Families are dying out, and soon there won't be any but their two selves," said a Grey county man.

"Well, but where would they come from themselves, if there were no children, Geonie?" asked his wife.

A Peel County Councillor views the situation with some alarm. "It seems the custom," he complains, "to avoid families. People don't care to have the trouble—it's race suicide. Our only salvation is to import some French element! I don't think people hesitate at the cost. There are fifty farmers around here who have so far-ilies—which means a shortage of help. A few years ago there was lots of help at shrewhings, and the best kind, too, for they know what to do. Now, I don't need to say what it's like to-day."

This farmer had six of a family, and so may be said to have "done well," but his parents had 11 children.

Another Peel farmer put the decrease down to the cost of raising a family. He was the father of four, but had five brothers and sisters.

When we found one man who was the proud father of 10 fine children, it seemed as though they must have more than their parents—but no, for he was one of 14 brothers and sisters, and of good Scotch blood at that.

It might be asked, why did we not question more farm women on this point. To tell the truth, the writer is a mere man, and is dreadfully shy, though he is the "father of one." We hereby open the columns of the Sun, however, to those ladies who will add their opinions to this discussion, which has a very vital connection with our existence as a nation.

FIRST CHINESE CONTINGENT TO CONSIST OF 24,000 MEN

Pekin, Sept. 23.—The President and the Cabinet have agreed to the plan of sending a trial division of 24,000 Chinese soldiers to France if money, equipment and shipping are available. The Entente allies have approved the proposition and France is eager to receive the contingent. The Chinese probably would reach France by January 1. An abundant number of fairly trained soldiers is already available for the expedition. The premier is in favor of sending 300,000 men, and the provincial authorities are heartily in support of the plan in the event that the Canon government gives its approval of the war with Germany.

Soldiers Read Newspapers During Lull in Battle

British Headquarters in France, Sept. 22.—A curious incident in connection with yesterday's fighting came to light yesterday. It concerned the Australians. Their advance was conducted according to schedule and after they had reached the second stage of their journey they had a wait of some two hours before going on. One officer, fearing his battalion would become uneasy at the delay, sent up a large number of newspapers and cigarettes. Word came back shortly of a queer spectacle of soldiers who had just finished fighting and were waiting for more, sitting quietly about, reading newspapers and smoking.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 22.—The first case of infantile paralysis reported in the vicinity of London this year was brought to Victoria Hospital from a nearby town and is now in close isolation. Artillery Is Very Active On Western Front

Prisoners Taken and Many Casualties Inflicted on the Enemy —British Gain Near Langemarck

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Glasgow troops carried out a successful raid northeast of Gouzeaumont and took several prisoners. Many casualties were inflicted and enemy dugouts destroyed. The official statement says that the heavy fighting has again taken place south of Ypres on the Menin road. Three strong counter attacks to regain control of the Tower Hamlets Ridge were frustrated. All positions captured by the British on the twentieth are securely in our possession. Great artillery activity prevails on both sides. Aerial activities have been pronounced for the past three days. We dropped large quantities of bombs and harassed the enemy with aerial machine gun fire. Fifteen enemy machines brought down and twelve of ours failed to return.

ARTILLERY ACTIVE.

PARIS, Sept. 24.— Artillery on the whole line front has been very active, notably near Monnejoan Farm and Cerony. The enemy has been able to reach the first line in some places, but was immediately driven out. We penetrated trenches near Beausejour and brought back prisoners and material.

LONDON, Sept. 24. — British gain more positions near Langemarck.

Unsinkable Boxes For Votes Of American Army

NEW YORK. Waterproof and unsinkable ballot boxes will be provided for New York soldiers who are abroad when the vote is cast in the November election, it has been announced.

The state's soldier vote will be so large, it was said, that it probably will be necessary to ask the Federal Government for a warship to convoy the ballots to this side.

Through the co-operation of the War and Navy Departments enrollment blanks have been forwarded to every port in the world where a land or sea soldier from this state is in the country's service.

The state election authorities figure that in November there will be between 125,000 and 150,000 New York State voters serving with the fighting forces.

COLD STORAGE FOR EVERY ONE

With the price of ice ridiculously high, it behooves us to look around for other and cheaper means to keep our perishable foods in an edible condition. It is a fact not generally known that (to use a non technical phrase) evaporation causes cold. For instance, gasoline, turpentine camphor, ether, etc., rubbed on the skin, make it cold, and that which evaporates the quickest makes it the coldest. Desert water bags of canvas keep their contents cold by virtue of the fact that the heat of the sun evaporates the moisture which seeps through and a stranger in the tropics is surprised to get a drink of cold water from an earthen vessel standing in the sun. Take a galvanized or enameled pail and set it inside of a large unglazed flower pot (the larger the better). Plug the drain hole in the bottom of the pot. After placing the butter and milk etc. in the pail fill the space between the pail and flower pot with cold water nearly to the top of the pail. The hotter the sunshine the colder will be the contents. Remember the flower pot must be circular.

GOOD SHORT STORIES.

Mrs. Will Irwin said at a Washington square tea:

"The more immodest fashions would disappear if men would resolutely oppose them.

"I know a woman whose dressmaker sent home the other day a skirt that was, really, too short altogether. The woman put it on. It was becoming enough, dear knows, but it made her feel ashamed. She entered the library, and her husband looked up from his work with a dark frown.

"'I wonder,' she said, with an embarrassed laugh, 'if these ultra-short skirts will ever go out?'

"'They'll never go out with me,' he answered in decided tones."—Washington Star.

COAL and FENNIMORE COOPER

D. & H. Line.—Cliffs on shore of Lake Champlain.

"The Split," on Lake Champlain, is Canada's old frontier.

THE great industrial wealth and the wonderful historic interest of the country served by the Delaware & Hudson Company give especial interest to the linking up of this company with the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is the country of anthracite coal, and it is the country of Fennimore Cooper, whose tales of the French and Indian wars are known to every schoolboy. In spite of Mark Twain's joke, that the Indians of Fennimore Cooper were an ancient tribe that never existed, the country round Glen Falls, Lake George, Otsego Lake, and Fort William Henry is dotted with localities identified with the Last of the Mohicans, and Leather Stocking. The hunting and fishing grounds of the Five Nations and the Algonquins are new famous hunting and fishing grounds for tourists, who find in this rugged lake and mountain scenery of the Adirondacks the scene of many a happy holiday. Coal is the industrial background of the D. & H. and the demand for coal in Canada today makes the value of the connection between this railway and the C. P. R. all the more apparent. It was to carry coal that the canal from Rondout on the Hudson to Honesdale, Pennsylvania, and the connecting gravity railroad from Carbondale to Honesdale were constructed. The "Stowbridge Lion," the first locomotive that ever turned a wheel on any railroad in North America, was imported by the Delaware & Hudson Company for use on its railroad, making the first run on August 8, 1829, eighty-eight years ago. The canal was enlarged, and at one time carried 2,500,000 tons of coal annually, but in 1899 the greater convenience of rail haulage was realized and the canal abandoned.

Plattsburg, Westport on Lake Champlain, Ticonderoga, Lake George, Saratoga Springs, Troy, Albany, Binghampton, Scranton, and Wilkesbarre are some of the best known points on this important railroad. To Montrealers it is particularly well known as an exceptionally picturesque and comfortable route to New York, connection being made with the New York Central, so that passengers arrive at the Grand Central Depot in the heart of the great city.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

IVY POISON: It is seldom that a summer passes without some member of your family or friends being poisoned with ivy or oak. Many people in fact are poisoned not only in summer but at other seasons by handling certain flowers. The primrose is one of the kind that are poison to some people and the busy housekeeper that loves flowers often wonders what it is that causes the eruption and the itching between her fingers. She may even go to the family physician, thinking she has eczema. She asks for treatment for eczema and without making any detailed inquiry the good doctor gives her local treatment for eczema. The trouble may disappear, but as soon as she again works with or handles her house plants it returns.

Recently I had two cases presented by little boys where I spend the week-end with my family in Michigan. One case was quite severe and when a boy has an itching place it is a big problem to keep him from scratching. Now, the Home Health Club's belief is that wherever there is in Nature or Nature's products, a poison, there is also to be found near by an antidote for that poison.

I asked the boys to take me to the place where they had been playing Indian in the woods. I found plenty of poison ivy around the cave they had dug and covered. They had worked hard and perspired freely, and the conditions were therefore ideal for ivy poisoning

Some of you will remember what I told you a few years ago, that the common weed that the farmers call Horse Mint, was a specific for poisoning of that kind, and I told the boys to find some. Within less than three rods from the poison ivy they could have gathered fifty pounds. It was in full blossom and the beautiful light purple flowers attracted the boys' attention at once. They gathered much more than they needed, and soon their mother had made each of them a cupful of the tea (proportion about the same as common tea, 1 oz. to a pint of water.) Of course the itching did not cease instantly as the boys seemed to expect, and so I prepared a one per cent. solution of acetate of lead, six ounces of it, and this they applied over the area affected with absorbent cotton. In that way the itching problem was solved, although in some cases a dark solution of common baking soda will answer the purpose very well.

They continued taking the tea made from the Horse Mint, a cupful three times daily, and in a few days all trace of ivy poisoning had disappeared.

A Few Simple Remedies by a Club Member: Rosin and turpentine heated until quite hot makes one of the very best as well as cheapest healing plasters to be had. We always keep it on hand to use for nearly everything. It should be just soft enough so that you can press your finger nails into it when cold and not so hard as to crack all up. We make and keep it in a tin can with a wooden paddle in it, all ready to use at all times. A neighbour told me of it several years ago when one of our little boys had jumped on a rusty nail and had such a sore heel that he had to be carried about as he could not step on his foot, which was swollen quite badly. I was using turpentine alone on the puncture and had to open the hole with a needle to get the turpentine into the sore. After putting this plaster on the sore he was soon running around and playing again and the swelling was all gone. Also the hole in the heel remained open and healed from the very bottom out. It caused very little trouble and the plaster keeps out all the dust and dirt. I warmed the plaster just a little and spread it on an old muslin, and applied it over the sore and it stays where it is placed. I heal all kinds of scratches, cuts, bruises, cracked hands, and also use it for neuralgic and rheumatic pains. In order to remove the plaster after the sore heals, just wet and rub with a little coal oil and the dried plaster, if any, will come right off. I always cleanse the sore with peroxide when I renew a plaster once a day and I think the two together would heal almost any sore.

Kerosene oil will cure chronic sore throat where there are small hard lumps with very bad odor in throat. I believe the doctors call it canker sore throat. Just apply to sores in throat with a soft swab or feather, and they are soon gone; also good for sore gums or gum boils.

Coal oil, turpentine, lard, a little camphor gum, mustard and onions heated together, equal parts, makes a very good grease for cold on lungs.

A large onion cut in two and a teaspoonful of sulphur placed in the heart of an onion, then tied together and roasted, will cure the worst case of membraneous croup by squeezing out juice and giving to patient. It cured a case where the doctor said he would never have reached the child in time to save it as he had so far to go but when he did arrive the child was all right and sleeping soundly.

I have found that coal oil and peroxide used twice a day will reduce the size of polypsus in child's nose, but have so far failed to remove it entirely. Also put powdered or burnt alum up nose two or three times a week, and used Grandmother's Herb Ointment every night. Polypsus was caused by taking very severe cold last spring by falling in creek when trying to get through high water coming from school. Polypsus was so large at first it came nearly out of nose on one side; the other side of nose seems all right so far.

Flour and water stirred to a thick paste is very good for scalds or burns of any kind.

When suffering with Quinsy, try drinking sour fruit juice when it is impossible to swallow water, milk or any liquid. I lived on sweet cider a week myself several years ago.

Salt water used as an enema will work sometimes when soapy water will not do any good.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ABUSING THE EYES.

Reading While Rocking Is a Mighty Harmful Habit.

A well known oculist declares that women injure their eyes, sometimes seriously, by swinging back and forth in a rocking chair while reading. This practice is especially injurious when one is reading by an artificial light or by daylight when the sway of the rocker makes shadows come and go on the printed page. Rigidly as one may think one's book is held, there is bound to be a little unsteadiness of the page as the chair goes forward and back, and the eyes must adjust themselves rapidly to the changing focus.

Every one knows the danger of reading in a fast moving railroad train, but reading in a fast moving rocking chair is quite as bad. Women who use a low rocker for sewing seldom sway back and forth much when an important bit of work is in hand. The chair stops, and interest is concentrated on the problem of stitching or hemming, but many a woman will read and rock, rock and read, through a whole evening and perhaps every time her chair comes forward the shadow of the lamp shade fringe is cast across the page of her book, this in addition to the continual change of focus made necessary for long suffering eyes.

A rocking chair is not really restful, and most women rock from nervous habit; the more nervous they are the faster they rock. Man really rests and relaxes when he sits down in a deep, rockerless armchair. Who ever saw a man rocking violently and smoking a cigar at the same time? The woman who can sit perfectly still with folded hands while she rests and spend an hour reading without rocking or swinging one foot with knees crossed will benefit in nerves and in eyes from the resting or the reading. She who rocks and reads will certainly feel eye strain from the practice sooner or later.

No Parallels in Nature.

The wise men say there are no parallels in nature, that no one thing in the wide universe exactly mates and matches any other one thing, that each cloud has differed from every other cloud form in any hour of the day and night or day or yesterday, and so on back through the forgotten centuries, and no two leaves in form, color or texture lift the same faces to the sun on any day of the millions of years; that no wave on any beach curves and falls as any wave has curved and fallen before, not since this planet cooled. And so it is with the whirls and the crystals of driving snow, with the sand and splash of rain and so, too, with the flight of birds, the dash and tumble of the restless brook and the roar of lawless thunder and the cry of birds.—F. Hopkinson Smith.

Perfect Physical Poise.

For the perfect physical poise we don't need to study pictures in the modern magazines. The ideal form is well expressed in sculpture dating back to 500 to 600 B. C., when the Spartans were masters of Greece. These ancients, says Popular Science Monthly, carried themselves in such a way that the muscles, organs, circulation and even the brain and nervous system were braced in harmonious relationship. How can we attain the same poise in walking? Briefly, by setting the shoulders back and squaring them evenly, by carrying the chest high and well arched forward, by keeping the stomach in and the neck perpendicular, like a column, and by forcing the chin in.

Checking a Skid.

When you are driving an automobile and it begins to skid the skidding will be checked if you will immediately turn the steering wheel in the direction you are skidding. A car skids when there is a momentum tending to turn it about the center of gravity. When the forces about the center of gravity are balanced the car will not skid.

TESTING THE DENTIST.

Ismail Pasha Didn't Want to Take Any Painful Chances.

To illustrate oriental habits of thought Lord Cromer tells in the Quarterly Review this story of Ismail Pasha, khedive of Egypt. It once happened that Ismail was suffering from toothache. He sent for a European dentist, who told him that he ought to have the tooth out. Ismail said that he was afraid it would be very painful. He was informed in reply that if he would allow the dentist to administer laughing gas to him he would feel nothing. He still doubted, but told the dentist to bring his apparatus to the palace.

The dentist complied and explained the process to the khedive. Ismail then summoned an attendant and told him to send up the sentry who was at his door.

When the man arrived the khedive ordered him to sit down in a chair and requested the dentist to take out a tooth on either side of his jaw. Ismail then asked the man whether he had felt anything, and the man told him that he had not. But Ismail was not yet satisfied. He said that the sentry was a young, strong man and that he would like to see the experiment tried on some one of weaker physique.

Accordingly he summoned a slave girl and had the dentist extract two of her teeth. Finding that she did not show evidence of extreme suffering, he then consented to have his own tooth out.

About the Puritans.

In the American Magazine William Roscoe Thayer says:

"It is the fashion of late to speak condescendingly of the Puritans as of a people of narrow views and of men of sour temperament, but no descendant of theirs and no later immigrant who now dwells in the commonwealth they founded and enjoys the blessings which it bestows upon us will fail to glory in being able to trace back to such forerunners. The story of the conditions which faced the passengers of the Mayflower when they landed at Plymouth can never be too often repeated. To have as founders of our state men and women who 'had the fear of God in their hearts, but feared the face of no man,' ranks as the initial glory of Massachusetts."

Simplest of Cements.

Condensed milk applied to the edges of the pieces of broken china will keep the article as intact as the majority of cements on the market today, writes Edwin W. Ely in a letter to the Electrical Experimenter. Mr. Ely adds that he has mended saucers that have withstood washings in hot water and has mended a telescope lens of fairly large size with this unique cement.

THE EDUCATION OF GERMANY

(New York World.)

Every policy of the German government for more than three years has been based upon the belief that might alone could prevail. The atrocities committed in Belgium and France, the wanton destruction of cities, the Lusitania massacre, the air raids on unfortified cities, the murder of non-combatants, the attacks on hospitals and hospital ships, ruthless submarine warfare, the driving of French and Belgian civilians into exile, the conspiracies against the peace and safety of neutrals—every act of the German government has been a deification of the doctrine of might.

It is only because might has failed to prevail that the imperial secretary begins to realize that it was doomed to fail from the start and that right also must be considered in shaping the policies of government.

The education of Germany is a painful and costly process, but now that Junkertum is beginning to learn, there is all the more reason why the instruction should be thorough. When Germany has been compelled by crushing defeat to understand that it is right that makes might and not might that makes right, there will be security in the world for honest people.

Haunts of the King of the Canadian Forest

THE Province of New Brunswick, a favorite Canadian haunt of the sportsman, is one of the most popular for big game hunting. Moose, caribou and deer are plentiful in this region along the lines of the Canadian Pacific. A magnificent specimen of big game is the moose. When fully grown he weighs over 1,000 lbs., his massive antlers are long and generally average six feet in width. He may be found in twelve of the fifteen counties of the province. To hunt moose "calling" is done early in the season, and the "still hunting" done later on—in the cold weather. In September and October the moose is often surprised and shot walking in the lakes and rivers, feasting on the roots of water plants. While pursuing the moose, the hunter can distinguish between the tracks of the male and female, for the male leaves round tracks, and those of the female are somewhat pointed. Fredericton, Havelock, Newcastle, Bathurst, Campbellton and Perth are good starting points.

A graceful antlered monarch of New Brunswick is the caribou. He weighs over 600 lbs. on an average. A full grown caribou stands from four and a half to five feet in height and there are two varieties, the woodland and the barren ground species. The woodland is generally found in herds of about half a dozen, and barren ground caribou travels in large herds, and its coat is light. This kind is noted for its migratory habits. In New Brunswick the places where the hunters are likely to achieve the best results are North West Miramichi, Restigouche, Upsalquitch, Mopsiguit and Tobique Rivers. The starting points for these areas are Newcastle, Campbellton, Bathurst, Chatham and Perth, all of which are reached by the Edmundston branch of the Canadian Pacific. There are few localities in New Brunswick where a deer may not be located. Like the moose and the caribou he gives those who follow him interesting sport.

Sportsmen desirous of hunting the big game of New Brunswick may secure good accommodation at the homes of their guides. Good hotels and boarding houses are also available. The season for the hunting of the moose, caribou and deer opens on September 15th, and continues to November 30th. Shooting on Sunday is prohibited by law. Non-resident hunters must be accompanied by a licensed guide. The license to kill one bull moose, one bull caribou, and two deer costs a bona fide resident of the province $5, and a non-resident $50. Haunts of the King of the Canadian Forest

THE Province of New Brunswick, a favorite Canadian haunt of the sportsman, is one of the most popular for big game hunting. Moose, caribou and deer are plentiful in this region, along the lines of the Canadian Pacific. A magnificent specimen of big game is the moose. When fully grown he weighs over 1,000 lbs., his massive antlers are long and generally average six feet in width. He may be found in twelve of the fifteen counties of the province. To hunt moose "calling" is done early in the season, and the "still hunting" done later on—in the cold weather. In September and October the moose is often surprised and shot walking in the lakes and rivers, feasting on the roots of water plants. While pursuing the moose, the hunter can distinguish between the tracks of the male and female, for the male leaves round tracks, and those of the female are somewhat pointed. Fredericton, Havelock, Newcastle, Bathurst, Campbellton and Perth are good starting points.

A graceful antlered monarch of New Brunswick is the caribou. He weighs over 600 lbs. on an average. A full grown caribou stands from four and a half to five feet in height, and there are two varieties, the woodland and the barren ground species. The woodland is generally found in herds of about half a dozen, and barren ground caribou travels in large herds, and its coat is light. This kind is noted for its migratory habits. In New Brunswick the places where the hunters are likely to achieve the best results are North West Miramichi, Restigouche, Upsalquitch, Mepisiguit and Tobique Rivers. The starting points for these areas are Newcastle, Campbellton, Bathurst, Chatham and Perth, all of which are reached by the Edmundston branch of the Canadian Pacific. There are few localities in New Brunswick where a deer may not be located. Like the moose and the caribou he gives those who follow him interesting sport.

Sportsmen desirous of hunting the big game of New Brunswick may secure good accommodation at the homes of their guides. Good hotels and boarding houses are also available. The season for the hunting of the moose, caribou and deer opens on September 15th, and continues to November 30th. Shooting on Sunday is prohibited by law. Non-residents hunters must be accompanied by a licensed guide. The license to kill one bull moose, one bull caribou, and two deer costs a bona fide resident of the province $2, and a non-resident $50. Hunting with hounds is forbidden.

SIGNS OF PEACE AND THEIR SIGNIFICANCE

Undeniably, exactly as Uncle Sam's huge preparations for war grow and grow, the signs of peace emerging from chaos take more definite form.

The Pope's peace proposals are not in this category. The Pope's overtures need not be regarded as peace proposals at all. They were really a chemical test applied to unknown contents in dilution. They were wholly designed to draw out what terms would be acceptable to the Allies.

Nor do I think—as a wonderful cartoon of this week represents it—that Uncle Sam's countless hosts trampling to the firing line are carrying peace to prostrate Europe. Germany is too big a fool to realize what a non-military republic's war strength may become. You can't reason or plead with a bully or a criminal. You have to knock him down and let him do the pleading afterwards.

Yet the signs of peace impending are growing stronger every day. I do not know the undercurrent of facts passing among the various diplomats involved; but I can set down the signs here that are becoming, if not facts, then factors in daily events.

AUSTRIA WANTS PEACE.

More than two months ago it came to the cognisance of the State Department that King Charles of Austria and King Alphonso of Spain were ready and willing to abdicate if that would hasten the end of the war. Unfortunately, on top of those negotiations came the collapse of Russia and later—Russia's definite defection. Thereupon, these negotiations were stalled and Austria's appeal was made to the Pope. It need not be explained that the war has left the small and rich classes of Austria and Spain infinitely richer, and the big broad industrial and agricultural classes infinitely poorer. A century ago, such conditions would have riveted the yoke tighter on the neck of labour. To-day, anything that tends to emphasize class antagonism spells for the crowned heads of Europe just one word—anarchy, a volcano; the Black Terror against the sunrise. Spain and Austria know that. The war has enriched the munition factories and mine owners of both countries—enriched them enormously. It has impoverished the trade classes, the commerce classes, the shippers, the merchants, the fruit growers, the small artisans, the general labourers. It has impoverished them to the point of dangerous desperation—to the point where they will not and cannot pay taxes to defray the cost of the war. If the bitterness becomes bitterer, taxation of wealth will become, not 80 per cent., but 100 per cent. which is confiscation; and the vested interests of Austria and Spain know this, and are simply saving themselves before the hurricane.

"This—as far as I can judge—is the true meaning of the Pope's overtures.

SIGNS OF PEACE IN U. S.

Now for the signs of peace growing more clear cut as Uncle Sam's war preparations roll up.

I talked to two of the head organizers of the American Red Cross. It will be recalled that just as the Morgan firm gave up buying for the Allies, a member of that firm undertook the rehabilitation of the Red Cross. I did not ask them—"Do you expect peace? How soon do you expect peace?" I asked them—"Do you expect to direct Red Cross work more for medical supplies or for the reconstruction of Europe?"

They answered—"As things point now, for the reconstruction of Europe."

Immediately on the declaration of war by the United States, hosts of German-Americans, who had been forwarding German propaganda here, at once cut all connections with the Fatherland, and lined up pro-American; but their kith and kin are still in Germany. Their banking and financial relations are still strong with Germany. They have underground methods of getting the true inwardness of affairs in Germany—of how, for instance, the German bankers feel towards peace; of how the big German ship companies feel towards peace; of how the masses feel towards peace. After talking with the Red Cross, I went to such a pro-German-American.

GERMANY FEELS PRESSURE

"What is your inside information about affairs in Germany?" I asked.

He answered just one word—"Hell." Then he went on: "Germany's army can fight on for years. The Balkans can feed Germany for years; and Germany can hold her lines unbroken, as she has proved; but that is not the point—the silent awful pressure of the blockade has won the war for the Allies now. If America had gone in sooner and rationed the neutral countries as she is doing now, the pressure would have reacted quicker; but America has simply driven the nail in the coffin that the Allies prepared; and the German people are inside that coffin and they know it. Germany is a country, whose life literally depends on export trade, and her export trade is in ruins for a hundred years as Ballin said it would be. The wharves at Hamburg are rotting, the grass is growing on the main thoroughfares of the big cities in Germany. Her credit is not good for another five million dollars, and after that, taxation becomes confiscation.

"Peace is going to come like a clap of thunder. The break will be a crumbling to pieces from the keynotes to foundation in the twinkling of an eye. The whole hitch is just this point—the military party have their feet on the necks and souls of the people. They have indoctrinated and poisoned them with war worship, hatred, self-inflation, and the people do not know the truth. The military party have all the ammunition and all the ordnance. People can't rise and fight twenty-mile guns with bare hands, but within ninety days you will see a sort of I.W.W. spirit sweep the German Army. The soldiers will lay down their guns. Then, when the German people really know they have been defeated, really know they have been deceived—there will occur just what Hoover has predicted. They will rise and tear their rulers limb from limb. The lust and ferocity which their rulers have drilled into them for years, will turn against those rulers; and you will see a French revolution multiplied to the Nth degree. The point here is—I don't believe any same class will await the cataclysm. I think, like the King of Spain and the King of Austria, the rulers of Germany are going to bluff with swelling words to the end and then 'submerge' for the cyclone cellar. How soon that will come I don't know. I do know Germany can't stand another winter of war."

I have no comment to pass on this pro-German American's views. He is a former friend of Alert and Boy-Ed and Von Papen.

WALL STREET STRAWS.

Along with these concurrent factors—run your eye down Wall Street quotations! Make a list! In one list, put all the companies that cater to armament and reconstruction! In the other put the companies that cater to ordnance, war vessels, shells, ammunition! The stock of all the former is up or holding firm. The stock of all the latter is down or sliding. I know one company that has received orders to the value of $26,000,000 for guns, another for $30,000,000 for marine war equipment. The stock of the former has gone down 14 points in two weeks. The stock of the latter has declined 11 points in the same time. All contracts are contingent on continuance of the war; and it is quite in vain for the directors to explain that it is the government policy of taxation and allowing only 10 per cent. over overhead on war purchases. These facts hold good of the equipment companies as well as of the munition companies, with this difference—on the stoppage of the war, government regulation of prices stops.

I do not state the inference. It is self-evident; so are the other signs, which I shall state as time passes. Such, for instance, as the governments very evident reluctance to widen national schisms by prosecuting pro-German activities. Or the pro-German frantic efforts to square themselves with the government. Some of them are endeavoring to do this by secretly turning State's evidence. Or most striking of all—in the conduct of Colonel House, the president's closest adviser. House is one of the sure-peace men—to such a degree that the President's other friends are afraid of his influence dominating to an extent that may weaken war preparations. Meanwhile war preparations are not weakening. They are gaining impetus; and Germany knows.

GERMAN SPY WORK PERSISTS IN PARIS

HEEDLESS TALK PERILOUS

"Guides," Disreputable Women, and Alleged Promoters Are Employed by Berlin

PARIS, Sept. 21.—Recent disclosures in the Bonnet Rouge affair have attracted public attention to the danger of German agents in Paris.

It is stated on good authority that the German spy system works on the following lines: Each agent sends a report of any information he can gather that strikes him as likely to affect the political, economic, military or moral conduct of the war.

Central bureaus operating in neutral countries connect and check up all this data and pass it on to the intelligence department in Germany. The latter then considers the collection of information and draws deductions therefrom. Thus an apparently trivial fact may prove an important link in the chain of reasoning.

Herein lies the real danger to any one who talks to chance acquaintances. It is just the fact that they may think is harmless which may be of essential value to the enemy.

Such persons infest in particular the so-called American bars in the neighborhood of the opera, in some of which the American entry into the war is still being celebrated with surprising relaxation of alcohol restrictions. These persons being generally to three classes: First, loungers of fairly reputable appearance, who frequent first-rate establishments, and a corresponding class of seedier individuals at inferior places; Second, "guides" who hang around doorways, eager to aid the stranger with their knowledge of French and the seamy side of Paris life, and Third, women of the undesirable class, who, though barred from first-rate bars, are admitted by others.

To cite examples of spy work. In one bar the narrow space between the counter and the wall is packed with a dense mass of khaki-clad figures, not all Americans, red-faces, jostling and all talking loudly, quite regardless of civilian listeners here and there among them. Naturally the conversation turns chiefly on the doings at the front. A Britain describes an action in which he took part to an interested group of Americans, whose questions elicit details which the enemy perhaps would sacrifice lives to know.

If one advances further one sees in the wider back part of the room rows of tables, at each of which sat girls some alone waiting, some deep in conversation with officers, private, aviator, or sailor. Women of this class are widely utilized by German agents.

"In every espionage case look for the prostitute," was a recent dictim of a prominent French police official, and the recent espionage cases here support his judgment fully.

On going out into the street one may see, as I saw recently, a little party of American naval officers with a "guide" of more or less unsavory aspect. In this instance I knew the man to be dishonest and untrustworthy, if nothing worse, and pretending the need of a match, I communicated my suspicions to the officer, who seemed to be the senior. His reply was typical: "We never saw the fellow before to-day. We are here only forty-eight hours, do not speak French and need some one to show us around. What else can we do?"

He then thanked me and said that he would warn his companions to keep a careful guide on their tongues. As he rejoined them I heard the guide say in a voice that showed that English was certainly not his native tongue: "I betcha he spoke about me. Some chaps always want to spoil your bit of sport."

In another bar near a large hotel especially patronized by allied officers the tactics are somewhat different. Here the appearance of the men is fairly correct, though women are not excluded. This place is a haunt of the doubtful "agents d'affaires" as the French call persons who propose marvelous get-rich-quick schemes to young and unwary officers. Should the victim bite, it develops that the scheme involves his using his influence of knowledge in facilitating deals with the Government. In some cases, perhaps, these people, either as principals of intermediaries, actually have something to sell, but whether that is so or not is all the same to their unfortunate young "partner." Once he has lent himself to furthering their plans he is completely in their hands, and money blackmailed is only the last of the perils to which he is exposed. Unless reports on the subject err greatly, more than one promising young soldier, including a prominent French aviator, has been thus ruined in such places.

REDUCED LIVING COSTS.

(Boston News Bureau)

In many north of England towns, buying food on co-operative plan has been in existence several years. Extent of co-operation varies from group who buy a cow or sheep to be butchered to co-operative associations which allow customers to participate in profits. Liver Guild of Liverpool has a different method. It has several thousand members who pay nominal sum (about 50 cents) annually to cover cost of printing and administration expenses. Through salaried secretary, arrangements are made with merchants, steamship companies, railroads, tourist agencies, theatres, doctors, dentists, and others, to allow members discounts varying from 5 per cent to 25 per cent. In this way cost of living is cut at least 10 per cent.

NERVES OF THE STOMACH

Were Weak and Inactive as Result of Nervous Prostration — Lost Twenty Pounds — Had to Take Sleeping Powders to Get Any Rest.

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 10. — Digestive organs are similarly affected. Appetite fails, digestion is poor, you do not get the good of what you eat and gradually grow weaker and weaker.

This process can only be stopped by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which goes directly to create new nerve force and thereby to invigorate the whole human body.

Mrs. George S. Elise, 46 Davidson street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "My husband had an attack of nervous prostration, and, although he doctored for some time, and tried different other medicines, he could not get relief. He had to resort to sleeping powders given him by the doctor to make him sleep. The greater part of the trouble seemed to be with the nerves of his stomach. He began to lose weight, and kept on going down until he had lost twenty pounds. We had read advertisements in the newspapers for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and noticed that it seemed to be doing a lot of good for people troubled with nervousness, so my husband decided to try it. He found benefit almost from the start, and continued this treatment until he had taken about twelve or thirteen boxes. The results were most satisfactory. He is now enjoying good health, sleeps well, and has gained back nearly all the weight he had lost. He also uses Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills occasionally, and thinks them an excellent remedy. I have also used this latter medicine for dizzy spells and liver trouble, and was completely cured of these complaints. We think a great deal of Dr. Chase's medicines, and cannot speak too highly of them."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 60 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Heavy Cannonading In Many Sections

Germans Give Up Attempts To Re-take Positions

IMPENDING ACTIVITY INDICATED BY HEAVY SHELLING AT MANY POINTS

British Infantry in Flanders Are Getting a Rest To-day---Failure of German Counter Attacks Discourages Enemy---Artillery Active on the Canadian Front at Lens, in the Arras Region and on the Verdun Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 24.—Heavy cannonading was again in progress last night on the Flanders battle front northeast of Ypres, but infantry had relief from recent hard fighting. The last German reaction was not encouraging enough apparently to warrant a speedy repetition, as Field Marshal Haig in his despatches last night reported that when the Germans assaulted the British lines northeast of Langemarck yesterday they not only were repulsed but lost ground in a British counter drive. Signs of possibly important activity impending are appearing in other sections of the British front, notably in the Arras region near the Scarpe, and in the vicinity of Lens, which city is still being closely pressed by the Canadians. Considerable artillery activity is announced from these sectors. Artillery on both sides is also notably busy on the French front in Verdun region. Last night its activity reached a stage of intense violence north of the fortress in Fosses and Chaume Wood regions Paris reports.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 24.—In a long review of the war situation, an observer says that premature peace talk by its tendency to divide public opinion can only prolong the horror and misery of the struggle.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON (British Official Statement), September 24.—German heavy guns were active early this morning on both banks of the River Scarpe on the Arras Front in France. A German raiding party near Labasseville was driven away after a sharp fight last night with the British.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By John H. Hearley.)

ROME, September 24.—An ecclesiastical "Colonel House" has apparently been developed in the person of Mgr. Ceretti, Papal Secretary of State for extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs. Ceretti is absent from the Vatican to-day. He is reported to be in a secluded spot for afew days' quiet study of the Central Powers' attitude. Mgr. Ceretti is regarded as in a position to give Pope Benedict accura te advice on American affairs. Before becoming Bishop of Australia he was attached to the Papal Legation in Washington. He is a student of President Wilson's writings, and an admirer of United States' constitution. Ceretti recently visited the United States en route to Rome from the Australian Bishopric. He was not known internationally until the entrance of the United States into the war, and Vatican's peace offer made him th Pope's right-hand man with respect to American affairs.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, September 24.—That France is prpparing to take care of much trans-Atlantic traffic that formerly went to Germany and that some of Germany's biggest ships will be used by France, is indicated by the provision being made by the French Government at Brest, France, for large concrete docks capable of accommodating the fifty-four thousand ton Vaterland interned in the United States at the beginning of the war, and lately turned over to the Allies' service.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, September 24.—Russian forces on the Riga front in the region south of Pskoff high road, yesterday took the offensive, and after a fierce struggle occupied German positions in the sector of Silzeme, the Russian War Office announced to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch).

PARIS, Sept. 24. — "Evasive," "Vague," "Hollow," and "Empty" are words which appear and re-appear in the comments published in the Paris newspapers to-day on the replies of Germany and Austria to Pope Benedict's peace propposals.

Gustave Herve, editor of La Victoire, characterizes the note as "bluff and wind."

Virtually the whole press chooses the same points for criticism, pinning first the absence of any reference to Belgium, Alsace Lorraine and Poland, although the Pope referred to them if, as it is pointed out, "somewhat timidly."

(Canadian Press Despatch).

ROME, Sept. 24.—The entire Liberal press continues to attack the reply of Germany and Austria to the Pope's peace proposal as "A unique example of revolting cynicism." The Corriere d'Italia has modified the tone of its comment from criticism to that of mild approval.

(Canadian Press Despatch).

PARIS, Sept. 24.—(French Official)—North of Verdun and in the region of Fosses and Chaume Woods, an artillery duel was intensely violent last night.

German airplanes bombarded a camp of German prisoners near Bar le Duc and two German prisoners were killed.

Of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion. Pte. Shadgett, who is forty-six years of age, was sent with the first draft to the 5th C.M.R., France, and went in on the Somme with that unit. He was transferred to the 8th Canadian M. G. AMERICAN TROOPS ARE CLOSE BEHIND THE BRITISH LINES

So Near Indeed Are the Sammies Now That Two Rookies in One Unit Have Been Slightly Wounded by Shell Fire

ANXIOUS TO GET IN

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

(By William Philip Simms, U.P. Staff Correspondent).

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Sept. 24.—A certain American army contingent is now located directly behind the British lines, within range of enemy gun fire, and two of its rookie members have been slightly wounded by fragments of an explosive shell. I visited the camp to-day. Neither of the two American soldiers were badly enough hurt to earn gold medals. They were the heroes of the camp, however, and the most envied of all the Sammies.

The eyes of this American contingent are turned longingly to the British line—so near to them that the Americans are now within range of the enemy guns.

The Sammies work with the boom of cannon always in their ears. They are great pals of the Tommies, and listen enviously to stories of "going over the top."

So eager are the Sammies to fight that the strictest regulations, imposing severe punishment, have been necessary to prevent them sneaking off to the front, under the chaperonage of the Tommies.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF GREAT WAR VETERANS

There will be a most important Special General meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association in the Barrie Building at 8 o'clock to-morrow night. Owing to the departure from the city of a number of officers of the Club, and the resignation of President Dalliday, it has become necessary to elect other officers at once, and therefore it is desired that every member should be on hand at to-morrow night's meeting. A number of the Club officers have gone south with the Trench Exhibit, which is to tour Uncle Sam's Domains, and the vacancies they caused must be filled at once as there is some very important business to be taken up. It is imperative that there should be a large attendance at this meeting.

LOCAL WAR VETERANS LEAVE TO-DAY ON THEIR SOUTHERN TRIP

Peterboro' Men Who Will Give Trench Exhibit in United States Off This Afternoon For Trenton, N. J.---War Veterans Entertained to Motor Drive---To-day's General Military News.

The invasion of the United States by a party of Peterborough War Veterans is under way. The squad who are to tour Uncle Sam's domains, exhibiting war souvenirs and showing the American people what a trench looks like are on their way south, opening at the New Jersey State Fair at Trenton, N.J., to-morrow or Wednesday. Sergts. Victor and Cooper left for Trenton early yesterday morning to superintend the building of the trench, and the rest of the party, consisting of seven war veterans, left on the 3.43 train this afternoon. At the close of the State fair at Trenton the squad will go to Norfolk, West Virginia, and then it is expected will visit other American cities further south. Melvin Howard, the high wire artist, who was at the Peterborough Exhibition, is in charge of the arrangements and has been successful in securing a long booking list for the attraction, which is billed as "The Canadian Returned Soldiers' Trench Exhibit."

Pte. George Harris, the latest member of the 93rd Battalion to return from overseas, was wounded on Feb. 2 of this year at Vimy Ridge, when a shell burst just back of the trench, pieces striking him in the back. Pte. Harris was at the front with the 52nd Battalion.

ENJOYABLE OUTING.

Through the kindness of a number of local car owners, about twenty members of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, were entertained at a delightful motor ride to Buckhorn yesterday. The outing was arranged by Mr. G. N. Gordon and the other motorists in addition to Mr. Gordon who provided their cars and who accompanied the boys were: Mayor Duffus and Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, R. R. Hall and Herb Kendrey. A most enjoyable supper was provided for the party at the Eastwood House. The return trip was made by way of Bridgenorth, the city being reached early in the evening, after a splendid outing. The weather conditions were ideal. The G.W.V.A. members who formed the party included: Fred Long, R. H. Muir, Fred Haggart, Oliver White, R. Irwin, G. Moore, P. Sturgeon, W. Dalliday, E. Mesley, G. Fallon, J. Smith, E. Watson, M. J. Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—Class "A" men only be called to the colours when the first proclamation is issued under the terms of the military service act. In this class are men fit, from the medical point of view, for actual combatant service. The call for reinforcements from General Currie is for fighting men, and the first drafts will be to meet such a need. Men in the lower medical classifications will not be required to go on active service, perhaps for some considerable time, even if at all. There is, of course, no guarantee that "B" and "C" men will never be called to the colours. Future developments will depend entirely on the war situation and military requirements.

Medical classifications under the act may briefly be summed up as follows: "A" class, combatant service overseas; "B" class, non-combatant service overseas; "C" class, non-combatant service at home. The "D" class is really not a medical classification at all. When a Medical Board considers that a man cannot properly be classified at the time, owing to his physical condition, he is ranked as a "D" man, and is to be re-examined at some later date. The remaining class is that of the totally rejected.

There is evidence of wide response to the appeal made to employers throughout the country to encourage their men to submit themselves for medical examination before the first call is actually issued. Medical Boards are working smoothly, and are obtaining an estimate of class "A" men available. In a number of cases it has been found that employers have been unduly alarmed as to the effect of the act. Medical examinations have shown, in some cases, that quite a number of the employees were unable to rank in the higher medical classifications and therefore unlikely to be called up for service. But all employers are urged to take immediate steps to ascertain which of their men are engaged in actually essential occupations, that there may be no delay when applications for appeal are made to the local tribunals.

Mr. E. Hart Nicholls of Halifax has been appointed Registrar for Nova Scotia under the terms of the act.

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—The decline in infantry strength continues. Results of the recent heavy fighting, and the fall in recruiting pending application of the Military Service Act, are shown in a comparative statement, issued by the Department of Militia and Defence. The period covered is from September 1 to September 15. In infantry alone, the statement shows, there was during this period a net loss of 4,684 men. The total infantry wastage was 5,268, comprising the following: Discharged in Canada, 261; discharged in England, 28; casualties overseas, 4,265; returned to Canada for discharge, 714. Total, 5,268.

During the same period infantry recruits numbered 584, leaving the net infantry loss as stated.

Taking all branches of the service into consideration, the figures are rather better. The total net loss to the Canadian Expeditionary Force was 4,928, recruits numbering 1,667.

Total wastage in the C.E.F. during the period indicated amounted to 6,595, namely:

Discharged in Canada—Infantry 261; other arms, 259; total, 520.

Casualties overseas—Infantry, 4,265; other arms, 664; total, 4,929.

Discharged in England—Infantry 28; other arms, 45; total, 73.

Total wastage—6,595.

It is estimated that 45 per cent. of the total casualties will within a period of six months be fit for general service.

Supreme Court Judge Among Those Implicated in the Revelations Made Public by Government Committee of Public Information

STARTING CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The most startling revelation of German trigue in the United States that has been made since the war began, implicating well-known men who claim American citizenship and involving a Supreme Court Justice in New York city, was made last night by the Government Committee of Public Information.

The expose is part of a systematic plan decided upon by the Government to present to the public he evidence of plots and intrigues against the interests of the United States which have been traced to the German Embassy.

LIST OF THE PLOTTERS.

Those named in the information given out last night as being connected with the plots include:

Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, who is known as an ardent champion of the Irish cause.

John Devoy, editor of The Gaelic American, a violent anti-British paper published in New York

Dr. Theo. Otto, of Allentown, Pa., who is still practicing, and claims to be an American citizen.

George Sylvester Viereck, editor of Viereck's Weekly.

Marcus Braun, editor of Fair Play, and political leader among the Hungarians of lower Second avenue, New York.

J. F. J. Archibald, magazine writer, now said to be in Africa.

In this expose the Government officials make public letters, telegrams, bank cheques, receipts for cash paid, and a wealth of memoranda dating back to 1914, showing that the German Imperial Government was concerned, through its representatives here, in violation of the laws of this land.

In a bulletin styled "Official Expose," the Governmental Committee investigating German intrigue in this country quotes numerous letters and extracts from letters seized by the Department of Justice in April, 1916, in a raid upon the New York office of Wolfe von Igel, who was conducting a pro-German and anti-American campaign, and working in close touch with Count von Bernstorff. The committee refers to a cipher letter, with interlined translation, and inscribed "Very secret." This letter, credited to Judge Cohalan, and addressed to Count von Bernstorff, says:

"The revolution in Ireland can only be successful if supported from Germany; otherwise England will be able to suppress it, even though it be only after hard struggles Therefore, help is necessary. This should consist primarily of aerial attacks in England, and a diversion of the fleet, simultaneously with the Irish revolution. Then, if possible, a landing of troops, arms and ammunition in Ireland, and possibly some officers from Zeppelins. This would enable the Irish ports to be closed against England, and the establishment of stations for submarines on the Irish coast, and the cutting off of the supplies of food for England. The services of the revolution, therefore, may decide the war."

This letter was signed "5182 8167 230."

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—The strike of the Great North-Western commercial telegraphers went into effect at 11 a.m. to-day, and there was a general tie up in the system right through from the Atlantic Coast to the Rocky Mountains. Owing to the working agreements between the G.N.W. and the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern Railways, there are possibilities of trouble in the telegraphic operating systems of these two railways.

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 24.—All the G.N.W. operators, 50 in number, walked out at ten o'clock this morning. They left the Grain Exchange wires idle.

MONTREAL, Sept. 24.—H. Hulatt, manager of telegraphs for the Grand Trunk system, has to-day issued a statement that the strike of the G.N.W. operators will not interfere in any way or affect the operations and despatching of Grand Trunk trains.

THE FOOD-SAVING PLEDGE.

The people may get tired of having thrust upon them day after day injunctions and appeals to save food. No doubt they do, but, then, everybody is tired of the war, the loss it creates, the sacrifices it calls for, and the general disjointing of all the operations of personal, domestic, civic and national life.

The Canadian Tommy in the trenches get tired too; and he gets hungry, and will get hungrier yet if we don't by a good deal of saving, send him beef and bacon and bread.

We may get tired of hearing about food saving, but we must not get tired of doing it—must not "grow weary in well doing," for it is well doing to save food for export—to help feed our soldiers, to help feed the home soldiers, the warriors of industry and production in the mother country.

Great Britain and our allies must have 400 million bushels of wheat from Canada and the United States. To permit of this being done normal home production of wheat products must be reduced twenty-five per cent. The same applies to beef and bacon.

The demand for these commodities is imperative—the men in the trenches must be fed.

These can be saved by the use of substitutes—other meats, fish, eggs, milk, oatmeal, barley, etc., not only with the result of saving exportable food, but with benefit to health and satisfaction to our consciences.

Our grievous national sin is waste of food; when we commit it, we commit treason against our cause. More than 50 million dollars worth of foodstuffs goes into the garbage bins of Canada every year.

The call to save and continue to save that we may increase the stock of exportable foods—beef, bacon and flour principally, comes to us as a duty we owe to our soldiers and our allies.

But a great many of us do not seem to appreciate the necessity. We consider meeting the call concession to a fad.

The housewife, with years of experience and frugal providing, and using and saving, almost resents it as an insult to have some silken dame who perhaps doesn't cook a meal in a "month of Sundays," rolling up to her doors in a shining auto car, and preaching the necessity of saving, and asking her to avoid waste—she who never wastes a scrap—uses meat to the bone, and then uses it for soup.

But the visiting pledge ladies mean well and are "all right." They come in autos that they may cover more ground—wear silk, because it is a "back" skirt, and go about doing good because they can afford the time—we can't all be Marthas.

These ladies are doing what they are told to do—doing their duty, and trying to bring home an appeal that many require—though some don't.

They should be welcomed courteously and patriotically for the sake of the cause. The food service pledge should be signed by everybody. Even the woman who never wastes and always saves, can sign it as an example, and with a pride that she does not need the pledge. She can hang it up as a reminder of duty done—God bless her!

But talking of signing food service pledges—there is something the Food Controller and his agents seem to have forgotten—they only ask the female head of the house to sign.

This is not going far enough. In some households, the blundering, good-natured male head of the house does the "providing"—the buying; and the cook or maid of all work, the preparation and service of food.

It will do no—or the less—good to have the housewife who trusts to subordinates, sign the pledge. Present it to the husband; present it to the cook or maid-of-all-work. She, having no financial responsibility in respect of the domestic commissariat, and never having learned the lessons of saving and thrift taught by Penny Banks in the schools, is likely to be a little wasteful, or a little un-careful; but if she signs the pledge she will faithfully keep it, like the good Canadian she is.

Let every member of the household sign the pledge—The husband—for, if it does nothing else, it will prevent his grumbling, if such a thing is possible. Let the mother sign it. Let the adult daughter sign it; let the cook sign it. Amongst them all there will be more thrift and saving than if only one—perhaps not practically connected with cooking or preparation of food—subscribes to the pledge.

It is the duty of every housewife, every householder to unite with everybody else to save food to help export.

The crisis is a real one; and if everybody saves, even a little, the total amongst eight million Canadians will be great—"many mickles will mak a muckle."

If a little sand papering of the dietary seems hard, it will be sweetened and seasoned by the thought that by the little sacrifice each of us is making, we are adding to the store of food of our soldiers in the trenches, who are fighting for us kneedeep in mud, and in the midst of a hell of shell and shot and gas—a "stunt" that needs good feeding to keep up the strength and spirit.

Victory is dependent upon the extent and intensity of your food sacrifice.

PEFORMANCE BETTER THAN APPEAL.

The United States has been six months in the war, and in the matter of organization of subsidiary—popular—activities, as compared with military preparations, is distinctly ahead of Canada. Hoover, the United States Controller, controls. He has hit high prices. He has given the wheat speculators a "joit" that brought down the price of flour a few notches. He collared the coal barons, and the price of coal emulates Davy Crocket's coon—it comes down. He tackled the sugar interests, and the price of sugar came down.

Our Food Controller, Mr. Hanna, was given power to regulate food prices, but food prices gleefully continue to soar. Mr. Hanna is conducting a vigorous, and apparently effective, educational campaign for food saving, but the problem of lower food prices is still unsolved.

In other ways Uncle Sam has done things, and is trying to do things—to help furnish men for fighting. In the "Hardware Age" appears the duplicate of a proclamation of the Governor of New York. In this proclamation he premises that men are needed for productive labour, and men must be withdrawn from non-essentials, and shows how the public can help by doing, themselves, the needless delivery work of stores that means "an unnecessary drain on the country's man power." He points out how every shopper can be patriotic in five ways:

By carrying parcels home whenever possible.

Accept without complaint less prompt deliveries in war time.

Do not demand special deliveries.

Avoid having goods sent home unless you are sure you are going to keep them.

Bring back yourselves to the store such goods as are portable, when returns cannot be avoided.

This may seem a small matter but it shows the thoroughness and extent of reach of United States war organi-

Mr. Hanna's Marching Orders; The Need Of Price Cutting As Well As Food Saving

"I now am able to limit the profits derived by those engaged in the food industries of the United Kingdom. We examine the books, and apply a system of cost and expense. I expect to hear that Mr. Hoover and Mr. Hanna have taken similar steps, so that we will be able to assure the people that the existing high prices of imported food do not represent profiteering.

"In this connection I am anxiously watching the price and the available supply across the water of foodstuffs for cattle, upon which depends largely the price of meat and bacon. Unless the existing high levels are reduced, the poorer classes in the United Kingdom, France and Italy are faced with many privations."—Lord Rhondda, British Food Controller.

There is food for thought in every line of this statement. The co-ordination of allied effort, so far as this is at all practicable, is one of the chief considerations of those responsible, is one of the chief considerations of those responsible for the carrying on of the war. Responsibility for the success of the Allies is not confined to those in charge of combatant services. The Department of War Service, that concerns the conservation and regulation of food supplies, is as necessary to victory as the Munitions Department. This seems to be the view of Lord Rhondda, who looks to Canada to co-operate with the Mother Country in maintaining food supplies tat a level of prices that will remove all anxiety during the continuance of the war. With one eye on the firing line and one on the profiteers of Canada and the United States, the British Food Controller goes straight to the point when he challenges Mr. Hanna and Mr. Hoover to friendly rivalry with himself in making war on the profiteers. Can Mr. Hanna, on behalf of Canada, give Britain assurances that this country is doing all it might in controlling and regulating the food market?

Is Canada fighting this war for great principles or for Big Interests? This is the question which, with an increasing volume of indignation, the public is asking day after day. If Mr. Hanna cannot, for some reason not known to the public, regulate and control the profits on foodstuffs, then it is his bounden duty to let the public know what difficulties stand in the way. As at present constituted the office of Food Controller is a sham. What is the Food Controller controlling? Has anything been done to meet the outrageous demands made by profiteers on the slender earnings of the masses of the people of Canada? If Lord Rhondda's department can apply a system of cost and expense to firms engaged in food industries in a country of forty five million people, what insuperable obstacles in Canada prevent Mr. Hanna from protecting in similar manner the eight million consumers of Canada? Is it easier and more avantageous for the Government at Ottawa to protect the profiteers than to do the right thing by the nation and the Empire? Unless Mr. Hanna is impervious to criticism he must know that public opinion will not long tolerate the present policy of masterly inactivity that enables the Big Interests to lay heavy burdens on the backs of the people who already bear the burdens and the sacrifices of a terrible war.

There will be no peace for Mr. Hanna until he makes peace with the consumer. The profiteer must be forced to give up his ungodly calling. The Food Controller of Canada is remiss in his duties if he lays this country open to the charge brought against it by Lord Rhondda, of harboring and protecting land sharks that prey not only upon the citizens of the Dominion, but who force Britain to pay famine prices at a time when the German submarine makes it imperative that Canada should lend all the aid in her power to the British people. Profiteering under the war conditions that now prevail in Canada and in the United States means lending aid and comfort to the enemy. The patience of the public is almost exhausted. When does Mr. Hanna propose to begin in earnest the task of Food Controller?.—The Globe.

Socialists Are Backing Britain

Clarence Darrow's Eulogy Stirs Crowd of Chicago Business Men

Clarence Darrow, brilliant Chicago lawyer and famous Socialist, has joined John Spargo, Charles E. Russell and other exceedingly "free" thinkers, in backing the Allies in the present war. Mr. Darrow was vigorously applauded at the weekly luncheon of the Chicago Association of Commerce last week when he championed Britain, France and Belgium. He said:

When I saw Belgium and France invaded it never occurred to me to ask whether France and Belgium had ever done wrong. If I had seen Germany invaded by France, I would have been for Germany. But although I am somewhat familiar with the speculative German philosophy, I do not believe Germany was invaded when one was thundering with her mighty army at the gates of Paris, and I do not believe it to-day.

It is no answer to say that England has been an offender. There ought to be a statute of limitation for nations as well as for men. (Laughter). If you steal something and get away with it for six or seven years, the statute runs and nothing can be done about it. And if England has sinned in the past, and France has sinned in the past, the statute of limitations has run. And if it has not run, it is our business to deal with this situation as it is to-day.

Nor could I ever find it in my heart outside of this war to condemn England, and I think perhaps most of us pay too little attention to this. We have practically admitted that England has been all wrong. England, no doubt, in the past was tyrannical with India, and with many other lands. No doubt there is a measure of truth in the claim of Ireland. But in spite of all of its shortcomings, England for a hundred years has been the greatest defender of individual liberty and the rights of man that the world has ever known. (Great applause).

Better Democrats Than British.

England for two hundred years has been the mistress of the sea, and she has used that power in the main for freedom, leaving it open to all of the peoples of the earth, and for sixty years, at least, every English port has been opened for the free entry of every ship and all the goods of any nation on the earth, and no other nation has done as much.

And then the England of to-day is not the Tory England of a hundred years or fifty years ago. Nowhere in the world is a better or a greater band of democrats fighting for the liberty of the human race than the English people who control English affairs to-day. (Applause). And no nation—bar none—is steered by a greater commoner, a better democrat, a more devoted friend of human liberty than is England under Lloyd George.

It ill becomes us to talk of England, England, whose fleet has defended our shores in this great struggle (applause); England who has been fighting our battle with her money and her men; and we were tardy indeed in getting in to help, but are there, and if I know the sentiment of this country, no matter how long it takes, whether the end be near or far, we have drawn the sword and that sword will not be sheathed until Prussian militarism is a thing of the past. (Great applause).—Chicago British-American.

Prussians Used Cement Shells To Sink The Falkland

Survivor Tells of New Deadly Munitions Adopted in Submarine Warfare

TRAGIC SUICIDE OF U-BOAT COMMANDER

Hans von Tuebinger, Who Killed His Fiancee, Becomes Insane and Dives to Death.

AN ATLANTIC PORT—What is probably the first intimation that the Germans have been using cement shells in their U-boat warfare was disclosed here recently on the arrival of John Pirano, a seaman aboard the Norwegian steamship Falkland, which was sunk in the North Sea August 15, with the loss of ten of the crew.

In addition to the statement that pieces of the exploding shells which shattered the Falkland showed that the shells were made of a cement of almost steel-like hardness the story told by Pirano is exceptionally interesting because it tells of the dramatic death of the U-boat's commander, who, there appears every reason to believe, was Hans von Tuebinger, of whose romantic career some phases have been told before.

"The Falkland was carrying a cargo from Philadelphia," said Pirano, "and everything was going along smoothly until we were in the North Sea, about 180 miles off the northeast coast of England, when a shot tore away our funnell. Another smashed into the engine room, killing half a dozen men.

"The shells were coming so fast that we didn't wait any longer, but just piled into the lifeboats and got away as quickly as we could. We were not a bit too soon, however, for the vessel sank a few minutes after we had cut loose from her. All told, ten men perished with her.

Saves Pieces of Shells.

"With all my anxiety to get away I still had curiosity enough left to pick up and put into my pocket a couple of pieces of one of the shells which had smashed the funnel. Afterward I discovered that the shell was cement. But that discovery was made weeks afterward in London by a friend of mine who is a chemist. Until then I thought it was some sort of brittle metal.

"The captain of the U-boat made us come alongside after our vessel was gone. He struck me right away as being sort of loony. I never saw a man acting more queerly. He looked as if he felt sorry for us and then became excited and angry and ordered us to get out of his sight. We were in mortal dread of the man and didn't know just what to do. We sure were between the devil and the deep sea For we made up our minds that no matter whether we stayed or rowed away he would find some cause of quarrel and have us shot.

"He asked our captain whether he had seen 'Minna.' We thought he meant some vessel named Minna; but the way he pronounced the name and the awfully sad expression that came into his eyes soon convinced me that he must have meant a woman of that name with whom he was crazy in love. I couldn't help laughing, although it was no laughing matter for him, and none for us either, when you consider the pickle we were in.

"I guess our captain must have thought that, so long as we were bound to offend the U-boat commander no matter what we did, the best thing would be to get as far from him as possible; and so we rowed away. We had gone about half a mile when we saw him waving his arms about his head and running up and down on the deck.

"'We better go back,' said the second mate to the captain. 'I think he's kind o' put out because we rowed away without asking him.'

'Damn the Kaiser."

"We went back a good deal faster than we had gone away; and when we were near enough to hear his voice I heard him say, 'I'm tired of this butchery busiess. I've killed my Minna; I've killed her brother; I've killed too many already. Not another life will I take—except my own. Damn von Tripitz! Damn the Kaiser! They've driven me out of my mind. Damn the whole outfit.'

"Although I am of Italian descent and was born in New York, I spent many years in Bremen and picked up a good working knowledge of German. So I understod everything the poor lunatic said. His men listened to him as if they had turned into stone. What he said must have been worse than blasphemy to them; but even so, they didn't do anything to stop him and then let him rave on.

"Well, sir, the first thing we knew that poor devil jumped into the water, and that was the end of him. Before he went he let out one despairing cry of 'Minna!' and I can tell you I haven't ben able to get it out of my ears from that day to this."

Pirano said that after a long and vain search, in which the crew of the Falkland aided, the commander of the U-boat was given up as dead. "The U-boat then submerged and we were left to our fate," Pirano said. "After two days adrift we were picked up by a British patrol boat and landed in England."

Story of Von Tuebinger.

From the expressions used by the captain of the U-boat there can be no doubt that he was Hans von Tuebingr. As told in the Herald, he had been an art student at Stockholm before the war and was engaged to marry Minna, the daughter of Lars Larsen, owner of a Swedish schooner. After the war began and Hans von Tuebinger had returned to Germany in response to the call to his colours, Minna pined away, and her father concluded to take her with him on his voyages.

During one of these voyages the schooner was attacked by a submarine and a splinter of wood shattered by a shell killed the girl. The commander of the submarine proved to be the man to whom she had been engaged. Von Tuebinger was almost beside himself with grief when he learned of her death.

Some time afterward Hans Von Tuebinger's U-boat sank another vessel. The mate aboard was Minna's brother. The young man was crazed with excitement and anger when he discovered the identity of the destroyer of his vessel and leaped at him, catching him by the throat. One of Hans' men, however, hit the young assailant over the head with the butt of a revolver, knocking him into the sea. Although Hans jumped after and dived for him repeatedly, the young man never came to the surface again.

Once again after that a man who had known the U-boat captain at Stockholf during his days of courtship before the war was torpedoed by him. This man said that Hans invited him to his cabin aboard the U-boat, and there he saw on the wall a picture of Minna draped in crepe and with some touching poetry underneath. That was the last heard of Hans von Tuebinger until Pirano's news of the pirate's tragic death.

COL. S. H. STIVERS ARRIVES IN CITY FOR BRIEF STAY

Celebrated Tanlac Man to Meet People at Warne Drug Co. Ltd.

Hailing from Toronto, where he has been for several weeks, Colonel Sherman H. Stivers, of Lexington, Ky., popularly known throughout the country as the Tanlac man, arrived here Saturday at 9 p.m. over the Grand Trunk.

Explaining his visit to Peterborough when seen shortly after his arrival by a representative of the Examiner, Colonel Stivers said:

"I came here at the urgent invitation of one of your leading druggists to tell your people about Tanlac, the master medicine, that has been accomplishing such remarkable results in all sections of the country."

In speaking of the phenomenal sale of Tanlac, which has created such wide comment, he stated that it is being sold and distributed in Toronto at the rate of 20,000 bottles per month. He also said that the demand in other cities, including Ottawa, London, Hamilton, Guelph, Brantford, Kitchener Kingston and Belleville had been correspondingly large.

"Tanlac," he continued, "is unquestionably the most widely talked of medicine in the world to-day, and everywhere it has been placed on sale the demand for it has proven a revelation to the people.

"I am indeed gratified to find," said Colonel Stivers, "that Tanlac has met with such an enthusiastic reception here in Peterborough. The Warne Drug Co., Ltd., local agent for Tanlac, states that the sale of Tanlac has already surpassed that of any other remedy they have ever handled, and that the demand is increasing by leaps and bounds."

Colonel Stivers made the remarkable statement that during the two and a half years Tanlac has been on the market over 8,000,000 bottles have been sold, and it is now being sold at the rate of 4,000,000 bottles a year.

When asked to explain the tremendous popularity of the medicine, Colonel Stivers said:

"The phenomenal demand for Tanlac is due not only to the wide publicity that has been given it, but to the extraordinary merit of the medicine itself. In all cities where it has been introduced, the most prominent and successful people, including Supreme Court judges, mayors of leading cities, lawyers, doctors, bankers, Government officials, eminent educators and well-known ministers of the Gospel; in fact, men and women in every walk in life have given the medicine their unqualified endorsement. As a matter of fact, nine people out of ten who take the medicine tell their friends about it and are walking advertisements for it."

Owing to pressing engagements in other cities where Tanlac is being introduced, Colonel Stivers' visit to Peterborough will be necessarily brief. He has arranged, however, to be at the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., for the next few days, where he will be glad to meet the public and explain the merits of this remedy.

REALTY WITNESS REGALLS DINNER AT $140 A PLATE

NEW YORK—That a dinner costing $140 a plate and attended by Mayor Mitchell was given to William H. Reynolds at Sherry's May 24 last, following a trip to Arizona on which prospective stockholders of the Arizona-Binghamton Copper Company were guests of Reynolds and William M. Greve, was revealed to District Attorney Swann as a sidelight to the investigation he is conducting into the sale of Seaside Park to the city by the Neponsit Realty Company for $1,341,000.

C. Palmer Woodbury, of Woodbury & Co., stock brokers and bond dealers at No. 44 Pine street, who appeared in response to a subpoeno, gave a detailed account of the trip and the dinner to Edwin P. Kilroe, Assistant District Attorney. He said Mr. Reynolds obtained control of a copper mine at Stowward, Ariz., in October, 1916, and in April last organized the company to operate it. Mr. Reynolds asked him to act as banker in a stock issue of 350,000 shares at $5 a share, which Mr. Woodbury says he did.

The trip to Arizona was made in May in Harry Payne Whitney's private car, the Vagabondia. "We had one fine time," said Mr. Woodbury. "We called ourselves 'vagabonds of the Vagabondia.' All who went were so well pleased with the trip and the prospects of profit from the mine that the dinner was held as a joy feast. The menu card was a piece of solid copper."

On the copper card was printed the following:—

Studio Lamps as Souvenirs.

Among those at the dinner, according to Mr. Woodbury's recollection, besides Mayor Mitchel, Mr. Reynolds and himself, were Wm. M. Greve, vice president of the Neponsit Realty Company; Frank Bailey, vice president of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company and president of the Realty Associates; Charles O'Malley, land expert in Controller Prendergast's office, who appointed the Seaside Park site at $5.000 an acre on information given to him by Mr. Grieve; John Kuhn and Henry Roth of the Realty Associates; William A. Moreschauser, son-in-law of Peter Doeger, brewer, and Edward J. McCrossen.

Mr. Reynolds was the "lion of the hour," Mr. Woodbury said. A dress suit case which cost $600 was presented to him. The souvenirs were Tiffany studio lamps.

Mr. Woodbury said Mayor Mitchel expected to buy 15,000 shares of the copper company's stock, but changed his mind. Mr. Woodbury quoted Mr. Reynolds as saying friends wished to subscribe to more of the stock than he cared to sell.

In a list of stockholders furnished to Mr. Swann by Mr. Woodbury appear the names of Frank Bailey, Mrs. Marie D. Bustanoby, of No. 80 West Fortieth Street, widow of Louis Bustanoby, proprietor of the Beaux Arts; George B. Mix, of No. 185 Madison Avenue, and John H. White, of No. 817 West End Avenue.

At the City Hall it was said no statement would be made by Mayor Mitchel. Mr. Greve said he had been asked about the dinner, and that he had told Mr. Black and Mr. Kilroe, Assistant District Attorneys, he was no squealer and that no one could get a word about it from him.

One Cheque Spent Five Ways.

Mr. Swann said yesterday that an examination of Mr. Greve's accounts with the Corn Exchange Bank disclosed that the $8,250 he had received of the money paid by the city, the cheque for which was marked "special services," had been distributed to five persons in respective sums of $5,000, $1,500, $1,000, $500 and $250. Another cheque for $19,000, Mr. Swann said, had been divided in a similar manner.

Mr. Greve told Mr. Swann he could not recall to whom the proceeds of the cheques went. He declared it would be impossible for him to do so even if another day were given to him in which to think it over. Mr. Greve said the entire profits from the sale of Seaside Park to the city were $233,000 which, he said, he did not regard as excessive.

Mr. Greve and Bird S. Coler, formerly City Controller and Borough President of Brooklyn, for which he now is a candidate, were close to blows while waiting to be called before the Extraordinary Grand Jury. Mr. Greve walked over to where Mr. Coler was sitting and said:

"What do you mean by saying our title to Seaside Park is no good? You have been slamming us for some time and now we're going to do some slamming ourselves."

Almost Came to Blows.

With Mr. Greve shaking his fist in Mr. Coler's face, the latter was on his feet in an instant.

"There is no better time than now to do that slamming," retorted Mr. Coler. "Come on."

The two men walked into the hall. Suddenly Mr. Coler seized Mr. Greve by the lapel of his coat, and, turning to the reporters, said:

"Just tell these men how much money you are spending to beat me in Brooklyn. You and your 'gang' are spending $30,000 to do it. Why don't you come out in the open?"

Music & Drama

FLORA BELLA.

"Flora Bella," at the Grand Opera House on Saturday afternoon and evening proved an unusual but most enjoyable music comedy—unusual in that it offered a logical plot with more opportunities for histrionic ability than in the usual attraction of the same sort. The story is an interesting and logical one. There is an abundance of catchy music, with one waltz of lasting charm, "Give Me All of You," which everybody whistled or hummed leaving the theatre. The principals were clever and capable, Rhoda Nickells as the Princess Manja, Russell Lennon as Prince Nicholas, and David Andrada as Count Weronzeff, especially shining. The latter contributed most of the comedy and did it well. The whole performance was most enjoyable.

"Rats! I wouldn't spend a nickel to beat you," rejoined Mr. Greve. "You're licked already!"

Turning to John A. Mossel, foreman of the Grand Jury, Mr. Coler said:

"I call your attention to the way this man has threatened me—a Grand Jury witness."

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

THE COURSE OF THE MARKET.

This week's stock market was a perfect illustration of the uncertain state of mind prevailing not only in the financial community but pretty well throughout business circles in this country. There is little doubt that the pronounced weakness in steel issues in the preceding week was due to a short selling campaign. It is equally apparent that the recoveries of this week, particularly on Wednesday and Thursday, were due in a large measure to an unwillingness on the part of bear operators to remain short for any length of time. While the Government has not yet acted in regard to the prices for steel there is considerable ground for believing that the iron and steel industry is likely to fare rather well in the results if the current reports of a copper price in excess of 29 cents are borne out. The outlook for the steel prices might be regarded as more than brighter for the producer, the investor and the speculative trader. While the arrangements for the next Liberty Loan are proceding, it is becoming evident that the banks are in far better condition to handle the new loan than they were in June by reason of experience and organization. Furthermore, the amount of the loan which the banks will have to take care of will be determined pretty largely by the amount of the loan taken by the general public. There seems to be no disposition to question the belief that the amount of the loan which the public will take will depend in substantial measure upon the general tone of the financial markets during the coming month. In other words, it is difficult to sell even government bonds to the general public in a bear market. Consequently just so surely as international developments are either favorable or not decidedly unfavourable, and the price-fixing policy develops wisely, there would seem to be reason for avoiding stock market commitments on the short side for more than a few days at a time. And the market of this week apparently acted upon this belief. On the other hand, new initiative on the long side of the market is probably delayed somewhat pending final action in Washington in regard to war taxes.

The Business Situation.

Uncertainty continues to characterise the iron and steel industry. The "Iron Age" has this to say; "The fuel situation has become more serious since the fixing of the $2 basis for bituminous coal, and present and future effects upon the steel industry are giving no small concern. It appears that the government must actually get into the business of supplying coal to some iron and steel producers from whom it has bought material. Dissatisfaction with present war-buying methods grows, and manufacturers who recently ceased to act on advisory committees in view of the legal questions raised are not likely to resume this relation. Sentiment is being made daily in favour of larger powers for the War Industries Board, and the recognized need of further centralization may explain the delay in announcing iron and steel prices. As iron and steel prices fall, the course of wages is upward and still upward.' In regard to general conditions, Dun's "Review" says: "Reviewing activity does not appear in all quarters where expected, but signs of it are both numerous and easier of discernment. Low temperatures have come earlier than usual, and though reports indicate some injury to crops, retailing has been stimulated and manufacturing speeded up in consequence. Yet, if in some lines there is more animation with the advancing season, all business does not move forward with the momentum of a year ago, and in certain of the more important branches there is still halting, either as a result of continued doubts about prices, or because buyers whose immediate wants are not pressing are waiting for the further reaction which seems to be foreshadowed."

Other Factors.

Apart from the domestic questions in regard to price-fixing, war taxes, and the pending Liberty Loan, the dominant factor in the market is beyond question the war itself. The people who were looking for a ready-made revolution in Germany within a reasonable time after the upset in Russia, met the fate they deserved. At the same time, the obvious desire for peace, and not necessarily peace on the terms of the present war mad, is growing in evidence in Hungary. There is also some reason for thinking that an Allied offensive in the Balkans may have been delayed because of a growing lukewarmness in Bulgaria. These two apparent developments might have a considerable influence upon the grey line from Antwerp into Asia Minor. Persons who expected to see the Russian revolution straighten out within ninety days were simply uninformed as to history. It may take several years for the Russian problem to be worked out in lasting fashion. At the same time there are increasing evidences that the danger of a Russian collapse before the early winter sets in on the shores of the Baltic, has been averted.

Up To Business Men Of World To Win The War

So Lord Northcliffe Tells U. S. Chambers of Commerce.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sep. 20.—It is up to the business men of the world to win the war, with the Central Powers, declared Lord Northcliffe, head of the British Commission in this country, in an address here last night before the war conventions of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Lord Northcliffe emphasized the importance of organisation and co-operation among the manufacturers of the United States in order to produce the immense amount of munitions and supplies necessary successfully to carry on the conflict.

"In a sense, too, this is a trade war," said the speaker. "for the Teutonic scheme is now stripped bare of all pretense. 'Gemnany over all' is the enemy battle cry, and the words have at last the merit of simplicity. American, Frenchman, Briton — we are to become the under dogs after being ground to submission by the Prussian jackboot.

"Oddly enough, the last thing the Junkers dreamed of was that they would be beaten to a pulp by the business men of the Allied nations, yet that is precisely what has happened."

Lord Northcliffe described Great Britain's unpreparedness when the war started, saying the country did 'not have twenty million rounds of small arm ammunition in its arsenals August 1, 1914, while Germany took the field with four billion rounds in her supply waggons. In addition, Great Britain "knew nothing of poison gas, of liquid fire and the rest of the choice array of brutal arguments with which kultur meant to subdue such stiff-necked folk as declined to accept the new gospel according to Bernhardi."

Face of England Changed.

"While the English fleet held the seas," said Lord Northcliffe, the armies of Belgium, France and Russia and England did wonders in stemming the dragon's first onrush, but it was left to the business men of the threatened nations to organize victory, and they had prepared thoroughly. He told of the great efforts that were being put forth. The face of England had literally changed in order to meet the requirements of Great Britain and her allies.

"The Thames valley is now one vast hive of industry," said Lord Northcliffe. "Great cities like Birmingham, Manchester and Glasgow have added far-flung suburbs to their bulk; new towns have arisen elsewhere, and all are devoted to the heculean labours of the forge and the machine shop. If you could see but for one short half hour what barrage fire means on a single section of a four hundred mile front, if you could hear 3,000 cannons belching forth the steel salvos which clear the way for a dauntless infantry, you would appreciate more than ever the truth of the saying that this war is being won in the factory and in the mine."

Lord Northcliffe paid a glowing tribute to the work being done by the women of England in the war, and said he was sure that "American women, put to the same great test, would make the same great response."

"Americans can certainly get a hustle on when the need arises," declared the speaker. "Your national soul has enthused already over the spectacle of your valiant soldiers hastening to the relief of threatened democracy. it will enthuse over the commercial demands of the war.

Will Show the Kaiser.

"Let the Kaiser prate as he may, and does, of the 'steel-hard will to conquer.' We, the business men of the Allies, will show him that lofty impulses can move mountains, and even hammer a way through the twenty-three walls of iron and concrete he is said to have constructed across the road to Berlin."

Lord Northcliffe said that the United States, as did England, would come to a realization that war is a great business enterprise, and that the country must draw on its best resources in chemistry, engineering, transportation, manufacturing and distribution.

"This war is the greatest business the world ever knew and in our country we are doing nothing else," said Lord Northclie. "Let me tell you that you will have to furnish between five and six pairs of shoes a year in the easiest parts of the lines at the front, and 12 pairs a year at the hard parts for each of the 600,600 or 800,000 men you will soon have on the front."

Lord Northcliffe pointed out that the fact that the average life of a rifle is six weeks, was one instance, in addition to those already cited, of the amount of business organisation that must be created in the United States on account of the war.

DID THE MAYOR REALLY SAY THIS?

His Worship Mayor Duffus, of Peterborough, was a business visitor in town yesterday and took in the Central Exhibition. He admitted that the Lindsay fair was away ahead of the Peterborough Industrial, but took occasion to roundly censure the Lindsay Council for allowing the dusty condition on Adelaide street, to prevail. Many cars were lined up along the street and would be ruined by the dust.—Lindsay Warder.

THIRD ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PETERBORO' PROGRESSIVE CLUB

History of Club's Activities and Reports of Secretary and Treasurer

The third annual meeting of the Peterborough Progressive Club was held in their rooms in the Barrie Building on Wednesday, Sept. 12, 1917.

This Club was started and has been steadily working since the 4th Oct., 1914, exactly two months after war was declared. We send nearly all our socks to the Field Comforts Commission for the men in the trenches. We have worked for several hospitals, and latterly more particularly for the one at Moore Barracks. At our meeting Mrs. McNeillie mentioned her son, who is at Moore Barracks Hospital assisting the surgeons. One day he said to the patients, "You will be well dressed this morning as the surgical supplies are from the Peterborough Progressive Club." It is very gratifying to know that our work is appreciated.

We regret the loss of some of our old members who have left town, and are pleased that their places are being filled by new workers. We desire to thank all those who have done so much by subscriptions and work to make our Club a success, and we trust they will continue their support in the future.

The officers for the ensuing year are:

Miss H. S. Peck—President.
Mrs. J. Holmes—1st Vice-Pres.
Mrs. Arthur Stevenson—2nd Vice-Pres.
Mrs. W. S. Rose—Secretary.
Mrs. W. R. Morris—Treasurer.
Miss Rubidge — Convener of Sock Committee.

Secretary's Report.

I beg to submit the following report of the work of the Peterborough Progressive Club for the past year.

On Wednesday, October 31st the second annual meeting was held in the club rooms in the Barrie Building, and the officers for the ensuing year were elected.

Regular sewing meetings have been held weekly throughout the year except for a short Christmas vacation. The attendance has not been as large as might be desired, but much good work has been accomplished.

The monthly meetings have not been very regular.

The activity of the club in various ways has not diminished and interest has been kept up wonderfully.

The end of November Mr. Devey put on the Geisha for the benefit of the club, which realized the splendid sum of $250.00.

A rummage sale was held on November 23, 24, 25, which brought in $149.50, while the expenses were only $8.

Dr. Robinson donated a colt to the club, which was raffled and the amount made was over $186.00.

January 9th, Mrs. Fisk lent her house for a very successful tea.

On Feb. 1st, Mrs. Fred Smith had a tea and musicale which brought in the sum of $16.00.

Mrs. Rydyard also had a tea early in March, which, with the proceeds from a raffle, realized $42.00.

Mrs. Hazen Ritchie has given a sofa to the club to sell. Numerous other articles have been donated and sold for the benefit of the club.

The patriotic garden party given by Mrs. Holmes, part of the receipts of which were given to the club, was also much appreciated.

REV. DR. TALLING AT ST. PAUL'S

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian church yesterday had the privilege of listening to a former beloved minister, the Rev. M. P. Talling, Ph.D., of Toronto. It was Rev. Mr. Talling who took charge of St. Paul's during the interval before the present pastor's acceptance of the position. Mr. Talling's earnest and scholarly ministration left deep impressions on the congregation at the time, and the spirited uplift received has ever since endeared him to many members of St. Paul's.

BREACH OF PROMISE CASE OFF—ENGAGEMENT IS ON

According to a Letter Received by The Sentinel-Star This Week

The following letter speaks for itself:

408 Manning Chambers,
Toronto, 19th Sept., 1917

The Star-Sentinel, Cobourg.

Dear Sirs:—I am told by a lady living in Cobourg that a paragraph appeared in your paper stating that an action had been brought by me against Mary Ann Theresa Blackburn for $20,000 damages, etc. I would be pleased if you would send me a copy of that paper, also a copy of your next issue with a statement that the action had been withdrawn and dismissed without costs. I also wish that you put in a statement that the engagement of myself to Mrs. Blackburn has not been broken off and that the marriage would take place shortly. I wish to subscribe for six months subscription to your excellent paper and if you will let me know the amount I will send it to you. I regret very much that circumstances compelled me to institute this action but Cobourg will be deprived of one of the most sensational actions ever brought into a Court of Justice.

Yours very sincerely,
JOHN CREIGHTON

P.S.—I do not know who could have put it in or where you got your information, as the writ has not been served and will not be.—J. C.—"Sentinel-Star."

A SUCCESSFUL RALLY DAY AT TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL

High Water Mark For Attendance Was Reached Yesterday—A Presentation—The Rite of Baptism

The high water mark for attendance was reached yesterday by Trinity Sunday School when five hundred and fifty scholars, teachers, parents and friends were comfortably accommodated in the Reid St. Hall. The highest previous record was four hundred and seventy-five. The School Report for the third Sunday in September 1875—forty-two years ago—read as an item on the programme—showed an attendance on that day of seventy-seven.

The interesting programme yesterday, owed its success to the hearty co-operation of every member of the School, and to the kindness of friends of the congregation. The committee in charge sent out 600 beautiful souvenir cards as invitations to every branch of the School, from the Cradle Roll to the Men's Brotherhood and the Married Women's Bible Class.

Aged and infirm members and friends were conveyed to and from the service by cars, as were, also, many mothers and babies, connected with the Cradle Roll Department. This branch of the work was ably taken care of by the men of the congregation under the direction of Mr. R. J. Kidd.

Platform Programme.

The actual platform programme was pleasing from start to finish. A Chatauqua salute welcomed Mr. A. D. Hone to the chair. Mr. Hone in resuming his superintendency, for the day, gave some interesting sidelights on camp life at Petawawa where he has been stationed with the Cobourg Heavy Battery.

One of the School's Old Boys, Rev. Alex. Elliott, son of Mr. J. C. Elliott, 98 Aylmer street, on a holiday from his charge in Saskatchewan, was happily reminiscent. He found his Charlotte St. S.S. teachers, with one exception, retired from active duty.

Dr. J. P. Wilson performed the rite of Baptism for six babies of the Cradle Roll Department and two members of the Junior Department.

The youngest member of the School present, John William Dowson, aged one month and one day, was presented with a silver cup by Dr. M. A. Morrison, on behalf of the School. Mr. Dowson replied very happily for his young son.

A beautiful bouquet of gladioli, presented by Mr. R. J. Kidd, showed the appreciation of the School for the presence of the oldest member, Mrs. Isaac Richardson, Homewood avenue, aged 84.

The music for the day was in keeping with the programme. A bright solo by Mrs. King, rendered in her usual pleasing manner, was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. King directed the singing of the massed school. The orchestra, under the leadership of Miss Laura Logan, was generous with its selections which were heartily applauded.

The beautiful day, the happy faces, and the good things said and wished, made a day long to be remembered in Trinity Sunday School.

TABLET UNVEILED IN HONOUR OF THE LATE LIEUT. ARTHUR ACKERMAN

Touching Ceremony Observed Yesterday Morning in George Street Methodist Church--Comrades in Arms Pay Tribute to Memory of Departed Soldier.

SPECIAL MUSIC PROVIDED

Most impressive and touching was the service at the George street Methodist church yesterday morning when a memorial tablet in honour of the late Lieut. Arthur Ross Ackerman, was unveiled. The service was conducted by the Rev. Amos J. Thomas, M.A., B.D., pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev J. P. Wilson, D.D., pastor of Trinity Methodist church, and a lifelong friend of the deceased. Major D. Ponton, of Belleville, and Lieut. F. B. McFarren, of Toronto, comrades on active service also referred to the many sterling qualities of Lieut. Ackerman. The actual ceremony of unveiling the tablet was performed by Privates Ernest Mealey and A. W. Phipps, two former members of the 2nd Battalion, and associates of the departed soldier. The tablet was draped with a Union Jack in front of the pulpit. It bore the name of the deceased and the names of the numerous battles in which he took an active part. The ceremony concluded with a dedicatory prayer by Rev. Mr. Thomas.

Major Ponton's Remarks.

Major Ponton in a brief address recalled the Easter morning prior to the battle of St. Julien, when a number of the men took part in a short service. The speaker remembered returning to the billets with Lieut. Ackerman and also remembered him through the mud of Salisbury Plain. "He was a man who bore his hardships as a man and packed his sorrows away," said Major Ponton. Continuing he said: "We need not mourn for him. He lived a short life, but he performed greater deeds than men who have lived to be ninety years of age. The City of Peterborough has been unfortunate in the way of casualties. Well I remember that splendid quartette comprising Hayes, Minorgan, Cumberland and Ackerman. My sympathy goes out to the parents. I see a ray of hope drawing nearer day by day. The Hun, the world's enemy, is having success in the East, but not success in a strategic way. The men who have laid down their lives on the Western front have not fought in vain."

One Year Ago.

"It is about one year ago to-day that I went up to the line to relieve Lieut. Ackerman," said Lieut. McFarren. Lieut. Ackerman had survived a trying stay in the front line trench and was wounded on his way back from the front line. It was one year ago to-day that he received the wounds which subsequently proved fatal. I saw him several times afterwards in the hospital, and I always found him cheerful. He put up a good fight and not until the last did his chances of recovery seem hopeless. He fought a good fight, both on the field of battle and in the hospital, and was not afraid to die."

When the Call Came.

Rev. J. P. Wilson paid a fitting tribute to the deceased, whom he knew as a child. The speaker spoke of the close association between himself and the family. "When the call came our young friend was one of thirty-three thousand men who crossed the seas to fight one of the finest armies the world has ever known since the days of Caesar. Scott, the noted explorer, in his dying moments, wrote: 'The greatness of England is my thought.' That is the spirit which characterizes the nation of which Canada forms a part. The liberties that we enjoy now have been won by the silent dead of the battlefield. Those liberties are dearer to us than life. One hundred years of peace made us indifferent to the value of such things, but to-day we view such things in a different light. We must live up to the ideals for which our boys are fighting. Thank God we are learning to live saner lives. We are learning more of duty, self denial and sacrifice and deeper things that make for national life. He whose memory we honour to-day is among the immortals. We rejoice in our grief. He lived a hero and died a Christian. A boy in years and a man in deeds."

Special music was provided by the choir, including a well rendered solo by Mr. Douglas Carlisle.

License Board Will Wage War On Medicated Wine

The Ontario License Board will shortly begin to wage war in earnest upon the manufacturers of the class of "medicated wine" that may be used as a beverage. The board has been quietly biding its time until the way was clear to take action that would give some prospect of success in dealing with a troublesome problem. An unsuspected amendment placed in the Doherty bill put through the House of Commons at the session just closed makes it possible for the board to institute prosecutions under the Ontario Temperance Act which provides decidedly large penalties and shuts the way to any appeal when a conviction has been registered. The amendment in question was innocent in appearance and escaped attention while the other proposals put in the Doherty bill at the instance of the license commissioners.

From time to time the Ontario License Board has instituted prosecutions of manufacturers and retailers of so-called medicated wines, but were handicapped by the fact that they had to proceed under the Patent Medicines Act. Even where a conviction was secured the maximum penalty was only $50 and the case was likely to be carried to an appeal. The result was that the campaign against the trade in medicated beverages made little progress. The board, however, was not giving up the fight. When representations were made to the Ottawa Government asking for legislation to strengthen the enforcement of prohibition in Ontario, the commissioners, in addition to seeking control over liquor advertising, offered and amendment declaring in effect that clause 7 of the Patent Medicines Act, which provides for prosecution of persons for selling insufficiently medicated wine, should not over-ride, but be in addition to any clause in provincial legislation having a like object. The amendment was put through apparently without its significance being appreciated. As a result the board can now proceed with prosecutions under the Ontario Temperance Act, which carries a maximum penalty of $1,000.

It is understood that the department, instead of prosecuting druggists, through whom the offending medicated wines are sold, will devote its attention chiefly to fighting the trade through the men who are turning out the product. Prosecution under the Ontario License Act would be much the same as under the Patent Medicines Act, which means that the department is not sufficiently medicated to prevent its use as a beverage.

Uncle Sam in the War "With Both Feet" With All His Heart

A Brother of Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald C.E., Tells a Western Paper of High Pitch of Patriotism in the East

The east fairly is seething in patriotism and it is a magnificent inspiration to anyone to see the thousands of young men, the flower of the land, training for military duty across the ocean, declared D. J. Fitzgerald, cashier of the Silver Bow National Bank, and a well-known financier of Butte, who has just returned from a five weeks' visit in various eastern cities.

"I was in New York city when the famous Sixty-ninth regiment of New York, known as the "Fighting Irish," paraded up Fifth avenue. Do you know, I found myself thanking the good creator that it was my fortune to be an American citizen under the glorious flag borne by those gallant fellows, and I believe every one of the tens of thousands of spectators who flanked the marching 'Sixty-niners' experienced the sentiments and feelings which surged through me. It was patriotism of the genuine sort and it thrilled the solid walls of admiring humanity to see the swinging stride of those sturdy defenders of the Stars and Stripes as they marched along. The Sixty-ninth is one of the crack regiments of the east and it is now a part of the 165th. Infantry.'

"All business and traffic stopped during the parade of this noted regiment," continued Mr. Fitzgerald, "even a mail-carrier being held up by the police when he attempted to pass between the companies. But there were many hundreds whom the officers made no effort to stop when they rushed for the soldiers. There were wives, sweethearts, mothers and sisters, and to see them dash from the throng and embrace the parting soldier boy, brought forth sobs and throat-aches from the strongest of men. It was a pathetic angle to a soul-stirring demonstration, which I never will forget."

Mr. Fitzgerald spent some time at the Lake Placid club in the Adirondacks, and from this noted resort he motored to Plattsburg, N.Y., the largest officers' training camp in the United States. Here Mr. Fitzgerald saw 1,500 young men, most of them college boys and sons of wealthy families, training for officerships.

"I was particularly impressed with the patriotism shown by well-to-do people of the east," said Mr. Fitzgerald. "They seemed imbued with a desire to have their sons enter the service and every one to do his bit. I saw training diligently sons of bankers, big industrial operators, and, in fact, sons of captains in every line of industry. Every one was anxious to get across the water and fight. It was a sobering sight to see these young men preparing for the supreme sacrifice, yet your blood tingled at the sterling and grand patriotism and love for country they displayed. You involuntarily found yourself saying: "God bless and protect them."

Mr. Fitzgerald also visited the aviation camps of the British at Toronto, the largest on the continent, and he spoke interestingly of the flocks of airplanes to be seen at one time in the sky, scurrying hither and thither and in and out of the clouds, engaging in all sorts of aerial manoeuvres. Squadrons of 10 or more machines were common sights, he said, and one almost fancied they were flocks of gulls, so graceful become the birdmen in their flights.

Business conditions in the east are splendid, according to Mr. Fitzgerald, and from the eastern line of the Dakotas eastward the crops are excellent, this being particularly the case in Canada.—The Butte Miner, Montana.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH NEWS

Sermon Yesterday Was Based on Food Conservation

At the morning service yesterday Rev. Mr. Rowand spoke on Food Conservation and pointed out that wastefulness not only lessened supplies but damaged character. This campaign would be of great educational value. Hitherto the great majority of people paid no attention to proportions or waste in setting food on the table, following only, under the pressure of necessity, a sort of blind instinct. Hereafter there will be more habitual prudence and intelligent thrift, which would be a signal gain, and would tend to balance the account between the goods and ills of war.

The Young Ladies' Mission Band will meet for sewing on Tuesday at 3 p.m.

Prayer meeting will be held on Wednesday at 8 p.m. These are serious times and many are turning to God. The prayer service ought to be more interesting.

The Red Cross Society will meet on Thursday from 3 to 5 p.m. for receiving and giving out work.

The Sunday School will hold a rally service in the church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The church will be specially decorated for the occasion and a special order of worship will be followed.

Next Sunday, the pastor, Mr. Rowand, conducts anniversary services at Garden Hill, and the Rev. Dr. Lee, of Millbrook, will preach in this church.

Mr. Rowand will esteem it a personal favour to be notified of any opportunity to render any desired or needed ministry in case of illness or otherwise, anywhere, any time. He will count it a privilege to talk at any time with anyone about the Christian life and church membership.

Pte. Geo. Lilly Tells An Exciting Story Of An Interrupted Breakfast

Well Known Local Boxer Who Went Overseas With the 93rd Battalion Meets His Old Time Adversary of Many a Friendly Bout in Blighty.

BOTH WERE WOUNDED

During the time that the 93rd Battalion was in training in Peterborough, Ptes. Geo. Lilly and Pte Simson, two members of the Battalion, were frequently adversaries in friendly boxing bouts at the various smokers and concerts held. Now, the two both wounded and invalided from France, have met in Blighty. Pte. Lilly tells the story in the following letter to the Examiner. The enclosed photograph is reproduced to-day.

August 28, 1917.

Pte. G. W. Lilly. 196398, 4th Battalion, Woodcote Park Convalescent Camp, Epson, Surrey, G. Div., Hut 21.

Dear Sir,—Enclosed you will find a photograph of Lilly and Simson of the 93rd. I suppose the boys will remember the little bouts we used to have, but by the looks of us both we have had a much bigger bout. I met him here at Epson, his arm in a sling, and the wound on his face is still noticeable, but he is like myself, we keep smiling. I hop about alright. I got Blighty all at once. I made a fire in a shell hole, and was preparing a meal for the officers at 4 o'clock a.m., everything went well till the next meal, which I was supposed to get ready at 10 a.m. I had the bacon and eggs and porridge and tea all in good shape. I served one breakfast and then I left in a hurry. I got two wounds and fractured left knee and a piece of shrapnel in the right thigh and a piece just below the belt, and a wound in both arms, not counting the shock. This was on the fifth of May, 1917. I went up to meet the boys coming from the front-line trenches. They were telling me I had a bomb-proof job, but they found out as soon as I did about bomb proof; the job might have been, but I was not. I was in bed nine weeks. But, I am pleased to say, on the mend. We get all we want to eat here. I met Sergt. Lewington, and Capt. Watley and Ptes. Emery and Taylor and Pte. Moore and a whole lot of the 93rd at Epson Camp. We don't stop long in one place.

Before I close I should like to say a few words about my old friend, E. Abraham. I hear he is to have the M. M. Good luck to him, for I am one who knows he deserved it. He is a brick.

Hoping this will find you all in the best of health. I am,

Yours sincerely,

PTE. G. W. LILLY.

Keep smiling.

P. S.—Send out another in my place. Keep the pot a-boiling and keep them on the run.

Cut of One Cent A Pound in Price Of Sugar Probable

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Reduction of sugar prices about one cent per pound apparently was assured when beet sugar producers agreed with the food administration to sell to wholesalers at seaboard at refining points for 7 1-4 cents a pound maximum instead of the prevailing price of 8 4-10 cents. Retail prices ordinarily would be from half to one cents higher.

These prices will be effective in the western section of the country where sugar beets are raised, October 1st and in the eastern section about two weeks later.

Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Although the high prices of commodities that cater into foodstuffs have been considerably reduced there are certain quarters in which no benefit has been felt.

The hotels and restaurants, instead of cutting down the prices of meals proportionately have actually raised them in some cases, and the same prices obtain on meatless days. The standard hotels that exist by the grace of the Government should be restrained from excessive charges for the protection of the public, and made subject to the Food Controller.

—Yours, etc., Gastronome.

Major Sutton Tells Of A Black Week In French Hospital

Peterborough Doctor Describes His Sensations When Effects of New German Gas Compound Became Apparent—An Intense Desire to Kill.

MAJOR N. H. SUTTON, M.B.

PATIENTS WONDERFUL

The following most interesting letter has been received by Mr. W. H. Dunsford, Manager of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, from Major (Dr.) N. H. Sutton of Peterborough:

No. B 2 Canadian Gen. Hos.,
B.E.F., France, Aug. 31, '17.

Dear Mr. Dunsford,—Since writing you last night, re your son's condition, I have been thinking you might be interested to hear some of my experiences in the work here, and perhaps, somewhat of how the various aspects of the war strike one, here in this comparatively quiet backwater, where we have only to deal with the repair of the human wastage of war.

I have been with this unit since early in May of this year, and, after putting in my first week as Registrar—Company Officer—or, as generally and unofficially termed, Adjutant of the Hospital, I was given charge of one of the special wards, that devoted to the surgical treatment of knees. If they were not such interesting things I should have got tired looking at them long since. But their uncertainty keeps them always interesting. The man in bed 8 may have wounds in his knee which seem exactly the same as, or worse than, those of his neighbour, in bed 9, but he may be well enough to send to "blighty," (magic word, which brings the smile that won't come off), while he of bed 9 may have to stay for weeks. Meanwhile the man in bed 7 may have done finely and be marked for "blighty," and then trouble start suddenly a few hours before the time of convoy, and last for days or weeks. It is about as uncertain as where a shell is going to light. But, as the other M. O's. teasingly say, "knee wounds don't kill." Certainly I have been running in luck, for I have only lost three patients in four months—all from general septicaemia; and only three amputations of which one of the deaths resulted. (I touched wood just there).

Wonderful Patients.

It is such a universal opinion in the Medical Service that the British "Tommy" is the most wonderful possible patient, that I don't need to remark upon it, much less to dilate upon it, for you have doubtless heard it ad nauseam. All the same it must be seen to be realized. Someway, I have always noticed that they like being in Canadian hospitals. They seem to like it with our neighbours, the U. S. A. unit, too. Our treatment of them is a bit more man to man than that of the general run of Imperial M. O's., and our discipline has the air of giving more latitude while being, as far as essentials at least, really quite as airtight. Our Sisters are, I think, really the cruz of the matter, however. They average higher than those of European services, as is to be expected from the much higher plane of the nursing profession in Canada. That is, they are a much evener lot. The best training schools across the channel, when they get good material, produce a trained nurse second to none. But there are a good many of the other kind, and all the varieties are in the war.

The state of affairs at the front makes a great difference to the patients. I remember one convoy which had got knocked over in a little brush somewhere when nothing much was accomplished, and they were the gloomiest lot. Their wounds didn't come along at all rapidly, and then something happened up the line. We had rumours of it during the day—a big success—but when the first 'bus load of sitting cases rolled up, we knew it. Knew it long before them came in sight, by the yells and songs drawing nearer around the hill. Nothing could keep those wounds from healing; and the other lads cheered up and began to mend also. The R. C. Padre was telling us one day, in great glee, of a letter he had had to censor that day, which had evidently been written by a man whose wound was not serious enough to merit a "blighty," and in which the man remarked: "Everything is fine, only this d— wound is getting well too quick." I got rather a start one day when I asked a man who had just arrived with a card marked G.S.W., Rt. Knee.

"Well, let's see this knee of yours."

"I can't, Sir."

"Why"

"It's up in Belgium, Sir."

Cheery and game to the core. Eh, what?

A Black Week.

Then there was my "black week." It is not pleasant to tell; but I must tell you. It began with this new Hun gas compound that is now well enough known since the papers have been discussing it. It didn't smell like anything they had used before. In fact it didn't smell like anything much. It was put over in a shell that broke rather than burst, and sounded much like a thud. And the men didn't all put on their masks, or put them on too late, or put them off too soon. We had the luck to get the greater part of the cases in this hospital area; but we didn' know that then; and for some days we got nothing else much. There was one terrible convoy. I watched it come in. I didn't get any in my ward, but I went around some of those that did. I won't attempt to describe it for the censor might not let too technical a description through, and it is too horrible any way.

That was the real start of my black week.

That evening when work was done I went out along the cliffs above the sea and fought it out alone. I know now why certain people in Bible times went out into the wilderness—alone. Did you ever imagine, or feel, a black rage that blotted out every other feeling and sense? To know nothing, think nothing, but an intense desire to kill, kill, kill. A desire so strong that the inability to gratify it amounted to a positive torture, while the chance to gratify it would have been the purest extatic delight? I stood quite still, I think, though I am not sure, for some two or three hours, and felt all that, while the sun sank lower and went to rest. Only one living thing came near—a weasel—that most perfect animal embodiment of implacable hate and cruelty, glided around me for some time.

Perhaps his coming served me well for I began slowly to win my fight and sanity returned. The weasel had disappeared and the sun was going down between huge banks of great black clouds; the whole sea was a mass of red—not fiery, but deep blood red. The most wonderfully coloured I have ever seen. The waves were rolling up on the flat rock shore some three hundred feet below but ever falling further backward with the receding tide. Were they a picture of all human effort? Did the high tides represent the high points of history; the succeeding civilizations of Egypt, Babylon, Nineveh, Tyre, Greece, Carthage, Rome, The Crusades, The Renaissance, Napoleon? Were these waves typical of the side movements for human good, which mark equally the high and low water periods of our race? Was our present civilization to go down in a sea of blood, even as I had just seen the sun go down?

War's Changes.

It took me a whole week and many miles of tramping before I could again say with Browning's superb confidence "God's in His heavens; all's well with the world." That was my "black week." Perhaps it does not interest you; I think it will. How many of us are interested in the same things, or to the same degree, as we were before the war? This might not have interested me before. Not many of the boys over here will go back unchanged. All have grown; most for the better; some for the worse. Those who remain will return to Canada. What then?

"A great deal depends on what Canada does in this matter of Conscription. If we are deserted by those at home, i.e., if you people at home can't get together and avoid the wasted time of an election (taking it for granted that it went against Laurierism, as anything else is unthinkable)—then beware. It would take a generation, and the exercise of marvelously wise statesmanship to repair the damage that would be done to Canada's national life. Why not grasp the nettle firmly? To uproot it now would not be so difficult or dangerous. Moreover, to be made to come, would be the salvation of those whom you think would most object. They would get a sane outlook of life, for the first time in their lives.

Meanwhile, long life, and the blessing of good management, to the Great War Veterans' Association. Its power is assured. May it be wisely used.

Yours,
H. H. SUTTON,
Major, C.A.M.C.

TIRED AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs Warren Randles, Bothesay, Kings County, N.B., "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter. So when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the results were most satisfactory. I feel fine now, and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

evidently satisfied with proposition. Necessary steps have been taken.

"Henry Neuman."

Of this message the committee has to say:

"Not so innocent and harmless as it looks, for what the message really means is this:

"Irish agree to proposition. The necessary steps have been taken."

The committee, of which Secretaries Lansing, Baker and Daniels are members, and George Creel, Chairman, has this to say concerning Holland:

"It has long been an open secret that Holland is merely a way-station for shipments of contraband into Germany. Here is official confirmation from the von Igle records which would seem to indicate a suspicious and confidential relation between the Holland Commission and the German diplomatic officials accredited to this country, or possibly a belief by the Germans that they could not successfully get the munitions to their own country. The message in code, with interlinear translation, is entered as 'A2493' and headed 'German Embassy, Washington D.C., April 6, 1916.' It runs as follows:

Telegram from Berlin by secret roundabout way for Carl Heysen:

"Consent said Holland three hundred thousand chests (cartridges) and two hundred tons powder. Please get in touch with Holland Commission."

James F. Archibald has covered many campaigns as a war correspondent for United States newspapers, and obtained unfavorable publicity when he was detained by British authorities while on his way to Europe from the United States. He was charged with carrying despatches to the Central powers, which were confiscated. Archibald was returned to the United States.

If Edwin Emerson is guilty of the charges of the department his activities may be traced, perhaps, to his feeling for his native country. He was born in Dresden, Saxony. He has avowed sympathies for the German cause. His father was a member of the German Diet. Viereck has travelled extensively in Germany. He lectured in the University of Berlin in 1911 as the first "exchange poet" on American poetry.

The charge against Judge Daniel Cohalan will come as a surprise to the anti-British Irishmen of New York city. Since the outbreak of war he has been prominent because of his utterances on the Irish question. He has been a Tammany leader and a Democratic politician for many years. He was elected to the Supreme Court Bench in 1911, and was returned by election in 1914 for the full term of fourteen years."

The Gaelic-American, of which John Devoy is editor, has been barred from the mails into Canada, and is on the list of publications the possession of which entails a heavy penalty. Through Judge Cohalan as Surrogate Judge is derived financial support in advertisements. It is extremely anti-British.

"It's confidence that does it."

Interesting Demonstration This Week

Making of War Bread and Canning Will Be Illustrated

A good deal of interest is already being evidenced by the women of the city in the demonstration to be given in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, under the auspices of the Women's Committee of the Conservation Department.

Miss Marjorie Williams of Markham, who is considered one of the very best demonstrators in Canada, will demonstrate on Tuesday afternoon the canning of vegetables—beets, carrots, corn, tomatoes and cauliflower, and on Wednesday afternoon the making of War Breads.

The demonstration will be followed by a practical talk on these subjects and Miss Williams will answer any questions.

The demonstration will begin promptly at 2.30 p.m., and each lady will be asked to contribute 5c. to ward defraying incidental expenses.

A WRIST WATCH FOR CAPT. BARNES

Is Leaving to Go Into Military Training On Saturday

Mr. B. L. Barnes, of the Canadian General Electric Company's Engineering Department, is now Capt. B. L. Barnes, of the United States Army. Capt. Barnes leaves on Saturday for the officers' reserve corps training camp at Belvoir, Virginia. During the five years he has been in Peterborough, he has made a host of friends, who wish him every success in his military career. On Saturday his associates in the C.G.E. presented him with a very handsome wrist watch as a slight token of their esteem.

DR. GOLDSMITH'S HOUSE DAMAGED BY YOUNG VANDALS

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—Six young sters, ranging in age from nine to thirteen years, were arrested Saturday by Acting Detectives Koster and Strahme, of No. 2 Division, charged with having broken into the home of Lieut.-Col. Dr. Perry Goldsmith, formerly of Peterborough, at 84 Carlton Street last week, where, it is alleged, they did over a $1,000 worth of damage.

Owners Overseas.

For some time Dr. and Mrs. Goldsmith have been overseas, and the home has been unoccupied. In Dr. Goldsmith's absence the police do not know whether anything has been stolen from the residence. In two visits to the home, on Thursday and Friday of last week, however, the police say the lads occasioned a great deal more loss to the doctor than if they had entered with the intention of thieving, for they say an expensive piano is almost ruined, a lot of valuable surgical instruments destroyed, a big clock smashed, and the fixtures and furnishings all through the home greatly damaged.

All the boys will appear in the Juvenile Court to-day.

BOWLING

By next week the new Five-pin League to be played at the Water street alleys will be in full swing. Up to Saturday night there were eight teams entered in the League. The teams and their captains are:

West Ends—N. Routley, captain.
Printers—E. Smith, captain.
South Ends—T. Beesette captain.
Eurekas—W. Gordon, captain.
Eko Club—"Hook" Early, captain.
Business Men—N. Walton, captain.
Grocers—R. Ross captain.
Hamilton's Foundry—A. Ross, captain.

A meeting of the team captains and all interested is called for Wednesday night, when matters concerning the League will be decided upon.

Committed For Trial On Charge Of Issuing Cheque Without Funds In Bank

A. E. Stevens was committed to trial this morning by Magistrate Dumble before whom he appeared on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences by issuing a cheque for $10.00 on the Bank of Montreal without having funds to cover it.

About 12:25 on Saturday afternoon the accused bought a pair of 75-cent socks at the Oak Hall store and tendered the cheque which was accepted and $9.25 given in change. About one o'clock Mr. M. J. Maher presented it to the bank but it was refused because Stevens had no account there.

Mr. Ed. Riley, a clerk at the Oak Hall store, said he had met Stevens about ten days before and understood from him that he was employed with the Prudential Insurance Co. He believed the cheque was good and did not hesitate to accept it.

Mr. Horace Walkey, assistant accountant, and Mr. C. C. Abbott, gave evidence of the refusal of the cheque, but added that an account had been opened this morning to the credit of A. E. Stevens by John Revoy, who as a witness for the defense asserted that he had promised the accused last Wednesday to deposit a sum of money to the credit of Stevens for his use on Saturday. Revoy went to the Lindsay Fair on Friday and stayed there two days instead of one returning on Saturday night. His wife, who is a sister of Stevens, asked him on his return why he hadn't fulfilled his promise and told him that Stevens had been arrested at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Revoy stated that he made the promised deposit this morning at 10 o'clock. Stevens had told him that he would need the money on Saturday to pay for two weeks' board at Mrs. Baker's on Aylmer street. Revoy assumed that the sum required would be $10.00, at the rate of $5.00 a week, which he had previously paid Revoy when boarding with him.

Mr. O'Brien, of Gordon and Widdifield, who appeared for the defense, neither pleaded nor elected at the outset, and pointed out at the close of the hearing that Stevens had expected when he presented the cheque at the Oak Hall store that there would be sufficient funds in the Bank to pay it. Magistrate Dumble said he was willing to give the prisoner the benefit of a doubt, but Chief Thompson intimated that he held several of Stevens' cheques. Mr. O'Brien objected that they had not been properly identified and submitted to the court, but Chief Thompson rejoined that the defense had not elected for trial. Influenced by the corroborative feature of the additional cheques the Magistrate committed him to trial at the next sessions, granting bail in the meantime.

Prices To Be Fixed

(Canadian Press Despatch).

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—Food Controller Hanna stated in an interview to-day that the prices of wheat, flour, bread and potatoes in Canada would be fixed in a short time, but just when the announcement would be made he couldn't say.

Coal Is Available

MONTREAL, Sept. 24.—Canadians will not have to go without coal actually needed this winter, yet there will be no surplus, and the supply must be carefully conserved to make it go around, so states Mr. Thomas Britt, general fuel agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, after having just returned from conferences in the United States with Government officials there, as well as with Canadian and American railway and steamship officials and coal operators.

HOLLAND REACHES AGREEMENT

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—Holland has reached an agreement with Great Britain regarding the supply of coal, according to the Handelsblad. The newspaper believes the agreement was reached under certain conditions, the most important of which is that Dutch tonnage shall be placed at the disposal of the Belgian Relief Committee.

Effort To Secure Release of Bandits

KINGSTON, Sept. 24.—An endeavour is being made to have Kelly and Jones, two of the Western desperadoes in the Portsmouth Penitentiary, released and deported to the United States, their former home. There is not much chance of it being brought about. Although giving the names of Kelly and Jones, they also went under the name of Mecum Brothers, and it is stated that they have a well-to-do brother living in the Southern States, who is putting up a lot of money to secure their release. The prisoners were brought down from Stoney Mountain Penitentiary some years ago and created quite a sensation by the part they took in a daring daylight escape from the penitentiary at Portsmouth. For their part in the escape, long terms were added to their already severe sentence for crime in the West.

MILITARY NEWS

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Of the changes which have taken place in connection with the Canadian forces overseas, probably none have been more welcome to the men themselves than the reorganization of the army on a territorial basis. The system now in operation insures that men are grouped together in regiments according to localities from which they come. That is to say, that now, when a man joins in Canada from Western Ontario, he goes to one of the battalions of say, the Western Ontario Regiment in England. From there he goes to a battalion of Western Ontario in France. When he has been wounded and is again fit for service, he automatically goes back to his regimental depot and so back to France. This system has many advantages. Previously the army was run on the battalion system and the fact that a man enlisted in Vancouver for instance, was no assurance that he would fight with his comrades from British Columbia. A British Columbian might find himself consigned to a French-Canadian battalion in England and fight with a Nova Scotia battalion in France. On the other hand a central Ontario man would possibly find himself with a western battalion.

MORE CANADIANS GAZETTED.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Gazette to-day contains the names of three hundred Canadians granted commissions in infantry. Under General Turner's regulations, all who have seen a year's service in France and received training in the Canadian Officers' School at Bexhill. Another two hundred are returning from France this month for commissions.

Prices Cut In Half

PARIS, Sept. 24.—The first supply of "national boots" will be on sale throughout France in the first week of October. All retails, to whom a fair rate of profit will be assured, must bind themselves not to charge more than the fixed official price. Half a million pairs of boots will be ready by November. The price of men's shoes will be 28 francs ($5.60), while boots for women will bring 23 francs ($4.60). These prices are almost half those now charged.

WEEKLY STOCK MARKET LETTER

Severe Drop at the Opening of the Week—Bull Movement Not Looked For

After a prolonged period of listlessness and weakness in which security prices sank to the lowest levels for some years, the market seems to have regained its bearings. Unthinking liquidation and forcing down of prices has been checked and a returning confidence in the inherent stability of American industry has given a decided turn to the trend of prices.

The severe drop on Monday put the finishing touches on a weak market, long the victim of unfavourable sentiment due to uncertainties in Washington, chaotic conditions in Russia and tight money. Tuesday, brought a listless churning market with no pronounced tendency in which the net results of the day were about equally divided between gains and losses.

Abrupt Change.

The abrupt change came on Wednesday, the Banking interests having concluded that matters had reached the danger point, and that even in the face of the serious influence of war, securities were selling at low enough prices to warrant their freer use as collateral for loans began concerted action to stabilize and ease the money situation. This fact proved a powerful stimulus to sentiment, and, in conjunction with more favourable news from Russia and a growing belief on the part of these "in the know" that the government price-fixing programme would be adjusted in a satisfactory manner, offered a basis for the turning of the tide and the session closed after an active day with a strong undertone and net gains of from one to five points all along the line. Continued strength and favourable sentiment brought further gains on Thursday, and with the added stimulus of the government's announcement of the reasonable copper price of 25 1-2 cents a pound, the undertone has remained strong.

NEW LOAN.

As the moment approaches for the floating of the new Liberty loan sentiment is becoming more wholesome. The action of the United States Steel Corporation in voluntarily granting ten per cent. increase in wages seems a pertinent indication of confidence in higher circles. Whether rightly or wrongly, the intangible feeling in the atmosphere that peace, on the ground of European exhaustion is not too remote a possibility, has been a marked influence. The very low prices which the government has set for copper, wheat and coal, indicate a disposition on the part of Washington to be reasonable in such matters.

With these things in mind it is to be expected that in the face of the anticipated encouragement on the part of the government in order to facilitate matters that the firm undertone already established and the increasing reasonableness of sentiment, will furnish [illegible] for a time for further improvements. An old fashioned bull movement is not to be expected but in spite of any declines which may result from technical conditions and news influence we look for an active market with a strong tone and good rallying power and with its general tendency towards better prices.

A rather critical old critic once said to a struggling author: Have you ever written anything that will live after you are gone?

Madame replied the author, politely, what I am trying to do is to write something that will enable me to live while I am [illegible]

Auto Racer Killed

WINDSOR, Sept. 24.—George H. Fullerton, aged 40, of Detroit, was instantly killed when the steering gear of his racing auto gave way while he was "working out" at the Windsor race track Saturday afternoon. Fullerton had entered a Ford machine at the Windsor Fair auto races this week, and with a mechanician had made about 20 miles at high speed on the oval. Then he stopped in front of the grand stand and let his assistant out of the car, intending to try a few fast miles alone. Rounding the turn in the back stretch, Fullerton's machine was seen to suddenly swerve to one side, then dash diagonally across the dirt track and crash into the wooden fence. The man was practically decapitated. His little daughter, 13 years old, seated in the stand, witnessed the tragedy. Fullerton was a widower, his wife having died only re[illegible]. He was a Shriner and well-known to members of Mecca Temple, London.

Germans Are Short Of Tires For Motors

With the British Armies in France Sept. 24.—A German officer captured together with the 3,200 prisoners taken by the British in the past few days, said that the Germans had been forced to reduce greatly the number of their light motor cars, used in recent operations, because it was virtually impossible to obtain tires. According to this officer the German have no rubber whatever for tires for their lorries. He was much impressed with the morale and fine condition of the men behind the British lines and the operations in general being carried on in the back areas. He could not comprehend why it was that the allies should not make peace, when Germany was ready to give up all the territory she had conquered.

"Everybody in Germany," said the officer, "dreads the thoughts of another Winter campaign."

He recognized that the submarines had failed to accomplish what had been promised the German people by the higher command.

MEMORIAL SERVICE WAS HELD

Impressive Service at the Park St. Baptist Church

A most impressive service was held at the Park street Baptist church yesterday morning in the form of a memorial service for Pte. J. Jinks and Peace, former members of the Park street congregation, who have made the supreme sacrifice. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dugald Brown, who referred to the good qualities of the men who had given up their lives for others in France. The music by the choir was of an appropriate nature, including the anthem, "Soldiers of Christ Arise." The reading of the honour roll of the church was another feature of the services.

Collection Begins To-night By K. of C. To Aid Chaplains

Arrangements were completed yesterday afternoon for the canvas of the Catholic citizens of Peterborough this week for contributions to the fund to provide huts for religious services at the front. The city has been divided into twenty-four districts, to which teams composed of members of the Knights of Columbus have been allotted to visit the Catholic homes, commencing to-night. The work will be continued throughout the week, by which time it is expected that the entire city will be thoroughly covered.

This is a Dominion wide appeal, for which the Knights of Columbus in Ontario have selected the present week. Collections are being taken up in every diocese of the province and the country parishes will be given a chance to contribute. An effort will be made to visit the Otonabee people during the week, and it is expected that the response from this district will be a generous one.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien assisted the pastor of the Sacred Heart yesterday in the absence of a curate, who, on account of the scarcity of priests, has not yet been appointed, and preliminary to his sermon made a strong plea in behalf of the present fund.

Since the advances this year the newly recovered ground has been swept bare of buildings that might have been used for the celebration of the mass and other religious exercises. In the more established sections the quarters of other denominations and the Y.M.C.A. had been at their disposal, and had been gratefully used. Rev. Father Cote had recently wrote that his duties took him to the front line where it was essential that every facility should be afforded for the spiritual welfare of the men.

The new fund will provide hits that will be used for the religious accommodation of Catholic soldiers, but otherwise will be open to all the troops.

PICKPOCKETS AT LINDSAY FAIR

LINDSAY, Sept. 24.—The pickpockets following up the fall fairs were not all bagged by the Peterborough police.

A number of the light fingered individuals plied their vocation at Lindsay fair on Friday, but their pickings were small.

A Wellington street resident reported to the Post that he had been touched for a five-spot, but is at a loss to know just how the crook extracted it from his pocket.

During the motor cycle races a visitor who was in the crowd at the gate leading to the track had his wife's purse taken from his pocket. It contained $13.00 and two railway tickets.

A visitor reported to Chief Shore that he had been "touched" for $15. The money was resting in a slash pocket in his pants and the Chief is of the opinion that it was accidently lost.

Union Cabinet Is Still A Possibility

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

WINNIPEG, Sept. 24.—Repeated assertions that union government for Canada will yet be formed was confirmed here to-day when it became known that Premier Sifton, of Alberta, after spending last week here "on private business" went back to Ottawa instead of proceeding to Edmonton with a new list of Cabinet timber for Premier Borden to look over. Rumour is strengthened by the revival of another rumour that Hon. Edward Brown, after travelling some time in Eastern Canada and states, has also reached Ottawa. Belief is now prevalent that Premier Borden in a few days will announce the formation of a union government, "but" Winnipeg political experts say "not the kind we desired." In explanation of this, Western Canadian Liberals will not be as adequately represented as it has been hoped, but that, fearing to "split the vote," Premier Borden will bring into the Cabinet few men who heretofore have been Liberals more or less independent in general policy. The election date is understood here to be December 3rd.

Mother Hangs Babes and Self

In Order That They Might be a Comfort to the Father.

DETROIT, Sept. 24.—"Take care of the boys; I am leaving you now, so you can be happy," wrote Mrs. Julia Mikola, 28 years old, 2018 St. Aubin Avenue, Hamtramck, in a letter in Hungarian to her husband, and hanged herself and her three little daughters about noon Saturday. The children were Irene, 5 years old; Olga, 3 years old, and Yolanda, 1 1-2 years old.

Her husband, John Mikola, a moulder at the Enterprise Foundry Company's plant, 1127-57 East Warren Avenue, admitted to Chief of Police Bernard Whelan, who asked him if he knew how his wife received the blackened eye she had when she was found hanging from the brass chain of an electric fixture in the middle bedroom of their apartment, that he had struck her last Monday morning.

Death may have come quickly to the mother who, after tying a slip-knot around her neck with a new pair of shoelaces and fastening them securely to the fixture on which a chandelier had not yet been hung, stepped off a chair. Two of the children were found hanging from hooks in clothes closets and one from the head of a bed, with loose loops of cloth, a towel and a piece of rope about their necks, respectively.

The house was spotlessly clean, the breakfast dishes washed and placed away, all the drawers in the bedroom dressers full of immaculate clean linen and clothing, and on the walls were religious pictures.

Preliminary Estimate Of Grain Crop Yields Throughout Canada

Returns Are Higher in a Number of Instances—Grain Yields of the Prairie Provinces—Condition of Field Crops

POTATOES A FAIR CROP

OTTAWA, Sept. 25.—The Census and Statistics Office has issued a preliminary estimate of the production in Canada of the principal grain crops (wheat, oats, rye, barley and flaxseed), for 1917, as well as a statement of the condition of all field crops, as reported by crops correspondents at the end of August. For Quebec, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia the areas under field crops in 1917, used as a basis for the estimates of production, have been compiled from returns collected from individual farmers under arrangements carried out jointly by the Census and Statistics Office and the Provincial Departments of Agriculture.

Total Yields of Grain Crops, 1917

The preliminary estimate of this year's wheat crop in Canada is for a total of 249,164,700 bushels from 14,735,800 acres, an average yield per acre of 16.88 bushels, as compared with seventeen bushels in 1916, and 29 bushels in 1915. The estimated yield of wheat in 1916 is 299,313,000 bushels from 13,448,250 acres, so that the estimated total for 1917 represents an increase of 19,851,700 bushels, or 8 p.c. The total yield of oats in 1917 is estimated at 399,843,000 bushels from 12,052,000 acres harvested, as compared with 365,553,000 bushels from 10,178,4000 acres harvested in 1916. For the prairie provinces it has been necessary to deduct from the sown areas percentages of 10 in Manitoba and 17 in Saskatchewan and Alberta for crops not ripened into grain. The yield per acre on the harvested area is therefore for all Canada 33.18 bushels, as compared with 35.91 bushels in 1916, and 45.84 bushels in 1915. For rye the estimate is 4,194,950 bushels from 211,870 acres, as compared with 2,967,400 bushels from 148,620 acres in 1916, the yields per acre being nearly 20 bushels in both years. Barley yields 59,318,400 bushels from 2,592,200 acres, as against 42,647,000 bushels from 1,703,700 acres in 1916, the yields per acre being 24.80 and 25 bushels respectively. The total yield of flaxseed is placed at 10,067,500 bushels from 1,242,000 acres, as compared with 7,316,300 bushels from 622,000 harvested acres in 1916, the average yields per acre being 8.11 bushels in 1917, and 11.3-4 bushels in 1916.

Grain Yields of the Prairie Provinces.

The estimated total production of wheat in the three Prairie Provinces (Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta) is 225,778,700 bushels from 13,619,370 acres, as compared with 208,846,000 bushels from 12,441,350 acres in 1916. In Manitoba the total yield of wheat for 1917 is 41,842,200 bushels, as compared with 27,943,000 bushels in 1916, in Saskatchewan 130,366,000 bushels as against 131,765,000 bushels and in Alberta 53,780,500 bushels against 49,138,000 bushels. Oats yield 234,199,000 bushels in the three prairie provinces as compared with 269,258,000 bushels in 1916, barley 43,168,400 bushels against 33,296,000 bushels, rye, 2,408,850 bushels against 1,636,000 bushels and flaxseed 9,951,500 bushels as against 7,269,000 bushels.

Condition of Field Crops.

At the end of August the condition of field crops for Canada, expressed in percentage of a standard representing a full crop was as follows: Spring wheat 73, oats 76, barley 75, rye 82, peas 76, beans 81, buckwheat 85, mixed grains 88, flax 63, corn for husking 73, potatoes 77, turnips 84, mangolds etc. 83, alfalfa 87, corn for fodder 81, sugar beets 89, pasture 87, and hay and clover 95. The Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture telegraphed September 11 that wheat cutting was completed and that some oats were still too green and were ripening slowly. Threshing had commenced, and wheat was turning out a good sample, with the yield higher than was expected. Labour was scarce and prices were high. Frost, in some parts, would injure late crops. Potatoes were a fair crop. The Alberta Department telegraphed September 8 that frosts had done more or less damage to vegetables, but that all grain except late barley and oats had been saved.

PRIVATE KILLS WOMAN AND CUTS OWN THROAT

Double Tragedy at New Britain, Conn., the Result of an Illicit Love Affair.

NEW PRITAIN, Conn. — Mrs. Anna Tobin, 25 years old, of this city, was murdered and William J. Wise, a private in the quartermaster's department at Fort Slocum, is charged with the crime. Screams attracted the police to the spot to find the woman lying dead with her throat cut and nearby Wise, with a deep cut in the throat. Nearby was a razor. Wise is expected to recover.

The woman's husband, John L. Tobin, was found at home and taken into custody, but was later released.

The police say letters in their possession exchanged between Mrs. Tobin and Wise refer to their mutual love.

Wise is about 25 years old and before enlistment in the regular army

Hanna Says He's Waiting Until Hoover Is Ready To Act

Prices On Food Stuff to Be Fixed the Controller Announces —Many Difficulties in the Way But Improvement is Coming He Says.

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—Canada's Food Controller was very genial today—just as though he had all the food prices under control. He was making splendid headway, though, he stated in an interview with a press representative and would have his hands on Canada's food production as soon as Mr. Hoover, Federal Food Controller of the United States, with whom he was co-operating as a national necessity, was ready to go ahead and name the figures which shall 'fix' the prices for the country's most staple food products.

"How do you fix prices?" Mr. Hanna was asked, and he replied vigorously.

"By all the laws that govern, where the people who control the surplus of any commodity on any market, if they refuse to pay any more than they like they fix that price good back to the producer no matter how far back he is."

"Just what does that mean?" The newspaperman queried, seeking amplification of this economic principle.

HOW ENGLAND DOES IT.

"Well, it's been worked out in Great Britain," Mr. Hanna replied, happily. "Cheese and meat and several other commodities go that way in England now. The most efficient control that could be put on any article of food is for the buyer of the market surplus to fix his own price. Great Britain is the buyer of surplus of meat and cheese and has accordingly stated how much she will pay. That is the most effective food control there is."

"How about milk to-day?" pursued the reporter.

Here the Food Controller felt a pinch. It seemed an unfair demand to ask about controlling the price of milk so soon.

"Take the milk situation, then," returned Mr. Hanna. "The most efficient committee on earth," he began, "could not justifiably dispose of the question of fixing the price of milk inside of six weeks. In justice to all parties concerned—the public, the dairyman, the farmers and the various industries connected with the industry, no actual benefit could be got fairly without considerable time elapsing."

HASN'T HAD MUCH TIME.

Here Mr. Hanna reminded his interviewer that the Food Controller's Department was only a three-months old baby and had yet to grow and be developed. He was able to say with pride, though, that his assistants were men of the highest rank in their line and deserved credit for their work.

"Have you the power alone to fix prices?" the reporter asked.

"Yes," replied Mr. Hanna, adding later: Mind you, Mr. Hoover hasn't that power." He went on to explain that there was a difference in the system of control which Canada and the United States intended to exercise over their food products. In the United States they would do all the purchasing themselves at their own prices as fixed by the Federal Food Controller. In Canada the method would be to name the figures which would represent the demand price that must not be exceeded by the producer. In the United States no one will be able to prevent John Smith from asking whatever he pleases for his commodity, whether there be a price fixed for it or not, but in Canada the actual price will be fixed, and John Smith will be amenable to certain statutory conditions which will be designed to prevent overcharging.

HELD BACK BY HOOVER.

In the United States, Mr. Hanna stated, many of the newspapers made their Food Controller the subject of attack, as was the case in Canada. It was impossible to please everybody, though. One of the New York papers, Mr. Hanna said, made the statement that Hoover was the only man in the United States who didn't know that food prices had gone up all along the line.

"Have prices gone up?" asked the newspaper man.

"Certainly they have gone up," roared Mr. Hanna, with every apparent indignation. "But what are you [illegible] Mr. Hoover's hard time."

"When will you be ready?"

"It's impossible to say when. We must work in conjunction with Mr. Hoover's department. It wouldn't do to have one price on this side of the line and another across the line, you know."

"What has Mr. Hoover done?"

"If you have noticed—have you?—he hasn't fixed any prices yet—not a single one."

"So you are waiting for him?"

"We must."

SILENT ON THE CONFERENCE

"What was the conference you just had with Mr. Hoover about?"

"Oh, there was nothing for publication. It would no do to give it out. It was about the sugar supply."

"How soon will you be able to fix any prices?" Mr. Hanna was asked again.

"The wheat price is fixed, you know, $2.21."

"What good is that to the consumer."

"Well, if wheat is fixed, then we can get at bread."

"That's it, bread. How and when will the step be taken that will enable a housekeeper to say, 'I pay ten cents for my bread'?"

Mr. Hanna laughed and chuckled. "My good fellow, if you knew the difficulties in the way of this kind of work you wouldn't wonder. Take, for instance, that suggestion about increasing the wheat extraction for flour, to make whole wheat bread. Why, when we went into that we found that to do such a thing would turn the whole system of the wheat trade topsy-turvy. At first, I confess, I was all wrong on that point but now I can see what a mess it would make out of the whole industry and where it would be no good. It took time to find out that it would not do to use up bran for bread. It would not pay for one thing, and so on."

HOW MANY COMMODITIES.

"How many commodities are you dealing with at present?"

"We are taking up as many as we safely can. Everything is under observation, and my splendid staff is rendering splendid service."

"Do you think the Government will accept your scheme or policy or price fixing?"

"I have absolutely a free hand. There has been no suggestion of interference from anybody—absolutely nothing of the kind. There is nothing in the way of the department. We are doing our best—working and not talking."

The newspaperman then asked Mr. Hanna if any large corporation or vested interest had made any attempt to influence his actions in any way.

"Oh—get out," he replied quickly and warmly, adding cogently: "What do you think they are? Do you think people have no sense?"

WILL NOT FIX BACON PRICE

When the Food Controller had recovered from the shock of this query he was asked whether he was arranging to control the price of bacon.

"They are taking care of that in the surplus market—Great Britain—dealing with any commodity." It would not be necessary, therefore, to fix a price for bacon in Canada, Mr. Hanna intimated, but whatever was done in the United States would be followed here.

With a moderately heavy run of cattle as compared with the exceptionally heavy run a week ago, a good active trade was induced at the opening of the market. Later on the demand slackened up considerably, and at the close the market was slow, with a good few loads unsold. In the early trading a few loads of good to choice butcher steers and heifers sold firm and 15c. to 25c. higher than last week's opening. A load of extra choice heavy steers, bought for export, topped the market at $13. The percentage of choice quality was, however, small, and the bulk of the day's offerings only sold about steady.

Lambs were 25c. easier.
Calves steady.

THOUGHT CHILD WAS DYING

"Cholera Infantum"
DR. FOWLER'S
Extract of Wild Strawberry Cured Her

Mothers should look well after their children during the hot summer months, as this is the time of the year this trouble is most prevalent. It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, vomiting and purging set in, and the child rapidly loses flesh, and becomes weak, prostrated and languid. writes: "I can recommend, most highly, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. A friend of mine whose little daughter was ill with cholera infantum was given up by the doctors. The little one's mother asked me to come in and see the child. I told her I had a bottle of Dr. Fowler's" and asked her if she would try it. When the bottle was half used the child was well. This cure was a miraculous one, for I thought the child was dying at the time."

There is nothing can take the place of Dr. Fowler's.

There is nothing just as good.

Soldiers' Night Court For Uncle Samuel's Troops

By Herbert Corety.

AMERICAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS.—There was a tap on the door. The major sighed—almost imperceptibly, but still a sigh. It was half-past nine o'clock at night and he had been on the go since half-past five o'clock in the morning. An officer in the American army earns his pay.

"Come in," said the major.

The door opened. There was a stage wait while the man outside prepared his entrance. Then he fairly burst through the opening. Two right turns, a brisk salute, and he stood at attention before the major's desk. An old army man, evidently. A perfect soldier, plus the faults that perfect soldiers have. Vide Mulvaney Ortheris, et al.

"What's this I hear about you?" asked the major.

MULVANEY'S DEFENSE.

"Well, sor I have just this to say in me defense," came in a lovely brogue. "I was guilty, sor. But if you'll let me go this time I'll throw meself in the canal before I'll let you catch me in such a state again."

The major grinned a little. He could not help it. Then he wrote something on the charge sheet and handed it to the old army man.

"Read that," said he, "and tell me if I'm too hard on you."

A look of woe spread over the face of the culprit, but he saluted bravely and handed that paper back.

"Whatever the major says is right," was his conclusion. "I'm in his hands."

He saluted.

"Report to me every day," said the major. "You may go."

Later we decided it had been a cruel and unusual punishment upon a man with a thirst that dates back to Mindanao stationed in a land flowing with wine and brandy such as this land of France. The major had taken one-half of his pay for three months—to be despoiled to his credit and be paid to him with accrued interest at the expiration of his enlistment. That is a favorite punishment in the army for these old chaps whose only fault comes on pay-day.

The next man did not get off so well.

WHEN A SOLDIER LIES.

"Why did you lie to me?" asked the major.

For he had. He had got drunk and lied about it and lied about the lying and then lied again—a shotgun lie, loaded to the muzzle, designed to cover the whole field. He will put in the next month in clink, on the army plan. That means that he will do all the drills and all the marches and his tour of guard duty and everything else, and when he has absolutely nothing else to do he will go to the guardhouse. Joy will be practically absent from his life for the next thirty days. It is not probable that he will lie again.

There were walls outside. An old woman complained that a soldier had stolen her apples. They will steal apples, some of them. In Canada or the United States apple stealing is a very venial sin. The boy who has never swiped apples or watermelon has been cheated of the most golden hours of youth. In France the very apples are numbered. The peasants live too near the border of under-feeding not to resist a raid upon their trees. The boys have merely not understood. Conditions are different here.

"Tell her to bring the boy here. She says she knows him," said the major. "We'll see what we can do."

Then he turned to us.

"If she cries, the chances are he will cry right along with her," said he. "Their hearts are boys' hearts—big and soft. He will want to pay for them, and then I will order him to do sentry under the tree for a day or two, just to impress on him that he must not break rules. For the next week or so he will be a voluntary slave for the old woman while he tries to square himself."

THE STORY OF A ROGUE

That was a fair sample of the major's nightly court. Sometimes days went by without a complaint. The men are behaving like gentlemen. In a country in which every one drinks as a matter of course, and where the wine and brandy are unspeakably cheap by Canadian or United States standards, there is practically no drunkenness. One never hears of friction between the soldiers and the peasants. The latter are enthusiastic in their assertion that the conduct of the men is "tres correct."

Now and then a bad egg is found. Soldiering is a man's game, and the bad egg is not a man, and never will be, unless the army makes him one. He wants to get out on any terms. A dishonorable discharge has no terrors for him. He disobeys orders, talks back to his officers, does anything he can to obtain the desired ticket home. In most cases he merely walks into trouble without walking out of the army. There was the case of Hanks—which isn't his name.

"A rogue," said the major. "A thorough rogue. He was married two days before we sailed; he has been absent without leave; he has been drunk; he has forged my name to a pass; he has refused to obey orders.

"I'm going to get out of here," he told me. 'I'm going home.'

"Is he," I asked.

"Not if I know it," was the reply. "I'll make him into an imitation of a man if there is any material there to hold varnish. And if I cannot I shall write to his father and tell him the truth. I'll not have any one say that 'the army spoiled him.' If anything can save him the army will."

CHILDREN MUST BE PROTECTED

The children must be safeguarded, for, if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption. Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

FOOD COMBINATIONS

Numerous palatable combinations of two or more food materials which can be prepared by the housewife with but little trouble in themselves will supply the major part of a well-chosen meal. Such combinations should be used very frequently to simplify and make more economical the serving of a rational diet for the family, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Combining leftovers into a palatable dish, for example, effects a considerable saving in material, in fuel, and in the labour of preparing meals and of cleaning cooking utensils and dishes. Good use thus is made of food which might otherwise be wasted, when one dish is prepared, cooked and handled, instead of several.

The character of any one of the daily meals should be determined by that of the other meals that are served. A light breakfast and a light supper or luncheon, for instance, usually makes desirable a heavier dinner. In some families the preference may be for a hearty breakfast and dinner and a very light supper, and so on through a considerable range of individual tastes. If the meal is to be a light one, the combination dish together with the bread and butter, which usually accompany American meals, may be all that is wished. If the combination dish forms the central part of a heartier meal, it is in accordance with our usual food customs to serve with it, in addition to bread and butter, such foods as garden vegetables, fruits (fresh or cooked,) and simple desserts. Good planning necessities in the principal meals of the day such variety as has been suggested, in order that all the varied nutritive substance which the body requires may be supplied.

The following are some suggestions for a few of the many nutritious combination dishes which may be prepared without too much trouble from staple food materials and common "leftovers," and for other foods which can accompany them to make a well-rounded meal. Every housekeeper, of course, will have a special liking for certain dishes and combinations.

Spaghetti or macaroni or rice cooked with tomato, onion, or green pepper, and cheese, or cheese sauce, served with white, graham, or whole-wheat bread, and butter, and stewed or sliced fruit and simple cookies.

Boiled rice baked (scalloped,) with minced leftover meat, choped beef, or fresh or canned fish, served with beet, dandelion, or other greens, dressed with peanut, olive, cottonseed, or other table oil, with vinegar and lemon juice enough to flavour the dressing, and wheat, corn, or rye bread and honey.

Boiled rice scrambled with eggs, served with a succulent vegetable such as stewed tomatoes canned corn green peas or beans, and bread and butter, and nuts and raisins or other dried fruits.

Green peas and canned salmon, with white (i. e., thickened milk) sauce, served with corn bread and syrup.

Meat pie (meat from inexpensive cuts) or fish pie with flour or potato crust, served with turnips, and biscuits and butter, with jam or jelly or hot chocolate.

Mashed potato with creamed codfish (i. e., cream sauce containing a little salt codfish), served with lettuce with oil and vinegar or lemon-juice dressing, and crackers and cheese or peanut-butter sandwiches.

Meat stew (inexpensive cuts or leftovers,) with turnips or other vegetables including leftovers, and with rice in the stew or flour or corn-meal dumplings; or fish chowder made from fresh, canned, or dried fish, crackers, skim milk, and onion, served with bread and butter, and fresh or stewed fruit.

Boiled dinner (corn beef or corned mutton cooked with fresh vegetables, as potatoes, turnips, carrots, etc.) served with bread and butter, and apple or other fruit and bread-crumb pudding.

Cowpeas boiled with pork and combined with boiled rice, served with a green vegetable or vegetable salad, and honey, brown sugar, maple sugar or date sandwiches.

Beans baked with pork or bacon, served with Boston brown bread and butter, and tart apple sauce and cookies.

PUBLIC OPINION

THERE'S A REASON.

(New York Morning Telegraph.)

The Kaiser told Ambassador Gerard that he would remember the United States after the close of the war, and there is every reason to believe he will keep his word.

BRIGANDS AND PIRATES.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

Difference between a man's vocation and his vacation is that the former is of fifty weeks' duration every year, profitable and peaceful, while the latter is two weeks of tribute-giving to mountain brigands or seaside pirates.

"Made it very Clear."

Newark Ledger: "The proclamation of the provisional government, of which Premier Kerensky is the recognized mouthpiece, made it very clear why drastic methods had to be employed forthwith to save the nation from its enemies as well as from its friends."

SPOKESMAN OF THE DYNASTS

(Kansas City Star.)

Since at the very outset the premier of France has shown Michaelis to be a liar and a Russian minister shows he is a falsifier, it becomes evident that Michaelis is the sort of Chancellor the Kaiser and the Crown Prince have been looking for all these years.

THE ROUMANIAN ARMY.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

One of the wonders of the war of to-day is the marvellous resurrection of the Roumanian army. During the Austrian attack and invasion of some months ago, this paper kept a careful return, compiled from the Austrian communiques, of the Roumanian losses. Early this year, we were able to announce, in this way, that the Roumanians had already lost more troops than they had ever had, and that the process of decreasing zero was steadily continuing. Since then the non-existent army has been holding up Mackensen's troops on the Sereth, at the expense of further colossal losses. The Austrian General Staff have clearly solved the problem of how you can take something from nothing, and yet leave something over.

PRESS COMMENT ON RUSSIAN REPUBLIC

"Genius of the Revolution".

New York World: "Premier Kerensky's proclamation of a republic in Russia without waiting for the decision of the Constitutional Convention proves again that he is the genius as well as master of the revolution."

"Depends Upon Eventualities"

Brooklyn Eagle: "Russia has not been made into a republic over night and the new form has only what force can be given it by the support Kerensky can rally to himself in his latest efforts to stabilize the government. What form the future government of Russia will take depends, of course, upon eventualities."

"America Welcomes Decision."

Pittsburg Press: "The declaration is exceedingly brief, but it proceeds from the only government in that great nation which has any constitutional authority, and we on this side of the Atlantic hope that we are not welcoming Russia to the ranks of republics for only a little while, but for all time."

Pains Over Left Kidney

Warned This Captain That the Kidneys Were Responsible for His Pains and Aches — Freed of Pain and Suffering by a Well-known Medicine.

Hereford, Que., Sept. 25.—Captain Peabody is well known all through this section, and his cure by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has aroused great interest in this great medicine.

The Captain had been suffering for a long time, and could never get any treatment to afford lasting relief until he began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Captain A. Peabody, Hereford, Que., writes: "For years I suffered from indigestion, rheumatism and neuralgia. Lightning-like pains would shoot all through my body, and I also had severe pains over my left kidney and through the hips. I doctored for years and tried all kinds of remedies, but the only result was money spent without relief. At last I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of his Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them. One box made such a change that I sent for five more. Before I had finished them the pains in my kidneys and hips had disappeared, and I was clear of those sharp, shooting pains through the body. I still take these Pills occasionally to keep my bowels regular, and would not be without them, as I have them to thank for my cure.

"I can also speak highly of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder and Linseed and Turpentine. The former cured me of catarrh in the head, which caused frequent headaches. I am completely cured of this now, and breathe freely as when a boy. The Linseed and Turpentine proved of great benefit for a bad cough which bothered me continually for three winters. Last winter I took one bottle of the Linseed and Turpentine, and have not been bothered with a cough since."

KAISER WANTS BIGGER NAVY.

Regrets That He Wasn't Able to Enlarge Fleet.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 24.—Max Bewer, the German painter, describing in the Dusseldorf General Anzeiger his impressions of Emperor William's visit to headquarters, mentions an incident when the German ruler expressed regret that his navy was no larger. The Emperor quoted Stanley's exclamation on the occasion of the exchange of Heligoland for Zanzibar. "This is the exchange of a button for a whole suit."

"This button," the Kaiser said, "holds the whole suit together," and he continued:

"If my people had only not so embittered the first twelve years of my reign in my naval plans! How Eugen Richter harassed poor Sollman, whose plans he scornfully rejected as mere naval hobby! If those gentlemen had only known what one more squadron means on sea they would act to-day and for all time quite differently."

"With an army one can manage with new formations, but time and far-seeing patience are necessary for the creation of a squadron with efficient captains and crews and machinery."

Among The Totem Poles In Alaska

Attu Island, Alaska, is farther west of San Fransisco than that city is west of Eastport, Maine. To the average American or Canadian the very name is synonymous with gold and glaciers, but of the country itself he knows less than that of any other spot on the continent. He doesn't realise that Alaska contains fiords equal to those of Norway, that Alaska contains more than two hundred immense and unmatched glaciers, some of them near neighbors to active volcanoes, such as Wrangell, whose smoking summit forms the eastern end of a chain of living and dead lava peaks a thousand miles long. Nor does he realize the climatic variations that are to be found in Alaska, where the coldest month of Sitka is no colder than that of St. Louis, the warmest months of San Francisco and Juneau are of identical record; and yet Point Barrow, on its northern fringe, is 300 miles within the Arctic Circle and has no sun for forty days out of every year.

Leaving Vancouver in a comfortable Canadian Pacific "Princess" steamer, the traveller wakes next morning to his first view of the typical and wonderfully beautiful scenery of the solemn fiord country. Seymour Narrows ushers him into smooth, island-dotted waters that lead to Alert Bay, where he may see fifty-foot totem poles and a modern hospital by the cedar lodges of the Kwatiutis.

At evening time Queen Charlotte Sound is reached and for the first and only occasion during the trip the vessel rides open water while the whale spouts in the offing and the basking shark lies in the last sunshine.

River Inlet, Namu, Bella Bella, Millbank Sound, Finlayson Channel, they all slip by in the night as the ship steams northward. Morning brings Swanson Bay, where there is an immense mill turning Douglas firs into paper pulp.

At the mouth of the Skeena a fleet of salmon boats is encountered and ground. Copper has made Ketchikan, but the tourist will perhaps be more passengers leave for many points on the river, which is navigable for miles.

Cape Fox marks the southern point of Alaska and soon Ketchikan is reached, a modern town solidly planted on the most difficult of hills. Interested in the vanishing Indian with his woven baskets than in the advancing miner.

Wrangell Narrows is a fascinating and pulseless shadowland, where the vessel goes too slowly through the widening channel to break the reflection of the midnight sun in the solemn northern waters. At the end of the passage glaciers are sighted for the first time. These huge and awe-inspiring ice are characteristic of Alaska. In Icy Strait Bay a hundred or more may be seen along the walls. The scenery is of the wildest description and the plunging bergs keep the fiord roaring like some vast foundry of the gods. Farther north, the Taku Glacier stretches a mile along Taku Bay, the largest of forty-five ice streams emptying their gorgeous colored bergs in the path of the steamer.

At the bottom of a sheer 3,000 foot mountain, Juneau has enthroned itself as the capital of Alaska, and is a well-built city, although there couldn't be found a naturally level spot on which to place a single large building. The townspeople are up-to-date, phenomally healthy and entirely sane despite the rush created past of the district and its present dependence on gold mining.

After leaving Juneau there is an all-day trip up Lynn Canal to Skagway, the end of the journey and the best-known town in Alaska. In the wild days of '98, Skagway was the door through which all trail-hitters struck for the gold fields, taking the line of the present White Pass & Yukon Railway. The Canadian Pacific steamers remain long enough for the passengers to take the road as far as White Horse, or up to White Horse, if a sufficient number wish to explore the dizzy peaks, the terrible gorges and sounding glaciers of the north country. The round trip from Vancouver lasts nine days.

THREE AIR VICTIMS IN THREE MINUTES

FRENCHMAN'S DEADLY AIM

His Success Said to be Due to Remarkable Co-ordination of Eye and Trigger Finger.

The amazingly brilliant record of achievement in the air made by the man who has been styled by his countrymen as the D'Artagnan of the Clouds," and by his comrades of the air, British and American, as "The King of the Aces"—Captain Georges Guynemer, of the French army—really began when he was rejected at his examination for military duty as unfit for any strenuous occupation. To-day, according to the most recent advices, the number of German machines he has brought to earth and of German aviators killed, wounded or captured is rapidly approaching sixty.

Instead of moping because those higher than he considered him unfit for service, the valiant young Frenchman, just three years ago, at the age of 19, demanded employment in the service of France, and as luck would have it, but rather as a last resort on the part of those to whom he made application, he was ordered to one of the great French aviation camps to learn the mechanics of an aeroplane. He was even told that he might, after a long apprenticeship, master the technical knowledge involved and become a full-fledged mechanician. It is related that he had made five successful attempts in different parts of France to pass the physical examination but was rejected each time. Once inside a camp however, he made valuable use of the fact that he was "on the ground."

By dint of hard work he laid the foundations of his later work in the air and acquired the knowledge of flying that has given him a mastery of the air. When he learned to fly he was at once taken into the service. The secret of his success is said not to lie so much in his offensive technique, which is the equal of any, but in his marksmanship.

He is said to possess the power of remarkable co-ordination between his eye and trigger finger, so that no appreciable length of time elapses between his sighting and firing. Often he has brought an enemy down with one shot—his average is four shots—while, as a rule, other fliers have fired several hundred shots before one proved fatally effective.

Three Victims in Three Minutes.

No aviator had ever brought down three German machines in three minutes. Guynemer had gone to the assistance of a comrade "in trouble," hard-pressed as he was by five German airmen. Two of the airmen were brought down by bullets from Guynemer's mitralleuse in two minutes, and, mounting high in the air, he overtook and swooped down on the third machine, shooting it to earth in flames. He cast about, searching for the other two, but a bursting shell stripped the left wing of his machine of its covering, and he plunged to earth within his own lines, unhurt.

"I gave myself up for lost," he said on this occasion, "but after falling 5,000 feet I thought I would struggle, all the same. The wind blew me over our lines and like a flash I had the picture of my funeral and all my good friends following the coffin. I continued to fall, and the levers wouldn't budge. In vain I pushed and pulled right and left. I made a last desperate effort, all to no purpose, and then I saw the field toward which I was dashing down. Suddenly something happened and my speed diminished. Then there was a violent crash and a resounding shock. When I recovered my wits I was in the midst of fragments of my machine, practically uninjured. How am I alive? I keep asking myself. I believe it was the straps which held me to my seat which saved me."

His first fight with an enemy aeroplane took place on July 19, 1915, after he had left the ground in the parasol biplane, with a mechanician to act as machine gunner. A signal, flashed from below, told him that a German machine had been sighted, and they went to give battle. The enemy aviator, however, ran from the challenge, and Guynemer was about to descend when he saw another dot on the horizon. This time the enemy scout was headed for the French lines and Guynemer followed him over the city of Soissons. After the mechanician had fired 115 bullets at the enemy he was shot through the hand and another shot grazed his scalp.

To the surprise of the mechanician Guynemer took the machine gun in hand himself, and with several shots struck the German flier, who sank down in his seat. The machine took fire a moment later and went hurtling to the ground.

Dived to Safety Through a Cloud.

"Vieux Charles" (Old Charles) is the name of the machine in which he has accounted for so many of the enemy, and it is due to the speed of this machine that its operator has been several times saved from death by the proverbial hair's breadth. On Sept. 30, 1916, he found himself twenty miles within the German lines when one of the German aeroplanes, a fast Fokker, rose to the attack. The reception was being prepared when Guynemer suddenly discovered that his machine gun had jammed. The Prussian had opened fire, and with 250 bullets, fired low, had punctured the landing tires of "Old Charles". At a height of 7,500 feet Guynemer saw a bank of clouds approximately 1,000 feet below. With his engine racing at top speed he dived for the clouds, emerging ten minutes later in a clear space to find the German gone.

On still another day he came into collision with a large enemy L. G. V. machine, tearing away the best part of the left wing of his own, but this was because his machine gun was frozen, and to escape the enemy's fire he spun around "on one wing" and kept on going just six feet below the L. G. V. The left wing of Guynemer's machine engaged the right wing of that of his adversary, and, in breaking away, the wing of the French machine was almost entirely torn away. The German was glad to be quit of such a foe, and fled, with Guynemer struggling to keep "Old Charles" from falling.

An official French account of aerial activities on June 1 read as follows:

"In the period between May 17 and May 31 thirty-two German machines were destroyed on our front during aerial combats, in addition to fifty-seven others which were damaged seriously and probably crashed to earth within the enemy lines. Captain Georges Guynemer brought down five machines, four on the same day. Two of these machines were felled in one minute, which is perhaps the first time in the war that such a thing has been accomplished. These five new victories bring up to forty-three the number of German machines thus far destroyed by this valiant officer."

More recent reports from the French front said that Captain Guynemer had bagged his fifty-second airman, and in addition to his many other decorations, including the rosette of the Officer of the Legion of Honour, he had been decorated by King Albert of Belgium and a distinguished Rumanian General visiting French headquarters.

Guynemer has collected a set of photographs which he has taken of various enemy aeroplanes, in flight, falling, rising to the attack, and almost as the bullet struck them. Enemy aviators are shown hurtling through space in falling from their machines others clinging to them in vain hope of saving themselves.

He is said to be most proud of his victory over a German machine manned by a pilot, observer, and machine-gun operator, without firing a single shot. He plunged down from above at a tremendous rate of speed but found, as on other occasions when he showed his remarkable resourcefulness, that his machine-gun had jammed. He kept his machine always in an advantageous position—above that of the enemy. He made several feints and lunges, at each of which the German pilot brought his machine a trifle nearer the ground. The terrified Germans were finally safely landed within the French lines, unable to understand why they had not been in collision many times with "Old Charles."

CARD INDEX DRAFTED MEN.

Authorities Will Learn What Work Each is Best Fitted For.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21. — Under the direction of Brig. Gen. Henry P. McCain, the Adjutant General of the Army, the War Department is making what it regards as a comprehensive occupational and educational census of the men drafted for service in the new national army. The object is declared officially to be to carry the selective service law to its "logical conclusion" and to increase the efficiency of the army by putting the right man in the right place.

With this in view, a personnel organization has been established in each of the sixteen cantonments. The previous occupation, education, and preference for service for every man are recorded on individual cards, which are filed and analyzed at the divisional personnel office in each cantonment. An analysis as to the entire 687,000 men of the first increment can readily be made from these records.

In this work the War Department is having the assistance of a body of civilian experts organized as the 'Committee on Classification of Personnel in the Army" and including a number of professional employment managers loaned to the Government by large industrial and business concerns. The data collected will be used within the divisional organizations to assist division commanders in making the best possible assignment of their men. It will also be of importance in locating men fitted for special branches of the service, such as aviation, the Ordnance Corps, and other arms for which it may be necessary to assign men from the cantonments.

It cost Soliman Zeekind, of Burlington, Vermont, $4,000 to sell one bottle of liquor. Soliman has a saloon, but under the law he is not allowed to sell anything to be drunk away from the premises. He broke this law and thereby forfeits a $3,000 bond, gives up a $1,000 license, and pays a $300 fine. He is barred from ever selling liquor again.

FIFTEEN ARE KILLED IN THE LATEST AIR RAID

ARGENTINE TO BREAK WITH GERMANY

LAST NIGHT'S AIR RAID ON LONDON CLAIMED 15 LIVES

Seventy People Were Injured it is Officially Announced---Attacks on Yorkshire and Lincolnshire Coast Did Not Penetrate Inland---Liquid Fire Used By Germans in Attack North of Verdun But Assault Was Repulsed With Heavy Losses.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 25.—Fifteen persons were killed and seventy injured in last night's air raid over London. Zeppelins which crossed the Yorkshire and Lincolnshire coasts did not penetrate inland, being driven off by gunfire. Three women were injured. Only two airplanes at most penetrated the defences of London last night, it as reported officially.

PERFECT "STRAFE" WEATHER.

There being perfect weather Monday night for air operations, Londoners expected a visit from German craft, and their expectations were fulfilled. Shortly after 8 o'clock guns were heard firing in the suburbs, and the metropolis had a repetition of the experience to which it has become accustomed.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock the noise of battle was heard throughout the city. Anti-aircraft guns were being fired from numerous points, and bombs could be heard dropping. Searchlights played over the city, and the rocket-like bursts of shrapnel furnished an interesting spectacle.

The purpose of the Germans apparently was the indiscriminate slaughter of the civilian population. As far as investigations of the Associated Press up to 2 o'clock this morning were able to discover, the casualties were few.

The Germans did not attack any points of military importance, but dropped their bombs, as usual, on the residential districts, mostly upon the dwellings of the poorer classes.

GRAND OPERA "CARRIES ON."

If a panic might be expected anywhere while the poise of battle was proceeding it would be in the crowded theatres, but the performances in the majority of the playhouses proceeded without a break. The second night of the Grand Opera in Drury Lane was on and the programme was carried through to the end, only a few people leaving the house. In one theatre, where an American play was being presented, the audience applauded the actors enthusiastically and the company responded by giving a cheerful round of applause on the stage for the audience. Another theatre lowered the fireproof curtain after the first act. The manager came to the front and said the interval would be longer than usual and requested the audience to go into the passageways, where it would be safer than in the auditorium, which they did.

They returned to their seats after half an hour.

CAME IN THREE SQUADRONS.

One of the largest music halls has a wartime orchestra of sixty women. They played the accompaniments to the acts without interruption.

Many persons living in the neighbourhood of the underground railways took refuge in the stations. The work of the police, firemen, civil constables and Red Cross as well as the women's auxiliaries, was prompt.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, September 25.—French Official—Liquid fire was used by the Germans in an attack on the French lines in the Beaumont region north of Verdun last night. The French, however, repulsed the assault with heavy losses to the Germans. The bombardment that has been in progress on the east bank of the Meuse in the neighbourhood of Shaume Wood, was maintained all night.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 25.—The Daily Mail in an editorial commenting on last night's air raid calls for reprisals, saying "the British people would view these attacks with entire indifference if they knew that every one of Them was followed by an attack in which twice the weight of bombs dropped here was showered on German towns. Let's hit the Germans. Hit them hard."

PETROGRAD, September 25.—Minister of Foreign Affairs Terestchenko has issued a statement denying German reports that Russia proposed to take part in any peace conferences in Switzerland or elsewhere, and maintaining Russia's determination to fight to the end on the side of the Allies.

No Separate Peace For Russian People

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By William G. Shepherd.)

STOCKHOLM, September 25.—"Russia will not make a separate peace—but it is impossible to say how far the Russian army will go in resisting the enemy," is the opinion of Charles E. Crane, one of the American commissioners to Russia. He reached here to-day from Petrograd. "There's chaos in Russia," he told the United Press. "It is exceedingly difficult to draw facts from the confused situation or to make prophecies in view of the rapidly changing conditions. Events move with terrific speed. No one can tell to-day what will happen to-morrow. However, the outstanding truth is that the Russian revolution has not shown the Germans that they may improve their own government by a similar movement. This feeling is reflected by the German-Austria prisoners—who in many cases are moving freely about—expressing their pity for the Russians' sufferings and discomforts of anarchy." The Kornilloff affair forced Premier Kerensky to place himself in the hands of the Bolsheviki. He has been trying to shake off their clutches ever since. "It is impossible to predict whether the Premier will be able to withstand the Bolsheviki strength. The Bolsheviki are the real counter-revolutionists and peace makers.

Conditions this winter in the big cities will be very unhappy. The peasants are refusing to sell food to the large centres because the money they receive buy so little. Moreover the peasants constituting the backbone of Russia and staunchly supporting Kerensky, know that there are thousands of soldiers loafing in the cities who ought to be fighting in and of the new democracy.

"Parts of Russia outside of Petrograd are becoming impatient with the capital. The Caucasians, Siberians and Ukranians are showing a disinclination to work with the Petrograd Government because they are out of sympathy with the local Workmen's and Soldiers' Council, which largely controls it. The local Petrograd Council is Bolsheviki in sympathy.

"Moscow is disgusted with the way things are going in Petrograd, and now does not want to be the capital, fearing similar disorders there.

"One curious development in Russia has been that many peasant Austrian prisoners of war who are permitted to go and come in absolute freedom, are marrying Russian wives and participating in the distribution of land by the Peasants' Associations.

"The Painted Woman" New Examiner Serial

Deep in the souls of all of us there dwells some primitive instinct which responds joyously to the undying romance of a great love.

In The Examiner's new Serial Story, "The Painted Woman," by Frederic Arnold Kummer, which begins on Friday, is given to the public a brilliant novel, a novel dealing with high adventure; and the love of John Barton, the Puritan, for Ramona de Lara, the Spanish slave, is one of those great romances that never die.

We all of us hunger for the big, stirring events of the great outdoors. In our waking dreams we have sought for buried treasure along the shore of some tropical island of the Spanish Main, boarded deep-laden galleons in search of golden doubloons and silver pieces of eight, or stood with Sir Henry Morgan and his buccaneers on the quarter-deck of a pirate ship driven through the flower-scented night winds of the Indies to attack the treasure ships of Spain.

"THE PAINTED WOMAN" needs no recommendation. The story of John Barton and Ramona de Lara will be read because it must be read, because it possesses the undying soul of true romance.

Important Meeting Of Peterboro' Branch Of Great War Veterans

New Officers Will Be Elected To-night--Sergt. J. L. Kenneally of Peterboro' is Reported Wounded--Kingston Preparing For 2000 Men From This District Under First Conscription Call---To-day's General Military News.

All members of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association are again reminded of the special general meeting of the Association to-night at 8 o'clock in the Barrie Building. There are five vacancies among the officers of the branch to be filled, the positions of president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and one executive member being open as a result of the resignation of President Dalliday and the departure of the trench exhibit party to the United States. These vacancies must be filled at once as there is some very important work in front of the club during the next few weeks. Every member should feel it his duty to be on hand to-night and assist in the selection of suitable men to carry out the ideals of the club.

SERGT. KENNEALLY WOUNDED

Sergt. J. L. Kenneally, a Peterborough member of the Canadian Field Artillery, is officially reported wounded. His name appears in to-day's list from Ottawa.

KINGSTON, Sept. 24.—The military authorities here are making arrangements to take care of 2,000 men under the first draft under the Military Service Act. This number will be put immediately into the depot battalion under officers who have returned from France, but are now out of positions. At various times calls will be made upon this 2,000 to fill gaps in other units, such as artillery, engineers, army service corps, etc.

Major F. H. Honeywell, an Ottawa lawyer, who was here with the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles before going overseas with that unit, has been appointed to the district headquarters staff, and will represent the staff in the enforcement of the Military Service Act.

OTTAWA, Sept. 24—Field Marshal Lord French has written to Sir Geo. Perley a letter in praise of the Canadian officers' training schools in England. The commander-in-chief of the forces in the British Isles speaks with particular reference to the school at Bexhill, which he says "is a model of what such an institution should be." Lieut.-Col. Critchley, the officer commanding the school, Lord French asserts, carries out his task in a most efficient manner.

The Field Marshal recalls that when the Canadian forces in England were reorganised the Overseas Minister expressed a wish that the training should be done entirely by Canadians. That plan had been practically universally adopted among the Canadians. Lord French says that Gen. Turner may look with satisfaction on the results achieved. The spirit in which Canadian officers have received the observations in the inspection reports, Lord French asserts, enables the inspectors to be very critical indeed, for they know that their remarks will be received and acted upon with the idea that they are meant helpfully and not in a fault-finding spirit.

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—The Canadian Government has cabled to the British Government, offering to pay the cost of a memorial plaque to be presented by the King to the next-of-kin of Canadian soldiers who have fallen overseas. Some time ago competitive designs for the plaque, which is to be cast in bronze and to cover an area of about eighteen inches, were invited and prizes to the amount of $2,500 were offered by the British Government. The conditions of the contest provided that the plaque might be either circular, rectangular or square, must bear the inscription "He died for freedom," and have a space for the name of the deceased soldier. The competition was open to all British-born subjects. Designs will be accepted until the 1st of November next, and conditions of the competition may be obtained by application to Sir Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State for the Department of External Affairs.

Eight members of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association comprise the party who will tour the United States, showing the "Canadian Returned Soldiers' Trench Exhibit." They are: Lance-Corp. Fred Long, of the 16th Battalion, and vice-president of the G.W.V.A.; Sergt. Peter Victor, of the 2nd Battalion, treasurer of the G.W.V.A.; Sergt. T. R. Cooper, of the 4th Battery, C.F.A., secretary of the G.W.V.A.; Signaller Corp. E. Watson, 93rd Battalion; Pte. D. B. Ivison, 21st Battalion; Pte. Percy Parrington, Strathcona Horse; Pte. Oliver White, 21st Battalion; and Pte. A. W. Phipps, of the 2nd Battalion. Other local war veterans may go later.

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—Information has reached the Department of Justice to the effect that certain members of the legal profession are undertaking to extract cash from individuals in consideration for a promise to secure them exemption from military service under the Conscription Act. It is stated that for the sum of $100 these men undertake to secure the release of their "clients" through legal or other technicalities.

The department desires that such clients be warned that no monetary consideration will save them if they are qualified to serve under the Act. It is also intimated that any one who can be proven to have taken money on such undertakings may find themselves faced with punishment.

Surrounded By Germans For Six Days But Both Were Finally Saved

PTE. CORNELIUS ORFORD, a Peterborough prisoner of war in Germany. Pte. Orford, who went overseas with the 8th C.M.R., was captured on June 2, 1916. His wife and children reside at 634 Union street.

Fuller Details of the Thrilling Adventure of Pte. J. W. Ebbs of Peterborough — Local Soldier, With Wounded Officer, Was Left in Cellar Behind German Lines When Attack Failed.

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

One of the most thrilling stories of the war as far as Peterborough soldiers are concerned is that of the experience of Pte. J. W. Ebbs, formerly of the 93rd Battalion. As already announced exclusively in the Examiner, Pte. Ebbs was the soldier mentioned in Stewart Lyon's cable from the Canadian front who, in company with a wounded officer, spent six days and six nights in the German lines until finally rescued by their comrades. Pte. Ebbs was for a long period a member of the 93rd Battalion military police, then served in the armourer's section under Sergt. (now Fire Chief) Grange, and finally was transferred with a few other 93rd men to the 87th Montreal Battalion, Grenadier Guards, with whom he was serving in France when his big adventure occurred.

In a letter just received by his wife at 128 James street, Peterborough, Pte. Ebbs tells the story of the exploit that has made him famous in the Canadian army and that will undoubtedly earn him a decoration.

A WONDERFUL ADVENTURE.

His letter, written on Sept. 1st, is in part as follows:

"I am going to try and tell you something about my experience as a prisoner. We went to take a place on August 15th. My platoon was to go to the first block of the great town — I guess you know the one I mean. It was 150 yards over to the German trench. We went all right, but when we got over his trench our men began to fall. I was the first one to get to the place and I ran straight into a house. A shell had blown the front out of the bottom room and made a hole through into the cellar. Fritz was upstairs killing our boys as fast as they came.

HIS OFFICER SHOT.

My officer was following me, and just as he was coming into the room he was shot through the neck and fell on his back. I ran out and trailed him into the cellar, fixed him up and laid him on an old bed that was in the cellar. Then I went up to see what was doing and found all the officers and men of my company were gone. The Germans had killed them all or taken them prisoner and than went on and took the trench, leaving my officer and me behind their lines. I shall never forget this. I am sure the Lord had something to do with it. The Germans were all around us, but never came down the cellar.

ONLY ONE TIN OF BEEF.

We had very little to eat—only one tin of bully beef for the two of us and we there for six days and six nights. I can tell you we were very weak, but never mind we are still alive. I know you will wonder how we got out. Well, our boys came over and took the same place, but they did not know we were there. We were pleased when they came—I don't know whether we laughed or cried. They thought we were Germans. I guess I did look like one. I wish I could have had a snap shot. They gave us some water and then we soon got to where there was plenty.

They have been very good to me. I have had no duty since I came back and now they have given me two weeks here. It is a nice place by the seaside and I am down here with an officer who is very nice and who is from the same battalion as I.

SOME SOUVENIRS.

All the French post cards I send will you take care of, and if I live to come home again I will tell you something about them. I mean the old ones— they are what I got out of the cellar. I have sent some on and I have some more to send.

I guess I have been talked about more then any other man in France since I came back. When the Colonel got to me he lined the battalion up and told them I had come back and brought the officer with me and they were all pleased. I guess I shall get something out if this, but I don't know what it is yet."

SOCIETY WOMEN HELPED BERNSTORFF'S LITTLE GAME ALONG

Were German Ambassador's Unconscious Aids in Gathering Inside Information About American Affairs —Embassy Employees Assisted

CLEANED UP IN STOCKS

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Carl B. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.— Beautiful society women were German Ambassador Von Bernstorff's unconscious aids in gathering "inside information" about American affairs. This fact will be developed if any congressional inquiry of his propaganda operations and his congressional slush fund are undertaken. Moreover it will be revealed that employes of the former Embassy in the daytime were waiter spies at night for the count. Bernstorff, tall, handsome and gracious, was a social lion here and in New York in the days before the war and before his nefarious labours had come to light. It was no uncommon occurrence for social leaders to call him on the phone in the afternoon and chat at length with him. Bernstorff never made any secret of these calls. Aside from his opportunities for gathering "diplomatic gossip" here, he was as almost a constant visitor to New York.

During his visits to New York he held many mysterious conferences, and it is assumed that he frequently met the men who were aiding in his anti-American propaganda. Incidentally his New York trips recalled today the fact that numerous reports at the time of the so-called "leak" investigation linked Bernstorff's name with stock deals. It is believed quite generally here that between the information he could gather as to the moves of both his own and the American government, Bernstorff was in a position to make heavy clean-ups in the market. Bernstorff had a retinue of servants in the big Embassy building who were in reality spies. At night they had employment at big social affairs where the Count himself was frequently a guest. Then when the war made him persona non grata, Bernstorff could still get a considerable stock of information from these waiters. The U. S. secret service was aware of this phase of Bernstorffs work and kept close tab on it.

FIXING FOOD PRICES.

If Hon. J. W. Hanna, Food Controller, can succeed in doing what he threatens to do—to fix food prices, he will at the same time "fix" the food profiteers. Mr. Hanna has promised to let the people know in a few days the action he is to take to regulate the prices of food. This assurance is made after a conference with Mr. Hoover, the United States Food Controller. Two heads are better than one when they are long heads like those of Mr. Hanna and Mr. Hoover. Mr. Hanna is gathering munitions—information and statistics—for an assault on the citadels of high prices, and he hopes before long to regulate the prices of many articles of staple food.

This endeavour is all the more important because it is high prices that sour the soul of those who are asked to help the conservation of food. Prices have mounted so high that the buying power of a dollar is reduced to something like fifty cents. It is difficult for the people of Canada—for they are but human—suffering injustice, to meet the call for sacrifice in the interests of those who are fighting against injustice. It seems incongruous to fight against injustice at home and fight against injustice abroad. Our soldiers are fighting against the frightfulness of the Germans; and we at home are fighting against the frightfulness of the food profiteers.

Mr. Hanna has a hard row to hoe. He is an officer of the government, and the government is a friend of the food profiteers—a branch of the "big interests"—whom Mr. Hanna will have to fight and conquer in the interests of the poor and discouraged, the victims of powerfully oragnized interests.

The "big interests" rule the country through their "obedient servants," the government of the day.

BRITISH FAIR PLAY.

We find persons that regard the large Canadian casualty lists as something like proof that on the British front, Canadian troops are put in places of danger more freely than British troops. There is abundance of information that this view is not justified by the facts. We see the Canadian casualty lists but don't see those of the British forces; and we have hence no means of comparison, and some of us jump to the conclusion that our casualties are disproportionately large, which is not the case. An official statement shows that the ratio of casualties per division of the forces of the Mother Country and the forces of the Dominions, in four big battles, was as follows: The Somme, five to four; Arras, seven to six; Ypres, five to one; Messines, eleven to thirteen. It is, therefore, evident that Canadians are not unduly sent into dangerous actions; and it is a source of pride, that they are placed side by side with British troops in the fighting line, proof of the high esteem in which they are deservedly held. That Canadians were hard hit at Messines is due to the fortunes of war. Messines happened to be a hard bit. The Canadians determined to "go over the top;" they went over gallantly, and were hard hit. The Dominions have done well in their military efforts at battle. But excluding Indian garrisons and the garrisons of defended forts in different parts of the world, the numerical proportion of the troops of the Motherland and the Dominions is between five and six to one.

Do the most they may, neither the Dominions of the Empire, nor for the matter of it, any other country, are doing what Britain is doing in this tremendous war—and doing it for the high motive of principle, and not for profit. Britain stands, and aims to achieve no material gain from a victorious war. She is fighting for the weaker nations, and the unjustly attacked; and she is doing more than any of the belligerent nations among the Allies. She is providing an immense army. She is policing the seas with her fleets. She is helping Armance and mutionise the Dominions and the allied nations; and altogether bearing the heavier part of the burden of the war. Britain, as she does in all things, plays fair, with the Dominions.

People who grow rich through the war are serving the interests of the Hun.

PREJUDICE VERSUS FACT.

In relation to the interests of consumers in the matter of butter, and to those of the producers of butter, the article from the Journal of Commerce, printed on this page, is reasonable and interesting. As there shows, margarine, as a perfectly wholesome and clean article of diet, is used in every civilized country of the world but Canada, from which it is barred. The farmers and dairymen object to the permitted use of margarine as a substitute for butter, not only on account of undesirable food quality, but because its greater cheapness, if introduced, would tend to reduce the prices of butter.

According to Prof. Robertson, a very well known authority, who has addressed Farmers' Institute meetings in Peterbirough, and was heard with respect and conviction, the attitude of the farmers and dairymen towards margarine is more due to prejudice than to fact. If they generally knew what he knows and asserts—if they knew the facts—in relation to margarine, their view would change. A few years ago the farmer had greater hostility to the auto car than he has to-day to margarine. But when he learned the truth about the auto, he changed his view; he has taken the auto to his heart, and the use by farmers of the auto is almost universal. He had only to learn the benefits of the auto and his early prejudice against it vanished.

The weekly cost of feeding a family of five persons with all the essentials of a wholesome diet, has increased from $7.41 in 1914 to $11.01 in 1917.

Food Controller Hanna hooked the fish profiteers—the small fry—but the whales among profiteers flourish unmolested.

WAR PROFITS ON HORSES AND WAR PROFITS ON HOGS.

What is the difference between a war profit made out of horses and a war profit made out of hogs?

The profits of a war traffic in hogs are enormously greater than the profits of a war traffic in horses.

The tragedy of a complete downfall rewarded the drover, J. R. Fallis, former M.P.P. for Peel. The crime of the drover was the making of money in war profits. The triumph of continued exaltation rewards the kings and princes of the packing-house, the flour mill and the cold storage industries. The virtue of the flour mill, the packing-house and the cold storage specialists is making millions in war profits.

If J. R. Fallis could not stay in a representative position and make money in war profits out of horses, why should bigger men stay in a representative position and make millions in war profits out of hogs, flour, eggs and other food products? Canada cultivates a miserable, cowardly variety of political virtue.—Toronto Telegram.

Canada only "cultvates a miserable, cowardly variety of political virtue" in tolerating what it can effectively prevent; in tolerating a government that sacrifices the interests of the mass of consumers to the advantage of the "big interests." They are tenderly sheltered and shielded.

Food Controller Hanna hooked the fish profiteers—the small fry—but the whales among war profiteers flourish, unmolested, if not encouraged.

GOOD ROADS THE FOUNDATION.

The following reasoning appears in the Ottawa Journal-Press:

The curse of the farm has been its isolation, its distance from market, from school, from church, from doctor, from all but a very few neighbours. The coming of railways helped some against this; the telephone helped some; rural mail delivery has been helping some; road improvement is helping. But the motor car has all these things put together beaten hollow as a factor in making life easier and pleasanter. Accompanied by good roads the car may possibly put a stop altogether to the exodus from the country to city.

"The chief trouble with the farm," says a writer in an agricultural journal, "has been three miles an hour—three miles by horse and buggy, two miles by team and wagon. What was needed for the farmer and his family was twenty miles an hour. This the automobile supplies."

There is a good deal of truth in the above extract. The automobile may "beat everything hollow" as a "factor in making farm life easier and pleasanter," but its benefits depend for foundation, for beneficial superstructure, on good roads. "A writer for an agricultural journal" may claim that the great desideratum for the farmer is "twenty miles an hour." Twenty miles an hour over the ordinary country road would mean disaster. No auto or auto truck, if reasonably loaded, would stand the pace without being shaken asunder. With good roads twenty miles an hour might be practicable; it can't be had, however, without good roads. The greatest good to the province, the only thing that will help save time and make money in marketing, with either horse vehicle or auto, is good roads. And these cannot be universally, or even generally got, without more direct and general assumption of the responsibility of construction and maintenance by some central authority, like the government. Only by such assumption, or something equivalent, can the roads of the country be had of a general good and economically usable character.

Save wheat; save beef and bacon; use substitutes; eat perishable products; don't waste. You betray your country's cause when you waste food.

Men Discharged In Canada Not Exempt From Conscription Act

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—All men discharged from the Canadian Expeditionary Force in Canada and who have not been overseas will be required to report under the terms of the Military Service Act. Their military service in Canada will not exempt them from the requirements of the Act, and if they wish to secure exemption on any of the specified grounds, must fill in their forms of application. This, of course, applies only to men coming within the age limits of the first call—unmarried men and widowers between the age of 20 and 34.

It is well understood that the majority of the discharged men, probably, will be unable, for medical reasons, to rank as Class "A," and only Class "A" will be called to the colors. But there are numbers of men discharged for reasons other than medical unfitness. Where physically fit, and exemption has not been granted to the tribunals, they will be called to the colors again.

MUST HAVE ACTIVELY SERVED.

How far members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, who have been overseas and not seen actual fighting will be affected has not yet been determined. The Act excepts, among others: "Men who have since August 4, 1914 served in the militia or naval forces of Great Britain or her allies in any theatre of actual war and have been honorably discharged therefrom."

It is here that the difficulty arises. What is the precise definition of a "theatre of actual war," and a precise definition is of vital importance in the bearing of the phrase on men discharged from the C.E.F. As to the men who have seen actual fighting at the front, there can be no question. He is expected.

In its broader aspect, practically the world is a theatre of war. But the definition so far given to the term does not make the exception appliable to Canada. Therefore, men who have not been overseas will be required to report when the first call is issued. But does it apply to England? The Canadian soldier proceeding overseas regards himself as in a theatre of war when he reaches England. But to the Old Country soldier, England is far from the actual war.

WILL BE CLEARLY DEFINED

It is probable that the term "theatre of actual war" will be submitted to high legal authorities for a precise definition. In the meantime discharged soldiers affected by the Act are urged to note that the whole motive is national service. Where a man can do better service to his country by remaining at home, he will be exempted.

The Military Service Council will to-morrow hold a conference with the G. O. C's of the various eastern military districts. Administration of the Military Service Act will be under discussion.

"SOME" NERVE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—While Dominion police, provincial, city and private detectives were hunting in Eastern Ontario for the alleged dynamiter, Monette, alias Girary, that much-wanted person was quietly enjoying life in the neighbourhood of his old home in this city. One day he had the temerity to stroll into the city hall and even take the elevator up to the recorder's court. He departed without having been recognized. At this time the police net was supposed to have been firmly drawn around the whole island of Montreal.

BRITISH TAR TELLS OF GERMAN PRISON HOLES

Men Worked and Starved to Death by Hundreds, He Asserts —Enemy Long For Peace—Intolerable Conditions Described by Man Who Was Taken Prisoner by the Raider Moewe.

A British sailor whose ship was destroyed by the German raider Moewe, and who was kept a prisoner on the raider for five weeks before he was landed in Germany, managed recently to get a letter out of Germany to his sisters and brothers in England. In the opinion of Allied officials who have seen the letter no more interesting information has come out of Germany in months as to the actual conditions in that country.

The writer, as a war labourer, was thrown much with German labouring men, and he says the suffering of these men is so great that they would welcome any kind of peace, even one dictated by the Allies. Because of the shortage of food the conditions in the prison camps are described as terrible beyond words to describe, the deaths sometimes averaging more than 15 a day for weeks at a time. The writer gives what is perhaps the first correct description of the Moewe yet printed, and makes the statement that this famous raider is probably the speediest of her type afloat, her maximum speed being thirty knots an hour.

The letter, which comes from an official source, is as follows:

"Just a few other lines to say I am still alive. I am not in the best of health, but as good as can be expected under the circumstances. Of course there are worse cases than me, so thank God I cannot grumble. I hope you received my other letter. Any other way of writing is censored by the Germans, that is the reason I am unable to write you all I could wish about this country. I have been across it and up and down it since I have been in it and I can tell you it is in a very poor state. Mind you, it is a large, agricultural country, fine plots of ground, but uncultivated.

Only Women at the Plow.

"There does not seem to be any men around, only old and very young. Everywhere you look through a railway carriage window it is always the same sight — women at the plow and digging. If you do see any men at all they are the prisoners, French, Russian and the British. Now I have mentioned the word prisoners. I will tell you as well as I can how Germany treats her prisoners; being one myself it gives me a chance to state the truth. I was aboard the raider five weeks, being chased around by cruisers. The treatment we received on the cruiser Moewe was decent, to what we received after landing in Germany.

"For the first few days after the Moewe captured us we received three good meals a day, consisting of tea or coffee for breakfast; for dinner, rice or bean soup; supper, rice and prunes, or rice boiled with meat or salt pork, each day varied; also, we received a loaf for four men. We were portioned out by messes, twelve or fourteen to a table. She was fitted out like a dockyard cocoa room, plates, dishes, and pint pot and spoon. Knives and forks were not issued, as we all lived on spoon diet. Well, we were all satisfied with that until they captured the Esmeralda. Her crew was a very large one, 116 all told. She was a horse boat, with American cattlemen on board, but by good luck she was outward bound, so there were no horses on board. Well, after that they reduced our meals to two per day, consisting mostly of rice, and as we were getting into more dangerous routes, because we were closing in on the mail boats' tracks, and at the same time we never knew the moment a cruiser would pop up and sink us, prisoners and Germans as well, because the way they had with us as soon as any smoke on the horizon was sighted we were all chased below, all doors were locked, and we were given to understand that if one went to hell, well we should all go, and that was the only consolation we had.

Adventures of the Moewe.

"Well, to cut a long story short we were landed in Germany safe, and I, for one, was glad it was so, because, take it from me, she was the greatest floating mine I ever had the pleasure of being on, and its experience I don't want to have again. When we arrived at Kiel the Moew's commander told our captain that we should consider ourselves very lucky, indeed, that we were off the ocean, as if he had had to engage himself with a man-o'-war he would have considered it his duty to have fought till she sank.

"I will now describe what the Moewe was like. First of all, you must understand that she was a disguised ship, disguised to act as an old tramp. Her full sped was between 20 and 30 knots, but to look at her from a distance she would imitate a slow ship, smoke like a devil (she carried smoke consumers, which could be used if required). When we were in the vicinity of war vessels she never smoked at all and always kept a sharp lookout. The crew themselves boasted about being off Simon's Bay (Cape Town) one dark night, and they saw M. M. S. Glasgow coaling, with all lights lit. They reckoned that they could have torpedoed her, only they were not sure but that some other cruiser might have given them chase, but at that time they were on the lookout for commerce, not fight. That was three weeks before thy captured us.

It was the Moewe which caught the Georgic, (White Star Company) the Voltaire, (Lamport and Holt), and sent all the crews into Germany on a Glasgow ship called the Yarrowdale. I have spoken to all these crews since landing here. Their experiences are about the same as our own, so I will leave them for another time. I have also spoken to men who were captured at the Jutland battle, others who were captured by submarines. I have also seen the crew of the ship Brussels. You know the captain, he was shot up here (Captain Fryatt). I have seen where he is supposed to be buried. We were sent to a receiving ship called Dulmen (pronounced Dilmen), on the Dutch border. There we were bathed, fumigated, vaccinated, inoculated. We stayed there about ten days; for food we got nothing but soup—very weak stuff it was.

Prisoners Done to Death.

"While I was there I became acquainted with a soldier, a sergeant out of a Suffolk regiment. He belongs to Rochdale, and you should have heard his yarns about how the Germans treat their prisoners. In that camp alone 500 died within three months. The day we arrived there were fifteen funerals. Not disease, as you in England hear, but worked to death, at the point of a bayonet, then, when past all remedy, sent back to die. This Rochdale chap, he had only just returned from the firing line. He told about having to work on trenches, on German soil, getting knocked down with a rifle if he asked for something to eat. You'll hear some queer yarns when this affair is over. This soldier's name is Sergeant Tom C. Murphy, 5 Wilson street, Mount Rochdale.

We were informed while we were there that we should receive Red Cross parcels consisting of clothing and food. Others I have seen with them, but none of our crowd have seen or had any yet. We wrote several times to the British Red Cross Society at Copenhagen, Denmark, London is the real headquarters. But Denmark is where we receive from. Well, as I say we have got none of them up to date.

There are 300 of us here in Lubeck, working for the Hamburg-American Line for one mark per day, and a half a mark overtime per hour. But if we have not worked during the day, the night only counts as a day. We have to work a full day before any night work counts as overtime. And I can tell you it is work. No cotton hooks or leather gloves, but bare hands. Steel plates like razors, rails, pig iron, barbed wire, coal, iron ore, general cargo, barrels munitions. Our hands are like cut pulp. No cranes here like any modern port has, oh no, you lift it, you English swine. All in a primitive style from 6 to 6. Coffee at 5 a.m., soup at 12, soup again at 6, one piece of bread per day, and you cannot buy bread here when you like, Germans are the same, everything that is bought, a permit has to be shown, from the police. A German told me the other day that before he could buy a pair of boots he had to take the old ones to the police and notify them that the old ones were wore out, even to a pennyworth of shoe nails.

"Soap is 12 marks a pound; tea and milk are things of the past; so is sugar and fat. I have not tasted sugar and milk for two months. A cap or pants, underwear, all have to have a permit to buy any. That is, the German.' As for us, no one is allowed to serve us outside our own canteen. If they are caught giving us anything they are liable to 175-mark fine or imprisonment. Now this is not hereasay; this is my own experience. How would this look in The Observer, or Umpire, or Chronicle? Tell Ted to try it; it would be information for some one. Of course, I cannot say what is going on at the German front, for, to tell you the truth, I don't believe anything I hear over here. I have heard a lot—one thing in particular. A German told me England is starving. I only laughed at him.

Serfdom in German Faces.

"The German here is only a big slave. You can see serfdom written all over his face. And the Prussian, he is a real bully. I had some, so I know, and another. Although we are prisoners, some of us have shown fight, and they have left us alone. I cannot tell you all, as it would take a book to describe what I know. But, believe me, every sensible German is not only tired over this war, but they don't seem to know who wins or loses. One told me the other day that he hoped England would win. He had been in English ships, and he was sorry he was in a German ship. He was a ship's carpenter, receiving 120 marks per month. He showed me his dinner—one slice of black bread and a drink of coffee, no sugar. I told him it served him right; why didn't he clear out in Norway, same as I would if I was in his place. Of course, he had his own reasons. I let him keep them. It was no business of mine. Well, if you wish to do me and others a good turn ask whatever paper you put this in to shake up the British Red Cross and Order of St. John, Strand, Boulevard, 84, Copenhagen. Of course, they may be doing their share but, at any rate, we are receiving nothing.

"Since I have been in this country the only eatables I have had has Palmer's Emergency Biscuits, and Palmer's Emergency Biscuits, nd they were champion. I could have done with more, but it was not to be. You can tell them we are at Lubeck. We came here from Brandenburg on the 3rd of May, Thursday. All the old men over 50, and the boys under 16, were left at Brandenburg. We are, all told, 300."

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

JERSEY CITY GUNMEN SENT TO PHILADELPHIA FOR THE PRIMARIES?

Are Alleged to Have Confessed—Five Investigations Into the Killing of Policeman Eppley.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—Five separate investigations were begun into the killing of Policeman Eppley by gunmen, who, the authorities allege, confessed to having been brought here from Jersey City for the primary election by one of the rival factions in the contest for leadership of the Fifth Ward, known as the "Bloody Fifth," and announcement was made that a warrant for the arrest of Mayor Smith would be sworn out as a result of charges made by Isador Stern, a member of the State Legislature, to the effect that he had forewarned the Mayor of the importation of the gunmen. The Mayor denied that he had any knowledge that the men were to be brought here and declared he was ready for any warrant of arrest and would ferret out the criminals.

The District Attorney said the two prisoners, Jacob Mascia and John Constello, had confessed they were brought here to vote for Isaac Deutsch, rival candidate of James A. Carey, whose life was also attempted, but that they had denied doing the shooting. Mascia is held on the charge of murder and Costello as an accessory.

Mascia and Costello were given a hearing and held without bail to await the action of the coroner's jury. Both men, who gave their addresses as Jersey City, are also charged with attempt to kill John P. Mauer, the assistant district attorney, who was assaulted with a blackjack at the time the policeman was killed.

CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 20.—That the principle of the single tax has not justified itself in so far as the collection of taxes in the towns of Alberta is concerned is the text of a resolution offered before the 13th annual convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities.

"Candidates call each other hard names in a political campaign." "That so," "do you suppose they really mean what they say?" "Perhaps. It's extremely hard to see any good points in a man who wants the same office you do."

BATTLE STORIES FROM THE WESTERN FRONT

On the Pilkem Ridge

The men who come out of the most recent fighting, wounded, take a very cool and matter-of-fact view of the whole business. After the Somme, and even the Arras offensives, the prevailing note was one of marked hilarity, and the favourite expression for starting a yarn was, "I didn't half laugh." The humour is still there in these days—it would take a lot more than the Boche could ever do to kill it—but there is an air of every-day business routine about the men, as if to advance and take some miles of country was a commonplace experience. The confidence in their own power and the ability of their leaders to handle them properly has deepened. They seem to be well aware that the tide of affairs has definitely turned in their favour, and that it is only a question of time until the Boche stand wavers and his line is broken and thrown back; a sort of feeling that the ball is at the feet of the British infantry though, as a matter of course, plenty of hard work remains.

"Fritz's day is done," said a London soldier, "there's nothing surer than that. This last go of ours shows it just the same as the Messines business did. You know how the Germans could look down on us all round Ypres and spot nearly everything we did? Well we prepared it all under his eyes—except the mines—and when the time came we just did precisely what it was arranged for us to do with him. This time he could see clearer than ever that we meant to have a go at him on the Pilkem rise. We had our guns banging at him for days, and he knew from the weight of the fire that his time was coming.

Strong Positions.

"I see by the papers that the German High Command say we only took some crater positions. Well, I'll tell you what it is, they're lying as usual. There's not a fellow on the whole of the British side of that bit of the lines that can't tell you the truth about it, and you can ask any chap back from it and he'll tell you the same as I do. The Fritzs made that line just as strong as they could and they must have put train-loads of concrete into it. These machine-guns emplacements, what we call 'pill-boxes,' were thick as houses on that bit we took. I was in a night raid before we opened out on them with the guns and you never saw anything stiffer in your lift. We had a good feel round that night, and we just thought that an advance there would about put our numbers up. It's funny how you forget things. When we came back with a Boche or two, a pal of mine says to me, 'If we have to go over here, there'll be something doing.' And I was agreeing with him. You see we forgot all about the guns. There we were, the both of us, grousing away like mad about how strong the Germans were placed. Righthal Wait a bit till I come to what happened.

The Effect of the Guns.

"The guns had been hanging away at the Fritz lines for days on end, so long that we got used to the roar of them and hardly noticed the days go past. That morning we went over the top, it was raining and we had been standing-to in the jumping off trenches in a drizzle. It wasn't too much of a picnic, and to make things worse for me, I went and sat in a puddle. Then suddenly, if we hadn't had warning for going over the top we'd have known it, the artillery let off with the last go before the creeping barrage. It was tremendous and you could almost have cut the noise with a knife; it seemed solid enough to lean against. Over we went and walked up behind the barrage in the same old way. The place was simply chewed up. It was 'crater positions' all right, sure enough. The neat German trenches we saw in that raid were laid flat; there wasn't scarcely a dip in the ground where they had been. The Fritzes seem to cast the 'pill-boxes' solid, for some of them were quite whole but turned upside down. Others were on their sides and the Boches still inside them. When we got a bit further on—it must have been the third line—there was one right in the track of my company and we had to get the Boches down with rifle-grenades and then flank them. We were just at the job when I got in the way of a machine-gun and—here I am. The last I saw of our chaps, they were strolling forward, and I hear that they did all that was asked of them. The Boches can't stop us when we get on the move behind the barrage and you'd be surprised how few of our chaps cop out."

Alongside the French.

Another English soldier from a County Regiment had the good fortune to see something of the French troops who fought on the left of the British.

"I never saw much of the French," he said, "until we were moved up to the north of ———, and then we were alongside of them. They were on the left of our line. Behind the line when we were waiting to go up for the attack we saw a lot of them. They seemed to me to be real good boys and well up to their work. The lingo was a bit of a difficulty for most of us, but there's some of us who can get along with it all right, and between what they know of English and what we knew of French we were pally enough. There was one little stout chap I talked to among them, and he could speak English A1. He had been an actor in England with Musical Comedy—used to sing songs in English and French on the stage. It was funny to hear him tell us that they were going to give the Boche a 'kick in the neck' when they went over the top. The fine thing about him was that he knew all about Kitchener's Army and the Derby boys, and he gave the English a lot of credit for what they had done.

A Poilu's Appreciation.

"We were talking away and he said to me, 'Look at your fine soldiers! But'—he always said 'But'—'But they are splendid! All sprung up since the beginning of the war. Look at your guns! How they talk. Pam-pam! Ah, they are good. I bet they will give the beastly Boche a good keeck in the neck. We used to think that the French gunners were the finest in the world, but now we can share the honour with the British. It is wonderful to think that the whole thing has been made since the beginning of the war,' he said, 'and we French are pleased to think you British have done it for France.' We had a long talk after that about the war and he was very honest about it. He said that he hated the fighting, but would carry on until the Boche was beaten—even if it took years. Then we had to leave off and the last thing he said was, 'Give them a good keeck in the neck!' He was a fine little chap and I've got his address to write to after the war.

Slight Resistance.

"When we went over the top after the barrage, ther ewasn't very much to stop us where we were. The Boche didn't put up a very good fight and we took all our objectives in record time and with few casualties. When we got as far as we were meant to go, there was some of us eager to go on ahead. We were dead keen on having something of a fight to finish up with, it had been too easy. The Captain sent a runner back to get permission to go on, and after a bit of waiting word came through that we could. Just as we went over the top again, I got my packet and had to drop out. I was sick about it because I hadn't had a smell of a fight, and I heard from one of our boys who copped it later—I met him in the clearing station—that they had a lovely little scrap in the next bunch of strongholds.

"We can do pretty much what we like with Fritz now. It's only a matter of turning on the guns for a bit and then letting us loose. We footsloggers ask nothing better; we'll do the rest. Wait a bit and watch what happens on the West front. It'll take a bit of time, but old Fritz's number is up all right."

TWO WILL DIVIDE AWARD.

Gave Information to Police Which Led to Monette's Arrest.

MONTREAL, Sept. 22.—The $5,000 reward for the capture of Henri Monette, alias Charles Edouard Girard, the alleged bandit and dynamiter, who was arrested last Tuesday afternoon at Pointe Aux Trembles, may go to Coursol Mathieu and Joseph Bastien, the former a machinist and the latter a munitions worker of this city. Inspector Giroux, of the Dominion Police, has written to the Auditor-General at Ottawa that these two men supplied him with the information which led to the arrest of Monette.

New Mistress—"How about the afternoon out?" New Cook—"I am willing that you should have one."

DISSOLUTION OF PARLIAMENT EARLY NEXT WEEK

OTTAWA, Sept. 24.—Dissolution of Parliament is expected to take place some day next week. Otherwise it will dissolve automatically on Sunday night, October 7. It is believed that the Government will anticipate the event and take the initiative on the matter. Sir Robert Borden will likely be back about the end of the week, when the dicision will be reached.

It is seldom that a Parliament lives out its allotted term. In 1896 Parliament prorogued on April 23, was dissolved on April 24, and came to an end by effluxion of time on April 25. That was a record in time saving.

It is anticipated that the date for election will be fixed about December 3rd or 10th. Nomination day will be set 28 days prior to this. A good deal of new machinery will be necessary for the taking of the soldiers' vote overseas. A solid month will be occupied in taking that vote and as a considerable amount of time will be necessary afterwards in allocating the various ballots to the constituencies and figuring out the total military and civil vote, it will be some time after election day before the result is known. It is conceivable that many results may be considerably affected by the soldiers' vote.

As soon as the dissolution occurs enumerators will be appointed to revise the existing lists. These men will sit for ten days, at least two hours a day. The fact that the lists are not to be printed will save considerable time.

SASKATCHEWAN TO PROVIDE $1,500.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 20.—That only 1,500 men are expected to be secured from Saskatchewan in the first draft was the statement made by a high official, who stated that the cities of the province would furnish almost all the men.

ISOLDE MENGES

A Talented Violinist Coming to Peterborough

It is interesting to know that England has at last turned out an instrumentalist who can be classed with the best the world has produced. Melba expressed herself at Miss Menges' debut in London, England, in unusually enthusiastic terms, saying nothing would please her more than to have Miss Menges on tour with her. No man, woman or child, who has the welfare of education at heart should miss the golden opportunity of hearing England's greatest violinist. Queen Alexandra attended a recital given by Miss Menges, also Princess Marie of Russia, Queen of Spain, Princess Henry of Battenburg and other members of Royal Families.

Miss Menge's recital in the Grand Opera House affords an opportunity that seldom comes in a lifetime.

Miss Menges coming to "The Grand," will indeed be a musical harvest and should it be adequately reaped by citizens, it will undoubtedly leave its beautiful impress upon our musical taste.

Midland Visitor Lost $167.00

LINDSAY, Sept. 25.—Mr. Shackleton, of Midland, who was a visitor to the fair on Saturday, reported to The Post this morning the loss of $167.00. Accompanied by his wife, he was making purchases in a store, and did not miss the roll until evening. He went on to Midland but returned to town to-day in the hope that he would be able to get some trace of the money.

Another heavy loser was Mr. A. Holmes, of Pontipool, who was relieved of $100 and a cheque for $12.

Mr. Holmes had been at the office of the Ingle Planing Mill in the morning and left for the Fair grounds for dinner. There was quite a rush at the lunch room and it is believed that during the crush he was relieved of his money.

$135 COLLECTED IN POLL TAX

LINDSAY, Sept. 25.— Chief Short is doing excellent work in the collection of poll tax. Up to date he has handed to the Town Treasurer the sum of $150. The Chief states that he expects to collect over $500 before he finishes. The Chief has a list of those who are obliged to pay this tax, and intends calling on them for their five spot.

MASKED MEN HOLD UP TRAIN IN TENNESSEE

DYNAMITE SAFE IN EXPRESS BUT OBTAIN NOTHING OF MUCH VALUE, ACCORDING TO OFFICIALS.

JACKSON, Tenn.—Three masked men held up a northbound Mobile and Ohio passenger train at Finger, Tenn. thirty miles south of this city, detached the engine and express car from the other coaches and, after running the express car several miles, dynamited the safe, but railroad officals say, secured virtually nothing of value.

According to a despatch from Finger, the men crawled over the tender of the engine and ordered the engineer to bring the train to a stop. Leaving one man to guard the engine crew the other men held up the express messengers. The passengers were not molested.

FAIR DAY DRUNK ASSESSED $16.20

GENERAL STRIKE

Argentine Paralyzed With RailwaysTied Up, Telegraphic Communication Cut Off and Famine Threatened

(By Charles P. Stewart)

Buenos Aires, September 25.—The Argentine was paralyzed to-day in a general strike which tied up all railways, cut off telegraphic communication and threatens famine in scores of cities. It was learned on high authority that the Germans are paying many strikers' expenses to prevent them returning to work. One hundred and twenty thousand men are already out. Buenos Aires is already without milk. Electric light plants are operated only by sailors and soldiers, while food prices soared to unheard of heights to-day. The Government advised all hotels to barricade their windows with shutters and to secure provisions enough for a fortnight, officially admitting that the continuation of the strike for even a few days will mean a food shortage. This despatch is filed via London, the only means of communication with outside world now left to the capital.

LISTENING MICROPHONES DETECT PRESENCE OF U-BOATS

PARIS, Sept. 25.—A high French naval authority, questioned by Le Matin on the subject of defence against submarine attack, replied as follows:

"It is certain the submarine danger is being diminished with every day that passes by successful innovations made in the system of defence. The multiplication of patrols, the new route arrangement, and arming, to after this be general, of merchant ships are reducing the losses of the Allies more and more.

"Besides the smoke clouds there are other inventions which increase the difficulty of the pirates. Our submarine listening microphones have been perfected to a degree which we would never have ventured to hope for only a few weeks ago. This is a progress which is proved by rewards bestowed by Admiral Chaumet, the Minister of Marine, on the brilliant officers, Lieutenants Broglie, Frommaget and Walser, who have so successfully devoted themselves to such inventions. Once they are supplied with these devices all ships will soon be able to recognize the presence of the submarine and its distance, and can then manoeuvre so as to avoid it, while on the other hand gunboats and scouting vessels can at the same time take up the pursuit.

"That is why the British naval authorities are confident, and we, too, have good grounds for hope."

City's Rinks Last Winter Cost $123.40

The success of the city's open air rinks last winter has prompted Ald Dobbin to begin preparations for the coming winter. Three rinks last year cost the city $123.40. This sum included $46.35 for lumber and other material, and $107.05 represented wages. Employees of the Board of Works Department under the supervision of Mr. Harry Evans flooded the rinks and removed the snow. In this manner the only cost to the city of the three rinks was the time of these workmen to the sum of $107.05, which may be regarded as a trifling cost, even with the lumber added.

In the south ward Ald. Dobbin expects to build two rinks at the corner of Wolfe and Stewart streets. One will be used only for skating, and the other for hockey. There may be a rink provided at King Edward park. The north and west wards will have the games rinks as last year.

Ald. Dobbin hopes, with the approval of the Council to complete the foundation of the rinks while the weather is favourable, and with a more level ground surface the cost of flooding should be reduced when ice-making is begun.

"THE SKY PILOT" MAKES BIG HIT

Canadian Premier of New Plays is a Huge Success

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—The Canadian Premier of the "Sky Pilot" a dramatization of Ralph Connor's two best known novels "The Sky Pilot," and "Black Rock," occurred to-night at the Royal Alexandra Theatre and resulted in one of tht most brilliant dramatic events that this city has witnessed in several seasons. The large playhouse was packed to its utmost capacity and several hundred would-be spectators were turned away. The audience included leaders in social, political and religious circles. The Caledonian Society was well represented while many officers and men in uniform lent colour to the occasion.

There never was a moment's question of the play's success. It gripped the spectators from the very start and at its conclusion the audience evidenced its approval by six curtain calls. Throughout the development of the plot the spectators were successively thrilled awed and amused As the familiar Connor characters appeared, including the Pilot, Gwen, Broncho Bill, Hi Kendall and Bruce they were greeted as old friends. The artists who portrayed them scored individual successes. In the cast are several New York favourites, including Brandon Tynan, Regina Wallace, Ernest Anderson, Eddie Heron, Elsa Frederic and Louis Leon Hall.

An interesting feature of to-night's event was the presence of Rev. R. M. Dickey, the original Sky Pilot of Ralph Connor's stories.

To-night's success was so striking and the advance sale of seats is so large that an effort was made to extend the Toronto engagement of the play for another week but this was prevented by the bookings that were previously made in other Canadian cities.

Judge Cohalan Has Stout Denial

NEVER KNEW VON IGEL, NEVER SENT, OR REQUESTED SENT, MESSAGE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of this city issued a statement in reply to a reference to him contained in the exposure by the commission on public information at Washington, in regard to German propaganda and plots in this country prior to the breaking of diplomatic relations. The statement said in part:

"How much England has had to do with the publication of the unsigned statement of an unnamed third party of my alleged views, I do not know. But I do know and I cannot understand how my name was connected with any papers of Mr. von Igel, as I never met or knew him and never heard of his existence until the time of his arrest. I never sent or requested the sending of the remarks which are attributed to me.

"I pointed out in Carnegie Hall on last Easter Sunday that the record of the Irish throughout the entire history of the country had been one of unconditional and unqualified loyalty, and that whatever their sympathies in the great world war had been before our entrance into the struggle, they are now—as they have always been—for America, first, last and all the time.

Unequalled Artillery Concentration

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

With the French Armies at the Front, Sept. 25. —For the first time in the world's history battles to-day are being fought on the French front where the number of artillerymen "preparing" the attack equals the number of infantrymen in the assault. Artillery "preparation" to-day means perhaps a million shells a day, a record frequently reached in the recent French offensive attacks. Such concentration of artillerymen and of shells is the greatest development yet reached in the "warfare of material." Already this new massing of artillery has been developed by the French to a point where the material exceeds the wildest imagination of three years ago. In the April offensive along the Aisne and Mornon Villiers the French fired day after day an average of a million shells a day. Had the United States been in a position at that time to furnish France with one million a day indefinitely, the war might have been over now. Comparative figures show that in the great artillery development in the German assault on Verdun last year, the enemy seldom was able to fire over 200,000 shells a day. In the French attack on the Verdun front August 20th the maximum number of 400,000 a day were reached. For the French portion of the Flanders attack in July if all guns used had been placed side by side instead of in successive rows, they would have been too close together for safety in firing. It is General Petain's philosophy that no military commander now has the right to send human breasts against material. In the gigantic attacks during the summer in Flanders, on the Aisne against Moronvilliers and Verdun, regiments of French troops have captured prefixed objectives without a single soldier being killed. The tremendous artillery preparation permitted it.

King's Prize Man Has Met Death At Front

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 24.—Lt William J. Clifford, King's prize winner in 1911 at Bisley, has been killed in action, according to an official message received to-day. Clifford was reported missing some time ago.

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—Flight Lieut W. J. Clifford, who was reported missing, April 25, was the first Canadian-born man to win the King's prize at Bisley. In July, 1911, he brought honour to Canada by his marksmanship. He was 38 years of age when he enlisted with the 19th Battalion, and went overseas from the Exhibition Camp in 1915 as a private. In March 1916, he won his commission and was soon after attached to the Royal Flying Corps.

His mother, who resides at 703 Manning avenue, received his last letter April 19. He was then stationed with the 48th Squadron. He was last seen to descend inside the German lines. Queries to Germany via Switzerland, failed to locate any trace of him.

She—"How is your daughter coming on with her lessons on the harp?" He—"Well, her mother isn't quite so keen on going to heaven."

Was An Applicant Not An Employee

In Police Court, yesterday morning it was stated that A. E. Stevens, who was charged with obtaining money under false pretences, was in the employ of the Prudential Insurance Company. It has since been learned that Stevens was not in the employ of the Company. Some time ago the accused made application for a position but was not accepted.

ARC LIGHTS TO BE REMOVED

The City Council is arranging to meet the members of the Utilities Commission, relative to the proposal to eliminate from the streets of the city all the antiquated arc lights and substitute incandescent lights, in accordance with present-day approved methods of street lighting. A meeting was to have been held last evening, but owing to the absence of some of the Commissioners, the meeting was postponed. The meeting will be held some time this week.

Dermatologist Gives Complexion Secret

"The great secret of keeping the face young is to keep off the dead cuticle" says Dr. J. Mortimer Mitchell. "It is well known that the surface skin is constantly dying, falling off in imperceptible particles except in some diseased conditions, when the same appear like dandruff. But the particles do not all drop off immediately they die, being held for a while by the live skin.

"To have the dermatological surgeon peel off the entire outer skin at one time is a painful and expensive operation. The same result is obtained by applying ordinary mercolized wax, as you would cold cream, allowing this to remain on over night, then taking it off with warm water. One ounce usually suffices. The process is both painless and inexpensive. The wax, which is procurable at your drug store, hastens the natural shedding process. It gradually absorbs the dead and half-dead skin, revealing the new, healthy, youthful-looking skin underneath."

TROUBLE AT CAMP MEETING.

Allegation of Assault; Magistrate Urges a Settlement.

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 20.—Yesterday in Madoc Police Court, Magistrate Casement investigated charges of assault at a camp meeting held at Ivanhoe. Bishop Warren's followers visited the camp, when the Hornerite ministers ordered them off the grounds. The latter refused, and it is alleged that two Hornerite ministers and one Hornerite member assaulted Warren's followers. Magistrate Casement strongly advised the parties to settle the difficulty amicably in the interests of the ministers, their church and religion generally. The case was adjourned for one week with this end in view.

LA FOLLETTE GREETED WITH CRY OF "YELLOW" AT ST. PAUL MEETING

ST PAUL, Minn.—Cries of disapproval were shouted at Senator Robert La Follette, of Wisconsin, when, speaking at the closing session of the Producers' and Consumers' conference here he declared the United States should never have been at war and sought to defend the sinking of the Lusitania. The disturbance subsided almost immediately and the Senator proceeded with his address.

Senator La Follette began his address with the declaration that political parties had failed to give the people representative government. "Who is abroad crying in the loudest tones?" asked the Senator. "Business, which is making money! The new projects of patriotism are masquerading in the livery of Heaven while you are serving the devil.

"I have just come from Washington where with a little handful of men I have been waging a fight demanding that taxation should be laid according to the ability to pay.

"I wasn't in favour of beginning this war. We had no grievance. The German government had interferred with our rights to travel on the high seas—as passengers on the munition ships of Great Britain.

"On these grievances which were insignificant, considering the rights and consequences involved, we went to war. We have a right to ship munitions, but I wasn't in favor of the riding."

Cries of "Yellow!" stopped the Senator.

"Any man who says that in an audience like this is yellow himself," he retorted, and as the interference continued Senator La Follette shouted: "I'll take care of any man who interrupts me, if you will give me a chance."

Governor Frazier, of North Dakota, chairman of the meeting, finally restored order.

Resolutions were adopted urging that wealth pay for the war, recommending that the price-fixing policy be extended to other industries and favoring government ownership and control of public utilities.

CARTER

The Great Magician at "The Grand" Friday and Saturday Next.

Speaking of his wonderful performance the Hamilton Herald of Sept. 8th says:

Still the less they understand, the more they admire the sleight-of-hand is a principle laid down in Hudibras, which was found in its extremity at the Grand last night, when Carter the Magician swept his audience into profound admiration with his bouquet of mysteries. His weird acts and occult offerings suggested alliance with the supernatural world. For two hours and a half the world-traveled Carter entwines the minds of his audience with the mysteries of sacred India, silent Egypt and the occult of China, giving all his acts a scientific turn that parallels the pet theories of the theosophists and spiritualists. All of the phenomena was open and above board, making the question "How does he do it?" all the less likely to produce no answer. Unheard of tricks with cards, glasses, rings and drinks produced warm applause. As a token of faith in the unconquered king of mysticism, there is no dearth of rings forthcoming when the magician calls for a few rings to smash up and then put in a pistol and fire the pieces into a target. The assurance that after grinding the said rings to pieces with a healthy looking hammer they will be returned again as received is enough for even the married ladies to part with bands of union. After he shoots the fragments of the rings into a target he produces whole rings again, decorated with nice baby ribbons from a satin-lined box. All except one, which is produced from a bottle containing a top layer of water and a layer of every other kind of drink. Then the bottle is smashed, and a live "porker," about as big as a rat, makes his bow, squealing against his unnatural birth, no doubt. This is only one of the mystifying tricks. Some clever impromptu verbal contributions are made by Carter. The magical divorce act is a wonderful contribution in the science of illusion building. An exhibition of thought-transmission by Miss Corinne Carter unfolded to the audience such prognostications as the ending of the war by July 28, next year, and the Toronto ball team winning the international pennant. The display of mental telepathy drew out many funny questions from the seat-warmers and settled many perplexing queries. But Carter's mightiest triumph comes in the last act, when the zenith of illusion construction is reached by his beauty and the lion stunt, in which a wild lion about to have his breakfast off a beautiful young lady who does nothing but cry and look sad, is made to disappear by Carter, who takes its place in the cage. The scenic effects throughout the presentation are magnificent.

The Farmers Are Unable To Plough

Land Is Too Dry to Work—Bush Fires in Peterboro' County

The fine weather has overstayed its leave, with the result that the farming industry is at a standstill for the want of rain to loosen up mother earth so that the plough may perform its very necessary task. The prolonged dry spell in this section of the country has had a tendency to reduce the area that might otherwise have been devoted to fall wheat production. In a great many cases Peterborough County farmers were unable to plough with any degree of success and they were forced to alter their plans and plant a smaller area than was at first intended.

Bush Fires Reported.

Bush fires in the northern part of the County are reported at Lakefield and Peterborough. Last night a thick haze that was not unlike smoke settled over the city and a similar condition has existed in Lakefield and northern points for over a week. The fires are not serious but unless checked might develop into a very damaging bush fire.

Typo Union Men Held Conference

Byron W. Bellamy, of Medicine Hat, Alta., secretary-treasurer of the Western Canada Conference of Typographical Unions, was in the city yesterday afternoon on his way homeward from the Ottawa Congress. While here he met Mr. George L. Myland, secretary of the Ontario Conference, and discussed a number of questions of interest to the typographical union men. The British Columbia unions are affiliated with the Northwestern Conference, which is essentially an United States body. The Ontario Conference is arranging to include the Quebec locals and may eventually unite the two provinces in an Eastern Canada Conference of Typographical Unions. The question of paying the dues of men at the front was also discussed. There is a proposal recently broached, whereby small locals may be relieved of this obligation by a slight increase in the general tax.

ROBERT SMYTH.

Lindsay lost a well-known and highly respected citizen on Saturday —one whose life history was closely identified with the upbuilding of the town—in the person of Robert Smyth, aged 75 years.

The deceased was born in Yorkshire, England, and came with his parents to Canada when seven months old. They settled in the Township of Otonabee near Keene. The deceased received his early education at Peterborough and Woodstock, and later on taught school in the townships of Hope and Clarke, Durham County. Later the late Mr. Smyth embarked in the mercantile business and conducted a dry goods store at Kendall in partnership with Mr. D. C. Trew, Lindsay. Afterwards deceased was identified with the firm of T. J. Claxton, wholesale dry goods, Montreal. In the seventies the late Mr. Smyth came to Lindsay and for several years conducted a dry goods business in the stand now occupied by Claxton & Co., under the firm name of Smyth & Bowes. After dissolution Mr. Smyth conducted a similar business in the store now occupied by Mr. M. J. Carter.

The late Mr. Smyth was a man of sterling character, honest and conscientious in all his business relations. The same characteristics in fact were displayed in all his activities, and as a result he was held in the highest esteem by a wide circle of friends in town and district.

The late Mr. Smyth served the town for a number of years in the municipal council. He was Reeve for a term, and occupied the Mayor's chair during the years 1890, 1896 and 1897. The flag is flying at half mast on the Town Hall as a mark of respect.

In the Fenian raid of 1866 the late Mr. Smyth answered the country's call. He held a captaincy in the 45th Regiment, and retained the rank until death.

In politics the deceased was a Liberal and in religion a Methodist. He was also a veteran member of the I.O.O.F.

Besides his sorrowing wife, deceased is survived by two sons, Sydney, of the T. Eaton Co., Toronto; J. C. Smyth, Principal of Public School, Mohawk, Ont.; also one brother, Jonathan, of Peterborough, and two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Turner and Miss Jennie Smyth, of Millbrook.

The late Mr. Smyth had been in declining health for the past four years, and previous to his death had been confined to his room a year.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the late residence of deceased, corner Cambridge and Kent Streets. Interment at Riverside Cemetery.

WOMEN MUST SAVE OR SOLDIERS STARVE

When the Food Controller was appointed it was generally supposed that the action was in response to a growing demand that the prices of foodstuffs should be lowered. There was and is a general suspicion that these prices are being artificially controlled for the benefit of the middlemen, and it was argued that if private interests could regulate prices in their own behalf a Government official clothed with sufficient authority could regulate them in behalf of the masses of the people. It may be that Hon Mr. Hanna will come to that phase of the problem before long, but it is important to bear in mind that it is not this phase of the question with which he is now dealing, and that the campaign that has been launched urging housewives to save certain foods is contemplating only one thing—the conservation of these foods for the men at the front, and for the people of England, whose supplies may otherwise be insufficient.

Not to Save Money.

The housewives of Canada are not urged to save food so that they may save money or reduce the prices of food, though there may be an indirect tendency in this direction. They are asked to save food so that our soldiers may eat it. If they have to rise from the table with appetites not wholly appeased they are asked to remember that their inconvenience or even discomfort is as nothing compared with what our armies are called upon to endure. Nor is very drastic action demanded. It has been estimated that if every household saved one pound of flour per head per week the surplus would be enough to ensure an ample supply for export. In the pledge cards which are being circulated the Food Controller says that normal consumption of wheat must be reduced by 25 per cent. in order that Canada and the United States may be able to send to Great Britain and our Allies the 460,000,000 bushels that they require.

Save Beef and Bacon.

A similar reduction must be made in the consumption of beef and bacon. "The men in the trenches will go hungry if you fail them," warns Mr. Hanna, and surely no more ought to be said on this head. If bacon were only ten cents a pound and beef five cents a pound it would still be a vital necessity to conserve the supply, so without regard to the fact that prices are abnormally high, the consumption of beef and bacon must be reduced. It is pointed out that there is no necessity for the people of Canada to go on short rations. They have plenty of substitutes for beef and bacon in other meats, fish, eggs and fowl; and for white bread in cereals, whole wheat bread, which is recommended by Dr. Hastings, Toronto Medical Health Officer, and in the hundred and one dishes that can be prepared from corn, rice, etc.

Do Not Avoid Substitutes.

We are also advised to eat perishable products, and it was to promote their consumption that a ban was placed on the selling of canned vegetables some little time ago. In reply to the suggestion that the people at home should go on eating as before the war, while the soldiers be permitted to eat the substitutes, it is only necessary to say that the substitutes cannot be preserved or packed and shipped as readily as white flour, bacon and beef. A soldier cannot be expected to get up in the morning and prepare a pan of Johnnycake, for instance. And while whole wheat bread may be more nourishing than the ordinary white bread, if the soldier prefers the white bread, and there is not enough to go round, then the soldier must have first preference, and we folks at home ought to be willing to eat what he doesn't want.

Waste is a Crime.

The war has forced many economies upon the people of Canada, but even yet it is said that $50,000,000 worth of food goes into the garbage pails of the nation every year. To waste in these days is a crime, for the sufferer is not the person who wastes, but the person who may go hungry because of that waste. We must eat up the scraps. The old-fashioned doctrine of the clean plate must be preached again. "Housewives who have entrusted the whole duty of buying and preparing the food to servants must recognize that they have a personal responsibility in the matter. The work of the women of Canada is of vital importance. They must do the saving; the men must do the financing and the fighting. They ought to remember that Britain is on food rations and is thriving on them, that every household from the King's down comes under the restrictions that have been found necessary if victory is to be assured. The women of Canada who have already shown such magnificent spirit, have it in their power to strike a blow for the Allied cause comparable to the blow their sons and brothers struck at Vimy Ridge.

BOSTON, Mass.—Francis Ouimet, champion golfer, is to go to the Ayer encampment on October 3 to report for duty. The earlier understanding was that he was called upon to report Sunday but that an extension of time had been granted in order that he might play more Red Cross matches.

SAYS TESTS SHOW MRS. KING COULDN'T HAVE SHOT HERSELF

Mr. Dooling Also Asserts She Had Information to Give the Government.

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Maude A. Robinson King was eager to inform the United States authorities of the alleged connection of Gaston B. Means, her secretary and confidential adviser, with the German Government, and she was preparing to remarry her first husband, Edward B. Hull, according to information given to John T. Dooling, Assistant District Attorney, who has finished his investigation here of her mysterious death three weeks ago near Concord, N.C., and who will leave for that place to be present at the re-opening of the inquest.

It is understood it has been established by tests that the parabolic curve which all projectiles describe would have made it impossible for the bullet which killed Mrs. King to have been fired by her own hand, or for the revolver to have been discharged accidentally as it fell from the fork of a tree where Gaston B. Means said he had placed it. It is the angle at which the bullet entered Mrs. King's neck back of her left ear on which the authorities, it is said, rely to refute both those theories.

Furniture Ordered Into Storage.

District Attorney Swann ordered the furniture in the apartment occupied by Gaston B. Means and his wife, at No. 1155 Park Avenue, removed to the Chelsea Storage Warehouse, No. 426 West Twenty-Sixth Street. It is valued at $13,000. It is said Mrs. King spent $27,000 in furnishing and decorating the apartment.

A list of nineteen persons who have died in the last few years and who were marked as very wealthy and communications in which Count von Bernstorff, the one-time German Ambassador, was mentioned as a friend of "Bud from Concord" were found in the trunk of Gaston B. Means, which had been taken from his Park Avenue residence to the District Attorney's office.

Mr. Dooling said he had learned that Mrs. King and her first husband had met by accident in Chicago last year, and that a few months later, after several conferences, they had decided to re-marry. The prosecutor telegraphed to Maclay Hoyne, State's Attorney for Cook County, Ill., asking him to send a representative to Lagrange, Ill., where Mr. Hull lives, and ascertain if the report was true.

Mr. Foraker Tells of Crap Games.

Mrs. J. B. Foraker, Jr., daughter-in-law of the late Senator Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, gave Mr. Dooling an account of numerous crap games which she said had been played in the apartment at No. 1155 Park Avenue. She said that ine one game she had lost $3,000 in a few hours. The stakes always were high, she asserted.

Among the letters taken from Gaston B. Means' trunk was one which read in part:

"I am convinced I had better dictate my letters to you in order that I may have a carbon copy, so I will know exactly what I have said in case Maude should fly the track and I should have to wire to you."

Another letter read as follows:

"I was in Norfolk with and for the purpose of learning, in the interest of the German Government, what English men of war were hovering off the coast of Norfolk and in what manner they were being supplied with coal, provisions and so forth."

Another letter written by "W.R.T." to "Bud" reads in part:

"You shall have my best efforts and active support always in anything, but I have had the experience of failure and you have not."

Another letter contains the following:

"I suggest that you look at the water mark of the paper or any papers that you may have."

Mr. Dooling read an exerpt from another letter which he said was very important. It read:

"I will be ready to join all of you there as soon as this has been settled. Once for all and finally let me impress upon all of you the importance of putting a quietus on 'Buster' forever, which I will have to do before I get away from ——. All of you can keep in touch with me per above addresses—what to do in any emergency and any hour of day or night."

Henry Dietsch Sees Mr. Dooling.

Henry Dietsch, father-in-law of Afton Means and secretary of Gaston B. Means, had a long conference with Mr. Dooling. He was accompanied by his counsel, George Gordon Battle, of the firm of O'Gorman, Battle & Vandiver, who said that in a way he was attorney for Gaston B. Means also. Mr. Battle declined to tell the nature of his client's conference with Mr. Dooling, through which he did not remain, but said he had no objection to the prosecutor's questioning Mr. Means at length.

Besides three trunks full of data which Mr. Dooling will take to North Carolina is a 38 calibre revolver and seventeen boxes of bullets. He would not say what bearing the revolver and bullets might have on the case. He said that detectives had found a stationery store in Chicago where certain articles in connection with the case had been purchased. He declined to say what the articles were.

PETERBORO' WHOLESALERS BIG DISTRIBUTORS

An Important Branch of the City's Business Activity

The amount of goods in and out of the Wholesale Houses in Peterborough, if it could be computed, would be found to be tremendous, and an idea of the business done can only be judged by business activity at the different wholesale institutions.

Yesterday, Burnham Brothers, wholesale candy and paper dealers, were unloading a full carload of nothing but candy; not an unusual occurrence with them; and a person often wonders where it all goes to. This firm, however, does not confine its business to the city alone, but is reaching out throughout the Province, until the volume of business through this centre in their lines has reached more than six figures.

Peterborough wholesalers are a big factor in the business life of Peterborough.

Ethel Clayton AND Carlyle Blackwell IN 'Broken Chains'

A novel story handled in a novel way. The stars make the most of the big opportunities afforded them. Miss Clayton was never more charming, and plays her very difficult role with a retiring sweetness which has an irresistible appeal for all. Carlyle Blackwell, who is the incomparable romantic lover in most of the stories in which he appears, plays a part which calls forth all his plenteous supply of talent, and receives it. At the head of a battalion of our soldier boys, he makes a picture not easily forgotten. This is a truly big feature coming to the

What Is New In Jewelry?

Why should we not have styles and changes of styles in jewelry as well as in suits, and dresses and hats?

For instance the Wrist Watch seems to have everything its own way, when it comes to watches.

There are many new styles this year. There is the tiny gold watch, watches of unusual shape, gold watches on military looking gold braid, gold watches with the popular flexible style of bracelet, etc.

Bracelets and lockets are coming into vogue once more, as well as ear-rings, which are shown in our stock.

New Drug Acts on Every Organ of Body

Makes Your Checks Rosy.

A pale face, sallow complexion, weak stomach, clogged liver, painful kidneys, catarrh affections, rheumatic pain, run-down and anaemic conditions of the whole system are caused from an impure, thin and watery condition of the blood. All these organs of the body are directly dependant on the blood for their source of strength. It will be a great boon to all these thousands of weak, anaemic, nervous, run-down people to hear and learn about this new drug "Sanitas Phosphorus with Iron." After each meal and at bedtime take from two to three of these tablets with a little water. You will note that you will get results after the first few doses the iron acts immediately upon the blood while the phosphorus goes direct to the spine, the center of the nervous system.

As soon as you get the blood purified and the nerves soothed, the stomach, liver and kidneys begin to do their work and in 8 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent. stronger. Your blood pressure will be increased, making your cheeks rosy and you once more have that vigorous, vivacious, keen, bright, alert feeling of boyhood days. The new drug is dispensed by F. G. Webber.

GRAIN MARKETS CONTINUE FIRM

Persistent reports as to frost damage—The Cattle market.

Cash markets continue firm. Corn again developed strength in the speculative market, the efforts of the bears failing to shake the belief that corn will yet go to higher levels, based on the present wide margin between the fixed price of wheat at $2.21 and corn selling around $1.21. Reports are also very persistent as to considerable damage having been done by frosts. Oats continue strong. Ontario cash oats show an advance of 2c. yesterday.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts, 77 cars, with 1,053 head of cattle, 84 calves, 442 hogs, and 1,389 sheep and lambs.

There was a fairly active, steady market yesterday at Monday's prices. Choice handy butcher steers and fat cows were in good demand, and everything coming under that description found no lack of buyers. Some of the commoner stuff was a little more difficult to dispose of. On the whole, it was a fair clean-up, with the exception of several loads of Western cattle among the late arrivals, which were purposely held over for to-day's market.

Stocker trade is rather quiet, the choicest qualities being most in demand, and not too many of these offering.

Calves steady.

Sheep and lambs steady.

"FORTUNE OF WAR" CAFES GIVE JOBS TO WOUNDED MEN

Wounded British Officer Inaugurates New Plan for His Wounded Comrades of the Ranks, Enabling Them to Earn Own Living

(By Patrick O'Flaherty.)

LONDON, Sept. 25. —There was a small lion's head crest on the tea cup, with a scroll beneath, bearing the words: "Fortune of War." There was a similar crest in the middle of the saucer ,and on the mirror back of the counter, just under the small letters of "Licensed to Sell Tobacco and Stamps," was a larger crest with the inscription at the right: "Founded for the Employment of Disabled Soldiers and Sailors." and at the left: "The Fortune of War, be you ever so bold,
Is a mould of earth or a stripe of gold."

The "stripe of gold" is the "wounded" stripe of the British army, but this isn't a story about the millions of insignia devised for, and sworn by, the British Tommy and his commanding officers. It's a story about a few of the men who wear the stripe of gold; a very few of them —for the Fortune of War cafes have only just been started.

There are three of them, scattered about London as this is being written; one in the Kilburn road was built as an experiment last December just outside the London Northwest station; one was started in March, when the experiment was beginning to prove satisfyingly successful, next to the Metropolitan Musical Hall in the Edgeware road; and the youngest of them, now four weeks of age, is in Hackney beside the North London Railway station.

Six more sites have already been secured, and six more Fortune of War cafes are to go up on them within the next six months. So much for the success of one of Britain's oddest war incidents— an incident conceived by a disabled soldier for disabled soldiers — an incident which enables soldiers to snap their fingers in the face of Charity and earn a living for themselves!

"I used to meet some of these men on the street late at night," says Lieut. J. E. Latham, who was discharged for disability from the South Staffordshires on August last. "They were absolutely penniless and they'd ask me for sixpence for a bed or a bite to eat. Many of them had lost a leg or had a shoulder blown away, but they were able to do some sort of work if they could find a job. Some of them wore decorations — but a V.C. doesn't exactly get you a job when you've been discharged from the army."

VALUE OF A V. C.

No, it doesn't. The police magistrate of London will tell you how much good a man gets from his V.C. or his D.C.M. or his Military Medal when he's back in "civie's" duds again.

Whereupon, Lieut. Latham became the creator of the Fortune of War cafes, and scores of letters from all over England began to pour in on him at 26 Aldridge road villas, W., offering hun money and sites free.

All of which were returned to their donors with thanks. For the Fortune of War cafes are a business proposition conducted of, by and for the disabled soldiers and sailors.

They started with $1500 capital. It took three months for the first one —the little place in Kilburn road to shove its surplus around to the profit side of the ledger. Then it began to make a little money. And the money it made went into the second one, the place in Edgeware road. And the money the two of them made went into the Hackeny place.

And the money the three of them are making is going into six more places. And who knows but what there will be 1,000 of these little off-the-sidewalk tea-and-cake cafes all over England within the next year or two?

At any rate, the acorn Lieut. Latham planted in Kilburn road last December is taking deep root.

The $1500 capital with which the Fortune of War Cafes started, was supplied by Lieut. Latham and four others, each of them putting in about $300. The name of the others are not for publication. "They would prefer not," says Lieut. Latham. But it can be said of them that one was in the Bank of England, one was in Rothchild's Bank and one was a gentleman of private means. It can be said of them that all but one — the gentleman of private means—are youngsters, and that two of them are officers in the Royal Artillery, one is an officer in the Royal Flying Corps, and one— the gentleman of private means, who is over 50—is in the Home Defence. It can also be said of them that one was killed in action recently.

"He was here not more than two weeks ago," said Lieut. Latham this morning in his flat in Aldridge road, a neat apartment all heavy with the odour of a bowl of rose petals. "We had an evening of it and went to a theatre —and the next thing I read of him was in the casualty list."

Here, at Lieut. Latham's flat, a half-dozen disabled, discharged men call every morning, wanting work. This morning, just as I went in, an American from the Canadian expeditionary force hobbled out. He's a D.C.M. man, but he needed a job and needed it quick.

HOW TO GET A JOB.

There is no longer, racking questionnaire for these applicants to undergo. If they have ever been in jail it is their own business. Lieut. Latham holds. All that Lieut. Latham considers his business, is whether they are ex-soldiers or ex-sailors, and whether they are ordinarily willing to work.

Then, if there is a job for them they get it. And if there is nothing open, they get what they need right away and a job as soon as one is open. At present there is a force of 30 men in the three Fortune of War Cafes.

Most of them have been privates in the army, although a few non-commissioned officers apply. What they have been before they went into the army is problematical. Most of them probably have been common labourers, getting their $5 a week.

In the Fortune of War Cafes, however, they start at $10 a week.

And during their first few weeks they get a raise of 60 cents a week for the first month, at the end of which they are getting $12.50 a week, and become "corporals" in the Cafes. As fast as they can be shoved ahead they are sent up to $15 a week. Then their title is "sergeant-major" and their subordinates in the Cafes address them as "mister." Managers of the Cafes, all of whom, by the way, have started as "privates" at $10 a week—get their $20 a week and are commissaigned officers in the little Fortune of War army.

Besides their pay in the Cafe, these men draw from $3.75 to $8 a week pension from the government. So that the manager of a Cafe may enjoy a total weekly income of $28 — not bad for a man who probably earned $5 a week before the war.

But then the cost of living isn't what it used to be in the archaic days of peace!

PUT MONEY IN BANK.

"Have you had any trouble with any of these men as the result of too much money?" I asked Lieut. Latham.

"One man stole $150 from one Cafe, and then there have been one or two minor cases," he said.

But then Harry Thaw also became embroiled through having too much money. The lower classes aren't the only classes that are susceptible to the blandishments of too much money.

"About 98 per cent. of the men in the Cafes put their money in the bank or in Postal Savings," Lieut. Latham added.

Can any other class show a better figure.

They don't work 12-hour days in the Cafes, either. The eight-hour day goes for every man except Lieut. Latham, who, although he said nothing about it, has put in many longer days than eight hours, unless I'm very much mistaken.

"Open Day and Night" says a small sign at each of the present trio of Fortune of War Cafes. And it is true, so far as London understands the expression "day and night." They open at 4 a.m. and close at 12.30 a.m. For London isn't an all-night town. Even the tubes stop running between midnight and 5 a.m. I know of only one restaurant in all London that keeps anywhere near all-night hours, and it is a cheap little place just off Fleet street, which opens at 2 a.m.

Identity Betrayed by Her Awkwardness in Smoking a Cigarette—Held Awaiting Father.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Sept. 24.—Eighteen-year-old Freda Hart, of Candor, Tioga County, N.Y., was arraigned here in court on the charge of wearing masculine attire and was committed to await the arrival of her father to take her back home, which she left with the intention to "enlist in the army."

Miss Hart, with her hair cropped close, donned a suit of men's clothes and started from here to Washington where she said she intended to enlist in the 307th infantry in which was an officer she knew. Her awkwardness in smoking a cigarette betrayed her identity to a railroad detective.

How The Tanks Were Named

The following are extracts from an article on the "tanks" in the Strand Magazine by Col. E. D. Swinton, their instructor:

"Why 'tanks'?" Why should a fighting automobile have been so inappropriately named? The reply can be given in two words — for secrecy. In its experimental stage the machine was known as a "land cruiser" or "landship." But it is a military platitude that the "element of surprise"—as it is always called in the text-books — has immense value in war; and it was naturally realized that the greatest results to be expected from the employment of this new weapon would be attained if it could be launched unexpectedly, so that the enemy might be caught unprepared to meet it.

Various rumours about the new machines were current amongst those who got wind of them. One was that they were intended to carry water for the troops across the deserts of Egypt and Mesopotamia. A second hinted at snowploughs for use on the Russian front.

Those German Nicknames.

One good point common to both the German home-made equivalent terms of "tank" is that they do not lend themselves to the making of lyrics, for neither "Panzerkraftwazen" nor "Schutzengrabenvernichtungsautomobil" is likely to be used as the refrain of a topical song in vaudeville.

The machines were yet otherwise miscalled. During the summer of 1916 an enemy agent, trying to tap the wires in England, might have been mystified to pick up some such messages as: "Twelve Willies reach you to-day," or "Send tails for six females."

"Petrograd, With Care."

To help to conceal the destination of the tanks at the stage when any allusion as to their purpose was precluded, they were painted with the inscription: "With care; to Petrograd" in large Russian characters. This, of course, was merely following up the line suggested by the snowplough fiction.

It is true that certain people who are not soldiers have played a very large and valuable part in creating the tank. It is also true that others who are soldiers have not done so. sity for it to appreciate the necessity for it, to urge its provosion. and to insist on the feasibility of its construction, were, in fact, soldiers.

So far as the writer is aware, the first definite proposal for a fighting machine on the lines of the existing tank was due to the appearance of the Hornsby-Ackroyd caterpillar tractor, which was tested for military traction purposes in England in 1906-1908. It was made by a military officer and was carried up to the stage of the preparation of sketch drawings, when the project died for want of support. Like Mr. Wells, he was ahead of his time.

Are of Both Sexes.

The tanks are divided into males and females. The male is par excellence the machine-gun hunter and destroyer. He carries light, quick-firing guns capable of firing shell, and is intended to be to the machine gun what the torpedo boat destroyer was designed to be to be the torpedo boat, or the ladybird is supposed to be to the apus. The female, which, in accordance with the laws of nature, is the man-killer, carries nothing but machine guns for employment against the enemy personnel. Her special role is to keep down hostile rifle fire.

Act As An Antidote.

The tanks have supplied the touch of comic relief and excite! the mirth of the British soldier, always blessed with a keen sense of the ridiculous. They acted as an antidote to the effect of the "Jack Johnsons," "Weary Willies," "Silent Susies," "Whizz Bangs," "Sausages," "Rum Jars," tear shells, gas shells, and all the other frightfulness of the unspeakable Boche. They counteracted the weariness, the hunger and thirst, the dust, the mud, and all the squalor and filthy discomfort of war.

WHY DREAD OLD AGE?

IT should be the pleasantest time of life and if coupled with good health it is. Many of our most remarkable men and women have won fame and prominence after reaching the sixties, and in lots of cases they have not been robust in youth.

The secret of health in old age is the prevention of bowel disorder. Constipation is the foe to be dreaded. Care in diet is necessary, also the avoidance of harsh cathartics, which only aggravate the trouble.

The ideal laxative for aged people is Chamberlain's Tablets

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Story of Shoes in U.S. Begins With Second Trip of Mayflower

First Making Recorded When Thomas Baird Arrived in Plymouth in 1628.

The first shoe making in America was recorded when Thomas Baird arrived on the second voyage of the Mayflower in 1628. Baird was under contract with the Plymouth company to make shoes for the colonists, and brought with him hides, etc., for this purpose. It was recorded that in 1636 a planter in Virginia employed six shoemakers to make shoes for his slaves.

That in the early history of the country the art of making shoes had become of considerable importance is shown by the very summary laws passed by the different colonies regulating the industry says the "Book of Wonders." Particularly was this so in the province of Pennsylvania which, in 1721, placed upon its statute book most drastic laws regarding the making of shoes and regulating the prices to be charged therefor.

Shoemaking in New England early received impetus from the arrival of one Phillip Kirtland, a Welshman, who came to Lynn, Mass., in 1636. He was an experienced shoemaker and taught his art to many of the colonists in his vicinity.

Shoemaking in this locality was further advanced by the arrival of John Adams Dagyr, who settled in Lynn in the year 1750. Dagyr was a celebrated shoemaker and was enabled, from his own means, to secure the best examples of his work from abroad. He possessed the peculiar quality of being able to teach the art to those who came under his charge.

The fame of New England made shoes was due largely to the teachings of these men and the industry has continued to be one of the first in importance. In Massachusetts alone, according to the census of 1910, over 40 per cent. of the entire value of shoes in the United States was produced.

Buffalo "Express"—A strong agitation in behalf of Mooney, who is under conviction for the preparedness-parade murders in San Francisco, has appeared at the international molders' convention at Rochester. Killing of Policeman Laid To A Political Plot

Imported Bandmen Were to Slay Republican Candidate for Nomination, It Is Said.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 25. — Evidence tending to show that the killing of a policeman in the republican factional contest for Select Council in the Fifth ward was the result of a plot to kill James A. Carey, whose nomination was contested by Isaac Deutsch, was revealed at the hearing of two alleged Jersey City bandmen imported here.

Jacob Mascia, alleged slayer of George A. Eppley, a policeman, and John Costello, an alleged accessory in the killing, were held without bail in the City Hall Police Court to await the action of the Coroner. The two men were also charged with assault and battery with intend to kill John M. Mauser, an Assistant District Attorney, who was with Mr. Carey at the time of the attack. Five other accomplices of the accused men who have not been arrested are alleged to have participated in the attack.

Following the hearing, District Attorney Rotan announced that the evidence did not warrant the prosecution by his office of Mayor Smith and other city officials on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the case, but added that private citizens were not prevented from doing so if they felt justified.

Mr. Carey, who was struck with a blackjack, suffered a relapse at his home to-day and was confined to his bed. He was unable to appear at the hearing of the accused men. His condition, while serious, according to his physicians, is not necessarily dangerous.

PROFIT $1.41 PER BUSHEL?

Kansas Expert Esimates Farmer's Profit on Wheat Sold at $2.20.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — With bakers contending that the price of wheat is too high to permit the sale of standard size loaves at a lower price of $2.20 per bushel fixed in the orously declaring that the average price of $2.20 per bushel fixed in the recent executive order is too low to give the producer a fair profit.

G. E. Call, professor of agronomy in the State College of Agriculture, of Kansas, recognized as an expert on wheat, estimates that, on the average, the American farmer is receiving $1.21 per bushel profit with the market price fixed at $2. With the price fixed at $2.20 per bushel the average net profit, on this basis, would be $1.41 per bushel.

Prof. Call's estimate is based on an average value of $48 per acre for the wheat land of the country [illegible] crop of fourteen bushels to the acre, an average cost of 78.7 cents per bushel to the farmer and a net profit of $16.96 per acre throughout the country.

High prices of wheat and potatoes were responsible for a much higher per capita consumption of rice during the last year, the food administration believes. In a report made public today it is shown that the United States' production of rice in 1914-1915 was 1,064,205,000 pounds, with per capita consumption of 11.34 pounds. The 1916-1917 crop was 1,831,560,000 pounds, a per capita consumption of 17.33 pounds.

NO FRUITS OF VICTORY FOR GERMAN TROOPS.

Teuton General Foresees World Opposition—Thinks Trench Warfare Mistake.

Zurich, Sept. 21.—General Baron von Freytag-Loringhoven, Chief of the Supplementary General Staff of the German Army, has published a pamphlet entitled "The Results of the World War," in which he says:

"The general political and economical situation of the world works only in favour of our enemies and the German soldiers will be defrauded of the fruits of their victories."

The general thinks that trench warfare was a great mistake and says that only an aggressive attack could have brought success. He added, however, that the German offensive was not strong enough to overthrow the Allies.

The Post of Munich expresses the hope that the reasonableness of the General's utterances will teach the Pan-Germans, "who would fight to conquer the whole world with their mouths," to estimate correctly the limitations of Germany's military power. The Post continues:

'Our world economic position must be changed completely by a new administration of our foreign policy based on democratic principles. Therefore we do not require a strong peace against the east and west which would bring us into opposition with all the great powers, but a far-sighted and lasting peace by agreement."

Toronto "Mail and Empire"—In August only 336,000 pounds of butter was exported from Canada, compared with 2,066,000 pounds in August last year. Egg and pork exports were also smaller. But there was no reaction in Canadian prices in these. That is one of the "benefits" of cold storage—it accommodates supply to demand, maintaining a fine equilibrium.

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how those poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Her Adventurous Night

It Had an Important Result

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Miss Pauline Chester, art student and would be illustrator, stood at the curb of the busy street awaiting a home bound car. Home! She smiled derisively in the semi-darkness at the meaning of the word. Surely the big, bare room, half studio, half housekeeping apartment, was a poor substitute for home. And it was all she now possessed.

She thought as she stood there aside, yet in the very midst of things—alone, yet crushing her way through the throng to the car, how typical it all was of her present life. Even in the brightly lighted apartment, as she passed down the corridor that led to her room, not one of those whom she met each day might speak a welcome because she had not been properly introduced.

Polly was not sure she would care to know them if she had. They were all such silly, chattering women, overdressed and indifferent; such rude, staring men—all but one. Polly thought of "him" gratefully. Something perhaps in the grave kindliness of his expression, his deferential yet unobtrusive courtesy, brought back the old days in Brookfield.

Each morning he raised his hat as simultaneously they appeared in the corridor locking their doors for the day's absence. Always Polly smiled and nodded, but the man vouchsafed no word. She was glad, and she was sorry—glad that he was so very much the man she wanted him to be, sorry that one so alone as she might not have the comfort of an understanding friend.

In despair Polly had added to the cheerless furnishings of her studio the companionship of a cat. He had followed her, this big yellow cat, from some darkened area the night she had bought the fish. After his coveted meal had become a thing of the past Patsy, as she called him, still deigned to remain her friend.

He had, she discovered, certain embarrassing and stubborn tendencies, one of which was to pry into the affairs of his neighbors, so that twice the nice young man across the way had been obliged to lift Patsy gently and place him outside his door.

Both times Miss Chester apologized; both times the young man bowed silently and pleasantly and withdrew. Polly found herself making little sketches of the grave faced man and the yellow cat during times of intermission at the art school.

"You poor thing," she mocked herself one day as she hastily destroyed her drawings, "filling up your head with a man and a yellow cat just because they've been a little human."

It seemed impossible to make a presentable sketch at home, the boys in the fraternity room overhead were so very noisy, while a player piano banged away below. She wondered as she sat through endless evenings just what it would be like to mingle with the gay throng outside, to be with one who could sympathize and understand.

"He" was lonely too. She was sure of that. Among them all he seemed to live apart. At those times when she had rescued Patsy from before his door she had caught a glimpse within of an open book, a half smoked cigar. So he, too, sat each night alone. His eyes, she fancied, were strangely wistful. Or was it fancy? Polly sighed impatiently.

"Always," she rebuked herself, "your thoughts go back to that man."

It was all very ridiculous, so she fell to drawing in earnest. No better subject at hand, she drew painstakingly the yellow cat lying stretched before the fire.

This accomplished, Polly studied reflectively an opposite vacant chair, then with a sudden dimpling smile she bent again over the drawing board. She was so absorbed she failed to notice the cessation of the player piano and a gradual growing silence settling over the building.

Raising at last a flushed face, she regarded with much satisfaction her work. The figure pictured in the chair opposite her own was remarkably true to life. The "man's" open book lay upon the table beside him, his half smoked cigar in his hand, Patsy comfortably stretched at his feet.

"Twelve," chimed the little clock in sharp, even strokes. "Mercy!" exclaimed the girl, and jumped to her feet. There was something the matter with the lock as she attempted to fasten her door for the night, so she thrust it wide open, intending thus to close it securely. A mysterious rustling sound, as of some person or persons stealthily moving farther back among the shadows, caused Polly's heart to flutter uncomfortably.

Not long ago there had been a robbery in this very apartment. She wished that she were not alone. No light showed from beneath the opposite door, no evidence of "his" presence. In trepidation she reached for the door handle to close herself in when, apparently from nowhere, a man's figure confronted her. A rather good looking young man he appeared to be, though fantastically dressed. Polly's apprehension grew at sight of his close buttoned red sweater and the bandanna handkerchief knotted about his throat. The man snatched a yellow checked cap from his head and bowed. In spite of her fear Polly's face flushed angrily at his assurance.

"If you please," he said, "I'd like to talk with you. No"—as she ventured to withdraw into the room—"I won't keep you long, and I'll say it here.

"My first subject is art. I wish to give you a little dissertation on art"—

With rapidly beating heart Polly waited. It was impossible to follow the excited rapidity of the outrageous young man's flowing talk. Of one thing she was sure, he was insane.

Insane, and she alone on the deserted floor of an apartment building, at midnight. What should she do?

To call out or startle a maniac Polly remembered, might bring on a dangerous climax. What should she do?

Again, very cautiously, she moved toward the shelter of her room.

"Wait!" cried the young man sharply. "I have more to say to you than this, much more."

In the momentary silence that followed she feared he would hear her frightened breathing.

"I love you," burst out the young man at last. "I love you. For long days have I watched you stealthily, adoringly. All my future is built on hope of winning you. Your love can raise me to the highest paradise, your refusal sends me to the lowest depths of despair. Weigh well, then, lovely maid, your answer—lest I destroy myself in your presence; take care."

Faintly the girl leaned against the doorway. Surely she had fallen asleep over her sketching, and this was but part of a troubled dream. From down the hall came a low, confused murmur.

"I love you," cried the young man again—"I love you." His voice ended in a wail. "Say yes, or I destroy myself."

With a sudden flash of light the door opposite was thrown open; for an instant "he" stood there, perplexed, uncertain—he, the one wise, kind soul in all this dreadful city. Polly never hesitated. "Oh, please!" she murmured, and rushed toward him. The man of the opposite room put her aside gently while he caught the wild youth by the collar. "Now," he asked sharply, "what is the meaning of all this?"

Up from the shadows of the long corridor came slowly and silently in their sneaker shoes a dozen men, young men Polly's startled eyes discerned them to be, and for the most part they were laughing or covering their mouths to smother their laughter. Her tormentor of a moment ago was grinning, too, grinning rather sheepishly, as the one man's stern gaze was bent upon him.

"Explain," commanded her protector, "or shall I call the police?"

"Oh, Mr. Lawrence," said a voice, "let us down easy. Maybe we did overdo it a little tonight, but we got pretty gay. It's the fraternity initiation, you know. Bayes, here, was ordered to do a few stunts, had to travel around town all night in that rig and end up with a proposal to the prettiest girl in the building. We picked Miss—er—Chester out as she came in tonight and stipulated the art talk when we'd learned her profession. He had to do it. Don't blame Bayes."

The spokesman's repentant eyes met those of the enlightened Miss Chester.

"Awfully sorry," he said remorsefully. "Any way in the world we can apologize, jointly or singly, we'll do it." His solemn face changed convulsively. "Gee," he laughed, "but it was funny."

Polly drew a long breath, and her champion, still holding the victim of initiation by his sweater collar, looked back at her.

"What do you say, Miss Chester?" he asked. "Shall we have these disturbers of the peace jailed, as we could, locked up for the common idiots they are, or"—

It was very comforting to have a protector. Also it was because of these very idiots that "he" was now her protector.

"We will let them go free," she said. Humbly abject, the initiation committee shuffled away. Amused understanding sparkled suddenly in the eyes Polly turned upon her companion. "It must have been funny for them," she said. But Mr. Lawrence was regarding her intently. There seemed to be in his gaze more concern than such abort acquaintance warranted.

"You should not be living here alone," he said abruptly. "A girl like you ought to be cared for in her own home by her own people." The sparkle left Polly's eyes.

"That," she motioned to the bare studio, "is my only home"—she smiled tremulously—"and Patsy all 'my family.'" Patsy, seeing at that moment a chance for a neighborly call, darted across the hall, eluding the girl's grasp. It was the man who after a hasty chase brought him back to her fireside, and, there, forgotten, face uppermost, in plain view, lay Polly's clever sketch.

For long vibrant moments they looked from the drawing back again into each other's eyes, the girl's pained, startled, his glowing with some new emotion, deep, unreadable. Then impulsively he caught up her pencil and with swift steady strokes drew opposite the chair which was his own a slender girlish figure. Fascinated, Polly watched him, and if his pencil was not as skilled as her own the likeness to herself was too true to be mistaken.

Again he raised his glowing tender eyes to hers, then wrote beneath the sketch one word—"Home!" And when the door of his apartment closed behind him Polly caught up the yellow cat. "Of course, Patsy," she said, "it is all a part of my unreal adventurous night. Tomorrow it will not be true."

Patsy narrowed his inscrutable golden eyes and purred contentedly, for the "Home" picture was to come true and Polly would be lonely no more.

HOME DEFENCE

The safeguarding of your home and all it means to you is not a matter of armies and ships alone. The comfort and happiness of your family are exposed to the attacks of enemies much nearer to them than the marauding Huns of Central Europe.

What will become of your home and your wife and your children, if you be suddenly stricken down as thousands of others have been?

Will there be any bulwark of defence to keep the home and the family from destruction?

You can most easily provide such a line of defence by means of a life assurance policy. Home Defence is its purpose and it fulfills that purpose as nothing else can.

Ringworm On Child's Head

Caused Great Distress and Spread to Neck and Ears—Cure was Speedily Effected When Right Treatment Was Recommended.

Grand Bend, Ont., Sept. 12.—There is no disease of the skin more obstinate than ringworm, and the mother who writes this letter does so fully realizing what it will mean to other anxious mothers to know about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

This remarkable cure was brought about two years ago, and as there has been no return of the distressing disease there can be no doubt that the cure is permanent.

Mrs. D. Stebbins, Grand Bend, Ont., writes: "I am going to tell you of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment. My little girl had sores come out on her head which looked like ringworms. They were spreading fast, and I tried home treatment, but nothing helped her. I took her to the doctor, and he opened some of the sores, which were as big as the yoke of an egg. The salve he gave me to put on was very severe, and the poor child would cry for an hour or more after an application. For six weeks it continued to spread all over her head and came down to her neck and ears. She suffered terribly. At last some kind ladies told me about Dr. Chase's Ointment, so I got a box, and the first time I put it on she was relieved of pain, and the second time the swelling was all gone. Before we had finished the first box the sores were nearly all gone. I have told all the people around here about your Ointment, and I cannot praise it too much. It is now two years since my little girl was troubled in this way, and it never came back, so you can see she is completely cured. You are at liberty to use this statement for the benefit of others who may be suffering in a similar manner."

Joseph Brenner, J.P., endorses this statement, as follows: "This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mrs. D. Stebbins of Grand Bend, Ont., and believe her statement with reference to Dr. Chase's Ointment to be true and correct."

A MEXICAN PHILOSOPHER.

Zapata the Revolutionist Wants Common Ownership of Land.

When it is considered that Zapata is a half-breed Indian, scarcely able to read and write, it must be admitted that he is somewhat of a philosopher. I believe that this peon chieftain is the one leader in Mexico who has no ambitions to be a dictator of his country. As long as he can rule his native State and keep the landlords out he is content. He sees only one thing—the land question, but he sees that very clearly. His "Plan of Ayala," as far as it applies to the common ownership of land, has worked to the satisfaction of the poor laborers.

Carranza is still carrying on war against him, but Zapata is holding his own. His army is an elastic one. At times it shrinks to a few thousand men, when the peons go back to their fields. When a campaign is begun his forces swell to many thousands.

One thing is sure. He can't get as many recruits as he has guns.

Whatever the solution of the Mexican problem may be, Zapata and his half million loyal followers must be considered. He will quit fighting only when his "Plan of Ayala" is made part of the law of the nation.

Of all insurgent leaders who have battled for supremacy the last six years in Mexico, he is the one chief who has remained true to his followers. His peons know what they are fighting for. They are battling for land and Don Emiliano Zapata.—Christian Herald.

Wore Rubber Jawplate For Fifteen Years

Rumours That the President Had Been Under the Knife Were Officially Denied at the Time.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—In an article in the current issue of the "Saturday Evening Post" Dr. W. W. Keen, emeritus professor of surgery of the Jefferson Medical college of this city, reveals for the first time the facts connected with the surgical operation performed on President Cleveland on July 1, 1893. It will be recalled that the publication of rumours of such an operation led to animated controversy and to official denial from Washington.

The operation was performed only a few days before congress met in special session to hear Mr. Cleveland's message urging the repeal of the Sherman act and Dr. Keen explains that the reticence regarding Mr. Cleveland's condition was due to the gravity of the financial situation and the belief that it would affect his plans respecting the repeal of this measure.

The operation was performed on board the yacht Oneida, belonging to Commodore E. C. Benedict. Dr. Keen thus describes its extent:

"The entire left jaw was removed from the first biscupid tooth to just beyond the last molar, and nearly up to the middle line. The floor of the orbit—the cavity containing the eyeball—was not removed, as it had not yet been attacked. A small portion of the soft palate was removed."

It was on Sunday, June 18th, of that year that Dr. R. M. O'Reilly, later surgeon-general of the United States army, examined a rough place in Mr. Cleveland's mouth and later an ulcer was discovered. The operation was performed by Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, of New York, assisted by Dr. Keen, Dr. E. C. Janeway, of New York, Dr. O'Reilly, Dr. John F. Erdmann, and Dr. Ferdinand Hasbrouck, dentist, was also present as an assistant. The operation was done entirely from the inside, so no telltale scar was left and later the President was fitted with a rubber jaw-plate which enabled him to retain his accustomed voice and pronunciation. Some weeks later a second operation was performed to remove additional tissue.

Dr. Cleveland died 15 years after the operation.

COMPARED TO CONSTANTINOPLE.

(Christian Science Monitor)

A Canadian correspondent is indignant at the mere suggestion that any person should imagine that there are worse streets anywhere than in Montreal. He wants to know where in Boston any one is going to equal St. Catherine Street, Montreal. St. Catherine street, he insists, after rain is Venetian in the extent of its water, even if it does not resemble it in any one single other thing. Any one who knows St. Catherine street will admit this without question. But it must be observed that this paper was writing of roadways, and not of practical jokes. If you want to equal St. Catherine street you must apply to the municipality of Constantinople, where they don't worry about such things at all.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

COULD EASILY GET 50,000 MEN

Judging From Cards Signed Under the National Service Scheme

POINTER ON REFERENDUM

Nearly Twice as Many Said No as Yes to Query on Changing Work.

OTTAWA, Sept. 25.—With the disbandment of the National Service Board, as announced by the Director-General, Mr. R. B. Bennett, M.P., last week, the information gathered through the man-power inventory taken by the Board last winter has been turned over to the Advisory Council in charge of the administration of the Military Service Act.

Some of the statistics gathered from the compilation of the 1,549,360 registration cards returned to the Board last spring are illuminative, as having a bearing upon the working out of the Military Service Act.

Of the cards received and classified as "military prospects" the total number engaged in non-essential occupations was 286,976. These cards were signed by men between the ages of 17 and 45. They include both married and unmarried men, with or without dependents, and apply only to those who, so far as the answers on the cards indicated, were physically fit.

Number Available for First Class.

More specific figures indicate the number of men who would be available under the first class of the Military Service Act, although the classification according to age made by the National Service Board is different from the classification of the Military Service Act. The registration cards showed that there were between the ages of 17 and 30 a total of 67,881 unmarried men, with no dependents, and not engaged in essential occupations. These men will naturally be the first to be called upon under conscription.

By Provinces the National Service record shows that there were 2,933 in Alberta, 3,134 in British Columbia, 3,784 in Manitoba, 3,341 in New Brunswick, 5,880 in Nova Scotia, 785 in Prince Edward Island, 3,529 in Saskatchewan, 14,912 in Quebec, 29,487 in Ontario, 40 in the Yukon, and 6 in the North-West Territory. All these men, by voluntary signing the registration cards, have practically admitted that they are eligible for conscription, with no special home ties, no essential work on hand, and no dependents to look after. Under the circumstances there should be no difficulty in getting at least the first two drafts of 25,000 men each under the Military Service Act.

It is to be noted that the registration cards did not by any means give a complete inventory of Canada's man power, since the signing was made voluntary, and not compulsory, as advocated by the Board itself. It is estimated that only about 85 per cent. of the male population filled in the cards sent out.

Nearly Twice as Many Said "No."

Other statistics compiled by the Board are interesting as showing the relative willingness of "military prospects" to leave their present employment to engage in some other work at the same rate of pay which the Government might deem essential for war times. Among the industrial classes, 39,595 men declared that they would be willing to take up other essential war work, but 71,061 answered "No." In Ontario 13,650 answered the Government question by "Yes" and 25,550 answered "No." In Quebec 4,490 answered "Yes" and 7,000 answered "No." In Manitoba 3,640 answered "Yes" and 7,910 answered "No." In Saskatchewan 3,430 answered "Yes" and 7,910 answered "No." In Nova Scotia 3,780 answered "Yes" and 7,500 answered "No." The proportion of men who seem to believe that they themselves are better judges of what they should do in war-time than the Government seems to run about the same in all the Provinces. The figures given might also be taken as an indication as to how the vote might run if a referendum were taken on the conscription issue. Even in cases where men were temporarily not working at any trade at all, the majority of the answers were against taking up some essential war work which the Government might indicate. Of the unemployed industrial classes, 4,894 answered "Yes" and 7,464 answered "No."

Powers Not Clearly Defined.

The passing of the National Service Board, which cost the country some hundreds of thousands of dollars, was marked by a somewhat significant statement in Mr. Bennett's valedictory. He declared that the functions and duties of the Board were not clearly enough defined at the outset, and that the initial mistake of the Government was in not meeting the wishes of the Board that the signing of the cards should be made compulsory. He quoted, as being applicable to his own case, the words of the Director-General of National Service in England in dealing with a similar condition, as follows:

"It is apparent that the rock upon which the department split was the fact that a local habitation and a loud-sounding name was given to it, and then it was launched with a roving commission to discover its functions and duties, but left without any statutory powers and no boundaries delimiting its sphere."

A CITY OF HARDSHIPS.

Focshani in Path of Austro-German Advance Through Moldavia.

Focshani, the Roumanian city which lies in the path of the Austro-German advance through Moldavia, is the subject of the following war geography bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters:

"Situated on the banks of the River Mlikov, a tributary of the Sereth, Focshani also spelled Fokshani), is ninety-two miles north-east of the Roumanian capital (before its capture by the Germans), Bucharest, and forty-seven miles north-west of the important Danube port of Galatz. Before the union of the principalities of Moldavia and Wallachia into the kingdom of Roumania this city was one of the frontier posts on the Russian border.

"The hardships which Focshani is undergoing at the present time are not a new experience to it. It was almost completely destroyed in 1789 by the Russians, when they, with their Austrian allies, administered a crusing defeat to Turkey. It was in this war that Potemkin, Catherine the Great's favourite, captured Ochakov, and over its loss Sultan Abd-ul-Hamid I. grieved himself to death.

"Thirty-three years after Focshani's bitter experience at the hands of the Muscovites the Turks in turn burned the town.

"The Roumanians some years ago erected elaborate fortifications between Focshani and Galatz, the works being known as the Sereth line, fully described in a recent war geography bulletin on the Sereth River, issued by the National Geographic Society. These fortifications have been of no value in staying the German advance, for they were designed solely with the idea of repelling a Russian foe.

"Before the war Focshani enjoyed a considerable grain trade, being one of the clearing ports for Moldavian wheat bound for Galatz and the Black Sea. Its industrial activity was also appreciable, the chief products being oil, soap and leather.

"The mineral resources in the vicinity of Focshani promise much wealth in the future, a Government survey showing rich deposits of coal, iron and copper in the neighbourhood, and some indications of petroleum. Some of the finest wne made in Roumania formerly came from Focshani vineyards.

"The population of the city is about 25,000, one-quarter of that number being Jews."

NO TOUCH WITH HUMANITY.

Pampering of Girls Denounced by University of Michigan Professor

Undoubtedly the sheltered lives of ease and luxury led by many girls in the wealthy class, and even by some in the well-to-do class, disincline them to undergo the hardships of bearing and raising a family, writes Dr. Warren S. Thompson of the University of Michigan in the Scientific Monthly. To a girl who has been brought up in the belief that her own whims and desires are of prime importance and that all values are to be judged by these pampered inclinations, it is often inconceivable that she should deliberately do anything to bring herself pain and work and worry, and probably even deprivation of some customary luxuries.

Such girls, brought up apart from the stern realties of life, are not capable of judging values aright. They know little of the feelings and values which grow up naturally when men and women struggle side by side, help to bear one another's burdens, share sorrows as well as joys, and, above all, live close to the great streams of simple, work-a-day humanity. Women whose only passion is for ease and luxury lose touch with humanity and substitute for true human values those of a small and highly institutionalized class.

INJURED MAN HURT AGAIN.

Leaving Hospital, is Struck by Lightning—Back in Old Ward Again.

Discharged from a hospital at Johnston, Pa., after he had been laid up several weeks with a broken leg, John Muck, limping home on crutches, sought refuge under a large tree during a storm. Lightning struck the tree, and Muck was knocked a distance of fifteen feet into a hedge. Two deputy sheriffs from Allegheny county, here on business, were standing in the entrance of a coal mine and saw the incident. They picked up the injured man, called the hospital ambulance, and Muck is back again in the same ward from which he was discharged in the morning. He is seriously injured.

HEROIC CORPORAL TO BE DECORATED.

Took Five Austrians Prisoner and Made Second aid with Seven Companions.

(Special Cable to the Herald.)

ROME, via Paris.—The field correspondent of the Secolo exalts the new glories of the Sazzari brigade for its heroic capture of the heights of Kravesec, saying this feat will remain a brilliant chapter in the war's history. The following episode is related:

The Austrians were attempting a counter attack and our command wanted to try its new troops just taken to the line and if possible capture some prisoners. Corporal Raimundo Scintu, knowing this, went to his lieutenant, offering himself as a volunteer. The officer said an effort would be useless as, if alone, he would go to certain death.

Scintu insisted. "Let me go, Lieutenant," he pleaded, and the officer finally consented. Soon afterward he saw Scintu returning, bringing five Austrians. Handing them over to the officer, he said: "I only captured five. Give me seven men and I promise to bring back a hundred.

Scintu declared he saw abundant booty, adding: "For God's sake Lieutenant, don't let them escape."

The officer then selected seven Sardos, who left with Scintu, returning singly each with a group of prisoners. Fearing an enemy attack our men were ready with bayonets to attack any would-be rescuers of the prisoners. The Sardos shouted "Don't shoot!" but Scintu was not among them, and one soldier explained that Scintu took them to the mouth of a cavern, which he entered first, and not giving the Austrians time to defend themselves, he rushed against an officer, catching him by the throat. A tremendous struggle followed. Scintu was armed with a knife and defended himself from a ring of enemies while trying to take the officer out of the cavern.

Scintu wounded all the Austrians in the cavern and captured most of them.

While explaining later to his lieutenant the details of the encounter Scintu was recognized by a wounded prisoner, who with feline wrath caught him up and threw him to the ground. Scintu will receive a high decoration for his daring exploit.

BEANS FOR EVERYBODY

This Year's crop in U.S. is far Ahead of Record.

In recent jubilation over the country's excellent crop prospects one important factor was overlooked. The humble bean has leaped into prominence which almost justifies our ranking it with King Corn. The production of navy beans—which might just as well be called "army beans" represents a remarkable agricultural achievement.

The recorded bean crop of the country has stood in recent years, at about 10,00,000 bushels. The 1915 crop was 10,321,000 bushels, and the 1916 crop 8,846,000. These figures represent only the output of the six dealing bean States, California, Michigan, New York, Colorado, New Mexico and Wisconsin.

Well, this year four States alone have raised 32,141,000 bushels of beans, and they have done it by increasing their bean acreage by 184 per cent. Michigan alone, with its 8,281,000 bushels, has almost duplicated the output of the whole country for last year. California is a close second, with 7,206,000 bushels. Then followed New York with 2,935,000 bushels, and Colorado with 2,601,000.

Other States yet to be heard from will no doubt add several million bushels. But the production mentioned is in itself reason for national self-congratulation. There will be beans for everybody. We could feed all the armies in the world with that crop. The bean allowance to soldiers is 400 rations to a bushel. The crop of our four great bean States would make a full year's ration for more than 24,000,000 soldiers. — Arizona Gazette.

MADE MALTA A GARDEN.

Maltese Brought Shiploads of Soil to Barren, Rocky Isle.

What Maltese was like before the Maltese found it one cannot imagine, says the Manchester Guardian. Presumably there was some soil somewhere, hidden among the little valleys that scar the golden rock. But there was very little soil. Most of the island must have been just plain rock, with nothing in particular to recommend it. But somewhere in the dawn of history there came an industrious ingenious race who proceeded to make the best of it. They have been doing that all down the centuries, till now they have reduced it to a fine art, and the barren rock is a garden from end to end.

They realized, those clever Maltese, that although they might not have earth enough to grow their food, there were plenty of people who had enough and to spare. So they sent their ships abroad, and the ships came back loaded with just plain earth. This earth they took and spread on the ledges of their rocks and sowed their seed and reaped their harvests and prospered exceedingly.

BRITISH OFFENSIVE ON A BIG SCALE

LITTLE DAMAGE IN LAST NIGHT'S RAID

BRITISH ATTACK ON A WIDE FRONT IN YPRES SECTION

Field Marshall Haig Announces the Commencement of a New Drive at 5.50 o'clock This Morning. Satisfactory Progress is Made. British Air Craft Bomb German Base at Ostend. Six Killed in Last Night's Air Raid.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 26.—The British offensive in Belgium on a big scale was resumed this morning with further victories. General Haig reports: "We attacked on a wide front on the battle sector northeast and east of Ypres at 5:50 a.m. to-day, and our troops are reported to be making good progress.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, September 26.—Along the northern half of the battle line to the east of Ypres, where Field Marshal Haig resumed the offensive this morning, British have advanced at numerous places for a distance of from 1,000 to 1,200 yards. An early report which was somewhat vague indicated that British infantry was fighting along a line only a "few hundred yards of Zonnebeke." The Germans are resisting desperately, and along a front of some thousand yards astride the Ypres-Menin Road, a terrific struggle is proceeding. In their new attack the British pushed back the Germans over the high ground east of Ypres.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, September 26.—The German naval base of Ostend on the Belgian coast was bombarded yesterday by British naval forces. British aerial patrols encountered six hostile airplanes and downed two.

ROME, September 26.—The Vatican denies reports that Pope Benedict intends to make proposals for peace involving mediation by King Alfonso of Spain.

PARIS (Official), September 26.—Intense artillery fighting occurred last night the Verdun front between Beaumont and Bezonvaux.

Last Night's Raid Killed Six People

German Air Fleet Formation Speeding Towards Border was Completely Broken up by British Flyers and Only One Enemy Machine Succeeded in Reaching the Metropolis.

(Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON (Official), September 26.—Six persons were killed and sixteen injured in the southeastern outskirts of London in last night's air raid.

The area bombed in Tuesday night's raid was inhabited chiefly by poorer classes, but aside from breaking of windows and slight damage to two or three small frame houses there was no property damage. Although details are lacking it is reported that a thrilling battle occurred between German and British airmen last night, a few miles from London, which probably accounts for the fact that last night's air raid resulted in so little damage in the metropolis. German airplanes, although they crossed the coast at different points, were met and continually harried by a large force of British machines. Whether any of the raiders was brought down has not been learned, but according to early reports the formation of the German fleet which was coming towards London at a great height and at great speed, was completely broken up by the British flyers, the raiders separating and all except one which reached London, turned back, closely pursued.

American Soldiers and Sailors in Air Raid

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Lowell Mellett)

LONDON, September 26.—Upwards of 100 American soldiers and sailors felt their first taste of war during the air raids of the past two nights on London. The sound of the anti-aircraft guns bring to them the first warning of the raid was greeted with a cheer. They rushed out into the street from the Y.M.C.A. hut where they were playing cards and pool singing "We're coming Kaiser Bill." After the raid they joined the British in a denunciation of the "baby killers." The American soldiers and sailors caught under the fire of the raiders wanted to rush into the street to see the attack at the first sound of the guns. The sergeant in command ordered them first to remain where they were. Then he commanded them to form in line two abreast. The sergeant sent his little detachment forward and they marched out and across the street to the cellars. While the shells were bursting high overhead and lights sweeping the sky, the voices of the Americans were raised in their songs of defiance to the Kaiser. A score of American woman war-workers accompanied the sailors to the cellars prepared for refuge during such air raids. They were just as cool as the men. When the "all clear" signal was sounded, indicating the Germans had been driven off, the Sammies and sailors emerged from their cellars and returned to their games in the Y.M.C.A. hut.

Delay In Calling Out First Draft

OTTAWA, September 25.—The first call of men under the military service act is delayed. It cannot well now be issued before the middle of October, although every effort will be made to avoid unnecessary postponement. The difficulty has arisen in connection with the Board of Selection established to choose one member of each Local Tribunal throughout the Dominion. The board met again to-day, but adjourned till October 9th without having formally chosen its appointees. Under the order-in-Council which gave the board its authority, it was provided that all appointments should be completed to-day, or the Minister of Justice would be empowered to fill all the vacancies. Later the Department of Justice unofficially agreed to extend the time till September 30. Now, in view of the situation, the time limit will still further have to be extended, as it is realized that confusion would only be created by the department proceeding to make more than thirteen hundred appointments.

The difficulty to-day arose from the absence of the Saskatchewan members. There was also a point raised in connection with the list submitted by the Manitoba members. While no question was raised as to the nominees on the list, the Manitoba members thought it advisable to give the matter further consideration, and are returning to Winnipeg. There the appointments made by the Manitoba Judges will be reviewed, and if necessary, such changes will be made in the Manitoba list as will secure the most harmonious working Ex-Fire Chief W.A. Howard Secures Position as Deputy Fire Marshal For the Province of Ontario.

SALARY INCREASE

Ex-fire Chief W. A. Howard has been officially notified of his appointment as Deputy Fire Marshal for the Provincial Government. Needless to say the position carries with it a much larger salary than was paid the former Chief of the Peterborough Fire Department. Deputy Fire Marshall Howard as he will now be known is arranging to dispose of his house and some of his furniture preparatory to his removal to Toronto where he and Mrs. Howard will reside. His new office will be in the Parliament buildings, Queen's Park, but his duties will take him over the entire Province. For years the former Chief of the local Fire Department has made an exhaustive study of fire prevention. This knowledge will prove of great value in his new position.

Is Guilty of No Crime

General Soukhomlinoff Says he May Have Been Guilty of Mistakes But of Nothing Criminal.

Canadian Press Despatch:

PETROGRAD, Sept. 26. — General Soukhomlinoff, in his closing speech at his trial for high treason, claimed that the four years he spent at the War Office were insufficient to properly organize the Russian forces. Nevertheless he sent a huge number of effectives to the front, which the Government naturally was unable to supply properly, although the mobilization was carried out brilliantly, and it compelled the Germans to retract their steps from Paris just as they were about to achieve its conquest.

"I may, perhaps, have been guilty of mistakes, but before God and the Fatherland I have no crime with which to reproach myself," said the former Minister of War, as he burst into tears.

Madame Soukhomlinoff then addressed the court, and in a voice choked with sobs, declared vehemently: "We are not criminals, neither I nor my husband." The jury then retired to consider the fourteen indictments submitted to them.

New Officers Are Chosen By The Local Great War Veterans

Comrade Harvey Staunton, Formerly of the 15th Battalion is New Head at Peterborough Branch. Pte. J.T. Lang of Peterborough is Wounded. Lance Corp. Stuart arrives in Canada. To.day's Military News.

At a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, held in the Barrie Building, last night, new officers were chosen to fill the vacancies caused by the departure to the United States of several of the former officers. Owing to their engagement with the Canadian Returned Soldiers' trench exhibit they were unable to carry on the duties of their positions and new leaders had to be chosen.

Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P., honourary president of the local branch, was, on motion, elected chairman of the meeting.

Comrade Harvey Staunton, who has been a member of the Executive Committee, was chosen as President of the Association. Comrade Staunton went overseas with the first Canadian contingent, and was at the front with the 15th Battalion. He was wounded and invalided to England, and later returned to France with a trench mortar battery, serving some time before being finally invalided home. He is an old member of the 57th Regiment and a well-known citizen of Peterborough, who should make a splendid leader for the local branch.

The position of Vice-President fell to Comrade Geo. Toone, formerly sergeant in the 93rd Battalion and a local business man.

Comrade Sidney Whatley, who was at the front with the 1st Wiltshire Battalion, and who was one of the first Peterborough men to arrive in France in September, 1914, was chosen for the responsible position of Secretary. Comrade Whatley has been doing good work for the G. W. V. A. as Chairman of the Relief Commitee, and representative at the Patriotic Fund meetings. He has lost three brothers in the war.

Comrade Geo. Coleman, formerly sergeant in the 93rd Battalion, will look after the exchequer of the G. W. V. A., being the unanimous choice for the position of Treasurer.

Two vacancies on the Executive Committee were filled by the election of Comrades Gordon Fallen and Wm. Saxby. The former went overseas with the first contingent serving in the 14th Battalion and is one of the charter members of the G. W. V. A., while Comrade Saxby was at the front with the 21st Battalion and was mentioned in despatches for good work. His brother, Sergt. Norman Saxby has just been awarded the military medal.

After the election of officers President Staunton took the chair, and general business was discussed. Two new members were admitted, in the persons of Sergt.-Major Tom Blunt and Sergt. John Miller, two Peterborough soldiers who are connected with Queen's Military Hospital, at Kingston. The Peterborough Branch of the G. W. V. A. is growing steadily and now has a membership of 181 returned officers and men..

New Quarters.

The question of the campaign for larger quarters for the Association was discussed and, on motion of Comrades Muir and Irwin, the Secretary was instructed to write Mrs. Knox in regard to the proposed Ladies' Auxiliary for the G. W. V. A. It was the opinion of the members tha the campaign must be launched in the near future, as the present quarters are not large enough to accommodate the rapidly growing organization.

Lieut.-Col. Johnston suggested that for the present meetings could be held in the recreation room at the rmouries, which would surely be available for returned men.

Capt. Burnham thought there would be no difficulty in securing permission to make use of the accomodation there.

Capt. Burnham also remarked that he was pleased to see such a large attendance at the meeting. He announced that it was his intention in the matter of appointments, to deal with the Great War Veterans' Association, and he was glad to see the interest displayed as he was anxious that the nominations made by the Association for positions that might be vacant should thoroughly represent the returned soldiers.

PTE. LANG WOUNDED.

The name of Pte. J. T. Lang, of Peterborough appears in to-day's casualty list officially reported wounded. Pte. Lang was at the front with an infantry unit.

A telegram received on Tuesday evening. September 25, announces the safe arrival of Lce.-Corp. Eric Stuart at Quebec. He served with a machine gun section in the 5th C. M. R's., going over to France with the 1st draft from the 93rd Battalion, and was wounded May 9th.

Mrs. W .A. Bell, R. R. No. 4 Peterborough has received the following letter from the officer in charge of records in regard to her son, Lance Corp. R. B. Bell, formerly of the 93rd Battalion who has been ill and suffering from shell shock for some time.

"I have the honour to inform you that the following is an extract from a cable received from England relative to the non-commissioned officer marginally noted:—"196502 Lance Corp. Robert Bruce Bell, Canadian Special Hospital, Etchinghill, progressing favourably, will be fit in two weeks.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Sept. 25.—It was close on midnight. I had just finished correcting the last page of a batch of typescript. I heard the sound of distant guns. "Boom! Boom! Boom! Boob!"

In London there are only two explanations for gun firing, practice or air raids, and we do not have practice just on midnight. I went to a temporary invalid confined to bed, upstairs. "Firing," she said cheerily. "If you had not been so absorbed in your work you would have noticed it an hour ago. There it is again!" "Boom!"

I telephoned to the office of a morning paper to send up a boy for my "copy." It was all ready for them. "We had better not send a boy out yet," came a voice over the 'phone. "We are expecting an air raid. The comps have been brought downstairs. They will come up as soon as it's all clear."

Up on the high flat roof of my home there was little to be seen. It was a glorious early autumn night. The harvest moon lit up the panorama of London roofs and spires and towers. After an interval a solitary searchlight shot out and swept the skies. From the far distance, there came again the sound of the guns.

FEW IN STREET.

There were few people in the street below. Most knew that a raid was afoot, and had taken shelter. A neighbour was doning his uniform to go forth on duty as Inspector of Special Constabulary. A soldier—oddly enough a Canadian soldier—wandering aimlessly through the streets stopped for a moment and discussed the situation. What would happen?

Then it came. First, there was a low purring thrill in the air. This grew and grew rapidly till it seemed to fill the entire heavens with one great throbbing roar. I have heard the noise of aeroplanes before many a time. I have seen them in their great squadrons doing battle on more than one front. But never have I heard noise such as this. It seemed to one as though it were the advancing heralds of the Angel of Death, shouting their warning through the sky to prepare for the last dread messenger. And for more than one poor soul on this night the thrill of the throbbing planes was in truth the warning of the pale summoner's coming.

GUNS OPEN UP.

And now the guns began. A haze had suddenly sprung up that shut the enemy planes from view. Here and there we could catch little glints of light in the sky. What were they? Shrapnel bursting or aerial combats between our planes and their own. No one could say. Now came tremendous explosions of bursting bombs, one after the other, each louder than the last, telling that the enemy were coming nearer. And then they became fainter again. They had passed over us.

There was a pause. The streets were still almost deserted. Now we heard a fire engine sweep by. Now an ambulance came along. A soldier declared that he had seen one burst of light to the west. Another said that he had seen one to the north. While we were talking the sounds of explosions began again. The Gothas had come back again. We could see in the heavens a number of search lights concentrated together on one spot. The beams moved steadily onwards till they seemed right over our heads. Again came the loud explosions. "There it is," cried one of our little party. "Can't you see it?"

HIT DRAPERY HOUSE.

A man directed me to the scene of the nearest explosion. Although the

"NOT A QUESTION OF GRIT OR TORRY NOW" SAYS CAPT. BURNHAM

Member for West Peterborough Discusses the Coming Election, Conscription and Other Matters at Meeting of Great War Veterans

NO POLITICAL MEETINGS

That he does not regard the coming election as a political fight on the old time lines, was the keynote of a short address given by Capt. J. H. Burnham, M. P., to the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans Association at the meeting in the Barrie Building last night.

"I do not intend to hold any political meetings," Capt. Burnham informed the veterans. "I'll have a few meetings at which the question of winning the war and the best means of accomplishing this end can be discussed. It is not a question this time of Grit and Tory—it is, are you for helping the win the war with all the punch you can put in it or are you not?

"I do not know what opposition there will be here," added the speaker. "For the life of me I cannot see why there should be any on this occasion. I cannot see what any intelligent people representing the best traditions of British freedom could mean by taking a stand against any man who is for winning the war, and who is acting in good faith."

There was, however, a strong element in Parliament and out of it which was against win-the-war measures. "Some parts of Canada are as black as night," remarked Capt. Burnham.

The speaker reviewed the stand he had taken in Parliament in regard to the pension system. He had cited, he said, twenty-six cardinal objections to the pension scale now in operation, which he characterized as absurd. Now, however, he said the whole pension system was being revised and the new pension would, he thought, be found satisfactory and adequate.

There were many delays and mistakes in regard to separation allowances, assigned pay and similar matters, which were due in some measure to the stupidity of some of the Civil Service employees at Ottawa, and also to the huge amount of business that had to be transacted. These mistakes were being decreased as a better organization was being evolved.

The greatest duty before the country was to see that the supply of men for the front was maintained. Finances and food would be forthcoming—it was essential that Canada should not fall down in providing the men.

INDUSTRIAL NIGHT CLASSES.

It is to be hoped that there will be a general interest taken in the industrial night classes arranged by the Board of Education, and to open the beginning of next month. Here is a splendid chance for recovery of lost ground for those who have not had opportunities of education—especially of the practical kind, that these night classes are intended to supply, and will supply, to those who honestly take advantage of them.

Modern industrial conditions involve specialization and a greater degree of educational equipment, if workers are to be more than hewers of wood and drawers of water. The education of the head and the hand must go together. This war will be followed by another war—an industrial and commercial war—a fight for a place in the markets of the world. Men who know declare that the methods of scientific and research work must be perfected if Canada is to take her place in the victorious ranks of the coming industrial and commercial conflict. This conflict will require wise heads and wise heads will need educated and intelligent workmen to apply the improved methods they may evolve.

We have need for a more advanced and more thorough industrial education and training. In default of it we use the emergency or first-aid means represented by the industrial night schools.

It may be encouraging to those who feel their defects in practical knowledge to know how much can be accomplished by application—by making use of after hours and spare time. These night classes are for them, and they will be short-sighted if they do not make use of them. In after years they will repent if they permit the momentary pleasures and amusements of their evenings—often harmful and demoralising—interfere with their getting education that will make them better workmen and help the promotion in employment that comes most often to the man that is most fit all round—head as well as hands.

A CHASTENED SPIRIT.

Germany backs down to Argentina, and eats humble pie, cooked and served by a "detestable little republic." Argentina resented the activities and submarine sentiments of Luxburg, the German minister at Buenos Aires, and sent an ultimatum to Berlin, whose apology, repudiated the minister, and the pending vote to break with Germany, was not taken.

This seems a small matter, as Argentina has a population of scant seven millions. But it shows that Germany is getting enough of war, and is becoming humble under the drubbing that is being administered. Germany took a high tone, an insulting and irritating tone, with the United States, from the beginning, doubtless because it felt that the United States would stand almost anything before it would go to war. But like other calculations of German diplomatic stupidity, the Hun was fooled. The United States would not stand anything; it went to war, and has gone into the business with such tremendous earnestness and fearless thoroughness that Germany sees the folly of her bullying tactics that brings new and powerful enemies against her. The feeling is so strong that she can't afford any more enemies, and that the war is steadily and increasingly going against her, that the braggart power that set out to achieve "world domination," is glad to knuckle to a little "one horse" trans-atlantic republic. The crestfalling of German arrogance and deceit is a good and hopeful sign for those fighting the battle of humanity. It shows, along with the scheming and necessarily crooked movement for peace made by Germany, that peace will be welcome, though Germany is not yet bumbled to the point where a peace such as the Allies must insist upon can be made.

A year ago Germany saw nothing but triumph ahead of her, and would not think of peace. That she is now seeking peace is proof that she sees that the game is up and that defeat must come. Hence the effort to break the fall by a premature peace.

The government is getting some hints as to its duty. The Lucknow Methodist District meeting has joined the Niagara Falls W.C.T.U. in demanding the prohibition of the use of grain to make whisky.

PROGRESSIVE PERSISTENCE.

The report of the third annual meeting of the Peterborough Progressive Club, published yesterday in The Examiner, is an interesting document. It is not chiefly remarkable as a record of work accomplished in war waging help, though it is conspicuous for that—the collection and wise expenditure of some $2,000 in the course of the past year, represents a splendid work for the soldiers abroad and is noteworthy.

But the most interesting and important part of the report of the third annual meeting of the club is the fact that it was the third annual meeting. The club was organized early in the second month of the war, and has been working with progressive zeal and efficiency ever since; the esprit de corps, the spirit of work, has not lessened. The "activity of the club has not diminished and interest has kept up wonderfully." This is altogether praiseworthy, and is a shining example of the splendid work that women here, as elsewhere throughout Canada, have done in helping bring victory nearer and sooner. One commendable feature—a general indication of efficiency—is that they do their work without undue fuss and with quiet effectiveness, an example to many of our public men. Women of the type of the members of the Progressive Club, may seek no reward, but they have abundant reward in the consciousness of duty well discharged; in the gratitude of our soldiers and their friends, and the admiration and appreciation of all their patriotic fellow citizens. Whether they get all this or not will probably make no difference—they will continue their "progresaive" persistence all the same.

Three years' faithful and fruitful work are creditable to the officials and membership of the club, which in the past three years has done a very notable amount of good work, representing a good deal of personal sacrifice and much hard work. Very few organizations have shown the progressive persistence, the same noble obstinancy in well doing, as the Peterborough Progressive Club.

The Borden government deserves this credit, if it is a credit—it is loyal to its bread and butter.

THE SYMPATHY DODGE.

Public servants are public servants, and their official actions and their relations to these and to the people are legitimately subject to revision by the public and to such criticism as circumstances warrant. We have a new development in this regard. We have the press friendly to the government, who appoints public servants, from the greatest luminaries to the rush-lights of the press, taking up a new role, the sympathy dodge.

We are told, more in sorrow than in anger, that attacks on conspicuous public servants, will keep big men out of public life. For instance, the Financial Post says that the "attack on Sir Joseph Flavelle will keep big men out of public life." It declares that the inquiry into the affairs of the William Davies Company shows—

> "That there is a motive, and a sinister one, behind the whole affair. There is nothing being revealed that does not come within the realm of legitimate business, and no indications that profits have been made which were not warranted by the nature of the enterprise, the volume of trade, and the risks involved."

The Post adds that "the investigation is not aimed at the company so much as to "provide an excuse for an attack upon Sir Joseph Flavelle." We are also told Sir Joseph Flavelle "at the sacrifice of his personal affairs has given his services to the nation in this great war crisis."

A great financial journal may have its opinion of what constitutes sacrifice of "personal affairs," but the public have a different opinion as to the "sacrifices" he has made—the ordinary citizen will not consider that service to the nation in the great war crisis, accompanied by personal profits of a private nature that should satisfy a Croesus, did not involve any very painful "sacrifice of personal affairs."

As to the use of "attacks on Sir Joseph Flavelle" to prove that such attacks tend to "keep big men out of public life," the reasoning will not convince. Sir John Macdonald and Sir Wilfred Laurier kept in public life about half a century each. They were both subject to the most vigorous and persistent "attacks," and these big men were not put out or kept out of public life. It was true of them, as it is not true of our modern "big men," that they made sacrifice of their own affairs to give great public service. In both cases this sacrifice was so great that their party friends and admirers had to "pass the hat" to raise funds to permit them to live in a style consistent with the positions they occupied. They were both "abused like pickpockets," yet they were not driven out of public life, and they were not helped by the possession of millions, to bear the attacks which both of them, so far as they were reasonable, felt and knew they more or less deserved.

When public men, instead of accepting criticism as part of the sacrifice public service involves, play the sympathy game and beg off criticism, there must be a sneaking consciousness that no other escape from "attack" and reasonable criticism is available.

A telephone operators' strike did not affect local telephones in the province of Alberta, because they are automatic and have no grievance so long as they are kept oiled.

The Conscription of Wealth To Equallze Sacrifice

Some time ago, when conscription of wealth was proposed, it was said that it was a mere excuse for opposing conscription of men. That objection can no longer be urged, because conscription of men is already the law. The field is clear therefore for the discussion of conscription of wealth. For those who peevishly reject that phrase as inexact, let us say that the discussion is on the failure of our law to make wealth and profits carry their fair share of the burdens of the war.

The Board of Social Service of the Methodist Church of Canada and other parts of British North America does not believe that workingmen should make all the sacrifice while the employers make little or none. This view is emphasized by the investigation into the cold storage business, and also by the annual reports of companies. The William Davies Company last year made a gross profit of $1,827,000 on a capital stock of two millions. After making deduction for depreciation of factories, etc., a profit of $1,279,993 still remained. Looking at the matter in the most favourable light, this company cannot be said to be making any sacrifices at all. The war is to it not a burden but a source of gain.

The net earnings of the Laurentide Paper Company last year were $2,220,600, as compared with $1,244,283 last year, an increase of nearly a million dollars. The sum of $268,181 was reserved for the business profits tax. After deducting profits tax, interest charges, depreciation, etc., the profits amounted to $1,720,600. This is at the rate of 17 per cent. on the common stock. No sacrifice there.

The Nova Scotia Steel Company earned $2,094,170 in 1915, and in 1916 after writing off all betterments to plants, depreciation, doubtful accounts, and war taxes, its earnings were $2,104,478. During six months of this year its net income was $1,596,470, being about $40 per share of the common stock. On June 30 of this year the company's net surplus of cash and quick assets for working capital was $5,500,000.

Compare any of these cases with that of the soldiers. Many give their eyes, any come back crippled, gas-poisoned, or shell-shocked, and handicapped in the struggle for existence. Even those who escape death or serious wounds give up their regular occupations and their chances of promotion or of building up a business or profession. No matter how well-disposed the community may be when these men return the loss can never be repaired.

One of the points made at the Social Service meeting was that a capitalist who thinks he has done his duty by not actually increasing his wealth during the war has a very poor and low conception of patriotic duty. That is surely true.

Annual Tag Day of Children's Aid Society on Saturday, Oct. 6th

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—On October 6, just two days before Thanksgiving Day, we will hold our annual tag day, and I thought the people might want to know why they should give and give generously: 1st. Our work depends on liberal support from the public, as we have no other means of revenue, true we have received several bequests in the past, but only the interest is available now. I have been the agent of the Peterborough Society about three months, and I can see where the work is growing and will continue to grow as the months go by. I think next winter will be a very trying one for our society, and we will need all the money the people in their kindness will give us. In my short experience I have wondered at the opportunities to do good work in helping a good many people. I wish it were possible for me to tell the public just what work is being done, but we are always under the handicap of having to keep much of our work secret out of respect to the people we deal with, and the scandals better not revealed, but if the subscribers to our funds could see some of the thankful looks and expressions of unfortunate people we meet they would double their subscriptions. I realize that my work is the best of missionary work, much needed among our people. As our work is distinctly child work your agent finds plenty to do along that line. We are very careful to put our wards out in good homes, and as a proof how they make good, this week I recommended the release from our care of a fine girl making $12.00 per week (and she does not know she is an adopted girl.) Another girl I visited is in one of the finest homes in our city, trusted and loved, and a credit to any home. These girls when young had no prospect before them but poverty and hardship. I will close my letter with two pictures, one in the past and one in the future. First look back some five years or more, we see a home, father making big money, but spending most of it in drink, mother and children very poor but honest. Children sent to the Children's Aid, mother to hospital with tubercular tendency.

Second—Father reported dead, mother regained her health, and after making good pay for some years, looking forward to the time when she can with the children's help, start life over again and gather together the scattered units of a divided family, it may take a little more time yet, but who will help your agent to make both pictures actual facts.

Yours truly,
GEO. W. POWELL,
Agent C.A.S.

SHORTER SEASON IN THE AMERICAN

War Makes Necessary a Step Long Contemplated—National Likely to Follow.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. — President Johnston, of the American League, has decided to advocate a shorter playing season next year. He plans to begin the American League race on May 1 and wind it up on October 1. This means that the players' contracts will cover a period of five months instead of six, and that salaries will be reduced accordingly.

The schedule will consist of 140 games, instead of 154, Johnson's argument being that the uncertain spring weather makes an earlier start inadvisable. When the National League takes this matter up it will receive the endorsement of at least one club owner, C. H. Ebbets, of Brooklyn. The others probably will fall into line at the proper time, inasmuch as baseball expenses in 1918 must be greatly curtailed because of war conditions.

75,000 APPLY TO WHITE SOX FOR TICKETS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—There have been more than 75,000 applicants for seats for the World's Series received at the park of the Chicago American League club, it was announced tonight by officers of the National Commission in sending out notice that there would be no further seat reservations.

The seating capacity for the Chicago games has been over-subscribed three times, it was said. Although it will be impossible to reserve any further seats, on the days of games there will be 15,000 seats on sale, one to an individual, at 50 cents and $1 each.

BRAVES OFFER TO PLAY SERIES FOR RED CROSS.

Would Tackle Red Sox in Boston City Series Under Any Conditions.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—A challenge for a city series of baseball games this fall was issued to-day by President Haughton, of the Boston Nationals, to President Frazee, of the Red Sox. He said he was willing to play on the customary division of receipts, or that he would agree that the losing club turn over its share to the winning club or to the Red Cross, whichever of those alternatives was acceptable to Mr. Frazee.

Ford Cars at The Lakefield Fair

The staff at the Duffus Garage had a beautiful exhibit at the Lakefield Fair which proved to be a great attraction and also profitable from a standpoint of sales, as seven cars were sold during the two days.

A number of these customers placed their orders for Spring delivery, taking advantage of the present price, which is sure to go up.

The one-ton truck is also attracting great attention, a number of men expressing their intention of putting them into practical use at once.

A Lecture on Food Values

About two hundred people attended the canning demonstration that was given yesterday afternoon in the Conservatory of Music Hall under the direction of Miss Marjorie Williams of the Institute Branch of the Department of Agriculture. Beets, carrots, tomatoes and other vegetables were canned at yesterday's demonstration. During the afternoon Miss Williams gave a lecture on food values and also gave general directions for the care of perishable food.

The demonstration to be held this afternoon will include the production of war bread.

MILITARY NEWS

The Kingston Whig says:

Lieut.-Col. R. J. Gardiner, A. D. M.S., has selected the following doctors to compose the medical boards which have been or are to be established throughout the district (the first named being president):

Peterborough—Majors Cameron and Eastwood and Capt. Greer.

Port Hope—Captains Moxley, McKinley and Hopkins.

Trenton—Lieut.-Col. Kidd, Captains Crowe and Van Blakslee.

Belleville—Major McCall, Captains R. Tennant and Gibson.

Kingston—Capt. Jones, Capt. Coglin and one more to be detailed.

Ottawa—Capt. Neil McLeod, C. Laidlaw and A. Davies.

Renfrew and Cornwall boards will be named in a few days.

The Kingston Whig says: With regard to the much discussed "Post Discharge Pay" the Whig has been informed that arrangements are being made to clear this matter up immediately and in the near future all claims of soldiers already discharged will be attended to. The first announcement of this pay was made public prematurely and the soldiers bombarded the department at Ottawa and at the various district headquarters. At the time, which is only a few short weeks ago, there was no system, no appointments nor even office space to start a big peace of clerical machinery to pay out three months' pay to thousands of returned men who came back during the last two years. This has now been set in motion and much has already been accomplished. To further clear up the matter it is understood that back payments in certain cases will be paid in block rather than in three payments.

KAISER VISITS RUMANIA

Tells Troops it is not Germany's Fault if War Continues.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Emperor William, says a despatch from Amsterdam to Reuter's, Limited, has visited the battlefields in Rumania and inspected the troops which participated in the campaign in Transylvania and Rumania in the autumn of 1916. These troops are now on the Moldavia battle front. Addressing the troops Emperor William pointed out the world-wide historical importance of this fighting, which he said, was also of great importance economically for the home lands. The Emperor concluded with the declaration that "if war was to continue it was not the Germans' fault."

You never really know your friends until they become your enemies.

ACCUSED ACQUITTED

Grain Case is Heard by Police Magistrate Langley

In the County Police Court, before His Worship Police Magistrate Langley, Benjamin Franklin, L. Bowen, and George Labell were charged with the theft of grain from Sidney Armstrong, a farmer in North Monaghan. The case took all day for trial, and was finally disposed of by the acquittal of the accused. Mr. J. A. O'Brien, of the firm of Gordon, Widdifield and O'Brien, appeared for the defence and the Crown Attorney, G. W. Hatton, appeared for the prosecution.

Move to Stamp Out Traffic in "Dope"

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 26.—Steps are being taken by the Ontario Government to stamp out illicit traffic in narcotic drugs, known to exist along the Canadian border.

Investigation by a provincial drug inspector has revealed an extensive dope business, carried on principally by Detroit and Chicago men and women who have been supplied, the inspector stated, by physicians of Western Ontario.

Through the efforts of Essex Medical Association, at least one doctor may be removed from the Ontario Medical Society's lists and prevented from practicing, if warnings are not heeded.

U. S. SHIPBUILDING PLAN BODY BLOW TO BERLIN

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept 26.—The Times' financial editor writes: "The impression formed by ship-owners seems to be that a summary of the American shipbuilding programme would make unpleasant reading for Germany. Obviously, much will depend on the present rate of construction, but the fact that nearly 2,000,000 tons have already been contracted for, nearly 3,000,000 tons ready to be contracted for when the funds are availablle, and 1,281,000 tons under negotiation, will scarcely be encouraging to the German Admiralty. The importance to the allied cause of the American programme is thoroughly recognized."

The regular monthly meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I. O. D. E. was held on Monday afternoon, in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. with a large attendance of members.

Mrs. R. R. Hall gave a very interesting address on the war, impressing upon the members the necessity of continuing to exert every effort, and showing the seriousness of the situation were peace to be declared with conditions as they are now.

It was announced that Mr. Graham of the Empress Hotel had offered the Chapter the use of the hotel tea room every second Saturday. The offer was appreciatively accepted and the first tea will likely be held on October 6th. The Food Controller's dictates will be carried out and the menu will be featured by corn meal muffins, Graham bread and oatmeal cakes. The proceeds of these teas will be devoted to the Prisoners of War Fund, which is costing the Chapter $60 per month.

Denies Head Money Was Offered for American Prisoner

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 25.—A Berlin despatch from the Wolf Bureau, the semi-official news agency, received here to-day denies as a ridiculous invention the report from Paris that the German Emperor had promised a reward of 300 marks ($75) and three weeks' leave to the first German who captured an American soldier. The Wolff Bureau message adds that, after capturing three million prisoners, Germany has no occasion to offer head money for any more.

On September 18 a despatch from Paris said that the French authorities had informed the American headquarters staff in France that Emperor William had offered $75 and three weeks' leave as a reward for the first captor of an American soldier. A German prisoner, it was stated, had declared that the offer was contained in an army order.

OFFICER IS VICTIM OF TERRIBLE ERROR

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—That the inquest into his death on Thursday will show that Commander Henry C. Gunn, of the Land Battleship Recruit in Union Square was the victim of a terrible mistake when he was practically beaten to death for alleged traitorous remarks at a recruiting rlly in Brooklyn Saturday night, is the confident prediction of his fellow officers, many of whom have been intimately associated with him during his twenty-nine years of service in the navy.

Gunn, whwose tragic death has cast a gloom over the Union Square battleship, died in Holy Family hospital, Brooklyn, where he was taken Saturday night when the police found dim with his skull crushed, at Smith an dFulton streets, the victim of an attack by soldiers and civilians.

Some one on the outskirts of the crowd which had assembled to watch the efforts of Co. M, 23rd Infantry, to gather recruits, is said to have yelled: "To hell with the United States, the flag and the President. Hurrah for the Fatherland."

The crowd picked Gunn as the man who had uttered the unpatriotic cry.

Peterboro' Soldier Tells Exciting Story of Wreck

Sergt. D. G. Melton, Formerly of the 93rd Battalion in an interesting Letter to his Mother, Describes Thrilling Rescue of Ship Wrecked Marines.

A TERRIBLE STRUGGLE

Mrs. George Melton, Park street has received the following letter from her son, Pte. D. G. Melton, formerly of the 93rd Battalion and now on duty in France:

Sergt. W. G. Melton, 195281,
Can. Pay Office, A.P.O.S., 38
B. A. in France.

August 28th, 1917

My Dear Mother,—Just a few lines this time, as owing to the extremely bad weather all English and Canadian mails are held up, and, of course, I with my small store of news will soon be exhausted.

I sincerely hope you are all well and trust that your weather is vastly different to ours. We have had violent winds and rains for over a week now, most interesting I can assure you, fortunately it is summer, or, at least, supposed to be, and we do not feel it as badly as we might do. However, suffice it to say, that one night about 12.00 there was a terrific storm, the tent tightened like a drum, after a while it commenced to flow through, something told me to feel and I felt water each side of me flowing gaily by, it is quite a nice experience to find one laying on the ground with nothing between them save their rubber sheet and two blankets, it is sufficient to make the greatest sluggard rise to the occasion, which I did, wearing an overcoat and a pair of boots, armed with a mallet I crawled out of the tent to drive in the fast loosening pegs, which were threatening to let the tent down on us. While this drama was going on the rain peltered down and the wind howled in lieu of the accustomed "soft music." Anyway sleep overcame all this and I was once more able to crawl in the blankets, and, of course, wake up as sweet as a daisy, and as blithe as a lark.

The following day we, (the occupants of the tent) spent our spare time directing each other in the various methods of digging trenches around our tent and across the path leading to it, thus altering the course of the river which persisted in rising during the night and flowing through our tent, to say nothing of the fact of running directly under me.

The wind and the rain along with it.

Night came with all its awfulness? try as they could, our trench system made it impossible to flow through and we were "high and dry" (the meaning of this expression I will tell you of one day.) However, a fresh enemy arose in our midst, the rain stopped and made way for the wind which devoted its unceasing energies in endeavouring to raze (raze) our tent to the ground (it had already demolished about seven huge marquees to say nothing of a score of minor tents,) knowing this, I suppose it claimed ours as a "right"; its methods were various; sometimes it would blow north, then due south, then from all points of the compass at once, then not at all. Eventually I awoke at 2 a.m. to find our tent swaying to and fro, this meant another journey outside with the same combination, overcoat, boots and mallet. The wind apparently realising its temporary defeat, howled stronger, another journey outside at 4.30 a.m. We finally arose at 6.30 and left the tent and the wind to their own devices. It is these little happenings that try one's patience so. It is very amusing to hear, or see, a tent come down on its occupants and hear the language uttered beneath it which is almost drowned by the howl of the wind.

Last night we had quite an exciting time, the gale was at its highest and a three masted sailing ship was driven on the reefs off our coast at about 5 p.m. It was about two hundred yards from the shore and we could plainly see four men, lashed to the rigging; it was a boiling sea and the beach being composed entirely of rocks it was impossible to launch a boat to their rescue, the only means of saving them was by using the mortar from the cliffs. For two hours the coastguards fired, hoping that the lead would carry the rope over the ship and thus enable them to save the men by means of the breeches buoy.

About seven o'clock they succeeded in firing the cord over the ship, you can imagine the yell of delight that went up from the crowd of onlookers from the beach and the cliffs, but owing to their exposure the men were not able to haul the cord and thus eventually pull in the rope on the ship, it was pitiful to see their plight. However, the old British spirit once again proved itself and we could see the men tying the rope to the boy who was with them, the next minute we saw the youngster jump into the sea, the excitement was intense as one could see him struggling, then gulfed, but after about fifteen minutes with the assistance of some men who plunged in he was brought ashore—more dead than alive. Many doctors were handy and with their aid he was soon "brought round" and taken to a near-by hospital

The coastguards commenced their labour again and as the light was leaving us, it was essential that something be done, and done quickly. Providence proved itself and the rope was once more placed over the ship, but unfortunately at the other end to which the men were, (this meant that one of them had got) to place his life in his hands and rescue the rope, thus saving his own life and that of his two comrades.

No sooner the thought than the deed and we could see this brave fellow, without thought for himself running, then clinging to the side as the sea swept over him, then crawling and eventually reaching the bowsprit, his work wasn't done, he had got to walk the "spar" at an angle of 20 degrees, with the sea washing over it, he did it, as only a sailor—a British sailor—could do it and succeeding in rescuing the rope. What a cheer went up, with feet as sure as those of a cat he reached his comrades and they tied themselves at intervals to the rope, it was then that the crowd discovered that this fellow hadn't a life belt while his mates had, but he risked it and they jumped into the sea. What a thrill it sent through us all to see them tossed here and there amongst the floating wreckage; but it was plain to see that unless some one could reach the fellow without a belt that he would drown. The British spirit again exerted itself for there were many who had jumped in (one could hear on all sides from the French folk nearby "L'anglais tres patriotique." However, one swimmer, in spite of the dreadful sea managed to reach him and they were all brought in. R.A.M.C. doctors and ambulance men administered artificial respiration and they were "brought round" but our "hero" was hurt very badly, having been struck by a piece of wreckage. After they were carried to hospital I saw no more, but can assure you that it was one of the most exciting experiences in the case of shipwrecks that I have seen. You must pardon me if the account is at all disjointed, but what I have written I hope will prove interesting to any who may read it.

MAYOR DUFFUS FLATLY DENIES THE STATEMENT THAT HE IS TO SUCCEED MR. GILLESPIE

Mayor Duffus referred this morning to a recent announcement in the Review that he would succeed Mr. G. A. Gillespie, as the Liberal candidate for the Provincial legislature. According to this idle screed there was a movement to supplant Mr. Gillespie by bringing out Mr. Gordon. But with the inspirations a day of rest induces, the imaginary resetting of the Liberal stage relegated both Mr. Gordon and Mr. Gillespie to the provincial discard and introduced Mayor Duffus as the party nominee for the next elections. In one of these aberrations the Review will probably propose a Liberal nearer home than either of three gentlemen it has already suggested.

Returning, however, to the Mayor's denial this morning he stated that the Review's insistence to himself was absolutely untrue. It was alleged that his friends had begun a campaign in his interests and that he was "extending the glad hand wherever he goes and cultivating the women who will have an opportunity to cash their ballots for the candidates whenever the next provincial election may be held.

Mayor Duffus remarked that he would have ignored this fabrication, but for the possibility that some citizens might believe it. He had no political designs and desired only to give his spare time to the completion of the city's affairs during this second term of his mayorality.

The only element of truth in the article was the acknowledgment that "Mr. Gillespie is stronger to-day than he ever was, especially among the farmers, for whom he has done so much in his public capacity," and Mayor Duffus added that not only was Mr. Gillespie's service appreciated by the farmers, but it was fully recognized by the citizens. The Mayor concluded with the statement that he had no intention of changing his support of Mr. Gillespie.

One Company of Depot Battalion May Winter Here

In a telephone conversation with Col. Ogilvey, of Kingston this morning, Mayor Duffus was informed that there was a possibility of one of the companies of the Eastern Ontario Depot Battalion being stationed at Peterborough this winter. Captain Burnham had suggested that a deputation follow up the proposal that one of the squadrons of the 74th Battery or a company of the Battalion might winter here, but the Mayor felt that a deputation would not be necessary. Hence he telephoned to General Hemming, but in his absence from Kingston, Col. Ogilvey stated that the Battery had just arrived at Barriefield this morning from Petawawa and that it was practically settled that the entire 74th would remain as a unit in Kingston.

There had been a suggestion that one squadron would go to Toronto were there adequate stable facilities, but this idea had been abandoned, together with the plan of breaking up the Battery into squadrons and quartering them in Eastern Ontario towns.

Mayor Duffus then suggested that a company of the Depot Battalion be allotted to Peterborough for the winter months, and Col. Ogilvie replied that it was more than likely that this request would be granted.

Story of Sinking Was German Canard

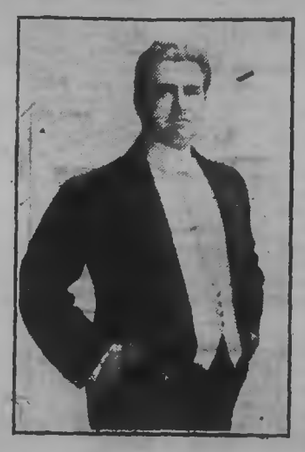
WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Official denial was issued last night by the Navy Department of a published report that five merchant ships and two convoying vessels had been nsunk by submarines. Secretary Daniels has promised that casualties will not be withheld from the public.

Entertainment Was Well Received

The entertainment held last evening in the lecture hall of Knox Church was a biz success. The hall was filled to capacity and numerous requests were made at the close for a repeat performance. The requests could not be acceded to owing to the impossibility of getting the hall for another evening this week without conflicting with arrangements already made. A feature of the entertainment was a play entitled "Merry-making with the Milkmaids." This was successfully carried out by the following cast of characters:

Pither—Policeman—Mr. Hillier.
Tosser—Soldier—Mr. V. Morphet.
Walker Chalks—(A Milkman)—Mr. Parker.
Mrs. Croaker—("The Missus")—Miss Eva Clarke.
Penelope, (The Area Belle')— Miss Lyla Waterman.

A milking song chorus by twenty girls in uniform was fell received. Miss Lila Waterman sang the solo part in this number. Two children, namely, Helen and Walter Collins of Mount Forest, sang a "Mowing Song" in a very acceptable manner. The proceeds which, exclusive of all expenses, amounted to about one hundred dollars, will be devoted to patriotic purposes.



CHAS. J. CARTER.

Carter, the magician, who will appear with his own company and fifteen tons of accoutrements and apparatus for two days, with Saturday matinee, commencing Friday net, Sept. 28th, at "The Grand," is conceded by all who have seen him to have no rivals, and to even be the peer of all prestidigitators, past and present. Carter, who is visiting the United States for the second time after a two years tour of the world, is a student of the occult; his entertainment is weird and at the same time instructive; old tricks he makes new, he fills his performance with the funniest scenes and most astonishing situations 'till his audiences everywhere convulse themselves with laughter. Mr. Carter, has a number of elaborate and bewildering illusions, which he will present here for the first time. Carter's masterpiece is said to be what he calls levitation, described as the most astute, bewildering and hazardous illusion known to magic. It is original in principle and has confounded alike the minds of scientists and philosophers. After patient research and profound study this subtle magical achievement has been evolved and its perfection represents 15 years of obstruse thought and diligent experiment. Another feature of Carter's performance is "A Night in China," in which Carter impersonates the famous Chinese court magicians. This is an exposition of ancient Oriental necromacy, wherein the wonderful sorcerers of China are imitated and impersonated. Immense objects are produced from nothingness, and other seeming miracles performed. "The Lion's Bride," a beautiful spectacle in which a live lion is changed to Carter himself is another sensational wonder.

Prize Platoon of 21st Battalion Was Called to the Rescue

Sergt. Norman Saxby who Won the Military Medal Tells How the Training of His Platoon for Brigade Competition was Interrupted by Call to go up and Help Hold the Line—Suffered Heavy Casualties in Hot Scrap.

Sergt. Norman Saxby of Peterborough, who recently was awarded the Military Medal for conspicuous bravery in the Lens fighting, tells something about the activities of the Canadians around the coal city in a letter to his father, Mr. Wm. Saxby, 362 Smith Street, but it will be noticed that he is modestly silent about the exploit that won his decoration, and takes more pride in the showing of his platoon (ih the 21st Battalion) than he does in his own feat.

His interesting letter is as follows:

France, Sept. 5.

Dear Dad,—You will excuse me, I am sure, for not writing for so long when I tell you all about it.

I didn't think I would be going into the —- scrap, but it had to be.

When we were out on rest the officers among the various companies arranged for a competition to determine the much debated question as to who had the best and smartest platoon in the Battalion.

Well I won it with my platoon, as there were to be no officers in the competition, or at least my Commander thought it would be all the more to the credit of the platoon if they were handled by their platoon sergeants—myself to wit. As I said before, my platoon carried it off nicely to the delight of my O. C., C Company, and to the disgust of the other O. C's.

After Brigade Honours.

So having won the Battalion competition the Colonel, in a short complimentary address, remarked that it would now be necessary for us to enter a brigade competition which was to come off in the near future, to determine which battalion had the best platoon in the brigade. We were to proceed to a training camp, and under the supervision of Major Cooper and a squad of "crossed sword artists" we were to be hammered into the necessary state of efficiency, and, I might say, subjection.

So we proceeded to this area, while the remainder of the boys went into the line to "hop the bags" at —. "We were just there two days when we were ordered up the line to help our boys hold the line which they had taken. We left the training area at 12 (midnight) and arrived at Battalion Headquarters in the wee sma' hours. We carried bombs to the front line that day in spite of Heinies crumps, and that night went up to hold the line. We had not been there ten minutes when four of my boys got killed and seven wounded—four seriously. I carried a couple of these fellows to the dugout and organized a stretcher party to get 'em out to the dressing station—a matter of one hour or more for four men.

When Fritz Came Over.

We just had them nicely attended to when Frita put over an awful barrage and tried to come over a few minutes after, but we were too quick for him, so he beat it back.

At 4.30 he again attacked, and this time succeeded in getting into our trench after a preliminary bombardment of great intensity. This was where I got wounded. About a dozen of his "cylindrical sticks" or bombs smashed all around me, knocked my rifle out of my hands and knocked me down. I had time to throw a bomb, pick up my rifle and beat it back about twenty yards to a shell hole. We quickly re-organized, went for Fritz like hell, and chased him clean to his own lines.

I could hardly walk my leg was so stiff and my hip so sore. But I got out safely and was soon in hospital. I nearly made "Blighty," but not quite; so after staying a week or so in hospital I was sent to the Convalescent Camp, from there to the base and here I am.

I will soon be with the Battalion again, I hope, to see any of the old boys who came out safely. Quite a number of my best pals are gone, but fell fighting. Great fellows, all of them.

Won Greatest Prize of All.

I guess there's not many of my prize platoon left now, but the fact remains that besides being clean and orderly on parade they were overjoyed to help their comrades hold the line and entered it in the spirit they would have entered another competition. In dying for their comrades they won the greatest prize of all.

My address is still Sergt. Saxby, 21st Canadian Battalion, C Company, France, as I guess I'll be with the boys in a few days. Trusting you are all jake."

Your loving son,
NORM.

Merchant Had Suffered 20 Years

Tried All Kinds of Medicines Without Relief—Tanlac Ends Trouble

It is doubtful if there is a better known man in his line of business in Toronto than James Thain, who for the past thirty years has been engaged in the grocery and meat market business. Mr. Thain is now proprietor of a grocery store and meat market at 959 Dovercourt Street, and is one of the most substantial citizens of his community.

"For the past twenty years," said Mr. Thain, in a recent conversation with a Tanlac representative, "I have been trying to find relief from one of the most obstinate cases of stomach trouble anyone ever had, and a few bottles of Tanlac have certainly done the work. I think close confinement to my business and failure to take time to chew my food properly was the cause of my trouble, any way I was never free from indigestion and it is impossible for me to describe my awful suffering. I had no appetite and never enjoyed a bite of anything I would eat. My breakfast consisted of a little cereal of some kind and a cup of tea, and I simply had to force that down. In a little while after meals, my food would produce a gnawing sensation and I would get so weak and faint I could hardly stand up. There were sharp pains through my stomach which at times were so intense that cold chills would run all over me. Many a time I sat down to the table to eat and became so nauseated I couldn't swallow anything. Vegetables and fruits, especially, went against me, and for over two years before I got Tanlac I couldn't eat tomatoes at all. All my strength left me and I must have shown my weakness because my customers would come in the store and say, 'Why, Mr. Thain, what in the world is the matter with you?'

"I had been reading the Tanlac testimonials and I thought little about it at first, but as I kept reading them I began to think the medicine might help me, so finally I decided to get a bottle and give it a trial. That was a lucky day for me for I felt a change in my condition in just a few days. Half of my first bottle made a wonderful difference in my feelings and convinced me that Tanlac was all that is claimed for it. Three bottles have relieved me of stomach trouble and indigestion entirely—every symptom is gone—and I'm feeling better than I have in twenty years. My appetite is great, and I thoroughly enjoy every bite I eat, and I have gained eight or ten pounds in weight besides. Nothing is barred from my diet now, all my misery is gone and life is a pleasure again. These are my reasons for thinking so well of Tanlac, and I believe anybody with troubles like mine can find relief by taking it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike.

GENERAL MAXWELL KILLED IN ACTION

Was Member of Earl Kitcheners India Staff

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Brigadier-General F. A. Maxwell, V.C., D.S.O., member of the late Earl Kitchener's Indian staff, has been killed in action. With the exception of Lieutenant-General William R. Birdwood, says the Express, it is a remarkable fact that all of Kitchener's Indian staff have lost their lives in the war.

No Chance of a Revolution

Open Further Casualties Will Open the Eyes of the German People.

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Eaxminer.)

(By Carl Great.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.— American officials believe there is no immediate chance of a revolution in Germany to overthrow the Kaiser. While official advices indicate a growing discontent within the Empire, particularly among the women, the authorities have concluded that the Germans are so used to the Kaiser's domination they will cause no upheaval until further casualties open their eyes to the stupidity of living under a murderous autocracy. On this the Secretary of War Baker, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, and others engaged in shaping America for a war against autocracy are laying their plans with two or more years' conflict in mind. Meantime official advices here indicate that the Vatican is waiting for America to see the light. It is convinced that the Kaiser can not be overthrown and believes the American people will not stand for such sacrifices as the Allies already have made. The Holy See believes there can be no "Victors' peace," and predicts either a stalemate or a world revolution before both sides exhaust themselves.

A MOONLIGHT RAID ON OLD LONDON

sounds had seemed so near, the nearest bomb had fallen some distance from where I stood. It had alighted on a big drapery house, a house empty at night. Opposite to this building was a big hotel. A little crowd of people were standing outside it. There were men in evening dress and men in pyjamas, dressing gowns and carpet slippers. There were ladies in showy gowns. There were others who had just jumped out of bed, clad themselves in dainty wrappers and hurried into the street. One lady clutched a little leather bag in her hand. It was her jewel case. There was no one crying, no hysterics and no emotional scenes.

"I think this is really funny," said a young officer to me, pointing out a big notice on the walls of the building which a bomb had struck. The notice read, "This building will be demolished shortly to make room for the new expansion of our premises." "Fritz has saved them the trouble of pulling down their own place, hasn't he?" said the officer.

CANADIANS KILLED.

A little further along, another bomb had fallen, fallen right in the middle of the street opposite a hospital. It was evidently charged with very powerful explosive, for the windows on one side of the hospital had not merely all its glass blown out, but had the window frames twisted into fantastic shapes. On the opposite side of the road the destruction of glass was enormous, and more than glass had been destroyed. Two Canadian soldiers, Sergt. B. G. Lumley and Pte. A. E. Bond, in the front room of the ground floor of a hotel opposite were killed. A Miss Dunleary, also in the hotel, was killed. Lumley was sitting in a chair when he died. They carried his body out still on the chair. A man and woman were killed in a hotel nearby. Some of the patients in the hospital were hurt with the falling glass and with the concussion, but none seriously.

Still further down a bomb came on a Y.M.C.A. Up to a few weeks ago this was used as a sleeping place for men at night. Recently this was discontinued, and the only people in it were three of the staff, who escaped uninjured.

VEHICLE STRUCK.

One bomb struck a roadway and damaged a public vehicle. The driver was severely injured, his legs being practically blown off and broken in two places. Despite his wounds he jammed the brakes tightly before he died. Two passengers inside the tram were killed. In a poor working-class district four bombs fell together and damaged some houses and wounded quite a number of people. It was here that we got the major part of our casualties, which amounted in all to 15 killed and 62 wounded. Several fell in public gardens and did no harm.

There were some pathetic and some grotesque scenes. Five fat old women went into the lift of an underground railway. They sat down on the floor and refused to budge. They remained there all night, nodding, scarcely able to keep their eyes open, looking half pathetic, half comical. Most Londoners at the first sound of trouble went to their basements and remained there. The public is learning that it is not wise to stay in the open when bombs are dropping.

DROVE WOMAN INSANE.

I know one poor old man—a Dane, by the way — whose wife has been driven mad. She will not live many days longer, the doctors say. Brave work, isn't it to make a feeble woman of sixty insane?

I turned back home. As I approached my door I saw a monster motor standing outside. It was one of the big delivery vans from a morning paper office. They were wanting my "copy" that I was finishing just before the raid began. It was not safe even now to send a boy through the streets alone so they had rushed a delivery van up for it. Raid or no raid, work must go on. And as the boy slapped the envelope in his pocket and the motor driver speeded back through streets where the bombs might soon come again, it seemed a living illustration of the fact that the full life of London was continuing with scarcely a pause. Fritz had done his worst, and now we could resume the routine of our affairs again. F. A. McKENZIE.

FORMER LOCAL MAN HOME ON A VISIT

Is to Meet his Sister at Post Office to-day. Has not seen her in over forty-five years

The following personal taken from the Greenport L. I. Times, carries with it a very interesting story:

Mr. Charles W. Hartley, one of Greenport's best known business men, left town Wednesday morning for a visit with relatives in Canada. He goes first to Toronto to visit his ter which he will go to visit at his old home in Peterborough, where he was born, and lived when a boy. This is about 75 miles from Toronto. A sister, whom he has not seen in forty-five years, lives near Peterborough, and he will spend some time with her. Mr. Hartley has been a resident of Greenport for 52 years, and it was forty-five years ago that he went to see his sister. Everybody hopes and believes that Mr. Hartley will enjoy the next two or three weeks amid the scenes of childhood.

Mr. Hartley called into the Examiner yesterday because of the fact that he was a reader of the paper when he left Peterborough, over fifty years ago.

Mr. Hartley served his time with Hopkins and Donnelly in this city, afterwards going to Greenport, L.I., where he has since resided. He took a walk around the city yesterday, but very few places were recognizable. However, he located St. John's Church, where he attended while in Peterborough, and the Court House and grounds where the reception was given to the Prince of Wales and at which he was present.

Mr. Hartley made an engagement by telephone to meet his sister, Mrs. Robert Staples, Ida, this afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at the Post Office. As they have not seen each other in more than forty-five years, Mr. Hartley was a little apprehensive as to whether they would recognize each other. In case they do, brother and sister will drive out to Ida to complete the visit.

While following the harness business Mr. Hartley has been engaged in other pursuits, and has no need to worry about this world's goods.

He is very enthusiastic over the way Uncle Sam has gone into the war and believes the United States will surprise the Allies with the efforts they will put forth.

There is no doubt that Mr. Hartley will thoroughly enjoy his visit even after an absence of over fifty years.

Italy-to-England Air Trip is Rapid

Capt. Laureati Covers Seven Hundred Miles in About as Many Minutes.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Captain Laureati, one of the most daring Italian aviators, who has twice been decorated with military medals for valor, accompanied by an observer, made the first Italy-to-England flight today, repeating the feat in 1916 of the late George Chavez in crossing the Alps. Captain Laureati covered 700 English miles in 722 minutes.

His machine, which is of a new type, started from Turin this morning. Captain Laureati flew at a height of 10,500 feet. He encountered high winds, fog banks, rain-storms and clouds on the route which lay over Modane, and Culoz in south-eastern France, thence over the French battle lines in Northern France to Cape Ghis-Nez and thence across the English channel. He brought mail to the Italian Ambassador.

SHORT JAIL TERM FOR ERRING COUPLE

Married a Month Before Final Judgment for Divorce Was Signed.

IT CONSTITUTED BIGAMY

Acted on Strength of Interlocutory Judgment of New York Courts.

TORONTO, Sept. 25.—Through a misinterpretation of the Criminal Code regarding the validity in Canada of an interlocutory judgment given in the New York courts and annulling the marriage of John and Lenina Jane Shackelton on the 29th April, 1910, Lenina Jane Shackelton and Arthur Fountain innocently committed bigamy when the two entered into a marriage contract on July 20, 1910. Before Judge Coatsworth, in the General Sessions, they were convicted and sentenced to serve 30 days in jail.

Both His Honour and the Crown expressed regret that under the strict letter of the law the two defendants must be judged as having committed so serious an offence. A strong plea was made by counsel to have sentence suspended, but County Crown-Attorney Greer pointed out that the charge was a serious one, for which a seven-year sentence could be imposed. "I am very sorry for them," added the Crown; "they are very respectable people, but there is the code, and what these people did constitutes bigamy. They were married a month before the final judgment for divorce was signed."

Through their counsel, U. B. Harkins, the defendants pleaded innocence and submitted evidence that they had been advised by legal authorities in Rochester that the second marriage would be regarded as legal after the interlocutory judgment had been given. The final judgment of the Rochester court was not pronounced until Sept. 12th, 1910, and as the marriage contract between the two parties was entered into prior to that date, although subsequent to the interlocutory judgment, His Honour ruled that bigamy had been committed. "It is impossible for me, under the code, to give these people suspended sentence," declared Judge Coatsworth. "I am giving them, however, the minimum."

WEDDING BELLS

HEIGH—HUGGINS.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in the Presbyterian church, South Monaghan, on Monday, Sept. 24th, 1917, at 11 a.m., when Mr. Norman Heigh, a prosperous young farmer of Plainville, was united in marriage to Miss Mabel E. Huggins, one of the most popular young ladies of South Monaghan, and daughter of Mr. Thomas R. Huggins.

The bride looked charming attired in a dress of navy mousellaine silk, net lace collar, and sleeves of same, and black velvet hat with canary trimming. The bridesmaid, Miss Gladys Murney of Rochester, N.Y., cousin of the bride, was also prettily gowned with shadow lace silk with silk plush hat.

Rev. D. H. McConnachie performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The groomsman was Mr. Fred Murney of South Monaghan, cousin of the bride. The wedding dinner was served at 1 o'clock.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents, showing the high esteem in which she is held by a large circle of friends.

Among the gifts was a cheque for a liberal amount from her cousin, Mr. Fred Murney, of Rochester.

Immediately after the ceremony the wedding dinner was served, and about five p.m. the bride and groom left for their future home at Plainville, followed by the best wishes of their numerous friends.

Transports In Danger

Two Liners are Carrying U. S. Troops and the Other Canadians Attacked by Subs.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 26.—Two submarine attacks on a steamer carrying 3,000 American troops were repulsed off Fastnet and another attack on a ship carrying 2,500 Canadians, was defeated, and two U-boats are believed to have been sunk, passengers arriving here from England said to-day. Both attacks were made within the last two weeks. The steamer which was carrying the Americans flies the British flag and is one of the biggest afloat. In the first attack on it a torpedo passed close under its stern. The passengers declared then the ship's gun fire made the U-boat dive. Next day a submersible appeared dead ahead of the troopship in the Irish sea. A small British destroyer was said to have rushed out from behind the big vessel and sank the German with three shots, according to the stories.

Twelve hours later another liner carrying the Canadians entered the Irish Sea. A U-boat popped up dead ahead of it, but was rammed and sunk before it could launch its torpedo. Soldiers on the transport declare they saw the German sailors carried past in the sea struggling to keep afloat. Several were later picked up by a British destroyer the passengers said.

Continuing Mr. Bottomley explained: "I have no reason to think Haig would wish me to modify the statement attributed to him in an interview months ago that our cavalry is awaiting the opening of the gates so that the enemy's retreat will be turned into a rout."

POLICE CHIEF SUSPENDED FROM OFFICE

Hornell Official Issues Statement, Declaring He Can Prove His Innocence.

HORNELL, Sept. 22.—Patrolman William N. Smith has assumed his duties as acting chief of police, succeeding Chief Clarence Bailey, who was suspended by order of Mayor E. J. Davis. Charges of a serious nature have been filed against Chief Bailey and he is relieved from all duty pending a determination of the charges.

Chief Bailey has been the target of the animosity, it is alleged, of the liquor men for some time. Since the city excise commission presented its report, putting out of business a number of resorts, the attacks on Bailey have been especially bitter. The charges on which the chief is deposed date back for ten years and charge him with immorality and other conduct unbecoming an officer.

It is charged that he was registered in a Buffalo hotel under a fictitious name with a woman of questionable character. The most recent instance of misconduct cited is on August 30th, when, it is alleged, that he was in a room in a hotel in this city in company with a member of a detective bureau of another city and that women were present for whom the officers bought intoxicating liquors.

The charges will be heard on Monday evening, September 24th. Chief Bailey issued a statement, denying the charges absolutely and declaring that he will prove his innocence.

The affidavit on which the action was taken was made by Patrolman Samuel J. Fowler, who was himself suspended by Chief Bailey recently. He was later exonerated.

Horse Tried To Run Away From Lindsay

LINDSAY, Sept. 25.—Saturday evening shortly after six o'clock, a collision followed by a runaway, occurred at the corner of Lindsay and Glenelg streets Mr. Neill, of Manvers, and another resident of the township, whose name could not be learned, were driving south, and when near the corner the latter hesitated before driving his horse past an auto standing beside the curb. Mr. Neill was behind him and his horse, a nervous animal, became impatient and plunged forward, jumping into a wheel of the buggy ahead and inflicting a nasty cut on its leg from which the blood flowed profusely. Mrs. Neill and little child jumped from the buggy to the boulevard, fearing a runaway. The horse was held in control by Mr. Neill, but only for a short time, as it made a bolt for liberty, crossing Glenelg street and running up on Chas. Squire's lawn, thence across Lindsay street. Mr. Neill had hold of the lines, but the horse broke away and ran south to the Riverside cemetery, where it was stopped. The outfit was badly damaged.—Post.

GOVERNMENT BUYING CORN.

Purchases Made in Baltimore Market for Belgian Relief.

Baltimore, September 25. — The government has been in the local grain market buying corn for Belgium relief. George S. Jackson, vice-president of the Government Food Administration Board, said to-day that the board had sent out a cargo of wheat for Belgium Relief, and that he had a ship ready to be loaded with corn for the same purpose.

Local grain merchants were surprised that the government should have undertaken this deal in corn when it is selling above $2 a bushel, and no prices have been fixed.

A report that the Food Administration Board was buying all the corn in the elevators here was denied by Mr. Jackson.

Government Has List Of Men Who Received Money From Germans

Disclosures As Sensational As Any Yet Published Are Being Held in Reserve—The Passport Frauds to Be Revealed

DISPOSE OF DENIALS

WASHINGTON, September 27.—While there is no indication of what will be the state department's next disclosure of German intrigue in America or elsewhere, it is known that disclosures as sensational as any yet published are being held in reserve and may be made at any time.

One of the things the state department has is a list of persons who received German money in the passport frauds, the munitions plots and practically all of the other activities of German intrigue, which took place between the beginning of the war in August, 1914, and the entry of the United States into the conflict. This list is said to contain scores of names and the amounts of money represented run very high.

From time to time the department also probably will make public certain evidence to dispose of the denials of those who have been involved in the disclosures already made.

Law Demanding Every One Work Hits Clubmen

Rich Idlers May Soon Be Seen Driving Farm Trucks.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Wealthy clubmen, retired bankers and profligate sons of doting fathers may soon be seen mending roads, pitching hay or driving a farm truck under the provisions of the compulsory work law of the state of Maryland.

Every able bodied male between the ages of 19 and 50 who is unemployed must register unless he is a student or is a regularly employed workman, but now on strike. The state will find work for the registered men.

Few Hobos Register.

Few knights of the road have registered. Instead, there is reported a steady and rapid emigration of handout artists, bound out of this state and into more hospitable parts by the shortest and speediest routes.

Most of those who have registered are the wealthy unemployed. They were asked what work, such as canning, making roads or farming, they would elect.

Might Reduce Weight.

Charles Boone, formerly a hard working Baltimore business man, was the first clubman to register. Of recent years he has made his home at the exclusive Maryland club. He said he thought handling a plow, a calling of which he was entirely ignorant, might reduce his waist measure. He knew something about horses, he added, but not the kind that draw plows. He didn't care especially for cannery, or road repair work. But if the government wanted him, concluded Mr. Boone, he'd put in a good ten hours a day and try to beat the young fellows.

F. H. Cameron, retired army captain, said he was awaiting a call to the colours, but it hadn't come yet. Meanwhile he was willing to work on the state roads.

All sorts of interesting information about idlers is coming to the authorities in anonymous letters.

INDIAN CHIEF SENDS HIS SON TO GREAT WAR

Charging Bear Glad His People Can Fight Teuts

FORT YATES, N.D. — Charging Bear, the great Sihasapa Teton, chief justice of the Sioux nation and greatest of all living chieftains of the race, which produced such warriors as Red Cloud, Spotted Tail, Crazy Horse, and Sitting Bull, has held his last war council, and this is the message which he sends to pale-face braves, by the tongue of his foster son, Capt. A. B. Welch of Company 1, Bismarck, and his friend, Lieut. Col. Douglas Settle, U.S.A.:

"We have been struck. The man who will not fight back now is a woman; he should be set carrying water and building fires with the old women.

"When I was 17 I led my people to war against 'Crows. I came back with many scalps. War is not a pretty thing, but an honourable way is glorious. There are times when a man must fight.

"To-day we are as one with our white brothers. I am sending my son and my grandsons across the 'Great Water to fight the battles of my pale face brothers. The war is a good war. The Germans are a bad people. They are more terrible in war than we ever were. If we are to have peace they must be beaten. I am glad that my people can go. They will not be cowards; they will not bring scorn [illegible]

Past Ninety Years.

"Long has it been since we have seen the war dance or heard the war whoop, but our old men do not forget, and the young men have learned. The Sioux never fought an unjust war; they never fought but to hold their own, and then they fought to win. And so my young men will fight for the Great White Father at Washington in this war, and if they die it will be a glorious death, and their people will feel pride and not sorrow."

Charging Bear, who long ago adopted the Europeanized name of John Grass, is recognized as the greatest statesman the Sioux ever have produced. Past 90 years, he retains the marvelous faculties which as a young man made him a leader among the most warlike tribe of the Sioux nation. As early as 1868 John Grass was preaching peace, and pointing to the inevitable victory of the whites with whom he advocater treaties in preference to war. He assisted in negotiating the Black Hills treaty with Red Cloud in 1868, and he consistently opposed the agitation of Sitting Bull, the medicine man, in the early '70s, even after the whites had set this treaty at nought in the wild rush for Black Hills gold. To Grass must be given credit for the final successful treaty which Gen. Sherman effected with the Indians, and to the complete restoration of peace following the Custer massacre in 1876, since which date, except for the "Messiah crase" in 1890, which culminated in the slaughter of Sitting Bull by Indian police of his own tribe, the Sioux have proven the most orderly and most progressive of Uncle Sam's wards.

Last War Council.

Charging Bear's last war council was held in the dooryard of the home which the United States government built for him years ago in recognition of his services to the whites. There were present besides Lieut. Col. Settle of the regular army and Capt. Welch of the national guard, Capt. Leonard S. Hughes of Fort Logan, Colo., and a number of other officers of the federal and state troops, who had driven 200 miles from Bismarck to meet the aged chieftain. Grass' grandson, Albert Grass, an enlisted man of Company 1, acted as interpreter, although so remarkable is Charging Bear's command of the sign language that to even the least initiated of his hearers an interpreter seemed superfluous.

[illegible]

Charging Bear may not live to see the end of the world war. He is physically enfeebled by the weight of years. But he has done his bit. Not only has he encouraged his young braves to enlist and had the pleasure of seeing many of them accepted for service, but as vice president of the Sioux County Chapter of the Red Cross he has been of great assitsance in the raising of funds for this work on the Standing Rock reservation. He is glad America has gone in; he cannot understand how it possibly could have stayed out. His only regret is that he cannot be over there, fighting with his young men, as he fought on the lean prairies of the northwest a half century ago.

How War Badges Will Be Issued

Application Must be Made to Officers in Charge of Distribution.

OTTAWA, Sept. 26.— While the recent Order-in-Council provides for the issue of war service badges, to honorably discharged soldiers and those who have applied to enlist before August 10th, 1917, and who were rejected as medically unfit, the Militia Department will not be ready to make distribution for a few weeks.

When the time for making application arrives, this fact will be given due publicity in the press throughout the country, together with all information regarding the method of making application. Briefly, the procedure will be as follows: Applicants will apply to the officer in charge of War Service badges at the headquarters of the military district in which they reside.

This officer will furnish them with forms, which are to be filed in and returned to him. This applies both to those who are in possession of badges issued by the Canadian Patriotic Fund, and who are applying for registration of their badge and for a certificate authorizing its wear and also to those who have never received a badge and who are now applying for same.

Men who have been rejected as medically unfit for service, should also apply to the above officer for instructions. They will, if necessary be advised by him, when and where to present themselves before a medical board to undergo a further medical examination, as in order to receive this class badge, men must be medically unfit at the time of making application and the fact that they were rejected six months or so ago, will not of itself be sufficient.

Cash Markets Continue Steady

Ontario Grain is Moving Freely —The Cattle Market

Sightly lower levels in the low-grade Manitoba wheat, and 3-4c lower on C. W. oats yesterday are the only changes in the cash quotations yesterday. The cash markets on the whole are steady and firm, but the tone of the speculative market was easier. Continued fine weather seems to be upsetting the calculations of the bulls as to what may happen to corn. The daily inspections at western terminals show steadily increasing receipts. Tuesday's inspections practically reaching a thousand cars. A little more Ontario grain is also coming out but this is in part owing to the fact that the farmers cannot get on with their fall plowing, being held up for lack of needed rain.

Cattle Market.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts, 62 cars, with 946 head of cattle, 107 calves, 900 hogs, and 1,113 sheep and lambs.

The market continues good, and steady for good to choice butcher steers and heifers, and strong for anything extra choice. Medium butcher met with a fairly steady demand, but the common stuff is slow and hard to clean up.

OTTAWA, Sept. 27. — The Journal-Press, a government organ, says this morning, Hon. T. W. Crothers will use the "big stick" if necessary to force the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company to accept the findings of the Board of Conciliation and end the strike to-day if possible.

Doctors Said Operation

When Chatham Lady Suffered From Extreme Nervous Exhaustion — Now Feeling Fine and Working Large Garden.

CHATHAM, Ont. Sept. 13. — This letter will interest every lady reader, because it describes a condition for which many doctors advise an operation. That the operation is often unnecessary and very often leaves the patient an invalid for life is well known.

You will read here of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done for this lady and will then understand the great good it is accomplishing in many thousands of similar cases throughout the continent.

Every woman should think long and earnestly before consenting to an operation of this kind. It is a simple matter to give Dr. Chases Nerve Food a trial and the results are almost always entirely satisfactory. You not only avoid the risk and expense of an operation, but find yourself restored to health and vigor.

Mrs. E. M. Ford, 82 Delaware Avenue, Chatham, Ont., writes: "For four years I suffered from my nerves. I was restless and could not sleep well. I had headaches, neuralgic pains through the body and backache. There was a buzzing in my ears and twitching of nerves and muscles. I also had palpitation of the heart, which caused shortness of breath. I was easily tired and always drowsy after eating. When walking or on my feet very much my feet would seem to go dead in my shoes. I consulted two doctors and both told me that I would have to have an examination and probably an operation, but I would not have either. Shortly after this I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after a treatment of this medicine I can say I am now feeling fine. I am able to do my household duties without difficulty, and besides this, attend to a half-acre of garden. I can go about without that dead feeling in my feet, and am grateful to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for my cure. I think very highly of this medicine, and recommend it to other sufferers whenever I have an opportunity."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

TURNS LIKE A TAXICAB.

New British Hospital Ship Built for Mesopotamian Front.

A new hospital ship, completed and inspected before being sent to Mesopotamia for service on the Tigris, is called the King's Ship. It has a draft of only 3 feet 6 inches, and will be able to navigate the Tigris as far as the Hamrin Hills at a speed of 10 knots, says the Associated Press London correspondent. There are 180 beds for serious cases, with accommodation for minor casualties, a fly-proof operating theatre with electric sterilizing apparatus, lifts to move serious cases from one deck to another, wards for mental cases and isolation rooms.

Special care has been given to ventilation. The boat is oil-driven and has four rudders which, an expert stated, will enable it to be turned like a taxicab.

MIGHTY STRIKE PROBABLE.

Seething Discontent in Germany Likely to Culminate in General Outbreak.

Information from a trustworthy source, says the Amsterdam correspondent of the London Daily Express, indicates that a general strike, affecting all the industries of Germany, is a possibility of the very near future.

The authorities are already opposing with the utmost ruthlessness all the strike propaganda, but, nevertheless, appeals for a general stoppage of work have been circulated by millions throughout the empire, especially in the districts where munition factories are most numerous.

A number of persons believed to be responsible for the issue of these appeals have been arrested and sent to the front trenches, which is the form which capital punishment now takes in Germany.

Despite these drastic measures the appeals have fallen on fruitful ground, as the failure of the Stockholm conference, coupled with the success of the allies in Flanders, the Russian and Roumanian rallies, and effective tightening of the blockade, have wrought havoc with the morale of the working people.

The strike leaders belong exclusively to Herr Hasse's Socialist group. They insist on the fact that the strike can only be effective if it is general, as even Hindenburg could not send a million working people of both sexes either to the front or to prison.

If Germany rejects the Pope's appeal a general strike may be regarded as a certainty.

KEEP FLEET IN HARBOUR.

German Naval Expert Sounds Still More Pessimistic Note in Tageblatt.

The text of ex-Captain Persius' pessimistic note on the submarine campaign, of which a telegraphic summary appeared recently, is even more doleful than it seemed. Writing in the Berlin Tageblatt, he says:

It is imperative that the somewhat too highly rising waves of hope of a speedy success of the U-boat work be driven back. We must have patience. In Heaven's name let us not arouse hopes which later fail to realise, or we shall induce consequences the reverse of those which were intended.

Bearing in view the mercantile tonnage of the whole world, which, after all, is largely at the disposal of our enemies, and considering also the constructive possibilities, especially of the American and Japanese shipyards, apart altogether from the English and others, the task which our U-boats still have to carry out must not be underestimated.

Meanwhile we can but hope that our high seas fleet, in conjunction with our coast fort guns, U-boats, mines and so forth, may succeed in repelling every enemy attack. Whatever we do, however, let us not dream of taking the risk of an offensive by our high seas fleet that is based on nothing more substantial than a mere tottering hypothesis.

SOON DISPOSED OF WEALTH.

Millionaire Nebraskan Gave Million Away at a Family Reunion.

W. E. Bookwater, millionaire land owner of southern Nebraska, gave away a million dollars worth of his holdings to his children, the other day in ten minutes. Some weeks before he sent out letters to all his nine children, telling them that the family would have a reunion on the old homestead, and making it a point that each must be present. They all came, children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. They assembled at the old home place, just inside the Nebraska line and three miles north of Summerfield, Kan.

Two great tents had been pitched for their accommodation, and each was equipped with cots, tables and chairs. The tables were spread in a third tent, with plates for fifty persons. The entire family, comprising four generations, were seated at one time. At the head were Mr. and Mrs. Bookwalter. Next to them their nine children and their wives, next the grandchildren, and last of all the great-grandchildren.

After the feast was over, Mr. Bookwalter rose, and with a brief speech of congratulation, saying that he desired to distribute his wealth to his children, while they were still living to enjoy it, he handed each of the nine children a deed to ten quarter sections of land, and to his wife a deed to the homestead, with 320 acres of $150 land, with a liberal cheque. Each responded with words of appreciation.

TIRING OF COURT POMP.

German People Indignant Over Prince's Special Train to Vienna.

A despatch from Stockholm to the New York World says:

"Evidence that something approximating the democratic spirit is cropping up in South Germany is furnished by Socialist and popular indignation over the fact that a young German prince recently travelled in a special court train to Vienna to visit Austrian relatives. The Karlsruhe People's Friend comments thus:

"At the time of coal shortage and personal shortage court trains for pleasure trips should be discontinued. The people do not understand why at a time like this special trains are run for such private purposes, particularly when the railroads are overburdened.

"Has no one courage enough to make it clear to those highest highnesses that this sort of thing won't do any more; that they, too, must put up with restrictions? Truly, it is not too much to ask a prince to make a trip in a first-class coupe."

FIRST BOAT FOR SIBERIA.

Steamer Obi to Make Voyage by Way of Atlantic Ocean.

The steamer Obi of over 3,000 tons has sailed from New York to the River Yenisei in Siberia by way of the Atlantic and the Kara Sea in the Arctic Ocean. This is the first boat that ever sailed from an American Atlantic port direct to Siberia by the sea route organized by the Siberian Steamship Manufacturing and Trading Co., Ltd., which has been sending boats to the Rivers Obi and Yenisei in Siberia from Europe for six years.

The object of this route is to give Central Siberia, that is 3,000 miles distant from either the Baltic or Pacific, cheaper means of transportation. This sea route has become more valuable to Siberia since the commencement of the war, because ports and railroads in Russia have been very congested and utilized entirely for war purposes.

The Obi has taken a cargo of American manufactured goods, consisting of more than 120 different lines, the most important of which are machinery, hardware, tools, chemicals, shoes, cotton goods, etc., all of which are urgently needed at present in Siberia. The value of the cargo is more than $1,000,000.—New York Commercial.

FEWER "MOVIES" IN N.Y.

Report Shows Smaller Houses Are Going Out of Business.

For the past two years the motion picture houses of Greater New York have been steadily decreasing. This statement is based on new statistics just compiled by Commissioner of Licenses George H. Bell for his forthcoming annual report.

At the same time the commissioner, who is, in a way, the city's legal censor of the film, pronounces the moral trend to be steadily advancing.

"The general decrease in theatres is not due to any falling off in interest in motion pictures," states Commissioner Bell. "It is an indication of the settling of the business into its proper level. The decrease indicates the disappearance of the older and smaller houses. Fewer, but bigger and more elaborate, screen theatres are being built to-day. The development of the photoplay is crowding out the small house."—Dramatic Mirror.

PAYING A RIVER'S TRIBUTE.

Superstitious Coloradoians Believe Yampa Claims One Life Annually.

Superstition of long time residents of Steamboat Springs, Col., said to be founded on a legend of the Ute Indians, that the Yampa River claims a victim every year is endorsed, so "old timers" say, by two drownings in that stream during the recent freshet.

The Indians believed the spirit who ruled the swift and treacherous stream demanded a human life annually, and because of this are said never to have made an effort to save the first member of their race who was caught by it each year.

DISABLED BY A WHALE.

Maddened Monster Rammed Steam Whaler in the Bering Sea.

Occasionally reports are received of whaling steamers sustaining damage through coming into collision with their prey, but it is seldom that such an interesting experience as that of the steel steam whaler Tanginak, of the Pacific Sea Products Company, of Seattle, is reported. After meeting with one of the most peculiar marine accidents recorded in northern waters, she having been disabled by the maddened charge of a monster whale, the vessel is now on her way to Seattle for repairs.

The accident occurred in the Bering Sea, several hundred miles north of the south-western extremity of the Aleutian Islands, and the vessel was hove to, while the crew was engaged in pusuing several leviathans sighted on Saturday morning. While in this position, a giant of the deep charged the vessel, and the impact of the monster struck the craft full astern, shattering her steering apparatus and putting her out of commission for the balance of the season.

The accident is attended with considerable loss, as it is now the height of the whaling season, and she will, therefore, lose the benefit of the best portion of the year in this industry, not to mention the extent of the damage inflicted.

Many Children Die From Summer Complaint
When They Could Be Saved by Using
DR. FOWLER'S
Extract of Wild Strawberry

There is not a Summer passes without thousands of people, especially infants, being attacked by Summer Complaint.

The prostration, often verging on collapse, which sometimes accompanies this disease makes it one of the most serious and dangerous we have to contend with during the hot months.

A remedy which will quickly offset the vomiting, purging and the profuse diarrhoea is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mrs. Thomas M. Theriault, Grand Anse, N.B., writes: "My three children were very sick with Summer Complaint during the hot days last Summer. I thought one day that they would die, and I didn't know what to do to cure them. I happened to have one of your almanacs in the house, and found by reading about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry that it was a good remedy. I at once got two bottles, and they perfectly cured them. I recommend everybody to use this wonderful remedy."

When you ask for "Dr. Fowler's" see that you get it.

It has been on the market for the past 72 years.

OUT OF THEIR OWN MOUTH.

(The Annalist)

Germany has a habit of convicting herself out of her own mouth. One explanation which Germans have offered of their dastardly invasion of Belgium, of their bombing of cities, and of their barbarous murders at sea is that Germany had to fight for her place in the sun, that she had to have trade and that the only way to get it was to take up arms against rival nations which were seeking to destroy her. All this in face of the fact that German overseas trade had for years been growing at marvellous rate with practically all the countries of the world, not excepting the colonies and possession of Great Britain which German apologists like to represent as having had a death grip on Germany which had to be broken at any cost. Now comes Vice-Chancellor Helfferich before the Main Committee of the Reichstag to inform Germans that had it not been for the outbreak of the war Germany's trade by 1917 (at the rate at which it was increasing) would have reached the level of Great Britain's trade. And Germany went to war to build up her trade! Instead of that she has brought woe to the world and her trade has been reduced to a shadow of its old volume. And who, pray, when this war is over, will help her again to built up?

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A MARINE CHASE

It Was For a Crook and $50,000

By WARREN MILLER

The most interesting chase I ever had in all my experience as a detective officer was for Simpson, who had robbed the —— National bank of $50,000 in currency. Simpson was located in New York by the police, or was supposed to be, and his problem was to get out of the city with the plunder. The problem of the police was to arrest him with the funds on him.

My being called into the case arose from certain information that came from Philadelphia. The chief of police of that city gave out information that a small steamer no bigger than a canal boat that had been laid up for some time had been purchased and was being put into commission. The owner could give no satisfactory account of the sale or who was the real purchaser. Indeed, they had become suspicious of the use to which she was to be put and had advised the police to be on the lookout.

The way we got on to Simpson's connection with the steamer was this: An anonymous letter was received at police headquarters which stated that he had chartered a single sticker at New London and was intending to make for Canada in her. Had we not heard of the Philadelphia matter we would have been on the lookout in the direction of New London. As it was we inferred that Simpson had written the anonymous letter to put us off the track. But if this were so he had not counted on our being in a position to put these two bits of information together.

As soon as I arrived at Philadelphia I went to the dock where the suspect was lying. Without appearing to be interested in her I made a mental note of everything in her outward makeup. She was evidently such a boat as is used for carrying passengers short distances between a city and its outlying towns. She had a single stack, was moved by a propeller and was painted white. The name on her stern was Peter Muller.

There were no signs of her leaving port, and I got the idea that I was off the track. I employed a man to watch the boat and made a visit to the police department, hoping to get some more information concerning her. They told me they thought they had traced the new ownership of the Muller and it was all right.

Had it not been for this information I would have watched the boat myself or at least taken better measures to keep advised of her movements. As it was I went to my hotel and to bed early, being tired. I was awakened at 3 o'clock in the morning by a bellboy, who ushered into my room the man I had placed on watch. He told me that he had gone to sleep about midnight and was awakened by a pulling. Opening his eyes, he saw the Muller going out.

I chartered a tug, and, having received information that my quarry after making the ocean had gone northward, I followed in hot haste. The Muller must have had good motive power, for despite the fact that we put on all steam she kept ahead of us. We saw nothing of her, but upon inquiry learned that she was several hours ahead of us, making northward.

Before leaving Philadelphia I had telephoned the New York police department of what had taken place, but whether or not they took steps to head off the fugitive nothing came of my notification. I kept on, guided by inquiry alone all day, but all day gaining on the Muller. When night came on I felt that temporarily at least I had lost her, for at night she could go where she pleased without her movements being noted.

However, I reasoned that the Muller would not know that she was being chased and would therefore not be likely to attempt to throw me off her track. At any rate, I determined to put into the first available port and try to pick up information of the fugitive the next day. This I did and in the morning started again northward, making inquiries along the way. About noon I got the first information. The Muller had been seen about five hours ahead of me, still pointing northward.

In this way I followed the fugitive for several days. The last I heard of her was off Cape Cod. She was then pointing for Portland. I now saw her object. She would make for Casco bay, in which there are several hundred islands, among which she would have an excellent opportunity to lose herself. There would be both advantage and disadvantage in this to me. I would have her cooped within a limited area, for she could not go on with safety northward, there being no harbor between Maine and the St. Lawrence river. But to find her among the islands of Casco bay would be like looking for a needle in a haystack. At the same time I might hunt her down by the same process of inquiry I had already pursued.

I made Portsmouth, where I learned that the Muller had been there. A man had come ashore to buy provisions, answering to a description of Simpson. It was evident from this that he did not suppose he was followed, or he would not have taken the risk of going ashore unless disguised. This theory turned out to be wrong, as will appear later.

I looked for a week among the islands of Casco bay for the Muller without getting any trace of her whatever. Then one morning when I went up from below I saw a boat anchored in a cove that answered to her except that the latter was a lead color, while the Muller was white. It happened that we had for two days had one of those fogs that float in from the ocean in that region. This put me on to a train of thought. My father had been in the volunteer navy during the war between the states, and he had told me that ships attempting to run the blockade of the Confederate ports were painted a light gray, this being the color best adapted to concealment, especially in the gray of the morning. This, together with the resemblance in all except color between the Muller and this boat I was looking at, suggested to me that the fugitive had been repainted. During a two days' fog there had been ample opportunity to do this.

I at once ran over every point I had noted when the Muller was lying at Philadelphia, and this gray boat before me corresponded with her in every particular. I at once gave orders to steam for her. We were lying at anchor at the time, and the fires were banked. Before we could get the anchor up and sufficient steam on the gray boat got off and disappeared around a point of the island.

She had evidently been waiting for the return of a boat that had gone ashore and started without any appearance of haste as soon as it reached her. I did not believe—if she were the Muller—that she suspected we were after her. In order that she might not know that we were I avoided all appearance of haste, though I was immensely impatient. When we finally got off I purposely went around the island on the other side from the suspect. When we next saw her she was steaming along deliberately.

Looking eastward I saw a low bank of fog on the horizon and feared that we would be caught in it before reaching the suspect. I ordered on full steam, but the fog bank rose rapidly and we were soon enveloped in it.

That was the last glimpse we got of the gray boat for another week. When in passing a narrow inlet in the mainland I saw her at the further end partly concealed by overhanging trees. I at once ordered our course altered, and we entered the cove. I now felt easy, for she could not get out of the inlet without our intercepting her. As we sailed, on drawing closer and closer, I noticed that she was lying at anchor, but no one was on deck. No more was made to get away from us, and when we drew up within a cable's length of her we saw plainly that no one was aboard of her. I got into a small boat, was pulled alongside of her and got aboard. Every entrance to her cabin was locked. There was reason to believe that those who were cruising in her had gone ashore and had left her under lock and key to avoid losing what she contained.

On pulling toward her I had noticed the name on her stern. It was the Seminole of Jacksonville, Fla. My suspicions of her were lulled by this till I remembered that no such small craft from Florida would be likely to make its way up to Maine. Besides, the letters had been evidently freshly painted.

I felt such confidence in her being the vessel I was looking for that I sent to my tug for implements, broke open the doors to the companionway and went below. Everything indicated that the crew had gone ashore. There was no steam on—indeed, no fires in the furnaces. I searched her for evidence as to what she was or to whom she belonged, but could find not a scrap of anything to give the information. I was reluctantly forced to the conclusion that she belonged to a party who were cruising for pleasure. So I fixed up the door as well as I could and got back to my tug.

The captain, after hearing what I had to say about the matter, said that he would go aboard the Seminole and have a look for himself. I concluded to go back with him. Having obtained access to the cabin, he led the way straight to the furnace and opened the door. All was dark within the firebox. The captain scratched a match and held it inside the box. Then he took out a package. I snatched it from him, unrolled it and exposed a large package of bank bills. On being counted they turned out to be the amount I was after, lacking about $2,500, which had evidently been paid for the boat and other expenses.

I asked the captain how he had come to suspect that the money had been hidden in the firebox, and he said that when an examination had been made of the interned German liners at Hoboken at the time the break was made between the United States and Germany he had been on hand and seen pieces of the machinery of one of the vessels taken from an unused furnace.

The rest of the story remained for some time a mystery. Then one of the Simpson's crew, who at the time did not know what he was hired for, revealed the facts. Simpson got word of the fact that we were inquiring for him and during the two days' fog repainted his boat and changed her name. Being caught in the cove, he had little time for deliberation. He resolved to make the pretense that had deceived me, trusting his plunder to the firebox rather than taking it with him. There was nothing for him to do after we found the plunder but to make off without it and save himself a term in state prison.

General Broadwood.

General Broadwood affords an example of that high courage which is compounded of judgment and independence of mind. It was at Omdurman that he gave overwhelming proof of it in his calm disregard of the order which he had received from Lord Kitchener to bring in his cavalry. He simply reversed it: kept his cavalry outside, so as to divert the Dervish forces from the British zareba, and so greatly helped to win the battle. A perfect example of intelligent co-operation, but it takes such men as were Lord Kitchener and General Broadwood to manifest and appreciate it.

About Bees.

In some parts of Germany oleomargarine is quoted at higher prices than butter.

In order to make bathtubs stand level on uneven floors, adjustable feet for the tubs have been invented.

One of the latest inventions is a sort of halter that keeps a sleeper's mouth closed and thus prevents snoring.

MILLBROOK BRANCH GIRLS AUXILIARY

MILLBROOK, Sept. 26.—The St. Thomas branch of the Girls' Auxiliary resumed their work again after the holidays at a meeting held at the home of their president, Mrs. Westmacott, on Friday last, sixteen members being present. After the devotional exercises and regular business had been finished, the Missionary Study Course was discussed and the fifth competition, an essay on "A Hero of the Canadian Missionary Field," was decided upon. With regard to the Bible Study it was decided to follow the studies of Christ's dealings with different types of women in the Gospels, the first paper on that subject to be prepared for the next monthly meeting.

After Miss Macnamara had read an interesting account of the Canadian Missionary work in Honan, China, the meeting was closed with the Doxology.

A PRAYER.

Somewhere across the infested sea,
Serving the cause of liberty,
Dear Lord, is my brave son.
I know not how he fares to-night,
But keep him ever in Thy sight,
For I have but the one!
Thou gavest two to bless my life,
But one fell early in the strife—
My first-begotten son!
He with his comrades marched away,
And then a menace came one day . . .
Dear Lord, I have but one.
Then, while so sorrowed and bereft,
Though only he to me was left,
I could not say you nay
Who urged that duty bade him go—
His country called, he said, and so
How could I bid him stay?
But, O dear Lord, 'tis hard to bear,
With not another child to share
The hearth when day is done!
I can but kneel to Thee and pray:
Be with him through the hellish fray
And keep Thou safe my son!
I know the cause is good and true—
I know that suffering must ensue
Before the fight is won.
Yet bear with me, O Lord, this night;
Be Thou my solace in my plight
And guard my only son!

"And He looked up and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury.

And He saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites.

And He said, Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all.

For all these have of their abundance cast into the offerings of God: But she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had."

St. Luke Chap. 21, 1 to 4.

—a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites.

For all that there were but two mites, the sacrifice counted high with the Recording Angel.

For all that we ask of you is but little, the Multiplication of That Little will count high in the record of Canada's War Service.

And because of the Spirit and Sacrifice of those valiant men who are defending us, we feel that a great and noble Legion of Canadian Women will respond to this appeal.

Food is scarce---not because we have not had good crops, but because of the Lack of Production in Europe. Canada must make up for this, else hunger defeat her own and the Allies' Armies.

Enough food is wasted in Canada every day, to feed the entire Canadian Overseas Army for that day.

We do not ask you to deny your family food. Merely substitute certain other foods in place of a proportion of the white bread, beef and bacon they now eat.

For example: When baking use one-third corn, oatmeal, barley or rye flour with your white flour. Or tell your baker to bring you some brown bread each day.

Substitute for beef and bacon such foods as fish, peas, lentils, potatoes, nuts, bananas.

And --- this is most important --- Prevent waste of food in your home.

We ask it in the name of those who are fighting for us.

The Food Service Pledge is your Dedication to War Service. The Window Card your Emblem of Honour.

Practical Housekeeping Hints

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR CANNING FRUITS WITH SUGAR.

Pack fruit compactly in jars. It will pack better if put in a strainer or piece of cheese-cloth and lowered into boiling water for about one minute. This is called "blanching". Blanch fruit in small lots, that the water may not be cooled much. Press fruit gently down in jars with spoon or small wooden spatula. Fill jars with syrup. Release any air-bubbles by slipping knife or spatula down between fruit and jar. Put on rings and cover without fastening them down. Place jars on rack in boiler. Pour warm water in boiler, enough to come about half-way up the jars. Put cover on boiler. Bring water to a boil and boil gently as long as required. Remove boiler from the stove, fasten down covers, take jars out and let them cool. If, when jars are taken from the boiler, there is more than half an inch of space between fruit and cover, the contents of one jar may be used to fill the rest before the covers are fastened down. Put jars again in boiler and boil 5 minutes more.

These directions apply to fruit bought in towns and cities. Less time is required for fruit freshly picked. Ten minutes for quart jars, five minutes for pint jar of freshly picked berries is sufficient. The shorter the time in cooking, the better the berries retain their flavor, shape and color.

ALBERT E. HUSK.

After a long illness Albert E. Husk passed away, on Friday, September 21st. Deceased, who is a son of the late Charles Husk, was born in Cavan Township forty-one years ago. He had farmed until about two years ago, when he had a slight stroke, from which he rallied sufficiently to do light work. About that time he moved to Mount Pleasant, and took charge of a milk route. A few weeks ago he was taken seriously ill with kidney trouble, failing rapidly until Friday, when death relieved him of his sufferings. Deceased was highly thought of by a host of friends. In religion, he was a Methodist and in politics, a Conservative. He was a faithful member of the L. O. L. No. 40, Fallis Line, under the direction of which Lodge the funeral on Sunday, to Zion cemetery, was held. Service at the house, was conducted by Rev. W. H. Clarke, and at the grave by Rev. W. Higgs.

The beautiful Orange burial service was also conducted by Bro. Milton Fallis and Bro. Wm. Lynn, Chaplin. The brethren then dropped their bit of Orange ribbon on the casket and gave the Orange honours. Bro. J. H. Paul, P.C.M., was Director of Ceremonies.

The pall-bearers were Bros. David Fallis, A. J. Henderson, Stewart Fallis, Richard Fallis, Wesley Fallis, and Thomas Aiken.

Many beautiful floral offerings were placed upon the casket by loving friends, among them being a wreath from L.O.L. 40, bouquets from Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. Geo. Elgar, from his daughters and others.

Those left to mourn his demise are his mother, two daughters, Mabel and Hazel, two brothers, Wm. H. and Wesley, five sisters, Mrs. J. W. Gillis of Cameron, Mrs. Bruce Parker, Cavan; Mrs. George White, Cavan, and Mrs. Arthur Wood, Peterborough, and Miss Charlotte, at home.

GERMAN COUNTER ATTACK REPULSED

BRITISH HOLD GAINS AFTER SEVERE FIGHTING

British Troops Hold Fast To Their Victories After Hard Fight

Bavarian and Baden Prisoners Glad to Be Taken and Declare They Are Sick of War and of Their Heavy Losses --Situation Resulting From the New Offensive is Very Satisfactory From a British Standpoint.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By William Philip SIMMS.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, September 27.—British troops held fast to their victories to-day after a night of incessant beating back of German counter attacks. The whole of the Ypres sector was ablaze with artillery, trench mortars and grenade explosions. Prisoners pouring back of the lines were heartily glad to emerge from the fighting alive. Bavarian and Baden troops, who opposed part of the British advance on the six-mile front, declared they were sick of war. They complained that the losses of their troops were higher than the Prussians whose cattles they were now forced to fight. Still other prisoners declared unless peace comes soon the German high command may have difficulty in keeping all its troops in the fighting. This latter statement of serious discontent in the German ranks is completely belied, however, by the stubborn German defense which the recent fighting has developed.

(Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, September 27.—The official from Field Marshal Haig announced to-day follows: "Later acco unts show the enemy spared no effort to regain the important ground captured by us. The fighting on the battle front yesterday afternoon and evening was exceedingly severe. Between 4 p.m. and 7 four separate counter attacks were made in great strength against our new front from Tower Hamlets to the St. Julien-Gravenstafel Road.

ROME, September 27.—The restoration of Riga and "all other Russian territory" now held by the Germans was "explicitly and implicitly" suggested in the Pope's appeal, according to a Vatican announcement to the United Press. The announcement is taken to mean that Germany must relinquish her plans for a kingdom of Poland with a German regency to meet the Pope's condition of peace.

(By the Associated Press.)

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, September 27. — The British are maintaining there lines strongly. The main battle to-day was in the neighbourhood of Cameron Hu, north of the eastern extremity of Polygon Wood, where the Australians are pressing the Germans hard. The situation as a whole is virtually unchanged.

Northwest of Zonnebeke there is heavy fighting in the region of elevations which dominate considerable extent of territory. From a British standpoint the situation resulting from the new offensive is exceedingly satisfactory.

LONDON, September 27.—An official statement issued to-day by the Admiralty says: "On Tuesday night our naval airplanes dropped many tons of bombs making several direct hits on the railroad lines at Thourout Junction, the Lichtevelde Junction, and the Cortemarck Junction. All our machines returned safely.

AMERICAN BARRACKS ATTACKED BY AIRMEN

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By J. W. Peglop.)

AMERICAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, September 27. —American Army engineers sleeping in their barracks have been under fire from German airmen. Not an American was hurt despite a fusilade of machine-gun fire from the air which riddled the barracks roof and walls. The Sammies took refuge in dugouts. This is hte first time that the barracks of an American army contingent have been objects of a German aerial attack.

WENTWORTH SUNK WITH LOSS OF ALL HANDS

Canadian Press Despatch:

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 27.—The Associated Press to-day carries the following: A report that all persons on board the British steamship Wentworth were lost when that vessel was sunk by a German submarine, was brought here by a passenger on a British steamship which arrived here today. The Wentworth, of 2,381 tons, was on a voyage from New York to Bordeaux, when, as reported last week, she was destroyed on September 8th, presumably off the French coast. The British vessel which arrived here today, was at the time eastbound, in the vicinity of the Wentworth. Records at the British Shipping Commissioner's office here, show there were 36 persons on board the Wentworth, including Captain A. M. Mackena. All were British subjects.

Would Impose Taxes On Provincial Owned Properties

Committee of the Whole Council Favour Such a Move

Both the members of the City Council and the Utilities Commissioners do not approve of exempting from municipal taxation properties owned and operated by the Commission within the city limits. The properties are exempt, according to provincial legislation enacted some time ago. The loss of revenue to the city as a result of this exemption is in the neighbourhood of eight thousand dollars, represented chiefly by the Auburn dam. At a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council held last evening, it was decided to endorse and forward to the proper authorities a resolution received from London, Ont., urging Peterborough to bring pressure to bear on the Provincial authorities relative to the imposition of municipal taxes on Provincial owned utilities. Mr. Matthews of the Utilities Commission, said that such exemptions as are now in force were a hardship to any city unless they were compensated by reduction of rates for lighting, etc. Mr. Matthews said that Peterborough had enjoyed considerable reductions in rates. He said that the reductions would exceed the amount of the taxes The London resolution was adopted.

BULGARIA READY TO QUIT

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By A. Johnson.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Bulgaria is not interested in Kaiser Wilhelm's dream of an European empire. In an interview with the United Press today, Stephen Panaretoff, the Bulgarian Minister to the United States, said his country had attained the sole ends for which it entered the war and is ready to quit providing she can keep the territory which, by language, nationality and historic right, she says belongs to her. Bulgaria, he said frankly, would have preferred to have fought on the side of the allies, but Germany made a more acceptable business proposition.

MILKMAID ENTERTAINMENT

The Milkmaid entertainment at Knox Church Lecture Hall on Tuesday evening was so great a success that the officers of the Berean Bible Class were urged to have the performance repeated. They have, however decided not to do so. The decorations in the hall were in keeping with the milkmaid idea, many of the pails, cans, etc., being lent for the occasion by the De Laval Co., Messrs. Routley and Woolworth Co., to whom, and to all those who helped in any way, the thanks of the class are due.

The humorous play which opened the programme was well given. This was followed by a mowing song by little Helen and Walter Collins of Mt. Forest and piano solos and duets by various members of friends of the class. The programme closed with the new recruiting song, by Alice Roger Collins, which was given by a chorus of twenty girls in white and red uniforms. Miss Igla Waterman taking the solo part and being appropriately clad in "a khaki shit." Immediately after the singing of "A Khaki Suit," the songs were sold to those of the audience who wished them and the people present moved about buying fancy work, ice cream, dairy articles, etc. The sale was most successful, about $125.00 being realised. All proceeds go to help the Prisoners of War.

GERMAN MOVES AN APPEAL TO PACIFISTS

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Carl P. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, September 27.—Germany—weakening though not yet beaten—is making a desperate effort for peace in the face of America's might next year. International experts to-day repeated this declaration even more emphatically than they have voiced for weeks past, on the strength of Secretary of War Baker's official war review showing that Germany's "punch" is waning. The Government was informed long ago that Germany would start a new propaganda for peace to avoid a winter campaign and the effects of America's participation in the war. Germany's replies to the Vatican prove the information was entirely correct. Germany's moves are now looked upon her as an appeal to pacifist opinion.

All Class One Men Must Respond When Proclamation Is Made

No Matter What Category a Man Has Been Placed in by the Doctors He Must Report For Service or Apply For Exemption--Sergt. Douglas Loomis, Formerly of the 93rd Battalion is Wounded--To-day's General Military New TORONTO, Sept. 27.—According to Mr. Glyn Osler, Registrar for Ontario under the military service act, all of Class One must respond to the summons when the proclamation is issued. In this connection it is necessary for the general public to educate itself as to the distinction between the meaning of the term class and category.

Under the military service act all the male population in Canada between twenty and forty-five is divided into six classes, numbered one to six, each of which can be called up in order, if necessary. Class One consists of single men and widowers without children between the ages of twenty and thirty-four. When a man is examined by the army doctor he is graded in categories, termed A.B.C., and E. A is fit for any branch of the service, B non-combatant overseas, C home service only, E rejected. Category D is for casualties and does not affect recruits. For the proper understanding of what to do after the proclamation is issued it is necessary to keep in mind the distinction between the terms.

Call Likely Next Week.

The proclamation calling all Class One to report for service will likely be issued net week, and it will set a day twenty-five days forward from its date of issue, on or before which every person in Class One, no matter in which category a medical examination will place him, must either report to the military authorities or apply for exemption. As to do either means enclosing with the report or the application a medical history sheet, medical examination before some Medical Board must precede both. All the applications and reports go to Mr. Osler, who directs each applicant for exemption to his proper tribunal. As soon as the tribunals have disposed of the bulk of the applications for exemption, the Government will ask to report for actual duty on a certain day the number of men it wants, and who will be all drawn, for the first draft likely, from category A. The names of these men will be obtained from the Registrar, and by some means yet to be determined, those wanted will be selected, and the remaining number will be subject to a further call at any time.

Question of Exemptions.

The point to bear in mind is that, following the first proclamation, all the applications for exemption for every man in Class 1, whether in Category A, B, C, or E, will be passed upon and decided. Then the Government will call up men for actual service from Class 1, and from any category it wishes (except E, which will be exempt), from time to time, just as the need arises. Probably Category B or C will never be used; it all depends on how the war goes; but men in those categories must get their reports for service in immediately, or their appeals for exemption decided upon when all the others are disposed of, thus finishing the matter of reports and exemptions, until the netx class (married men(is called up, if it ever is.

Great Amount of Detail.

It is expected that the proclamation calling men to report for service will be ready next week. Mr. Osler points out, however, that all the preliminary work is being completed before the proclamation is issued. Splendid progress has been made by the Military Service Council, he says, but in a matter of such as this the amount of detail is something prodirious. All the registrars and deputy-registrars of Ontario and Quebec met in Ottawa Tuesday, and the whole administrative problem falling to them was discussed and explained. Mr. George Stiff of Toronto has left for the West to explain to the western registrars the results arrived at at Ottawa, as this method of communicating with them was considered better than bringing the western men all the way to the Capital.

Hearings in Privats.

It has not been decided yet whether the exemption tribunals will hear applications in public or in private. It is thought that that matter will be left to the judgment of the individual tribunals. As to the exact location of each tribunals, that will likely be named by the Military Service Council.

SERGT. LOOMIS WOUNDED.

Mrs. Mary Loomis, 23 Bethune street, has received official word from Ottawa that her son, Sergt. Douglas Loomis, a well-known member of the 93rd Battalion, is reported admitted to No. 6 Casualty Clearing Station, on Sept. 23rd. suffering from a gas shell wound. Sergt. Loomis was prominent in Y. M. C. A. circles and came home from St. Catharines where he was Y.M.C.A. physical instructor, to enlist with the battalion from his home city.

KINGSTON, Sept. 27.—Mr. H. P. Cooke, who has lately returned from overseas, has been appointed deputy registrar under the Military Service Act for Military District No. 3, and will establish offices in Ontario Hall about October 1st, with a staff of approximately one hundred stenographers and clerks.

Mr. Cook stated that the work of his office would be the receiving and forwarding of all reports for service and the claims for exemption from this district. All such reports will pass through him to the various tribunals and medical boards, in this district, for military purposes.

It is expected that the work of the deputy registrar will be brought up to date by November 1st, when lists of all men available for draft purposes will be ready for the military authorities.

KINGSTON, Sept. 27.—Unheralded, unnoticed and practically unexpected at the time, a large portion of "B" brigade arrived in the city this morning from Petawawa. The party consisted of the 72nd, 73rd, 74th and 75th batteries under Major Carr-Harris and Crocker. They arrived via C.P.R. at about 7.30 a.m., and altogether there wer eabout 500 men and over 200 horses. The D.A.C. is still in Petawawa, but are expected to arrive in the city this week. Quarters for the soldiers are being prepared to-day and the soldiers will be housed the same as last year. It is expected that the R.C.H.A. will also arrive this week, and Kingston's artillery will be again here for the winter.

FIRE CHIEF TO INSPECT THE CELLARS

The Fire Chief intends to carry on an inspection of the cellars in a section of the city next week from Monday till Saturday.

BRITISH GAIN ON A SIX MILE FRONT

More Than 1000 Prisoners Were Taken in New Drive and Large Numbers of German Dead Were Found on the Captured Ground

ZONNEBEKE STORMED

LONDON, Sept. 26.—In an attack along a six-mile front today the British troops captured an important position a round Tower Hamlets and strong German field works, according to the official report from Field Marshal Haig to-night. Powerful resistance was offered by the Germans throughout the day and they delivered many strong counter-attacks. "But," says the British commander, "our operations were entirely successful." More than 1,000 prisoners were taken and large numbers of German dead were found on the captured ground.

Probably the most significant gain of the British was near Zonnebeke, to within a few hundred yards of the western outskirts of which village they penetrated, placing them about six miles distant from the railway running from Ostend through Roulers and Roubaix to Lille. The cutting of this line, which seems to be the objective of Field Marshal Haig, would seriously affect the transport of the Germans from their naval base at Ostend and Zeebrugge to the south. Prior to the final attacks British naval forces heavily shelled Ostend, and again Wednesday afternoon they repeated the bombardment. Meanwhile naval aeroplanes dropped bombs on towns in Northern Belgium, with visibly effective results.

The text of Field Marshal Haig's report reads:

"An attack this morning was delivered on a total front of nearly six miles, from south of Tower Hamlets to east of St. Julien. Our operations were entirely successful.

"Later in the day the enemy delivered a series of heavy counter-attacks along our new front, resulting in hard fighting, which is still continuing at certain points.

"South of the Ypres-Menin road an attack carried out by English troops successfully completed the capture of the Tower Hamlets spur and gained possession of strong German field works on its eastern slopes, which formed our objectives.

"A powerful counter-attack in the direction of Gheluvelt was repulsed.

An All-Day Struggle.

"On the right of our main attack, north of the Ypres-Menin road, our troops met obstinate resistance and heavy fighting took place in the area across which the enemy counter-attacked yesterday. After a severe struggle lasting throughout the greater part of the day English and Scottish battalions drove the enemy from his positions and accomplished the task allotted to them of securing the flank of our principal attack.

"In their advance our troops relieved two companies of Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders who had held out with great gallantry during the night in a forward position, in which they had been isolated by the enemy's attack yesterday morning.

"In the afternoon the enemy delivered another counter-attack in great strength in this sector, where fierce fighting is still continuing.

"Further north Australian troops cleared the remainder of Polygon Wood and captured a German trench system to the east of it, which formed their objectives for the day.

"On their left, English, Scottish and Welsh battalions penetrated the enemy's defence to a depth of nearly a mile, stormed Zonnebeke and gained the line of their objectives.

"During the afternoon a counter-attack carried out by English troops east of Polygon Wood was repulsed.

Thousand Prisoners Taken.

"On the left of our attack, North Midland and London Territorials, at.

DESTITUTION AND DEATH FOLLOWS IN STRIKE'S PATH

Every Class of Labour in the Argentine Affected—Many Infants and Invalids Die Because of the Milk Famine

SITUATION IS HOPELESS

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Chas. P. Stewart.)

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—Destitution and death marked the continuance of Argentine's nation-wide strike to-day. Many infants and invalids whose deaths were reported, succumbed because of the milk famine. Violent clashes between the strikers and the police were reported. More working men joined the movement. To-day the prospects for any immediate settlement of the strike were hopeless. Every class of labour is now affected. Even the house maids are considering a walk-out. The Gas Company employees quit to-day.

Two of the city's street car lines were tied up and the strikers stoned the crews and assaulted the passengers on some of the cars. Not a wheel is turning on any of the railways, and the business is completely tied up.

The gravest destitution is already reported here and in other cities due to the food shortage. Argentine marines were in control of the waterworks, and all power plants are energetically seeking an adjustment. The pro-war demonstration last night attracted a crowd of 100,000 people, and this despite a heavy downpour of rain.

MOBILIZATION ON DEC. 20th

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—Mobilization on December 20 of thirty thousand men of Class One, Grades A, B and C, following a proclamation on October 6th and the work of the exemption tribunals in the meantime. This is the programme arranged to give effect to the Military Service Act, according to one of the local officials here. It is stated that instructions have arrived from Ottawa to all provincial registrars to have their staffs completed by October 5th.

AN APPEAL TO SIR ROBERT.

There is some considerable justification for the attitude of the Iron Moulders' Union of Hamilton, towards the disfranchising provision of the win-the-election franchise act, as it relates to depriving of the vote foreign-born Canadians who have not been naturalized for a longer period than fifteen years. These persons, by thousands all over Canada, are not only disfranchised but exempted from military service. The Moulders' Union does not think it fair that these persons should be allowed to remain at home, at the expense of native-born Canadians, and permitted to take the jobs that native born Canadians are compelled to leave when conscription is applied to them.

In one case the aliens are virtually rewarded for losing their vote, and in the other the native Canadian stands to step aside to give the alleged enemy alien a place that means from $3 to $5 per day, and take service as a soldier at $1.10 per day, a losing arrangement so far as the mere matter of pay is concerned.

The Union has written to Sir Robert Borden to reconsider the government's legislation and policy, and put the enemy alien—thousands of whom are only nominally aliens, being good law-abiding Canadians of twelve or fifteen years—into the ranks, in imitation of the United States which puts friendly aliens to the firing line and enemy aliens to non-combatant war service.

It is not probable that much attention will be paid by the Borden government to the demand of the Hamilton Moulders' Union. Men who usually belong to labour unions are not millionaires and capitalists, and the government very largely reserves its favours for the capitalists and the "big interests."

The total of British casualties for August, reported from all points where British forces are engaged, is 57,668.

CAN'T FIX PRICES.

A news bulletin says that Hon. Mr. Hanna, Food Controller, declares that food prices cannot be fixed "without disaster." Mr. Hanna should know; but the public would be glad of a little detail of his reasons for such a declaration. Without seeing as far into the millstone as the food controller, we can be pretty positive that the disaster would not touch the consumer. If we give an elastic definition to "disaster," it may be admitted that fixing an honest and reasonable price, to say, flour, would not result in disaster to the Ogilvie Flour Company. Fixing an honest price for the flour produced by this company might well cause disaster to extraordinary profits. In the midst of a gruelling war the Ogilvie Company, doubtless in common with other enterprises of its kind, is doing fairly well. It has recently declared a bonus of 15 per cent. on the common stock; this modest figure, added to the regular dividend of 10 per cent.—2 1-2 per cent. quarterly—dividend, makes a total profit of 25 per cent. This seems a reasonably good profit, and reasoning as a war profiteer, fixing prices for flour that would represent a profit of ten per cent., would be a disaster for the profiteer, from whose point of view Hon. Mr. Hanna may be regarding the situation. Referring to the operations of the Ogilvie Company, the Toronto Star says:—

> The dividend in 1903 and for some years afterwards was seven per cent. In 1908 there was a stock dividend of 100 per cent. In 1915 the net profits were 55.18, and in 1916 they were 25.37 after a provision for two years' war tax. A little conscription of wealth would do no harm to this prosperous concern.

It is not, therefore, difficult to believe that the profits of the millers of Canada is $5.00 per barrel, or to believe that fixing a fair price for flour would be a "disaster" to the profiteers.

It would seem that the policy and declarations of the Food Controller are only a reflection of the policy of the government in its tender considerations of the "big interests." Fixing prices would doubtless bring "disaster"—to them—in the form of direct profits, though it is doubtless true that the consumer, whose interests seem to be invisible to the official eye, would be benefitted.

It is perhaps the tender consideration for big profits on the part of the government that has given the cue to Mr. Hanna to adopt the absurd policy of food conservation implied in forbidding the use of 27,782 pounds of wheat for making whisky and permitting the use of nearly ninety million pounds of other food grains, as was done last year for whisky making—2,969,262 pounds of malt, 69,444,487 pounds of corn, 10,430,3'7 poupds of rye, 131,881 pounds of oats. This waste is still going on, though by forbidding the use of wheat for whisky making one pound of grain out of three thousand wasted, is saved.

The government's consideration for the distillers is not only shown in this, but also in providing them a market for their whisky. Ontario has adopted prohibition of strong drink as a beverage, and the spirit of the law is that the traffic in strong drink is barred, but the provincial government cannot prevent importation; only the Dominion government can do that. Yet whisky and beer are pouring into the province from the outside in a wide-flowing, under-ground stream. The Dominion government went the limit of cruelty to the distillers when it permitted Mr. Hanna forbid the use of one bushel of grain in three thousand for whisky making. It would be heartless and unjust, it would be a "disaster" to the big distillery interests, to close the Ontario underground market for grog.

It is not a bad time to sit down quietly and consider whether Parliament is the servant or the master of the people.

DEMOCRATIC INEQUALITY.

One of the prominent arguments in favour of conscription is that it brings about "equality of service," one of the conditions of the true democracy. Admitting this, it does not seem inconsistent to claim that more or less equality of reward should accompany it. The pay, the wages of soldiers, on active service have been the same since the war began. During the same time the wages, the pay, of those who stayed at home and shirked military service, have been of almost princely proportions. Thousands of Canadians who refused to enlist, are congratulating themselves upon their good sense in "keeping out of it," and staying at home in safety under a good roof and on a dry floor, earning big wages; while the foolish recruit is fighting up to his knees in mud and water, sleeping under a rainy sky, and all for a daily wage that a charwoman in Peterborough would not accept.

As a matter of fair play and common every-day justice the rate of pay of Canadian soldiers should be increased in conformity with the universal increase of pay that has been given since the beginning of the war, when the soldiers' pay was fixed.

The demand for bettering the soldier's pay seems a reasonable one and it is being pretty generally and persistently made. The Brantford Expositor, not a Socialistic sheet, but a good, sane, sturdy-going newspaper, says:

> The question of better pay for Canadian soldiers is being persistently advocated, and there seems no reason why, in these days when the high cost of living is driving upward the pay of all classes of labour, the men who are the most deserving of consideration—those in khaki—should alone be permitted to work, and risk their lives as well, for rates of pay fixed at the opening of the war. It has to be frankly admitted that $20 a month separation allowance, plus any assigned pay or grant from the Patriotic League, is not sufficient to make a fairly comfortable position for the soldier's family. Not only ought there to be an increase in the soldier's direct pay, but in the amount of the separation allowance as well, and there is no use of the government pretending that it cannot find funds for any such purpose so long as the Flavelles and other profiteers can be shown to be making millions out of the war.
>
> If we are constrained to resort to conscription to secure democratic "equality of service," we might consistently demand that the government should do a little towards securing the complementary condition—"equality of sacrifice," and "equality of pay."

Russia changed the name of Petersburg to Petrograd, and it is hoped that Russia will not be changed to Retrograd.

The United States Learning Some Things From Canada

Our American neighbours, only now getting thoroughly at work in organizing for the great war, are learning some things from our Canadian three years' war experience in military affairs. American officers have come over to our military camps, and have obtained useful lessons from their observation. They are learning also from Canada's management of such services at the Patriotic Fund and the Red Cross Fund. In another important field they are moving to follow an example from Canada. It is in relation to methods of dealing with the different problems of labour and capital. The American Government, in co-operation with the American Federation of Labour, are arranging a plan for preventing strikes in munition works, which is practically a replica of the Canadian law commonly called the Lemieux Act. Few laws are accepted with universal approval. It would be strange if this Act were approved by everybody. Some of the Canadian labour organizations have refused to approve it; some of the labour leaders feel that the law restricts the complete freedom to strike, which they wish to have. Nevertheless, many labour representatives will have to admit that the Act has been helpful in many cases in adjusting difficulties between the workers and their employers engaged in the operation of public utilities. The main feature of the law is the machinery for holding an impartial inquiry at the beginning of every dispute. Each party appoints a representative, and if they fail to agree on a third member, the Government makes the appointment. It is assumed that if all the facts be impartially set forth, and an award be made, public opinion will prove strong enough to enforce what is recommended. This expectation has been fully realised in many cases. Dr. Charles W. Elliott, the venerable ex-President of Harvard University, an able and careful student of social problems, has expressed the opinion that the Canadian law is the best piece of legislation of the kind that he has found. It is this Canadian law that, in principle, is to be adopted for preventing strikes in the American munitions works. The only difference is that while in Canada a board of inquiry is appointed for each case, in the States it is proposed to have one general board, which shall deal with all the cases that may arise in munition factories. The plan provides for a small commission—representing capital, labour and the Government—to adjust labour troubles before they develop into strikes. The scheme will be substituted for the labour commission of nine members projected by the National Defense Council, but rejected by the American Federation of Labour because it contained a compulsory arbitration feature. "The agreement," says a Washington despatch, "is regarded as the greatest step toward eliminating future labour troubles, and will be continued after the war."—Journal of Commerce.

Music & Drama

"PRETTY BABY."

Jimmy Hodges, a flock of pretty girls, a host of clever specialties, song numbers galore, and sumptuous scenic investiture, all combined to make the musical comedy "Pretty Baby," at the Grand yesterday afternoon and evening, a swiftly moving and charming entertainment, pleasing both to eye and ear. There was a large audience in the afternoon, and a crowded house at night, and everybody went away satisfied on both occasions. Jimmy Hodges, a comedian of the "nut" variety, dominated the offering and had the audience with him all the way. Hodges was clever, original, and full of "pep," and convulsed his "customers," as he termed them, every time he got into action. He sang and danced, kidded himself, the company and the audience, led the orchestra, climbed up on the piano, wandered down into the auditorium, and everything he did was funny, excepting a couple of his songs in which he showed the audience that he could sing as well as make fun. The specialties which followed each other in rapid success were artistic and delightful, especially the patriotic scene in which the song "Good-bye, Broadway, Hello France," made a big hit, and Elmer Coudy sang "Throw no stones in the Well That Gives You Water," and gave a war recitation with great effect. Military and naval uniforms, and a liberal display of the Stars and Stripes and Union Jack made the effect a most stirring one, and aroused great enthusiasm.

A monologue by Elmer Coudy as a coloured waiter was very funny, and the dance numbers by Jean Tyne, Irent Black and Al. Garbelle were artistic and enjoyable. Jean Tyne had the leading feminine role and was altogether successful in her musical numbers.

The music was of the popular variety — most of it new and all of it pleasing. Jimmy Hodges' two numbers "So Long, Mother," and "She's Dixie All the Time," and his duet "Me and My Gal," with Miss Tyne, were among the best, while Norman Coudy scored heavily in his song "China Dreams."

The plot was as thin as cafe consomme, but when you have Jimmy Hodges, lots of music and fun, and pretty, graceful girls to look at, who wants a plot anyway?

"Pretty Baby" makes an evening pass with express-train speed, and leaves you wishing for more, which is why the audience applauded when the eccentric Hodges in a funny announcement, conveyed the intelligence that the attraction may be seen here again late in the season.

One great success will wipe out a score of failures, and it is well that this should be so, as here lies the eternal encouragement to go ahead after misfortune; not to be dismayed by failure.

WOMEN'S SMART SUITS FOR FALL

WHILE Women's Suits this season are quite simple in line and trimming, that fact makes them more attractive than ever for business and general outdoor wear. Coats are longer and help toward giving the long, youthful sweep to the figure which is so much desired. Buttons and braids are used freely and their clever combinations give those touches of distinction so fashionable in the New Fall Suits.

The colours are led by navy blue and followed by the deeper Fall tones of plum, brown, etc. These new models are mostly in fine serges and gabardines and are very attractively priced.

$25.00, $27.50, $28.50 and $32.50

Good Ship Rum, Full of Scotch Is Now In Port

AN AMERICAN PORT.—The good ship Demon Dum, running a desperate race against time and a flock of German U-boats, poked her nose into harbor here the other day and came to anchor. She carried nealry 33,000 quarts of old Scotch whisky, the last shipment of Scotch whisky that will come into this port before the law prohibiting the importation of spirituous liquors goes into effect.

It was part of a big convoy attacked by a fleet of seven submarines off the Irish coast a few days ago. In this battle the convoy's flagship and two merchantmen were sunk.

One of the merchantmen was the Assyria, carrying the greatest shipment of Scotch whisky on record from Glasgow to Boston.

PIGEON RIVER THRESHING OUTFIT

LINDSAY, Sept. 27.—A threshing outfit, the property of the Pigeon River Threshing Syndicate, arrived in town this week from Sarnia and was unloaded from the cars on Tuesday. The outfit is an expensive one, and complete in every detail. As the statutes do not permit outfits of this kind to traverse paved streets without owners complying with certain requirements and agreeing not to injure pavements, extra care had to be used in passing through the town. Chief Short was supervisor of the operations and the machine was taken over the streets without any trouble. Five or six elm planks were used on the paved streets, and these were like kindling wood after the streets were traversed.

Washing Won't Rid Head Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

EJECT LA FOLLETTE, ROOSEFELT DEMANDS

The Colonel Wants Pro-German Thrown Out of the U.S. Senate.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 25. — "If I were this minute a member of the United States Senate I would be ashamed to sit in that body until I had found out some method of depriving Senator La Follette of his seat in that Chamber, which he now disgraces by his presence there," Colonel Theodore Roosevelt declared in a talk yesterday at a luncheon given for Major-General Leonard Wood and himself as a part of the Middle Western patriotic celebration of this city.

Continuing his remarks concerning Congress, Col. Roosevelt asserted that if Congress had taken the action three years ago that it has since the declaration of war, the war would have been over.

"If we take heed of any peace utterance Germany prepares, we will show that we are not prepared yet to go out into the world without a guardian," the Colonel added. "America must make good the words of President Wilson (make the world safe for democracy). For this reason we should declare war against Austria and Turkey."

At the conclusion of his talk, Col. Roosevelt was presented with a gold quill, with the reminder that the pen is mightier than the sword.

"But I would rather have a sword," the Colonel said. "This is a very exclusive war as far as I am concerned. I was blackballed by the committee on admission."

Major-General Leonard Wood, in a speech following the former President, said:

"It is utter foolishness to say that America can win this war in the air with chemical devices. It can only be won with men and by sacrifices."

CAN'T DEFLECT TORPEDOES.

Naval Experts have Abandoned Hope in Electro-Magnetic Devices.

Washington. — It was learned today that navy experts had virtually abandoned hope that the anti-submarine campaign can be advanced by the employment of electro-magnetic devices. Much has been written and said about the use of such devices to deflect torpedoes, and it has been remarked that probably such a device had been used recently in deflecting a torpedo fired at a merchant ship by a German submarine. At the Navy Department it is asserted that no such device is being used and that hope that such means can be found to combat submarines was abandoned some time ago.

Destroyers have been found to be the most effective weapon against the German submarines, and they, with other measures taken by the American, French and British navies, have been responsible for cutting down the number of vessels falling victims to the U-Boats.

"This," said the goat, as he turned from the tomato can and began on the broken mirror with relish, "this is indeed food for reflection."

Rich Man's Son Must Go To War

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—George Low Abbott, son of a wealthy Ogden manufacturer, who was ordered to report for military service by the local draft board, but who successfully claimed exemption before the district board, will have to go to war after all.

Abbott claimed exemption because he said his wife was dependent upon him for support.

Following its action recently when it granted exemption, the district board decided to accept an offer made by I. N. Parker of Redmond, Utah, who said that he would be prepared to support Abbotts wife while he was on military duty.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

ORIGIN OF A FAMOUS COLLEGE SONG.

"He's a Jolly Good Fellow" Has Seen Service at Court and On Historic Battle Fields.

The tune "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," has a history considerably more dignified than its rollicking lilt would suggest. It is a bit incongruous to connect this light-hearted and unpretentious melody, which, by the way, is the same that accompanies the ditty, "We won't get home until morning," with any history at all, save perhaps that associated with college football fields and student revels. As a matter of fact, however, the tune is believed to have been brought to Europe by the Crusaders, is known to have been a famous camp and battle song of the French armies more than two hundred years ago, and was revived by Marie Antoinette, as a cradle lullaby for the illfated Dauphin. Perhaps it is no safer to judge by sound than by appearances.

Song Popular in France in the Eighteenth Century.

The verses to the old melody which made the song so popular with the French army and people were composed in 1709, at the time of the battle of Malplaquet, when the English and French were not allies but enemies. The song was known as "Malbrouck" (Marlborough) and consisted of a great number of couplets deriding the battle career of that English nobleman. During the Napoleonic wars the song again became the favorite of the army and on the Parisians as a whole. It spread to all parts of the world, even to the desert of Africa, where the French troops taught it to the Arabs, who called it "Mabrooga." Even Napoleon, who is known to have cared very little for music, was frequently heard humming the air. The words were as follows (translation by John Oxenford:

Malbrouck has gone to battle,
Mi-ron-ton, mi-ron-ton, miron-tai-ne,
Malbrouck has gone to battle, but when will he return?
He will return at Easter,
Miron-ont, etc.,
He will return at Easter, or else at Trinity.
Madam climbs to her tower,
Mi-ron-ton, etc.,
Madam climbs to her tower as high as she can go.

And so on through a series of couplets describing the grief of "Madam" Marlborough at her husband's failure to return from the war and at the final entombment of the warrior.

The song probably waned in popularity with the French after the battle of Waterloo, though history is noncommittal on this point.

In any case, the melody will surely be sung again on the European battle fields when our college boys arrive there, but this time to the words "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

MUSIC AS A VOCATION.

The State Department of Education for California issues a bulletin regularly in which it has recently taken occasion to make a statement on the musical situation as it affects band and orchestra players. The statement reads: Few people realize the opportunities offered in this country in the field of music as a vocation or a semi-vocation. The membership of the bands and particularly the symphony orchestra has been recruited largely from abroad. It is only during the last few years that we have realized the great opportunities offered to skilled performers in this field.

Since our population is cosmopolitan in inheritance there is no ethical reason why our own boys and girls should not be prepared to supply the demand for musicians. The only present hindrance to adequate preparation for this work in our schools is the inability to secure competent trained teachers. This difficulty is, however, not an insurmountable one. The demand for instructors in this field will ultimately produce them.

Every city has competent band and orchestra leaders, most of whom can be trained to handle the work in the schools if opportunity is provided. It is the problem of the state to provide opportunity for the training of such teachers and it is the problem of the public schools to open up this opportunity for employment to the youth of America.

THE PIPE ORGAN.

When you listen to the rich tones of the pipe organ in church—or hear it through the open windows on a summer Sunday—you may not realize the debt you owe to all the ages of civilization. The organ had its beginning in the first whistle made from a hollow reed, and that instrument is pre-historic. The Greeks, and perhaps the Egyptians before them, hit on the device of making a series of several pipes of differing tone and joining them in a single instrument. Pan's pipes, they called it. The process of blowing into the pipes grew wearisome, and some genius invented the bagpipes, the wind being contained in a bag, and by pressure being forced through the "whustles." It is a certainty that the bagpipes, despised by anti-Caledonians, is the great grandfather of the organ which sings in the vaulting of the modern cathedral.

But the bag of wind was not adequate for the result desired. Bellows and a rigid wind-chest were devised, with sliding panels to admit wind to the pipes, or to shut it off at the will of the player. Such an instrument, portable and crude, was used constantly in the Roman theatres and arenas, and probably the early Christian martyrs were too familiar with its tones. In the next ten centuries the development of the organ was slow, but one learns of an instrument at Winchester, England, which had four hundred pipes, and two manuals of keys, each of which could be depressed only by a blow from the clenched fist. Several men were required to supply wind by walking on the bellows, as on a great treadmill. One presumes that the organist was selected from among the best pugilists of the time. Perhaps three centuries more elapsed before the balanced key appeared, and then the way was comparatively easy. Pedals were invented in the fifteenth century. The "swell organ" was devised in 1712 and by 1850 every European cathedral had a noble and beautiful instrument. Within the past twenty-five years two great improvements were made. Compressed air was used to do away with the mechanical connection between keys and pipe, and this was largely superseded by electricity. To-day the touch of a large organ in full blast is similar to the touch of a pianoforte and practically all the athleticism has gone out of the art of organ playing.

ARRAIGNED ON CHARGE OF MURDER

CONCORD, N.C., Sept. 26.—Gaston B. Means, business agent and confidant of Mrs. Maude A. King, the wealthy widow whose death has resulted in a charge of murder being brought against him, pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing begun here.

Means, backed by an array of counsel, exercised his legal privilege of declining to be examined before Magistrate Palmer and the hearing was conducted by Magistrate Puttes. Attorneys representing New York and Cook County, Illinois, were present.

Dr. Wm. Burmeister, chief coroner's physician of Chicago, testified that in his opinion it would have been impossible for Mrs. King to have held the pistol which inflicted her death wound in the woods near here on August 29th. Means, at the coroner's inquest, testified that Mrs. King accidentally shot herself and that he was several yards away. Dr. Burmeister testified that there were no powder marks around the wound to support the theory that Mrs. King's own hand held the revolver.

Lawyers and criminal experts from three states are present at the hearing, the object of which is to bind Means over to await the action of a grand jury.

L. A. Wellington, a Concord undertaker, told of removing the body of Mrs. King from Concord hospital. The wound in the head behind the left ear and a fractured ankle were the only marks on the body. Gaston Means and Mrs. Maxie Melvin, Mrs. King's sister, accompanied him to Chicago with the body. The defense did not examine Wellington.

Dr. Burmeister told of performing his autopsy and explained the course of the bullet.

Solicitor Clement asked Dr. Burmeister if it would have been possible for Mrs. King to have inflicted the wound upon herself. The defense objected that this was not a question for an expert, but a matter of common knowledge, and also that Burmeister had not qualified as an expert on pistols, even if it were granted that the question was an expert one. The witness was allowed to answer. He stated it was his opinion Mrs. King could not have inflicted the wound.

F. F. Ritchie of a local hardware firm told of selling to Gaston Means on August 29th a .25 calibre automatic pistol for target shooting. Means first asked for a .32 calibre pistol, but Ritchie had none, he said. He also told of Means buying another pistol and rifle shortly before that date.

W. S. Gingham, a member of the party which went target shooting when Mrs. King was killed, was next called.

Mrs. King, Gaston Means and Gaston's brother, Afton Means, and himself made up the party, Bingham said. When they arrived at Black welder Springs, where Mrs. King was killed, he said, the sun was down and the moon was visible. He walked about 140 yards away from the spring, hoping to shoot a young rabbit with his rifle and then a shot was fired. He heard Gaston Means calling him and Afton Means to hurry to the spring. He found Gaston and Afton at Mrs. King's side. Gaston was bathing her head. Mrs. King appeared to be dead when he got there, he said.

Bingham said he helped put the body in the car and they brought it to town. Bingham also said Gaston Means asked him not to talk about the affair.

On cross-examination, Bingham said that when he arrived near the spring he heard Gaston say to Afton: Maude has shot herself accidentally with this little pistol."

Scheme To Improve The Water Supply In East City

Extension of New Eight Inch Force Main Will Serve a Dual Purpose —Quaker Oats Company Want Adequate Water Service

The request of the Quaker Oats Company for an auxiliary water main to serve their new plant was considered at last night's meeting of the committee of the Whole Council. The new supply main will come down through East City and will add to the water pressure in the centre of the city, besides safeguarding the East Ward, which, in the words of Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, "is in a precarious condition." At first the Quaker Oats Company suggested the enlargement of the present five inch main on Murray street so as to supply ample water for the eight inch mains which the new plant will be surrounded with. The proposal as submitted to the meeting last night consists of completing the new eight inch main in East City, which is within twenty-eight hundred feet of the plant. This would not only give East City an independent source of supply, but would also supply the Quaker Oats Company with two sources of water supply in case of an emergency. The cost of completing the new force main was estimated at about nine thousand dollars. To raise this amount it may be necessary to appeal to the people unless the work is authorized by the Ontario Municipal Railway Board. Either one of the two means will be adopted, as both the Commissioners and the members of the committee agreed that the work should be done for the benefit of the East Ward as well as the company. A new main running from the pumping station through East City would also improve the service in the centre of the city and further offset the possibility of a breakdown. At present the East Ward is dependent on a main running across the Otonabee river.

Mr. Matthews said the work could be proceeded with at once as the Commissioners have on hand about fifteen hundred feet of eight inch pipe, which was purchased at thirty-six dollars a ton. The present market price is about seventy-five dollars a ton.

Ald. Smith— "Could you not work the two loaves and five fishes stunt?"

It was finally agreed to take the matter up at once and endeavour to push it to completion.

Business And The Draft Law

Employers of Labour Express Pleasure at Early Chance to Know What Employees Are Liable For Service

Ottawa, Sept. — Business men throughout the country are expressing their satisfaction with the system of Medical Boards for selecting men for military service early, of which notice has been given by the Military Service Council in the press of Canada. The system will enable employers to tell in a comparatively short time how many of those in their employ are liable to be drafted and what men are not concerned in the call. The physical test is, of course, the most important.

Meanwhile, the economist "sharps" are busy speculating as to whether introduction of method and order into the system of removing men from industries of national importance, or rather the advent of a system of leaving such men at their tasks, will have any particular influence upon the trend of prices for the necessaries of life. Some hold to the opinion that, since labour difficulties have caused much trouble in a number of industries, safeguarding the labour of such industries must help to keep prices down. However, the question is generally regarded as a complicated one which must wait for solution on future developments. A-3.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Having been asked lately if I expect opposition in West Peterborough and a strenuous old-time contest, I may say in reply, that there may be opposition, but that there will be no old-time political battle. It takes two to make a fight and so far as I am concerned, I have done my best since the war began to act solely as a Canadian in the interests of Canada and the cause, and not as a partisan. That has been the policy of many members on both sides. The duties of Parliament have been long and very wearing; in addition to that I have had two years' uninterrupted hard work, and a great deal to do for soldiers' families, and have felt like others the severe financial strain on my position and of the high prices. Nothing coming in has increased, but everything going out has at least doubled. The strain of all this had told upon me and I intend to take a holiday and to kill two or three birds with one stone. I shall be back, God willing, before Election Day, and intend to leave my political affairs meanwhile in the hands of the President of the Conservative Association, Mr. C. E. Moore. There is but one issue now before the people, "win-the-war." That has been the cry of both sides and it is true. Opposition therefore would mean opposition on this one point alone, unless it were felt that I am not capable or not sincere. If I am thought by the people to measure up to that standard however, well and good. If not, then naturally they will want another man. When the war is over there should be another general election and all political questions, now in abeyance, settled. I do not think that there is any intention to ride into power on one great issue and to profit by it to remain there when the danger is all passed, so that since the issue is and ought to be one and one only, I see no reason to debate it and I shall not do so. Where the member is a Liberal and a conscriptionist, he will not be opposed by Conseravtives. It may be that Liberal conscriptionists will not oppose me here. There is no real need of canvassing or of holding meetings to inform the people. They know all that there is to be known. I want and respectfully ask for the vote and support of every man and every woman who thinks me fit for the task. The only remaining question is that of patronage. Only one question is asked when a vacancy occurs, that is not "Are you a Conservative?" but "Are you a returned soldier, or have you sons, etc. at the front." Political patronage is not in existence in this riding at the present time, and will not be again, but certainly not till after the war is well over, and all who helped to win it, directly or indirectly, are provided for.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice that your report of the address given by Capt. J. H. Burnham quotes him as stating that the coming election "should be neither Grit nor Tory, but simply a win-the-war campaign." Such a sentiment is admirable and is, no doubt, shared by many Conservatives and Liberals alike in West Peterborough. But does it ever occur to Mr. Burnham that he himself is the chief obstacle to unity in this vicinity? He has been an out-and-out party politician. He has supported the Conservative Government on every occasion. Does he consider it humanly possible for Liberals to rally to his support? The truth is that if Mr. Burnham is actually sincere in his declaration that this election should be neither Grit nor Tory, he has himself largely the power to make it so. If, as a matter of fact, he is entirely patriotic in his motives he now has the opportunity of his life to prove it. The necessity of any election at all in West Peterborough may be obviated by Mr. Burnham declining to be a candidate and then joining hands with the Liberals to elect a non-party win-the-war man by acclamation. If we are to have a National Government after the election, then there must be a national spirit shown in each constituency. Mr. Burnham now has the chance to prove that he is not actuated by a desire to retain his seat in Parliament, but is willing to make a personal sacrifice for the common interests of this Dominion and the Empire.

Yours truly,
WIN-THE-WAR LIBERAL

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Would you please allow me space in your "Voice the People" column, correcting the statement of Jack Hope's accident, the name being wrong, and age, 8 years, not 9 years. He did not limb the pole for he did not have to do that to get a shock, the wire being a stay wire, connected with an old neglected light wire. Jack was trying to kill a bat with his brother, Spencer, and standing against a four-foot post, put up his hand to throw, when it caught the stay wire and held him there. Spencer hearing him call mother and groan, went to pull him off and was thrown away from him. Spencer came screaming to me that Jack was hanging on the light wire, not knowing any better. I ran out and was harrified to see my boy hanging to the stay wire and strangling, for he could not breathe, the current running through to his feet which were touching the ground, and electric sparks shooting from his feet, while calling for help, Jack fell to the ground helpless, the disconnection of power being caused by a slight wind blowing at the time. If we had had to wait for the electrician, he would certainly have strangled to death, the power being turned off at the power house, for the electrician to do the work which he should have done long ago, and so prevented this accident, which might have ended fatally. His feet and hands being burnt he is not able to attend school.

I think human life should be thought a little more of than to have such neglect as there seems to around this district.

Trusting this has not taken too much space in your valuable paper, I am,

Yours truly,
MRS. A. HOPE.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In Mr. Stratton's paper, the Review, of last night, he charges the existence of a "Tammany Hall," by the City Council. This is a serious charge, which implies the permission and protection to criminals and those practising an immoral life, to carry on their hidden crime, under the wing of police protection and municipal approval. It also charges a conspiracy to create a plot to injure a public man.

The Aldermen of the City of Peterborough are not living under the stigma and charges that this editorial tries to make in a hidden and secretive way. The members of the City Council, in order to protect their own reputations against such charges, should insist upon the widest and fullest investigation. Mr. Stratton, who is a member of the Council, must have some inside information which he thinks warrants him in making these statements contained in the Review. If they are not true, it is unfair to the other members of the Council. If they are true, the ratepayers are entitled to know it.

For twenty-five years there has been no such serious charges levelled against men, most of whom are men of high standing, as we believe, in the City Council.

Mr. Stratton states in the editorial that the official whom they "got" was appoined to a higher office at a greater salary. I was in the hearing of a statement made by Mr. Stratton that he, himself, asked ex-Chief Howard to resign, as he thought it was the best way out of the difficulty.

How can he publicly and offensively blame others when he himself was so active in getting the ex-Chief's resignation accepted without an investigation.

The people are entitled to know all the facts, as well as motives behind a public charge of the existence of "Tammany" methods in the City Council.

Yours truly,
RATEPAYER.

Five Dollar Gold Pieces From Oranges

Carter, the Magician, Mystifies a Fruit Vendor

Carter, the magician, who appears at "The Grand" the last two days of this week, has presented his entertainment in almost every country on the globe. Carter creates such merriment and amusement when not engaged in his work, professionally. For instance, on his recent trip from Chicago to St. Louis, when in Chicago, Carter astonished all onlookers by producing five dollar gold pieces from oranges which he bought at a vendor's stand. Carter pocketed the gold and then bought another orange, and attracting the attention of the vendor, once more cut the orange, and again brought to the view of the astonished Greek another gold piece between the halves of the fruit. Carter thereupon bought two more oranges, and after opening these, and finding two more bold pieces, one in each, which the magician took pains to reveal to the now mystified man, asked the vendor to sell him a dozen of the fruit, which the vendor promptly refused to do. Carter and his friends smiling took their departure, and from a slight distance stopped, and watched the vendor cautiously take up and halve one after the other, five or six oranges, hoping to find gold in the fruit, and thus be able to work no more.

Vocational Training Board For Assistance Of Soldiers Held First Local Meeting

The first sitting of the Vocational Training Board in connection with the Military Departmental and Soldier's return work was held in this city and for this immediate district, yesterday. Two members are named by the authorities and include Major Good, Chief Vocational Training Officer for this district, with headquarters at Kingston, and Capt. Randall, of the same city, and who is the medical officer of the Board. The third member is named, or chosen, locally—Mr. F. H. Dobbin being selected. The Board so constituted is enabled to stand in touch with cases that come up where men express the intention to take instruction in other occupations than those to which they have been accustomed and to carry on which they may be physically incapacitated.

Several applications were brought forward from this city and district. These were examined and considered. The wishes and ambitions of the men were very carefully looked into and every assistance was given in the preliminary investigations. As the result reports were made and will be submitted and the authorities will take such action as desired or warranted.

It is not the intention of the work to induce men to make changes in trades and occupations where the man can follow the work to which he has been accustomed. But it is true that very many men have enlisted, seen service in the field and abroad and returned to civil life, such as followed the occupation of a labourer. These under consideration can hardly resume the hard bodily and muscular work as before. So some occupation must be found that the man can master in whole or in part sufficient to enable him to gain a living for the future.

Losses of limbs and arms and even an eye and the many injuries that will have to be considered and met. Work in shops and factories is becoming so standardized that (as in the making of shells) a man can master one or more details and without learning the whole of a trade, become efficient in one or more branches and independent. Side by side with this a plan of education is in progress whereby the man can freshen up his school learning and fit himself for clerical employment if his wishes turn that way.

The endeavour of the Board is to see that as far as possible the man will follow the trade or occupation after a period of proficiency is reached, rather than to take training as an experiment and then abandon the work at the end of the probationary period. Assistance is given to cover expenses during the period so so that the man may be relieved from monetary anxiety while he is being instructed. So far as possible endeavour will be made to have men taught in local factories and shops rather than sent to some strange place away from personal associations.

Any men who wish to consider the opportunity are asked to confer with Mr. Dobbin, who will be glad to take the matters up and arrange a further sitting of the Board will be held and due notice will be given. In the meantime no time need be lost for on application to Mr. Dobbin the cases will be put in hand and forwarded.

The whole movement is inspired by the idea to get into work and living so many men as possible in the interval before the men come back at the close of the war. If carried on gradually and successfully many men can be absorbed into active civil life and a way opened for a competence in the future.

New Cruiser Launched At H. B. Rye's Docks Yesterday For Trent Canal Engineers

The 32-foot cruiser built by Mr. H. B. Rye for the Trent Canal engineering department was launched successfully yesterday afternoon at the Otonabee boatyard dock. In these days of two per cent. the customary ceremony of breaking a bottle of wine or other liqueur against the prow was necessarily dispensed with. The vessel rolled easily down the inclined ways, and with scarcely a splash rode out on the river with the grace of a swan. It had recently been moved from the construction yard and erected on trucks which rode out on a stretch of railway and down into the water. The facilities for launching were perfect, and to such an extent that the operation was particularly simple.

The cruiser floated out on the stream as trim a craft as has ever appeared in these waters. It is rather disappointing that the department decided not to complete the cabins at this time, for in its present appearance it does not reflect the full beauty of its design. Eventually, however, these additions will be made and the Canal Department will possess a vessel that combines utility with trim lines, modern facilities and equipment. Incidentally, the new cruiser should become an inspiration to private citizens who will find in this type a boat that will open to them all the waters to which the canal, when completed, will give them easy communication. It is comparatively safe to predict that men of means will surrender to the appeal of these craft as they have done in the St. Lawrence, on the Hudson and in many waters where they have become numerous fleets. They are provided with comfortable sleeping and dining quarters, and invite their owners to cruise as far as they desire.

The cabins on the canal cruiser have not been completed, but they have been provided for and can easily be added. A 10 h.p. engine has been temporarily installed, and the first trip will likely be made in a short time. Meanwhile the vessel floats at anchor upstream from the Otonabee boat-house, and even the greenest landsman will recognize the essential trimness of its principal lines without the completed decks, which will enhance its gracefulness and fill out the fore and aft gaps.

Water Street Apartments Have Been Completed

Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill Has Every Reason To Feel Proud of the Completed Work

Another unit has been added to the increasing list of apartment houses that are taking form in this city. The latest addition to the ranks is the modern apartment just completed by Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill, and situated at 375 Water street. The charter tenants of the yet unnamed apartments will move in on Monday. Ephgrave and Barrett were the contractors, and in the words of Mr. Goodwill, "they have done their best." The result is well worth a trip of inspection. All but two of the seven apartments have been rented.

The Last Word.

Yesterday a visitor from New York was shown over the building and he volunteered the statement that the building represented the last word in convenience, equipment and construction. Gas mantles, independent telephone service and individual storage facilities in the basement are some of the improvements that are offered the home-makers. The kitchen in each of the apartments are well equipped with kitchen cabinets, refrigerators, laundry tubs, gas stove and all necessary connections, including hot water, besides separate electrical connections for such articles as electric irons, etc. The finest hard wood floors have been laid and the decorative features are of the very highest order. The lighting and ventilation systems have been given special care and the result must be seen to be appreciated. Each of the tenants can go into the basement without going outside. No expense or work have been spared to make the building one of the best of its kind, and the completed work will be hard to beat.

"It's tough when you have to pay thirty cents a pound for beefsteak," grumbled the head of the house. "Yes, but it's tougher, dad, when you pay eighteen," returned the pride of the family."

Sinn Fein Leader Starves To Death

Commanded Rebels in Easter Riots at Ashbourne in 1916.

DUBLIN, Sept. 27.—Thomas Ashe, a Sinn Fein leader, has died in a hospital here as the result of a hunger strike upon which he entered some time ago.

Ashe commanded the rebels in the Eastern riots at Ashbourne in 1916, when several members of the constabulary were killed. He was sentenced to penal servitude for life but was released last June under amnesty arrangements. Recently he was again sentenced by court martial to a year's imprisonment for a seditious speech, but immediately upon being imprisoned began a hunger strike which resulted in his death.

So far as available records show Ashe is the only person who has died in prison recently from voluntary starvation, although numbers of persons—notably the suffragettes—have gone on hunger strikes in England when they were imprisoned for infractions of the law. Ashe prior to his conviction for connection with the Ashbourne riots had visited the United States on a financial mission for the Sinn Fein League.

BRITISH GAIN ON A SIX MILE FRONT

tacking on both sides of the Wieltje-Gravenstafel and St. Julien-Gravenstafel roads, also captured their objectives and beat off a counter-attack. In this area our line has been advanced to a depth of half a mile across a country defended by a large number of fortified farms and concrete redoubts.

"Early in the afternoon the Germans delivered a second counter-attack with large forces and succeeded in pressing back our line a short distance on a narrow front. Our troops, counter-attacking in turn, at once recaptured the greater part of the lost ground.

"Over one thousand prisoners have been taken in these operations. A very large number of German dead have been found on the ground captured, and the enemy's losses, both in our attacks, and in his subsequent counter-attacks, have again been heavy.

"A successful raid was carried out during the night east of Gouzeaucourt (north-east of Peronne) by Suffolk troops in the face of strong opposition. Two occupied dugouts were destroyed and many Germans were killed with the bayonet. We captured a few prisoners and a machine gun."

RALPH CONNOR (Major Gordon), author of "The Sky Pilot," at "The Grand" Thanksgiving Day, Monday, Oct. 8.

An announcement of interest to the play-going public and to readers of popular books, relates to the appearance of "The Sky Pilot," which will be seen in Peterborough Monday, October 8th. The play is founded on material taken from Ralph Connor's (Major Gordon's) two best known novels, "The Sky Pilot" and "Black Rock." The work of damatisation has been done by Frank Mandel and George H. Brennan. Although Connor's stories have been in constant vogue for seventeen years—their joint circulation being estimated at two million copies — they have never appeared in dramatic form. It is said that the most stirring episodes in both books have been welded into one consistent story, and that the adapters have retained the favourite characters in the stories, including Gwen, Mrs. Mayor, Bill, Hi, the Old Time, the Duke, Ponka and the Sky Pilot, who has been described as "tender as a woman and with the heart of a hero." Symbolically, the drama following the theme of the books is stated to be a war between good and evil. Previous to the advent of the young clergyman in the little Rocky Mountain settlement where the scene is laid, the inhabitants are racked by their besetting sins, their wrangles and their jealousies. With his coming, life begins to assume a brighter hue. There are many gripping sensational incidents in which he demonstrates courage of the real sort. One by one the characters come under his influence until the only one remaining in rebellion is Gwen. Her final surrender is said to furnish one of the most thrilling and spectacular situations in the play. The cast of players who will appear includes Brandon Tynan, Regina Wallace, Ednest Anderson, Harry D. Southard, Eddie Heron, Louis Leon Hall, Elza Frederic, Isabelle Winlocke, Edwin Caldwell, Joseph Lawrence, Thomas Wall and Edward Broadley. Additional interest is lent to the play at this time by Ralph Connor himself. In private life he is the Rev. Charles W. Gordon, of Winnipeg, Manitoba. When the war broke out he promptly volunteered and was accepted as Chaplain of the Canadian Highlanders. He has seen much service in France, and is now Major Gordon.

MIDNIGHT FIRE AT GRAND HOTEL

Shortly after midnight fire broke out in a stable at the rear of the Grand Hotel, George street. The Fire Department was quickly on the scene. Twelve hundred feet of hose operating from two hydrants, was pressed into service before the fire was extinguished. The roof of the building was partially destroyed, but the greater part of the building was saved. The fire is said to have been caused by an overheated manure heap. The damage will amount to about two hundred dollars.

A committee of the Whole Council met last evening to consider a proposal from the Utilities Commission respecting the substitution of incandescent lights put in their place. The The members after hearing the explanation offered by the Commission who were present in a body, agreed that such a change would be satisfactory and in the interests of the city. A resolution endorsing the change was passed by the Committee and its acceptance by the Council is assured. The change will involve one hundred and seventeen arc lamps that are at present in service throughout the city. These lamps will be taken down and scrapped and about six hundred and fifty sixty-candle power incandescent light put in their place. The change is made necessary by reason of the fact that the Utilities Commission have been asked by the Hydro-Electric Power Company to vacate the old Murray street power house from which point power for the arc lighting system is generated. The Commissioners have a choice of installing a new system elsewhere or of replacing the present arc lights by incandescent lamps as a temporary measure until such time as the Commission is in a position to proceed with the installation of a modern street lighting system. The time will come when the price of copper and other materials are lower than it is to-day.

COST WILL BE LOWER

Mayor Duffus said he referred to back up the recommendation of the Commissioners. In this the members of the Committee agreed. Commissioner Hicks said it might look extravagant to the public to see the incandescent lamps burning all day, yet it was impossible to do anything different. The only alternative was to instal a series system and this would mean rewiring the whole city, the cost of which would be prohibitive under present conditions. The maintenance cost of the incandescent lamps will be lower than the old arc lighting system. The Commissioners were asked to consider a petition for lights on George street south, between Romaine and King Edward streets. Included in this was a request for a light at the corner of Rubidge and King streets. The Commissioners agreed to look into the matter.

Those present for the Utilities Commission were: Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman, Mr. R. Hicks, Mr. W. H. Moore, Mr. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Commission and Mr. R. S. Dobbin, superintendent of the Waterworks Department.

OVERCOAT AND SUIT STOLEN FROM STORE RECOGNIZED BY CLERK

On Monday, Sept. 17 it was reported to the police department that the men's furnishing branch of the A. W. Cressman and Sons store had been entered and a suit of clothes and overcoat valued at $28 had been stolen. On Saturday, Sept. 15th a man who gave his name at J. D. Carold, ordered the suit and overcoat and offered a cheque in payment.

This was refused by the salesman Mr. Cecil Wolff, who advised the stranger to return on Monday. He hung the clothing in a place where it could not be readily found on Monday. Mr. Wolff intended to be absent and he took this precaution as a guide to the other clerks.

Monday morning the suit and overcoat were gone and an open window at the rear suggested the means by which the store had been entered. The police were notified and the first clue was received this afternoon when a telephone message was received that Mr. Wolff, who is on his holidays had recognized the clothing on a man on the Belleville train.

He notified the Belleville authorities and also the Peterborough Police Department, and Detective Newhall was sent down to take charge of the suspect.

Sister Shoots Little Brother, Who Dies Game

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa.—Five year old Claude Dimeler gave up his life rather than be a "tattle tale." He told his mother he "felt bad." She sent for a physician, who prescribed medicine, but the child grew steadily worse, and later he died.

When the undertaker prepared the body for burial, it was found the boy had been shot in the side. His little sister sobbed out the story. She and Claude had been playing with their father's revolver. She didn't know it was loaded, and pointing it at her brother, pulled the trigger. No one was in the house at the time, and Carl agreed not to tell. He kept his word, and died silent.

Caring for Jewelry

Plain gold brooches, rings, bracelets and chains may be cleaned easily by washing them in a lather, made by a good, pure, white soap and warm water. Be sure to dry them well, then rub them gently with a piece of chamois skin. That will polish them.

Never put pearls in water, as it is quite likely to darken them. And the same applies to turquoises; water is not at all good for them.

If you get your diamond ring very dirty, you may wash it carefully in good white soap suds, but be sure to dry it carefully and polish it gently with chamois.

One thing that is wise for every woman to keep in her room is a Jewel Box, for holding her Jewelry. We show various designs, engraved and plain, inexpensively priced.

Men Never Cold And Never Wet

But the Tarantulas Only Attack When Driven Into a Corner.

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN PALESTINE, Sept. 27.—The various stage sof the British campaign which has now brought them into Palestine are marked by the stations on the wonderful new railway across the Sinai Desert. Just the names of these stations tell how the Turks have been driven back step by step — Romani, Katia, El Arish and Rafa, marking the successive phases of their retirement.

The country in which the army now is operating is on the fringe of the desert which divides Egypt from the centre of Palestine. So far as army observation goes, it does not flow with either milk or honey; if it would only flow with water, the army would ask no more of it.

It has been a battlefield from time immemorial, a Flanders of the East. Modern Gaza is said not to be on the same site as the ancient city, within whose gates Samson made so free. It looks a pleasant enough town, but is a very unhealthy spot in which to live.

The privileged traveller alights at the last station of the desert railway in the midst of a country of rolling downs, not unlike some parts of England or of the Central West. Much barley is grown here.

Inland the country is flatter and beyond the Turkish line is a range of hills stretching away to Beersheba in the east. The wadis, or water courses, are the most distinctive feature. The most important of these is the Ghuzza, which varies in width from about thirty yards to fully half a mile.

Nearly every part of the British Empire is represented on the beach at bathing time — men from every county of England, Scotchmen, Irishmen, Welshmen, New Zealanders, Indianh and Egyptians of all types. The scene is an unforgettable one, and he swim is always followed by a delectable lunch of figs and olives, fresh from the trees.

The fly nuisance is the army's greatest infliction. Drastic sanitary measures have now done a great deal to diminish the evil. Nothing, however can save the soldiers from their other great discomfort, the sand which continually blows into eyes nose and mouth.

A good many men have been bitten by scorpions, which though not serious' is no joke, especially if the offender is one of the large black variety. Tarantulas also are fairly common, but they run away whenever possible and only bite if driven into a corner.

On the whole, it is not a bad country for campaigning. The soldier need never be cold and never can be wet.

Too Much Verbiage Called Them Home

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—Owing to the shortage of paper pulp in Germany only the leading German newspapers and these in abridged form, reached Switzerland yesterday. A number of correspondents of German newspapers here have been recalled home on account of the shortage in paper. It is said that the Paper Pulp Commission is doing its utmost to keep up the publication of the most important papers in Germany, but that the pulp reserves in the country are nearly exhausted.

Disease The Greatest Menace To The World

Canadian Press Despatch:—

OTTAWA, Sept. 27.— The greatest menace to the civilized world to-day without exception is venereal disease. This was the opinion expressed by some speakers of the session of the Canadian Public Health Congress today. Speakers from all parts of Canada, mostly medical men and women, told of the spread of this disease during the last few years, and of the absolute necessity for definite legislation and public action towards it.

Heavy Shelling Forces Slight Falling Back

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

With the British Armies in the Field, Sept. 27.—Very heavy German shelling this afternoon had apparently forced the British to retire slightly in the area of Hill No. 40, immediately north of Zonnebeke. The Zonnebeke railway, in consequence, is again in German hands. However, outside the town and northeastward, the major portion of the advances remain in control of the British.

WEDDING BELLS

DARTNELL—DOBBIN.

The marriage of Huldah Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dobbin, to Mr. George Wesley Dartnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dartnell, of this city, was celebrated this afternoon at 8 o'clock, Rev. A. J. Thomas, pastor of George St. Church, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Dartnell left on the afternoon train for a short honeymoon to be spent in Toronto and points West.

Among the many wedding gifts to the bride and groom was a very handsome electric table lamp, the gift of members of George St. Church Choir, with which organization Mr. Dartnell has been for some time connected.

SANDERSON—STABLER.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place in the George Street Methodist Parsonage Wednesday at 2:30 p.m., when Rolland F. Sanderson was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Rebecca E. Stabler. Only the immediate relatives of the young couple being present to witness the ceremony.

The bride looked charming in her travelling suit of grey taffeta with plush hat to match. The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Little, was also prettily gowned in blue taffeta with blue hat to match. The groomsman was Mr. Rollie Northey, cousin of the groom. A dainty luncheon was served at the home of the groom. The young couple left on the four o'clock C.P.R. train for a short honeymoon, and on their return will reside at 146 Park street.

Among the presents received was a lovely mantle clock from the Peterborough Metal Product Company, where the young couple were employed.

ANDREW—CALDWELL.

A pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Caldwell, 272 Water street, when their daughter, Muriel was united in marriage to Mr. Norman Andrew, son of Mr. Samuel Andrew, Pearl Avenue. The bride's gown was of white silk crepe de chine with pearl trimmings, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. The young couple were unattended. Following the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for Detroit and other cities and on their return will live on Pearl avenue. The bride's travelling suit was of navy blue serge with a gray velvet hat.

Mrs. Richardson, of Pontypool played the wedding march as the bride entered the drawing room which was decorated with evergreens and autumn flowers. Many beautiful presents were received, including a silver tea set from Mr. John Hill, grocer, with whom the bride was employed. Her gift from the groom was a gray fox fur.

THE FUNERAL OF MR. C. S. CURRAN

The funeral of the late Mr. C. S. Curran, the well-known George Street grocer, took place this afternoon from the family residence. Many beautiful wreaths, among others, one from the Metal Products Co., where the late Mr. Curran was lately employed, were evident tokens of the respect and esteem for the departed citizen.

A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the house, where a solemn service was conducted by Mr. W. P. Douglas. Six members of the Order of Foresters, of which Mr. Curran was a member, acted as pall-bearers.

The funeral arrangements were ably carried out by Messrs. Comstock.

There was quite a crowd of people on the Strand, causing a partial block in the traffic. The lagging of a particularly pompous old gentleman roused the ire of a held-up cabby, according to Tit-Bits. "Now, then, 'urry up there, can't yer?" he shouted. "Am I not hurrying, cabman?" was the mild expostulation. "'Urryin'," snorted the cabby, with a flick of his whip "you're a-jumpin' abaght like a bit o' stickin' plaster."

Monogue fell dead with a bullet in his heart and McDermott was seriously injured, having wounds in his abdomen and wrist.

Rabies Breaks Out Anew In Smith Township And Farm Of B. W. Ray Is Quarantined

That rabies has not been stamped out in this vicinity is proved by Dr. T. Johnston's discovery of a case on the farm of B. W. Ray on the 4th line of Smith at Fowler's Corners. Ray called Dr. Johnston to examine a calf that was strangely sick. The Doctor diagnosed the case as rabies, but advised Mr. Ray to confine the animal for five or six days during which time it should die if the diagnosis was correct. On Monday, September 24th, the calf died and the head was immediately sent to the Provincial Board of Health at Toronto. Dr. Johnston received a reply yesterday that confirmed his diagnosis. Negri bodies that are considered diagnostic of rabies were found in the calf's brain.

Dr. Richards of the Dominion Veterinary Department arrived in Peterborough Wednesday morning and with Dr. Johnston and Dr. Morgan, who is the M. O. H. for Smith township, visited the Ray farm and ordered a quarantine on the place and stock until further notice. This means, it is understood, that none of the animals will be permitted to leave the farm for a period of ninety days.

MORE DRASTIC MEASURES.

Of all the municipalities in this district that have passed by-laws to combat rabies none has been more thorough than Smith. By means of press and poster notices, dogs were ordered tied up, but in spite of the precautions, the past efforts have been nullified by carelessness on the part of city and country dog owners. Mr. Ray had kept his dog tied up, but apparently others were allowed at large. Now he is prevented from buying and selling cattle during the quarantine period.

Dr Johnston is the authority for the statement that this new case will necessitate even more stringent measures than have been enforced up to the present. Dr. Richards informed Dr. Morgan that the municipal M. O. H. had plenary powers to employ men to round up and destroy wandering dogs and to adopt other measures to wipe out this malignant infection.

This case affords another example of the skill of Dr. Johnston in his diagnosis of rabies. On several occasions during the past summer his decisions have been supported by the Provincial Board of Health. He has shown his appreciation of the seriousness of the rabies outbreak and has emphasized the duty both of individuals and municipalities suppressing the disease.

"THE PAINTED WOMAN"

By FREDERIC ARNOLD KUMMER

CHAPTER I.

John Barton bent his head back to an almost painful angle as he struggled upward through the shifting sand of the road.

Arrived at length at the turn where grew the towering clump of royal palms he stood for a time beneath them and sweeping the broad-brimmed Puritan hat from his head, allowed the fresh breeze from the sea to cool his sweat-covered brow.

He was a big man, long of limb and deep of chest, with the free stride and assertive carriage of the Anglo-Saxon. His lean and rather boyish face was ruddy with the glow of health. Youth sparkled in his eyes, gave a graceful lightness to his movements. Even the somber nature of his costume did not suffice to conceal a certain eagerness of manner, that showed him ready for any adventure. A ship's cutlass hung at his side. Together with his wind-browned face, his high boots, it proclaimed him a man of the sea.

For a while he paused, looking back toward the town. Beyond the low-lying sand spit, with its row of twinkling lights, he could discern his ship, a blurred mass against the misty southern sky. He estimated that since leaving Port Royal he must have come close upon two miles.

The night wind, sharp with the salt tang of the sea, brought it it also a peculiar sweetness, an underlying motif of forbidden pleasures, quite unlike the harsh blasts of his own New England coast. In its entrancing whole many strange notes were blended, the insistent, almost strident odor of spices, the perfume of countless tropical flowers, the raw sweetness of sugar cane and rum, embroidered themselves in fascinating confusion upon the basic nautical theme. The young man breathed in the sturdy smell of sea weed, of tar, and the things of the wind-swept ocean, and found in them something familiar and sustaining, amidst the discord of novel sensations that surrounded him.

After a time he turned again toward the towering clump of palms. The man at the Turk's Head tavern in response to his queries, had indicated broadly the way he was to go. Two miles along the old Spanish road, the group of trees, rising clear above the low-lying underbrush, a turn to the left up a wooded slope, and then, the wall of the garden, within which he would find the woman of his dreams.

He replaced his hat and crossing to the far side of the road, sought a favorable opening in the bushes through which he might begin his ascent. Although the night had fallen, a monstrous tropical moon, lying low and yellow-red along the horizon, afforded him a clear view of the slope above.

Suddenly he became aware of the jarring clash of voices. They were nearer at hand than he would have thought possible with the sand of the road lying so white and clear before him. He paused in his efforts to separate the interlacing branches of the underbrush, and stood for a moment listening.

And then from out the crowding gloom of the roadway appeared a figure in fantastic costume, followed by a group of what might have been shadows, so black did they seem against the wall of green that bordered the road.

Barton divined at once the reason for their sudden and most unexpected appearance. They had entered the roadway along a narrow and almost invisible path leading up from the sea. A score of fathoms below lay the beach, and a longboat, drawn up beyond the line of the surf, indicated the manner of their coming. He stood quite still, wondering what character of night bird he was destined to encounter.

The group behind the leading figure clustered in the shadows as though awaiting other arrivals. A buzz of conversation, punctuated by an occasional shrill laugh, rose above the steady murmur of the surf. The solitary figure in advance, however, did not remain with the others, but continued diagonally across the road toward the spot where Barton stood.

As the man drew nearer, the young Puritan became aware of certain familiar characteristics in his ghostly outline. Recollections of a former meeting drifted vaguely through his brain. The swagering figure in green velveteen with the red kerchief tied so jauntily about his tangled black hair, brought back memories of a similar meeting, the day before, in the market place of the town. Barton smiled, remembering how his fist had sent the stranger headlong into the gutter.

The recognition was mutual. Revenge wrinkled the newcomer's evilly-smooth face. A sinister and grotesque smile twisted the corners of his large mouth. Barton, uncertain of the other's intentions, retreated a step and his hand fumbled the hilt of his cutlass.

"Well met, Master Praise-be-to God," the man jeered, his voice liquid and round, with a certain slurring accent, betraying at once his Latin blood. "This time you must fight with my weapons, you English pig." As he spoke he whipped his rapier from its scabbard. The long slender blade shone in the moonlight like a silver thread.

Barton drew his cutlass from its leather hanger without undue haste. Singly, this man inspired in him no feelings of alarm. He glanced over his shoulder. The group beside the road had not stirred.

"What do you want with me, my friend?" he asked, his voice monotonously calm.

"A trial of the wrist, Master psalm-singer," replied the man in green, gayly, then clashed his rapier against the broad blade of Barton's cutlass.

The impact jarred the Puritan's figure not at all, but he observed that his opponent rocked slightly in the loose sand of the road. For a moment the rapier played lightning-like, in and out, weaving glittering patterns in the moonlight, then it hesitated, stopped, and with incredible swiftness went hurtling into the underbrush. The Puritan, his wrist thick with the sinews of youth, had twisted the lighter blade by main force from his opponent's hand.

The man so suddenly and unexpectedly disarmed, retreated a step, his features contorted with rage. Evidently expecting a thrust from the cutlass, he tore from his belt a cross-hilted knife.

"Santa Maria!" he cried, crouching low. "The devil's at your elbow."

"Better had you said the Lord, my friend," said the Puritan, with a calm smile, then replacing his cutlass in its hangar he deliberately turned his back and began to make his way through the underbrush that covered the slope to the left. He disappeared from view at once, but the waving of the foliage showed the path he was following.

The group of figures beside the road had not stirred. At sight of their companion's discomfiture, however, a cackle of laughter rose above the noise of the surf.

"Have done, Portugee," came a gruff voice from the crowd. "Haven't we bigger work ahead than brawling with loyal subjects of the king?"

The man in green vouchsafed no reply. He was rapidly priming the pan of a flint-lock pistol that he had snatched from his belt. The Puritan had by now crossed the line of thick-growing bushes at the side of the road and his figure could be seen, like a flitting shadow in the flood of moonlight that lay upon the hillside.

At the very edge of the road the man with the pistol paused and raised his arm. For a brief space it wavered as he sought to perfect his aim. Then the roar of the explosion awoke the night life of the underbrush to a sudden and noisy clamor.

The Puritan stumbled, fell, then rose again and disappeared among the shadows that clustered about the base of a wide-spreading fern tree.

"Carramba!" muttered the man in green, as he drove the pistol back into his belt. "Lead or steel—what matters it? A fair shot, Master Tench," he called over his shoulder to one of the crowd. "The psalm-singing knave will remember it, or my name's not Portugese Joe!" With a noisy laugh he crept into the bushes and began to search for his rapier.

Fifty or more feet up the slope there was a slight waving of the palm fronds. The wounded man, breathing heavily, forced his way with painful struggles through the tangle of vines and branches. His goal was the crest of the hill. Bare spots here and there made the way easier: he crept along close to the ground, fearing a second shot.

After many minutes of agonizing effort he at last reached the higher level and came out upon a narrow and ill-kept road, that wound in irregular curves along the upper edge of the hill.

He rose to his feet. Upon the further side of the little road rose a wall of white shell rock, over the top of which a fringe of flowering vines nodded their pale blooms in the night wind. Near the centre of the wall an iron gate, fantastic in design, stood hospitably open.

John Barton paused for a moment at the edge of the road to recover his breath. A glance toward the foot of the slope disclosed nothing. From where he stood, he could neither see the road below, nor be seen from it, owing to a cluster of evergreens that blocked the way. To the left, however, he observed that the path upon which he had now arrived led down by a circuitous but easy route to the lower road. He wondered that the man at the Turk's Head had not directed him more correctly. Had he done so the climb up the rough hillside might have been avoided.

Beyond the shadowy lines of underbrush that marked the location of the road the ground sloped away gently toward the sea. Far below lay the silver crescent of the beach, beyond which the ocean curved to the misty rim of the horizon. Only the low-lying sand-spit upon which lay the town of Port Royal, and the cluster of vessels at anchor about it, broke the sweep of the moonlit surface.

Barton turned, and with uncertain steps approached the gate. The wound in his side hurt him cruelly; he could feel the blood oozing down in a steady stream beneath his sword belt. There was a strange buzing in his head, as though a thousand bees had invaded it. The wall, the gate, the white sand of the road, seemed to move about as though dancing to a ribald tune. He wavered a bit, and for a moment felt doubtful of his ability to proceed. Then with a gasp, he straightened his shoulders and went forward. He had come to this place for a purpose, and until that purpose was accomplished, other things, even his wound, were of small importance.

After what seemed an interminable time he reached the gateway, and rested his hand upon one of the stone pillars that flanked the opening on either side. Then, raising his head, he swept with eager eyes the scene before him.

He found himself gazing into an enchanted garden. Under the spell of the moonlight, it seemed vested with an astonishing atmosphere of mystery. To his eyes, accustomed to more prosaic things, it appeared more like a bit of some imagined fairyland than a place of realities. The stone walls of the house to his left, almost hidden by the clusters of flowers that overgrew them, gave an impression of vast antiquity. A roof of moss-grown red tiles, cracked and weather-beaten, formed an appropriate frame for the silent scene beneath. Through the two narrow windows that pierced the side of the house came a feeble light; it barely sufficed to throw shadows of their twisted iron gratings upon the white sand that formed the floor of the garden.

Between the windows a massive oak door, studded with bolts, stood partly open. Two white stone steps led up to it from the walk below. A rude wooden table, surrounded by several rustic chairs, stood near the middle of the garden, while not far away a fountain, rising from amongst a heap of rocks dashed upward a cloud of feathery spray, like a white shadow in the moonlight.

Flowers were everywhere, as though here Nature had fairly tumbled them from her prodigal hand. Glow-worms, brilliant points of fire, jewelled everywhere the green black shadows. A heavy fragrance of blossoms pervaded the air. Barton, standing so weak and still beside the gate, found their perfume well nigh intoxicating.

From somewhere within the garden came the lilting notes of a Spanish song.

"Tienen las Sevillanas en la mantilla," rang out the words, "un letrero que dice. Viva Sevilla. Viva Sevilla! Un letrero que dice."

Barton's heart leapt with joy. He waited until the song was ended, then with a gasp of pain he took a step within the gate.

The entire garden now lay before him. To one side hung a hammock of bright colored grass cloth, between two slender palms, and in it he saw the woman, for love of whom he had journeyed so far.

"Ramona," he whispered, his voice husky from weakness. "Mistress Ramona." He was obliged to press his left hand tightly against his side, to check the flow of blood from his wound.

The girl in the hammock turned with an astonished cry and the guitar which she held in her hand rattled noisily to the ground. Seeing who it was that had called to her she rose.

The two gazed at each other for an instant. Then with one arm flung outward, as though to ward off impending danger, the girl staggered forward.

"Dios!" she exclaimed, her eyes wide with fear. "Why have you come here?"

Always Had Headaches

Liver Was Torpid and Bilious Spells Brought Sick Headaches — Lost Much Time, But is Now Completely Cured.

NEWTOWN, N.B., Sept. 14.—Here is convincing evidence that however much you may suffer from liver trouble and consequent biliousness there is cure in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Overeating is the most common cause of sluggish liver action. You lose your appetite, have distressing bilious spells usually accompanied by headache and vomiting, the bowels become irregular, constipation and looseness alternating, digestion is upset and you get irritable and downhearted.

No treatment so quickly awakens the action of the liver and bowels as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For this reason this medicine is wonderfully popular and has enormous sales.

Mr. Charles R. Tait, Newtown, N.B., writes: "I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and would often have to stop work for a day or two. I lost many a night's sleep every month with bilious sick headaches, and although I tried doctors' medicines and also many other patent medicines, it was without success. When I had these headaches I would vomit, and could keep nothing on my stomach.

"I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills from G. M. Fairweather, Druggist, of Sussex, N.B., and after taking one box I was so much relieved that I continued to take them until I am now completely cured. My advice to anyone suffering from sick headaches is to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and be completely cured."

Mr. A. S. Mace, J.P., endorses the above statement, and says: "This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Charles R. Tait, and believe his statement in every way to be true and correct."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Substitutes will only disappoint. Insist on getting what you ask for.

A Pound of Whole Wheat contains 1700 calories, says the chemist—but it doesn't contain any calories for you unless you can digest it. It is what you digest, not what you eat, that supplies nourishment for the day's work. It is a time to cut out expensive foods that generally contain little nutriment. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is 100 per cent. whole wheat—nothing wasted, nothing thrown away. It is real man-power food. Two or three of these little loaves of baked whole wheat with milk and fresh fruits make a nourishing, strengthening meal at a cost of only a few cents.

Guarding Russia's Notable Chiefs In The Great Fortress

Their Life in Captivity—Interview With Former Minister Protopopoff, Now a Prisoner—Are Awaiting the Nation's Verdict

VISIT TO FORTRESS

PETROGRAD.—As the result of a month's negotiations after which a decision by Premier Kerensky was finally asked, the Associated Press correspondent was permitted to inspect the notorious Troubetskoi Bastion of the Fortress of Saint Peter and Saint Paul, the Bastile of Petrograd, where during two centuries there have been immured high-born traitors, pretenders to the throne, assassins of Emperors, propagandists of Nihilism and bomb-throwers, and here to-day the most hated adherents of the banished autocratic regime are awaiting the nation's verdict.

In this bastion are now interned eight exalted culprits. Theye are Gen. Rennenkampff, whose record as a military judge in 1906, during the attempted revolution, constituted a "hangman's progress" to Siberia, classed as equalling, if not surpassing, the infamies of the notorious Jeffreys; M. Bieletsky, former director of police and accomplice of Agents Provocateur; the reactionary former Minister of the Interior, M. Makaroff, who procured the election of a burglar to the Duma to act as a spy; M. Sikremieff, accused of serious offences as chief of the army motor supply office; former Minister of Justice J. Chtcheglovitoff, whom the late Count Witte characterized as the most clever, most corrupt man in Europe; Prince Alexander Dolgoruffoff, the cavalry commander, seized last week as a supporter of Gen. Korniloff; Gen. Voyeikoff, the former Emperor's palace commandant, and finally, Alexander Protopopoff, once classed as a patriotic member of the Duma, next an oppressive Minister of the Interior, and last the ally and slave of the mystic monk, Rasputin.

Visit to Fortress.

In company with the assistant procurer of the Petrograd High Court, the correspondent drove to the Fortress. Before the main entrance the automobile, although an official car, was examined by the soldiers on guard, who conducted a long cross-questioning of the occupants, after which they were passed through the residential section of the fortress enceinte, and on to the prison.

Before inspecting the cells the correspondent visited the prison chancellory, out of which led two doors. Pointing to them, the procurer said: "Inside are prisoners under examination." He opened the first door immediately, showing a stoutish, grey-bearded man, who was Bieletsky, gesticulating to an examining magistrate, while through the other door when it was opened could be seen only a regular, acquiline profile silhouetted against a barred window.

"That is Protopopoff," said the procurer, closing the door.

The correspondent was then conducted to the cells on the upper storey, in which the prisoners are confined at present. The cells open on a corridor which follows the hexagonal construction of the building. On one side of the corridor are barred windows opening out on the courtyard, while on the other side is a row of red-painted, iron-bound, oaken doors with slots for peering and pigeon holes, which may be closed at will, for handing in food to the occupants.

No Physical Suffering.

From the condition of a vacant cell the correspondent gained the impression that so long as the jailer behaves considerately, imprisonment in the Troubetskoi Bastion involves no physical suffering. The whitewashed cell was a large and clean one, paved with red cement, lighted with an electric lamp set into the wall and attached to which was a night light, enabling the warder to watch the prsoner through the slot.

The cell was not damp and the sanitary arrangements were modern. The furniture consists of a good bed and a table screwed to the wall. The only defective arrangement is the inadequate natural lighting, which the procurer admitted, saying the five-foot-thick wall prevents the enlargement of the windows.

From an examination of the prison regulations and the statements made by Assistant Governor Kurindin, the correspondent obtained an idea of the treatment accorded the prisoners.

"All the eight prisoners, who formerly were compelled to wear prison clothing, now wear their own," said M. Kurindin. "We supply gratis the ration of a soldier, but the prisoners are allowed to purchase an officer's ration, which all of them do except Protopopoff, who, declaring that he is the cause of Russia's misfortunes, persists in eating a private's fare. The prisoners' friends, who may visit them twice weekly, are allowed to bring certain authorized foods, among which one may find caviar. The prisoners are permitted to smoke, but are allowed no alcohol.

No Restrictions on Books.

"Most of the prisoners," continued the Assistant Governor, "among which are three of Russia's most cultivated citizens, read all days under no restrictions, except that newspapers are not allowed. They have little notion of the events of the last six months in Russia and the outside world. They receive letters and may write them three times a week. The letters are examined by the procurer, but after the revolution the prison administration ceased the practice of testing for invisible ink, which had been in vogue continuously since the reign of Peter the Great.

The prisoners exercise in the courtyard twice daily, with only their guards for company. They never see one another. The doctor visits each cell daily, but in case of serious sickness the prisoners are sent to hospitals outside, as were, for instance, the late Premier, Sturmer, and the former Empress' friend, Mlle. Virubova, as there is no hospital within the fortress. The prisoners behave extremely well, and are never querulous now. Immediately after the revolution, however, we had here the Black Hundred Jewbaiter Orloff, who raised trouble daily. The only request we received lately was from Gen. Rennenkampff, who, being afraid of lynching, begged us not to transfer him to another prison.

The correspondent next inspected the prison guards, who are of two classes. The first is a regular military unit, posted on the priphery of the bastion. The second is composed of two representatives of every regiment in Petrograd, who are stationed inside. These men jealously watch the prisoners.

No Escape Possible.

Governor Kurindin declared that escape from the prison was inconceivable, and that none was on record in modren times. In the library the correspondent found volumes in Russian, French, English, German, Italian and even in Finnish, the last for the use of the Finnish patriots, who, under former Premier Stolypin's oppresive "equality law" were tried and imprisoned in Russia. The courtyard, in which, because of the rain that was falling at the time, no one was exercising, makes an incongruous impression because, although overlooked by the forbidding barred windows, it can be reached only through a metal cage, in which the prisoners wait. The yard itself is a green paradise, overgrown by now-flowerless jasmine and lilac bushes, and shaded by tall lines of poplars, aspens and maples. Under a towering tree in the centre of the yard a shapeless bathhouse, used by the prisoners, strikes another incongruous note. Next in order came a visit to the unoccupied, obsolete part of the prison, under the commandant's house. This consists of real "stone sacks," with earthen floors, far below the river level, and with windows guarded by cumbrous bar work, designed to imitate a row of mediaeval halberds.

"There," said the procurer, "languished, I believe, Peter's son Alexis, before he was tortured to death, and the next cell held the beautiful but unfortunate prtender, Princess Tarakhanoff, whom adventurers set up as the daughter of Empress Elizabeth."

Roll of Past-captives.

Returning to the chancellory, the correspondent examined the roll of past-captives, among whom were the Terrorist assassin, Gershunt, and the chemist Nicholas Morosoff, held in the bastion for 25 years under suspicion of complicity in the assassination of Alexander I.

In the roll were two other entries of a striking character in a different way. The first reads:

"1905, January 12, Pieshkoff Alexis Maximovitch." This is the real name of Maxim Gorky. The second entry reads: "Gililkisaye, identify uncertain, believed surname Mazantzeff, handed over for execution Feb. 7th, 1908."

While the roll was under examination there occurred the most striking incident of the visit. After putting his head into one of the side-rooms, the procurer announced that the examination within the room had been finished. Into the chancellory, with two soldiers behind him, walked well dressed but collarless, a man of middle height, slight figure, small features and a short grayish beard, with eyes unnaturally bright and almost feverish, and an expression of extraordinary refinement and dignity.

"That," said the procurer, "is M. Protopopoff."

The former Minister of the Interior stopped in the middle of the room.

"We can speak English?" he began, at which the procurer intervened.

"Please do not," he said.

Interviews Protopopoff.

On this M. Protopopoff, with a smile, apparently intended to express sarcasm, and moving his head quickly from side to side and twitching his hands in nervous, feminine-like gestures, began speaking in Russian. Asked regarding his health, he answered enigmatically: "It is too good."

Convinced that he would not be allowed to touch upon politics, the Associated Press correspondent enquired regarding the treatment the former Minister was receiving, and as to whether he had any complaints to make.

"Why ask me a question which answers itself?" replied M. Protopopoff. "How could I make complaints."

"I do not mean on the score of your imprisonment or trial" explained the correspondent, "but on the score of the conduct of the prison officials."

"I have no complaint of any kind" answered M. Protopopoff, and he continued: "Would any of you Americans complain if they knew they were desperate criminals?"

Here M. Protopopoff smiled, again apparently in sarcasm, and the correspondent, thinking the words intended as an oblique protest against his treatment, said: "You mean that as an irony?"

"It is not irony," answered M. Protopopoff. 'I have no right to complain because I am guilty of crime.

"That," said the correspondent, 'is a strange remark in the presence of the procurer, whose duty is to pile up evidence against you."

The former Minister's head again was thrust quickly to one side as he said, without a smile: 'I supply the evidence myself, I am guilty of the most awful crime of not understanding the spirit of my age."

Repeating the words, "spirit of my age" in Russian, and making again the delicate gesture with his hands, Protopopoff, followed by his soldier guards, went out of the room.

VENIZELOS LAUDS ALLIES.

Says Their Action in Regard to Greece Has Been Disinterested.

ATHENS.—Premier Venizelos, in the course of a talk with The Associated Press, expressed the earnest hope that public opinion the United States might be informed on the events of Greece. "We recognise," he said, "that the United States is one of the great civilizing and moral influences of the world, and that it will exercise a large, and perhaps decisive, influence in the settlement of the war problems relating to the smaller nations and the Balkans. And with public opinion rightly informed, Greece will feel assured of the powerful friendship of the United States."

M. Venizelos made clear the status of the King and of the Cabinet.

"While Greece is a monarchy," he said, "it is a constitutional monarchy in which the constitution clearly lays down that the Ministry is the body responsible for Government action. Here are some of the provisions."

And the Premier recited, offhand and by heart, the text of the articles giving the Ministry full control of affairs:

"The executive power appertains to the King, who executes it by responsible Ministers named by him.

"The right of proposing laws appertains to the Chamber and to the King, who exercises it through the intermediary of Ministers.

"No act of the King is valid and cannot be executed if it is not countersigned by the competent Minister, whose signature renders him responsible for the act.

"In no case can an order of the King, verbal or written, relieve the responsibility of the Ministers."

When Mr. Venizelos was asked if the allied powers, particularly England and France, had any ulterior motives in intervening in Greek affairs, he was much surprised.

"Not in the slightest," he said emphatically. "It has been disinterested so far as Greece is concerned. The Allies have naturally desired the friendship and co-operation of Greece, rather than her enmity and her going over to the Germanic powers. But beyond that there has never been a thought of interfering with the independent action of Greece as a sovereign nation. As guaranteeing powers their only aim was to have the constitution of Greece carried out. The liberty and independence of Greece have never for a moment been in question.

"Will Greece declare war against Germany?" was asked.

"A state of war already exists," said the Fresident. "Our army is actually taking its part in the fight against the Central Powers. As the Provisional Government issued a declaration of war, there is really no need for a new declaration of war."

HARDSHIP IN HOLLAND.

Food and Fuel Situation Causes Much Anxiety.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. — The Netherlands Government and people fear that the coming winter will bring hardships in the food and fuel situation in that country, according to statements made to-day by Chevalier Van Rappard, the Netherlands Minister. The address of the Queen of the Netherlands several days ago before Parliament, telling the people that the nation must take extreme measures, is declared to have been the result of the shortage of fuel and foodstuffs. The Minister stated that his Government will soon take a hand in the control and distribution of fuel and food.

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA
Mrs. J. R. Horth, Pennobian, Benaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

RECIPES FROM PRACTICAL WOMEN

FROM the character of the recipes that have been sent to this paper by practical housekeepers it is evident that there are thousands of women all over the country who are awake to the importance of making the raw materials go as far as possible in supplying nutritious food to growing children and working men and women.

The quality of these recipes is very encouraging. It indicates that the women are thinking about food values, that they are ingenious as well as thrifty and that there is a probability of the nation, as a whole, being better fed than it ever has been. We shall be getting all the nutrition that we need and will not be overloading our digestive apparatus with a superfluity of food or with dishes that are too rich and too complicated for daily living. Moreover, we shall have enough food to spare some for the French and the Belgians, who have so little.

CORN CHOWDER.

Three slices bacon, 1 can corn or 2 cups of corn cut from cob, 2 cups diced raw potatoes, 1 pint milk, seasoning. Cook potatoes; when almost done add corn and milk, then bacon fat and bacon, which has previously been diced and fried. Season by adding salt and pepper.

MAUD TURNER.

DON'T THROW AWAY THE PEA PODS.

They make an excellent cream soup. Take 2 quarts of peas, shell them and use the peas for vegetable and the pods for soup. After washing the pods put them in soup kettle, chop an onion and add left over roast beef bone, leg of lamb bone or other bones. Cover the pods and bones with plenty of water and let simmer for 1½ hours, or until it reduces, then strain and salt and pepper to taste. Take 1 tablespoon of flour and 2 tablespoons of butter and stir until a smooth paste. Add 1 pint of milk to this and then put it in the broth, with some chopped parsley, and cook for about 10 minutes, or until it thickens slightly.

MOULLE MARINIERE (STEAMED MUSSELS).

Take 2 quarts of mussels in shell, rinse thoroughly half a dozen times in cold water, take a small stiff brush kept for this purpose and brush the shells clean. Take ½ cup of butter, heat well in a large soup kettle and add a large chopped onion and equal quantity of chopped parsley. Take the cleaned mussels and put in hot water, add ½ teaspoon of salt, a pinch of pepper, 1 cup of boiling hot water, cover tightly and steam for 15 minutes, or until the mussels have opened. Serve while hot.

WAR CAKE.

One package seeded raisins, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, half-tablespoon lard, half spoonful salt. Boil all together five minutes, cool, add 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in water, 3 cups flour. Bake 45 minutes—makes two cakes. Hoping you will make use of this.

Mrs. A. E. COVERT.

CREAMED LIVER.

Cut the liver in small pieces and simmer in butter 30 minutes. Remove to a hot plate and to the butter in the pan add 1 tablespoonful of flour and simmer, adding 2 cups of milk, stirring all the time. Add the liver and simmer together five minutes.

MARY F. SCOTT.

PRUNES WITHOUT SUGAR.

Wash prunes thoroughly, pour boiling water over same and let them stand for ten minutes. Then drain and pour boiling water over them again; put in sealed jar; see that prunes are all covered with water. Ready for use after forty-eight hours. I have kept mine for a week at a time and found the longer they stand the thicker the syrup gets.

PRINCE OF WALES SALAD.

Ingredients:—

8 medium sized cold boiled potatoes, slightly underdone.
4 fine flavored apples.
2 button onions.
1 tablespoon chopped olive.
1 teaspoon capers.
1 cup mayonnaise.

Give the potatoes a little extra salt. Cut the potatoes and apples into ¼ inch cube. A few drops of lemon juice will keep the apples white. Add the onions minced very fine, then the chopped olives and capers. Pour over the mixture the cup of dressing. Put in a covered bowl in the icebox to season. This is an appetizing and satisfying dish—a meal by itself—and delicious to take in Mason jars on a picnic or automobile luncheon. Kept in a cool place, it is better the second day and as good the third day.

CHEAP GINGER CAKES.

3 pints flour.
1 pint molasses.
1 large spoonful of lard.
2 large spoonfuls of ginger.
1 dessert spoonful soda.

Mix molasses and lard, sift flour and soda together, add to first mixture and stir in ginger. Roll out thin; cut in shapes. Bake in moderate oven. Fine for children. Serve with milk.

MRS. F. H. BELL.

BAKED BROWN BREAD.

One cup cooked oatmeal or more, 1 cup sour milk, 1 scant cup molasses, 1 teaspoon soda sifted in 2½ cups flour, 1 cup cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt. Make stiff batter and bake in loaf from forty minutes to an hour.

Mrs. F. L. DOW.

Fill a baking dish with prepared spinach, leaving a hollow in the centre. Fill this with boiled codfish and put grated American cheese on top. Then bake. Nourishing, delicious and inexpensive.

Mrs. ALBERT HEYMANN.

LEFT OVER MEALS.

Boil spaghetti until done (break into pieces first). Then put left over meat through chopper and mix with spaghetti, salt, pepper and a little onion juice. Put on top bread crumbs (stale bread grated) and bake in a moderate oven. Water from spaghetti or rice may be used to thin tomato soup instead of water or milk.

E. Y. G.

BAKED LIMA BEANS WITH BACON.

One and a half cupfuls dried lima beans, ¼ pound sliced bacon, 2 medium sized onions, 1 cupful milk, salt and pepper. Soak beans over night; in the morning boil until soft and drain. Sear bacon in hot frying pan, remove from pan and add the onions, sliced. Cook until soft, not too much. In a greased casserole place a layer of beans sprinkled with onions, small pieces of the bacon and sprinkle with salt and pepper; repeat until all is used. Over this pour the milk and bake from fifteen minutes to one-half hour. Makes a very tasty dish as well as nourishing.

Women Show Way to Kitchen Economics

Women prominent in society are touring the United States in what they have named the "Conservation Special" in an effort to curtail or eliminate waste in food production. They are also giving practical demonstrations of preserving processes and household economics. That the movement is a very popular one is shown by the crowds of women who gather around the special train at each stop and in their eagerness to gather information as to household economics. The theme of the demonstrations is that by modern scientific methods much food that was previously allowed to rot may be utilized by care and economy. The baggage car of this special train contains jars, cans and dehydrators and other equipment for demonstration work. A pamphlet entitled "Hints to Housewives" is scattered at every stopping place. The photographs herewith show the young women of the Food Conservation Battalion giving practical demonstrations in the preparation and conservation of foodstuffs.

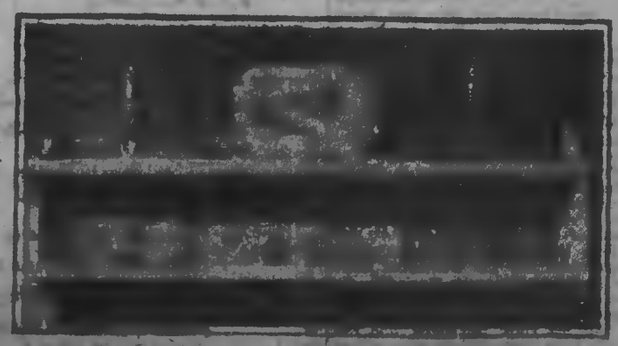
Wall Shelves for Country and City Homes

THE artistic and useful value of the built-in and hanging shelves for summer houses and small apartments cannot be overestimated. In the summer home one is happily apt to be free from the full quota of complete sets of furniture. There may be also happily lacking in your dining room the inartistic and ubiquitous "china closet" as a repository for the seldom used china and glass. The practical Japanese idea—to have in sight only what we daily use and to have that a harmonious part of our general surroundings—might obtain in the average American home with beneficial results.

So in your dining room for the service in daily use have your carpenter make shelves to fit the wall space you wish used. These shelves should be open, with only side pieces for support. Otherwise they are apt to have too heavy an appearance. Grooves should be made in the boards intended as shelves for plates or saucers, and carefully put together with side and top pieces neatly turned. Efficiency and effectiveness are the result of such shelves in a dining room.

Corner shelves or cupboards occupy a distinctive, artistic place of their own, no matter how simple. In the ideal old Colonial house, built in and perhaps having leaded doors, we find the corner cupboard given an added charm to whatever room it graces. These shelves should have a solid backing.

Shelves in small dining room for glass service. The shelves are painted with white enamel.



Shelves, always had in sleeping room for one's favorite books.

For your sleeping room, especially if floor space is limited, book shelves hanging above the bed and containing your favorite volumes and magazines will be found a most cosey and intimate convenience.

The usual floor book shelves are, of course, always more artistic and inviting than the stereotyped "book cases," so suggestive of aloofness.

Such shelves as shown and described can be made by your village or neighborhood carpenter from odds and ends of boards, preferably of white pine. Or the clever boy or girl versed in manual training can make them at home.

The boards should be smoothed with coarse sandpaper and painted with an enamel finish, applied to match the general decorative scheme. Usually a white enamel finish fits in with any decoration, although for the country home the cool grays and greens work out most effectively.

If those who do not like fudge to sugar will try putting a few marshmallows in it after cooking I am sure they will be pleased with the creamy smoothness of the fudge.

AIDS TO THE HOUSEWIFE.

To wash black silk brush and wipe it thoroughly, lay it on a flat table with the side up which is intended to show and sponge with hot coffee, strained through muslin. Allow it to become partially dry, then iron.

Ironing boards may be protected from dust by taking two paper flour sacks, cutting the bottom from one and pasting on top of the other to form the required length. Slip this over the board when putting away.

To clean rollers of a wringer rub with kerosene.

YOUR HUSBAND.

YOUR husband has no duplicate.

No man-mould was ever used twice.

Each wife has a brand new variety of husband.

There are many women who feel competent to tell every other woman just how to manage her husband.

The only way to understand any one man is to study not the species but his personality.

Love of praise is at the foundation of the greatest efforts made by man or woman.

Praising the atom may produce a molecule which will combine later with other faculties into a glorious mass.

BED FOR BABY.

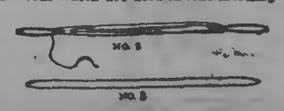
NEW mothers should arrange for a baby's perfectly sanitary bed. It consists of a warm woven wire spring and a mattress made from a heavy blanket folded to fit the crib, on top of which goes a square of rubber cloth, a sheet and a soft quilted pad.

During the day when the bed is not in use the blanket is put in the sunshine and washed and fumigated when necessary. "This," declares a specialist, "is the only sort of bed a baby should have until it is three years old, when a good hair mattress may be substituted for the blanket."

LESSON FOR MAKING FILET LACE

FILET is the lace most in fashion today. Real filet is expensive to buy, but is very easy to make, and the materials are not expensive.

The mode of filet lace collar and cuffs, insertions which are used in fine morning blouses and elaborate afternoon and evening frocks and the many dainty things for home decoration cost little to make and much to buy.



No. 2 represents the mesh needle, and No. 1 the netting needle.

Filet work is very old. The source of this work was the fisherman's network stitch. With successive alterations through the years wonderful effects have been developed.

There are three kinds of filet. First, the simple filet; second, the Italian filet, and third, the Richelieu filet. The first thing to do is to learn to make the foundation; the design is afterward darned on it.

The necessary material for the outfitting of this kind of work is extremely inexpensive—a steel filet needle (a long, thick, pencil like needle, pointed at each end, No. 1) and a mesh, No. 2. They may be had of wood, steel, ivory or bone.

Figure B represents the second position of the hands. A few loops have already been made.

The steel netting needle, as pictured in No. 1, is made of a bar of steel with an open eye at both ends. One hole also contains an eye, so you can guide the thread in the direction of the netting needle's length. The quantity of thread rolled up on the needle must correspond with the thickness of the mesh needle so it can slip easily through the looped stitches. The mesh must be a uniform size from one end to the other, so as to obtain very regular, even sized stitches.

There are many kinds of stitches—the simple stitches, the double stitches, the lengthened stitches and the slip stitches. To make simple stitches you fix, either to a nail in the wall or to a heavy pin cushion with a pin, a ten inch loop made of very strong linen thread, on which you tie the loose end of the thread of the netting needle. You keep the mesh between the thumb and the index finger of your left hand, the fingers remaining stiff and unbent. The thread is put around in front of the mesh and the second, third and fourth fingers; then you throw it up behind the three fingers (see Fig. A).

Then you turn it toward the left, where you hold it with the thumb (see Fig. B). Afterward you bring the thread down behind the four fingers, around to the front again, and then push the steel netting needle from down to up through the loop, which is behind the mesh.

The second loop so formed on the left hand is held by the little finger (see Fig. C). The thread is drawn closer by drawing; you release the fingers from the loop, which you hold with the thumb. Now you bind the loop closely which runs above the second, third and fourth fingers. You keep the last loop on the little finger until the first one is quite closed. You then disengage the little finger from the loop and you bind the knot tightly on the mesh. So the stitch is made that makes one of the little squares that form the foundation mesh of filet lace, which is afterward darned with a design.

Figure C represents the third position, and shows the big loop of thread, partly hidden by the other hand, which, when tightened, makes the filet loop on the mesh needle.

The same method is used for the continuing stitches, and when a sufficient number of stitches are made you take the mesh out and you turn your work around and start again, as in starting another row in knitting.

PRESERVE FRUIT JUICE FOR JELLY

FRUIT juices for use later in jelly making can be bottled without sugar and made into jellies at convenience, or when sugar is cheaper. This makes fewer jelly glasses necessary.

The juice of strawberries or cherries can be kept without sugar and later, when apples are plentiful, can be made into combination jelly.

Fruit juice, sealed up hot, can be kept until wanted. To put up unsugared fruit juice for jelly making, proceed exactly as if jelly were to be made at the time. Cook the fruits until they are soft and strain out the juice through a flannel bag.

Heat and pour, while hot, into bottles previously scalded. Fill the bottles full, leaving no air space between juice, and cork or seal.

Place the filled sealed bottles on their sides in water near the boiling point, and keep them in the water for about thirty minutes.

Make sure that the corked or sealed end is under the hot water. As soon as the bottles are cool, cover the cork with a paraffin seal. Thorough sealing is absolutely necessary.

To make jelly from the sterilized juice, test its jelling quality, add the proper amount of sugar and proceed as in making jelly from freshly pressed juice.

For special occasions it is often desirable to have flowers of odd colors. Try coloring lilies of the valley and carnations green. It can be done easily by placing the stems in green ink or dye, which will be drawn upward through the stems, causing the white flowers to become streaked with green. They are weirdly beautiful and attract a great deal of attention, as few people know how it is done. The change in color is caused by the oxalic acid in dye or ink, which opens the pores of the stem so that the coloring matter is drawn upward. To color the flowers pink, red ink may be used, and pink lilies of the valley are strikingly beautiful.

FULFIL YOUR DUTIES PROMPTLY

ONE of the most successful of men said recently that he attributed his success to his early formed habit of doing at once what he saw ought to be done.

Whenever a task, big or little, presented itself he gave it his immediate attention, despatching it with all possible promptness, and his splendid achievements are proof of the success of this early formed habit.

Much of the mental worry and physical ill-being comes from putting off until tomorrow what should be done to-day.

A task promptly accomplished seldom brings worry or fatigue.

It is the delay in getting at it that wearies and tires us.

Quite apart from the mental and moral discomfort of avoiding a task it does our work actual harm.

It is a common failing among women, this failure to attend to our obligations instead of worrying over them.

Just why this should be so is a puzzle unless it is because most of us have not had much, if any, executive training.

How often do women exclaim:—

"Oh, I should have written that letter long ago;" or "I have owed that call so long, I'm ashamed of myself;" or "I've put off going to the dentist so long my teeth are in a bad condition;" or "My rubbers have a hole in them and here it is pouring pitchforks; I've had it on my mind for the last week to get a new pair," &c. Now a cry of despair over some really big obligation, neglected until too late; now a wail over some small one.

Some one has said that the hardest part of work is getting at it. This is so true. Work's irksomeness is almost invariably in our fretting over the fact that it lies ahead of us.

The executive person that we all admire has perfected the art of "getting at" doing what has to be done.

The minute we treat this "getting at" the performing of tasks promptly as of primary importance and starting right off at our work we have accomplished the worst part of it.

Care and worry come though our putting off till to-morrow what we should do to-day.

Life is much brighter when we are abreast with our duties. Surely it is worth while to make every effort to keep abreast.

Why think a week about buying a pair of needed rubbers? Save your head and nerves and get the rubbers.

Why owe a letter interminably when, after all, the actual writing of the letter is no work at all?

"But I have so many things to do," is the usual excuse for procrastination.

Be honest with yourself. Would you really have so much to do if you did things punctually?

A FEW HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS

THE housewife who goes into the kitchen daily with pad and pencil in hand, looks over the situation, writes on a slate the menus for the day and then goes out and personally selects the food has fewer servant difficulties.

Cucumbers eaten with oil and salt are almost sure to agree with a delicate digestion.

Sugar gingerbread is lighter and more suitable for a hot weather sweet than the usual kind made with molasses.

Sandwiches should always be made as short a time as possible before being used.

On ironing day, when the top of the stove must not be spattered, much of the cooking of the midday meal may be done in the oven.

In serving fish for dinner the light-meated kinds are preferred because they are more easily digested than those with dark meat.

If, when baking, the oven should get too hot, place a basin of cold water in it. This will cool the oven, and the steam which rises from the water will prevent the contents from burning.

To make glassware glisten, after washing rinse in hot water and then place in cold water in which a handful of starch has been dissolved. Drain on towels until quite dry and polish with a dry cloth.

To make a candle burn all night put finely powdered salt on it until it reaches the black part of the wick. In this way a steady light may be kept up all night by means of a small piece of candle.

To remove creases from clothes which have been packed away for some time hang in the bathroom, then turn on the hot water tap. The steam will entirely remove the creases. Press afterward if necessary.

If a teaspoonful of glycerin be added to every four pounds of jam or marmalade a quarter of an hour before boiling is completed it will be found to remove the soggy appearance and make the preserve transparent and firmer than the usual homemade jam.

STICKINESS.

If scissors with which marshmallows are cut for candy puddings, icings, &c., are held under a hot water faucet every few minutes during the process you will find that it does away with all the stickiness on the blades, which is so annoying

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A War Quartet

Story of an Ambulance Driver

By F. A. MITCHEL

When the great world's war broke out Jim Harding and I were in Paris. Jim and I had long been chums, and what one did the other usually did. We had finished our education in the same class, in the same college, and before settling down to our life work concluded to make a tour abroad. After dawdling about on the continent for a part of the summer we went to Paris, intending to sail from England after "doing" the French capital. Before we got away war was declared.

We thought we should like to see some of the controversy before returning home and deliberated between joining the Foreign legion and the ambulance corps. We were both good chauffeurs and offered our services to drive the wounded. They were accepted, and Jim and I were assigned to the same field.

When the French army and English contingent were hurled back on Paris I was driving an empty ambulance to the front. Who should I come upon on the way but Jim. He had lost his ambulance in the quick advance of the Germans and barely escaped being taken prisoner. He climbed on to the seat beside me, and we proceeded together. Somehow—I never could tell how we did it—we drove between two divisions of the German army and found ourselves in its rear.

If our position had not been serious it would have been laughable. Here were two men and an ambulance equipped for carrying wounded men off the field of battle who had left the wounded far behind them. Indeed, if the Germans had not also been left behind we would have been made prisoners of war and our ambulance put to the enemy's uses. Under the circumstances we were not very long in deciding what to do.

Leaving our ambulance, we took to hiding. At evening we came upon a village that had been destroyed by the Germans and slept in one of the few houses left standing. It was nothing more than a hut, and in it what clothing we found had belonged to peasants. We decided to don enough of it to enable us to pass as members of the peasant class, and when we emerged in the morning we were clad in corduroy trousers and blouses.

In order to get back to our comrades and avoid being taken prisoners by those following up the German army we struck off in a southwesterly direction. During the day we entered a region that was very beautiful. I remarked to Jim that if I were an artist I should not wish any better field for sketching. There were beautiful hills on either side of a dreamy valley, to say nothing of a winding stream meandering between them.

Meeting two peasant girls coming toward us, Jim suggested that we might safely ask them for information that would guide us on our way. So when we came together I asked one of them what we desired to know. Unfortunately for us they knew very little about the roads or the topography of the country about them. I spoke French pretty well, and Jim knew enough of the language to get on in a simple conversation. It did not seem to me that the girls spoke very good French, but I attributed this to the fact that they were of the lower class.

After satisfying ourselves that we ran no risk in disclosing our identity I told the girls that we were Americans; had been tourists, had joined the French ambulance corps and were trying to escape capture. I noticed that upon this information they looked at each other and smiled. Then they both commended us for our patriotism and offered to help us in every way in their power.

After a brief conference it was decided that we should remain where we were and the girls would bring us something to eat, for we had not had food for twenty-four hours. Jim and I settled ourselves in a grove beside the road, and in due time our benefactors returned with a luncheon that surprised us. We had expected such a meal as would come from a peasant's home, but found cold chicken, slices of ham, white bread and delicious butter. Moreover, the whole was on a salver covered with a napkin.

But we were too hungry to wonder how such a meal could have been produced by peasants or even inquire into the matter and fell to at once, the girls watching us with evident interest and filling a couple of glasses they had provided from a bottle of excellent wine. It occurred to me that there was some mystery about them. Their hands were not coarse and misshapen like those of the lower class, but soft and round; their voices had not a guttural sound; their feet, which, with their ankles, were plainly visible beneath their short skirts, were not blunt like those of a peasant, but long and narrow as befitting a lady.

After satisfying our hunger we chatted with our benefactors, who promised to inquire as to the road we would need to take to get back to our army, and they would return in the evening with some supper. They left us in the early afternoon, and we betook ourselves to slumber, which we sadly needed and which was induced by the delicious meal we had eaten.

Our friends returned in the evening with more eatables, but with no information which would enable us to rejoin our corps. They told us that they had learned the Germans were rapidly driving the allies toward Paris and it was expected that the city would fall into the hands of the enemy. Indeed, the capital had already been removed to Bordeaux.

This did not look like our making our way toward our comrades, who were doubtless retreating faster than we could travel. We concluded that we might as well remain where we were till we could get some definite information, for there would be an advantage in making for a point that was always changing. That night we slept in a barn we espied near our bivouac, finding a comfortable bed on the hay. Not caring to rely further on our friends the girls for provisions we went in the morning to the house of the farmer who owned the barn and secured a breakfast such as might have been expected from such a source.

We induced the farmer to take us in and remained with him for sleep and meals from day to day while news kept coming to us that the Germans were nearing Paris. We felt like shirkers in being absent from our posts, where we were so much needed, but what could we do? Evidently our way to Paris was blocked, and if we tried to get there we would likely fall into the enemy's hands.

We were perfectly safe where we were, but dissatisfied at remaining there. Jim proposed that we make an attempt to get through the German lines, but I believed that we would soon hear either that the Germans had taken Paris or had settled down before it for a siege. In either case we would know what to do. Meanwhile to pass the time we took long walks about the country.

One day we came to the brow of a hill looking down on a very attractive landscape.

"That would make a fine subject for a picture," I said to Jim.

"And there are the artists making it," replied Jim.

Lowering my eyes to a point directly beneath where we were standing, I saw two women, one before an easel, the other with a sketching board before her. I proposed to go down and see what they were doing, and we did so. Hearing us approach they turned their heads, and we recognised our peasant girl benefactors. We saw them look at each other and laugh.

"I was not aware," I said, still speaking in French, "that peasants were artists."

"You have caught us in the act," said one of the girls, "and we may as well confess. We are not indigenous to France any more than you are, nor are we peasants. We are Americans studying art. We spent the winter in Paris, and when summer opened we came to this region, which is famous among artists, to get practical out of door experience in our profession. To avoid being stared at or questioned we donned this dress and find it a serviceable outing costume. But were we not lucky in getting out of Paris before the war storm broke?"

"I think," replied Jim, "that your imposition was kept up as long as it would be possible to maintain it. My friend and I have suspected you were not what you purported to be. The luncheon you brought us was a dead giveaway. You should have brought us coarse bread and some cold pork on a tin dish."

"You should have done no such thing," I protested. "That luncheon was delicious. I shall always remember it especially when I was hungry."

This is rather the beginning of a story than the story itself. Jim and I remained where we were till news came of the battle of the Marne and the saving of Paris. Then we bade our artist friends goodby and made our way back to the capital, from which point we were unabled to join our corps and found ourselves again engaged in rescuing the wounded.

Jim and I were both engaged in the fighting that followed the battle of the Marne, the effort to take Calais and subsequently the gigantic attempt of the central allies to capture Verdun. So active were we that we had no time to think of the girls who had brought us that delicious supper. Nevertheless, when temporarily off duty and together, we would speak of them and the way they had concealed from us their identity. We wondered what they were doing, but had little doubt they were still studying art—that is, if they had not returned to America.

A year passed, when one day while I was driving my ambulance I was wounded by a piece of shrapnel. I was carried to the rear. Jim found me and took me to a hospital farther from the firing line. In a nurse passing my cot I recognised one of the peasant artists I had met during the summer before. She had not forgotten me and showed great concern at seeing me in my forlorn condition.

I received especial attention from the lady, and it was, I think, due to her nursing that I recovered. Patients are prone to fall in love with their nurses and I was no exception to the rule. Her artist friend had also enlisted in the cause and was at the same hospital. When Jim came to see me he found both girls, and one day there was a reunion of our quartet beside my couch.

We talked over our meeting a year before and laughed at some of the girls' expedients to preserve their identity. All agreed that studying art and conceding ourselves from the enemy were far more attractive work than caring for wounded men.

Several years have passed since Jim and I met the two peasant girls. We are all back in America, having served a long period in the war. I married my nurse and Jim married her friend.

EXTREME WEAKNESS AND SUFFERING

Read How Mrs. Goodling got Relief and Strength.

York, Pa.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it to be all you say it is. I was so sick that I could not stand at my sink to wash dishes and I could not sit without a pillow under me. I had the doctor every few days but since I have taken the Compound I don't have to send for him. I have had three children and could not raise any of them, but since I have taken the Compound I have a bright baby boy. I advise every suffering woman to try it and get relief. It has done wonders for me."—Mrs. CATHARINE GOODLING, 128 E. King Street, York, Pa.

When a medicine has been successful in bringing health to so many, no woman has a right to say without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." There must be more than a hundred thousand women in this country who, like Mrs. Goodling, have proven what wonders Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can do for weak and ailing women. Try it and see for yourself.

M. Guynemer's Last Air Flight

Comrade Describes How World's Greatest Man-Swallow Lost His Life

AMBUSHED BY THE ENEMY

At Least Forty Hostile Machines in the Air at the Time.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—The last night of Capt. Guyemer, France's premier air man, who was credited in the army aviation record with having shot down 53 German aeroplanes, and with having destroyed at least 25 that were uncounted, is described by a comrade, who is quoted my the Excelsior as follows:

"Guynemer sighted five machines of the Albatross type D-3. Without hesitating, he bore down on them. At that moment enemy patrolling machines, soaring at a great height, appeared suddenly and fell upon Guynemer.

"There were forty enemy machines in the air at this time, including Count von Richofen and his circus division of machines, painted in diagonal blue and white stripes. Towards Guynemer's right some Belgian machines hove in sight, but it was too late.

"Guynemer must have been hit. His machine dropped gently towards the earth and I lost track of it. All that I can say is that the machine was not on fire."

Capt. Guynemer's greatest day's work was on May 17, of this year, when he brought down four German machines, two of which he accounted for in the space of two minutes, having attacked a group of four. With only three cartridges left, while in his homeward flight, he encountered the fourth German, and shot him down with one of the three remaining cartridges. One of the two victims he shot down on Aug. 4th last was Lieut. Hohendorf, a German aviator who flew for a French aeroplane company before the war, and who had shot down twelve French machines.

The fifty-three German machines officially credited to Capt. Guynemer's record were worth something more than 1,500,000 francs. Some of them were manned by two or three men, and it is estimated that he accounted for more than eighty pilots, observers and gunners.

LITTLE ENTHUSIASM IN SELECTION BOARD

Members Leave For Their Homes Disgruntled Over Treatment

OTTAWA, Sept. 26.—Members of the Parliamentary Board of Election appointed by both parties to nominate members of the military service tribunals, have departed for their homes in various Provinces with considerable resentment at the reception which they received here.

The Prime Minister was away holidaying and none of his Ministers undertook the responsibility of looking after this important body of men.

Government and Opposition appointees alike expressed disgust at the lack of interest taken by the authorities in the proceedings.

HINDOOS IN CANADA.

Numbers Have Considerably Reduced in Ten-Year Period.

That of seven thousand East Indians who came to this country upwards of ten years ago few more than one thousand remain owing to adverse economic and climatic conditions is a statement contained in a letter by Superintendent of Immigration W. D. Scott in answer to a memorial from the Presbyterian General Assembly. This memorial urged action to allay racial feeling said to have been aroused among non-Christian people of India, who regard the prohibition of Indian immigration to Canada as an insult and denial of their rights. The letter says in part:

"There is not now, and never has been, any legislation which applies specifically and only to East Indians, nor yet is there any distinction by existing regulations applicable to women and children and not to men. Some East Indian agitators, I think, are responsible for creating in the minds of many Canadians the impression that there is a regulation which debars women and children, but permits the entry of men; such is not the case. I do not know of any instance in which women and children arriving at a Canadian port, coming to join husbands and fathers, were not allowed to land."

Rev. A. E. Armstrong, of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Department, in speaking of the letter to the Globe, said he regarded the admission of the Superintendent of Immigration as "good news," and that it disposes of the "bluff" that had been resorted to in the courts in British Columbia, when the wives of Hindus were refused admission to the country.

PAPER FAMINE IN GERMANY.

Several Berlin Journals Unable to Appear on Saturday.

London. — The shortage of print paper in Berlin is so serious that many of the city's important papers were unable to appear on Saturday, according to Berlin advices to the Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent. Other newspapers were issued only in four-page form, with the prospects for a paper supply so poor that they may soon have to stop publication altogether.

No Berlin newspapers reached Holland yesterday except forty copies of the Tageblatt, says the correspondent. Virtually all the newspapers in Saxony have ceased publication for an indefinite period.

The situation, says the Tageblatt, is serious. The advertising of the new war loan, it points out, will naturally be impossible under these conditions, as well as the printing of advertising of other kinds.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

Its Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Pleaded In Vain For Edith Cavell

HUGH GIBSON URGED MURDEROUS GERMANS TO SPARE NURSE—HUN KEPT DEED HIDDEN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—German officials who caused the execution of Edith Cavell, British nurse, decided just before she was shot that the effect on world opinion "would be excellent." This was divulged to-day by Hugh Gibson, first secretary of the Belgian legation under Brand Whitlock, in an article in World's Work.

Gibson describes how, with Gaston De Le Val, the attorney named to defend Miss Cavell, and the Spanish Minister, he pleaded for hours with Baron Von Der Lancken, head of the German political department in Belgium, urging that the nurse be spared. During this scene Count Harrach, who was present, interrupted to remark that he only wished they "had a few old English women to shoot."

Sentence on Miss Cavell was pronounced in her cell, Gibson declares, so that it could be kept secret, and the American representatives were led to and kept in ignorance of it as long as possible.

DRAFTS 5,000 FOR STATE.

North Carolina Governor Calls for Men from 31 to 45 Years Old.

RALEIGH, N.C., Sept. 26. —Governor Bickett by proclamation to-day ordered the drafting into the State military service of 5,000 citizens between the ages of 31 and 45 to serve in the State in the absence of all of North Carolina's National Guard in Federal service.

The men will be selected by machinery now being arranged, the plan being to provide a reserve force for every county, some twenty-five men coming from most of the counties and none from those which are centres of ulation.

Attacks on local jails and a demonstration Friday before the State Prison, where a negro charged with attacking a white woman is confined, are said to have hastened the Governor's decision to apply the draft.

THE BRITISH STOP THE FOE'S HEAVY ATTACKS

RUSSIANS SCORE VICTORY IN CAUCASUS

BRILLIANT ACHIEVEMENT OF THE CANADIANS IN THE LENS FIGHTING

Operations Are Reviewed in a Report Issued by the Militia Department---"Circle is Being Drawn Tighter and Tighter Around Lens"---German Counter Attacks in the Ypres Sector Are Repulsed With Heavy Losses.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, September 28.—Many brilliant achievements of the Canadian corps in the fighting around Lens are detailed in a report given out by the Militia Department to-day. The statement tells of the gallant work of Canadians from all parts of the Dominion in carrying by assault the formidably defended position known as Hill 70. The casualties inflicted by Canadian troops were quite exceptionally heavy on this occasion, including the taking of 1,378 prisoners with a large number of machine and trench guns.

"Apart from military value of ground gained," said the report, "such results represent no small addition to the growing strain imposed on the enemy by our offensive and must contribute materially to the exhaustion of his reserves." The report adds that Canadian casualties were light. During weather unfavourable for major operations the Canadians distinguished themselves as usual with raids and reconnaissances. On the night of August ninth a small party of twenty Canadians surprised an enemy outpost and accounted for the whole garrison. Describing the big battle about Lens in the middle of August, the report says that Canadian infantry attack was Admirably supported by Canadian artillery, and was immediately successful.

"Our progress continues," says the report finally, "and at very moderate cost to ourselves. The circle is being drawn tighter and tighter about Lens."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON (Official), September 28.—Another German counter-attack was made last night against the new British positions near Zonnebeke. The attack was broken up by the British.

The statement follows: "Yesterday evening another counter-attack by the Germans against our positions in Zonnebeke was broken up by our rifle and machine-gun fire and artillery. South of Tower Hamlets and south of Polygon Wood isolated strong positions in which parties of the enemy were holding out close to our new position, have been cleared up. We killed or captured several Germans without loss to ourselves in carrying out a successful raid last night southwest of Cheriay.

"The enemy's artillery showed considerable activity during the night. South of Lens the artillery on both sides was active.

(Canadian Press Despatch.

PARIS, September 28.—The Germans made an attack last night in the Argonne region, To-day's official statement says. They were repulsed three times suffering heavy losses.

KERENSKY'S ADDRESS TO DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, (Thursday)—Premier Kerensky addressed the Democratic Congress at its first session to-day in the Municipal Theatre receiving applause which came principally from the less radical groups of delegates. He spoke in forceful style with the air of challenging his opponents. The address was largely a defense of the acts of the Government under his Premiership. M. Kerensky was interrupted frequently by shouts from one group and another which led at times to altercations lasting several minutes. At one point Bolsheviki burst into loud cheers at something derogatory to Kerensky. "Cheer my friends if you will," said Kerensky when he was able to make himself heard. "But bear in mind that the German fleet is moving up the Baltic." Delegates to the right jeered the Bolsheviki asking them why they did not cheer the Premier's remark inasmuch as the Germans were their friends.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Wm. G. Shepherd.)

STOCKHOLM, September 28.—With one Russian army Kerensky's nephew—a youth in the twenties, was commissaire. He had the final word over all troops ther and lived like a lord. Limousines were at his disposal. He felt his power and he exercised it. Moreover he always protected the soldiers against their officers. Korniloff saw this system's workings. Stern disciplinarian that he was, he decided it was impossible to lead an army so formed and controlled. He held it the most grotesque military system in history. It was unthinkable in Korniloff's view that an army so weakened in discipline and so controlled by civilians who know nothing of strategy, could ever protect Russia in her new found freedom. Therefore Korniloff rebelled. It was his idea of patriotism to his country to save the nation from such an army's disintegration.

I was in Petrograd during these developments and can attest the untruth of the statement that allied citizens there were against Korniloff. On the contrary he represented to them a new hope of a reinvigorated Russia. They rejoiced as the bulletins told of Korniloff's approach towards the city. Not even the possibility of a bloody battle in the streets deterred the individual hopes that a new Russian army might be born. Foreigners in Petrograd all knew Korniloff could not restore the Romanoffs. They did believe he might furnish an iron hand for Russia—develop into a man of the hour, Like leaders which have developed in other allied countries who could dominate. If one desires glowing optimism over Russia's situation he can obtain it in Stockholm. It is evident there is a concerted German propaganda drive to disarm the allies and particularly America, in a belief that everything is rosy in Russia.

Bail was fixed at $1,000 each for the four visitors of fair day who are held on a charge of picking pockets. This offer was made by the Crown in police court this morning.

Mr. G. N. Gordon stated this was as large a bail as he had produced for a murderer, and that it was not likely that it would be accepted. Mr. James Sullivan, of Boston, is acting with Mr. Gordon in the interests of the prisoners.

DENIES THAT FORMER CHIEF HOWARD HAS BEEN APPOINTED

Telegram From Fire Marshal Heaton Confirms Statement of Prominent Member of Cabinet—Ex-Chief Howard Sticks to His Original Claim

THE MESSAGE

Word was received this morning from a prominent member of the Provincial Cabinet, denying the report that ex-Fire Chief Howard had been appointed Deputy Fire Marshall. The information clearly stated that the former Fire Chief had not received an appointment of any kind with the Provincial government. In order to clear up the matter the following telegram was despatched to Mr. E. P. Heaton, Fire Marshall for the Province of Ontario:

THE QUERY.

Parliament Buildings, Toronto:
Fire Marshall Heaton,

It is reported here that ex-Fire Chief Howard of this city has been appointed Deputy Fire Marshal. Would you please tell us if this is correct; if not do you know of any other appointment he may have received.

EXAMINER,
Peterborough.

THE REPLY.

Later in the day the following reply was received:

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 28, 1917.
The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Report concerning ex-Chief Howard is without foundation. No such appointment has been made, and I have no knowledge of any other appointment he may have received.

E. P. HEATON,
Fire Marshall.

Ex-Chief Howard was communicated with this afternoon and he confirmed his original statement, which in effect announced that he had been officially appointed to the position of Deputy Fire Marshall and that he would work in conjunction with Fire Marshall Heaton.

THE ITEM.

The item that appeared in the Examiner a couple of days ago, and which Chief Howard this afternoon asserted was correct, is as follows:

Ex-Fire Chief W. A. Howard has been officially notified of his appointment as Deputy Fire Marshal for the Provincial Government. Needless to say the position carries with it a much larger salary than was paid the former Chief of the Peterborough Fire Department. Deputy Fire Marshall Howard, as he will now be known is arranging to dispose of his house and some of his furniture, preparatory to his removal to Toronto, where he and Mrs. Howard will reside. His new offices will be in the Parliament Buildings, Queen's Park, but his duties will take him over the entire Province. For years the former Chief of the local Fire Department has made an exhaustive study of fire prevention. This knowledge will prove of great value in his new position."

"Was the Examiner's announcement of your appointment correct?" the ex-Chief was asked this afternoon.

"Yes," was the reply.

KORNILOFF'S COURT MARTIAL WILL RESULT IN TRAGEDY

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By William G. Shepherd.)

STOCKHOLM, September 28.—The court martial of General Korniloff will probably result in a tragedy. Korniloff is to be judged by those whose scheme of making the army subject to civilian control stung him to revolt. Men under the domination of the Soviet or All-Russian Council of Workmen and Soldiers, will constitute the court martial to try the former commander-in-chief. It was Soviet influence which Korniloff, soldier, fighter, a man unskilled in politics, feared was crumbling Russia's army away. The Soviet hates Korniloff. One of the main reasons why General Korniloff attempted the overthrow of Premier Kerensky was the Provisional Government's appointment—at the dictation of the Soviet—of thirty "Commissaires," who went to the front, representing the Government, and who possessed more authority than the generals of armies themselves. The commissaires were all civilians, frequently they were all politicians. The commissaires protected the soldiers against their superior army commanders. Russian officers invariably called them "Kerensky spies." Army commanders were compelled to submit their military plans to the judgement of the commissaires.

ANOTHER MEMBER OF THE 93rd BATTALION WINS MILITARY MEDAL

Corp. A. P. Burrows, Formerly of the Signal Section of Peterborough Battalion Decorated--Lieut. Meredith Huycke Home From Overseas--Gunner Jesse Airriess Gassed--To-day's General Military News.

Mrs. Wesley, Stewart street, received word this morning that Corporal Arthur B. Burrows, who joined the 93rd Battalion here as a signaller, but now attached to the 16th Battery in France, has won the Military Medal for distinguished bravery. Corp. Burrows' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Burrows, reside in England, he having come to Canada some years ago. His acquaintances here will be pleased to hear of the honour bestowed upon him.

Corp. Burrows was formerly employed by J. C. Turnbull and Co. and was well known in the city.

His many friends will be interested in learning that Harry Boyler, who was a member of the 93rd Band, and who returned to England with the 236th Battalion, is now a cadet in training with the Royal Flying Corps. His address is now Cadet H. G. Boyler, "B" Squadron, 5th Flight, No. 1 Royal Flying Corps, Cadet Wing, St. Leonards-on-Sea, Eng. In a letter just received Cadet Boyler says: "I am at present at the officers' training corps of the Royal Flying Corps and expect to be here for two months yet, and then I will be going to Oxford to finish my course and take out my commission as a pilot. Although the band work was interesting under Bandmaster Hughes, I find this course of instruction much more so. I expect Fred Walno and Victor Dallin (two other 93rd band members) to start in the officers' training corps in three weeks or so, as they are also going to the Royal Flying Corps. There are several hundred cadets here, and the officers and instructors use us "Jake." We have a fine mess and our billets are in houses, where we have a nice lounge for lectures and studies. The old 93rd band is pretty well broken up, as most of the boys have gone to France in recent drafts."

In connection with the announcement made by Mayor Duffus yesterday that a public meeting will be held on Thursday evening next to consider the question of ways and means to provide headquarters for the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans, it may be pointed out that in many cities in Canada, suitable buildings are being secured for the use of the Veterans and dedicated to the memory of the officers and men who have made the supreme sacrifice. It is the belief of many citizens that no better monument could be provided for those who have died in France than a building for the use of their comrades who have returned or who will return from the front.

In this connection the suggestion has been made that the old Murray street Batpist church might be converted into quarters that would give the War Veterans a cosy home.

It is important that there should be a large and representative attendance at next Thursday's meeting.

GUNNER AIRRIESS GASSED

Mrs. Geo. Airriess, 88 McDonnel street has received official word from Ottawa that her son, Gunner Jesse Airriess has been admitted to No. 6 Casualty Clearing Station on September 21st, gassed. Gunner Airriess enlisted here on March 1, 1915 with the 26th Battery and went overseas on June 29th of the same year. He was transferred to a Trench Mortar Battery and has been at the front for a long period.

Lieut. Huycke Home.

Lieut. Meredith Huycke, son of His Honour Judge Huycke, reached home on the afternoon C.P.R. train yesterday, having been invalided from France, where he was very severely wounded. Lieut. Huycke is the second son of His Honour to return from the front wounded, Lieut. Douglas Huycke having been wounded last year. Lieut. Meredith Huycke, prominent in local sporting circles, especially as a baseball pitcher, went overseas with the 33rd Peterborough Battery, and was transferred to another Canadian battery at the front. His host of friends will be glad to welcome him home.

Pte. R. Tobico, a well-known Roseneath Indian, is officially reported killed in action. Pte. Tobico went overseas as a member of the 139th Battalion of Cobourg, and was drafted to another Canadian battalion at the front.

Kingston, Sept. 27.—Barriefield Camp will be breaking up about October 8th according to present arrangements. It has been decided to have the troops use the quarters in the city as follows:

Eastern Ontario Battalion (about 175 men) to the Drydock Barracks, Special Service Company and artillery to the Artillery Park Domitories.

14th Regiment Guard to Fort Henry.

Police detachment to building at the corner of Bagot and Barrack streets, "C" Battery, R.C.H.A. to Tete de Pont Barracks

Artillary to the Old Collegiate Building.

OTTAWA, Sept. 27.—A large number of members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force have recently been returned from England on account of physical unfitness, which made it impossible for them to proceed to the front. These men, who come under the medical classification of C 3, are considered fit for certain kinds of home service, but, owing to physical weakness, wounds or other causes can-

CANADA'S NEW ARMY TO TRAIN OVERSEAS

Training Will Not Be Progressed With Very Far in Canada But Drafts Will Be Sent to England

WORK OF TRIBUNALS

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—Canada's conscript army will enjoy but a brief stay this side of the Atlantic if present arrangements are adhered to. Immediately after mobilization Grade A men will be entered upon a fourteen weeks' training syllabus, but according to the official understanding at the moment this training will not be progressed with very far in Canada before the men will be sent overseas to receive their real training in camps already prepared for them. This move has the approval of the military authorities on both sides and therefore it is not unlikely that many thousands of the draftees will spend next winter overseas, where conditions are more favourable to training. In addition in the huge camps referred to there are facilities under Canadian supervision for turning out first-class soldiers which are not at the disposal of the authorities here. Apropos of the draft there is one question which seems to be troubling many and which the Military Service Council will not likely decide for some little time to come. It concerns how the final draft will be selected should more category men be enrolled under Class 1 than the proclamation calls for. On this point not one official in high authority can be encouraged to express an opinion at this juncture, but there is a feeling that should this situation arise the Military Service Council may decide to make the selection according to age. This procedure is regarded as the probable one, seeing that the draft is to be selective and not a ballot draft.

Working of the Tribunals.

One other question which seems to be troubling men called up under Class 1 is the procedure to be adopted in seeking exemption. All that the men will be asked to do, having received their grading under the medical test, will be to send in written application for exemption and giving their reasons therefor on a paper provided for the purpose. This will be submitted to one or other of the tribunals by the Ontario Registrar and the tribunal will decide for or against the claim. The applicant can appeal to a higher tribunal if he so desires and the representative of the military authorities who will be present at each tribunal can also appeal in cases where he believes exemption has been unfairly granted. It is not essential that the man seeking exemption should appear before the tribunal.

New Medical History Sheets.

New medical history sheets bearing the words at the top "Military Service Act, 1917," have been issued, and are now in use by Mobilization Centres. There is no material difference between them and the former ones, except that the recruit is no longer asked if he is willing, if attested, to serve overseas, and if he is willing to be inoculated. Also one item of interest on the sheet is "the man denies having rheumatism, tuberculosis," and "we (the doctors) find no evidence of past rheumatism or tuberculosis." There is also a place on the sheet for the recruit to place his number when he reports for service or applies for exemption, evidently to be put there by the holder of the medical sheet. At the top of the sheet, in very small print, and labelled "Important" is the following: "If the man's name does not appear upon the schedule of men reporting for service, or if he has not made an application for exemption or a report for service, or, although having made one, he does not know the number, he will be instructed that the copy of this medical history sheet (which will be handed to him) must be attached by him to a report for service or claim for exemption which he may make on application to any Postmaster in Canada, or be sent to him, after he has noted upon it the number on the receipt he obtained from the Postmaster, to a Registrar or Deputy Registrar under the Military Service Act. In any event the duplicate medical history sheet will be sent by the Medical Board to the District Officer Commanding unless instructions have been given by the latter to forward it direct to a Registrar or Deputy Registrar."

LIEUT. G. MEREDITH HUYCKE, son of His Honour Judge Huycke, who arrived home yesterday from overseas. He was badly wounded in France. Lieut Huycke is the second son of Judge to return from the front after being wounded.

BOY SOLDIERS ARE THE LAST SOURCE OF SUPPLY FOR HUNS

Classes of 1919 and 1920 Constitute the Reservoir of Human Material Upon Which Germany Has to Draw to Fill Up the Gaps

5,500,000 AT FRONT

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Sept. 28.—Germany today has 6,800,000 men as the human material with which to enforce her demand for "a place in the sun." This is the "man power" that remains out of a total of 14 million men who have figured on the German military lists and passed through the hands of Germany's military arbiters. Of the 6,800,000, approximately 5,500,000 are actually at the front and six hundred thousand more are in reserve. The remaining seven hundred thousand constitute one of the greatest tragedies of the war. They are the boy soldiers of classes 1919 and 1920. They constitute the only resource of human material upon which Germany has to draw. They must fill up the losses in the German army, which with no major Allied offensives in progress, normally total from 70,000 to 80,000 monthly. To date, however, the German General Staff has not yet succeeded in imposing on the German people its rights to seize these youths before they are eighteen. Therefore, this last drop of potential German manhood cannot pass into the army, except in piece meal lots, as the boys attain the age of eighteen.

FUNERAL OF MR. CURRAN.

The funeral of Mr. C. S. Curran was conducted yesterday under Oddfellow auspices. Mr. Curran has been a member of Peterborough Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 111, for twenty-three years. The pall-bearers were Brothers Wm. Madill, A. J. Johnson, A. Davidson, T. Hooper, W. J. Greeg and Wm. Cowie.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 28, 1917

A YEAR OF PROHIBITION.

At the end of the first year of prohibition in Ontario it is not amiss to consider its effect upon the city. Whether from cause or coincidence, there have been excellent trade conditions, and no year in our history has been as generally prosperous as the first year of prohibition. Hotel accommodation while improved in quality, in comfort and quiet, is deficient in capacity for providing for travel. There has been vast improvement in the life of many homes. Hundreds of bread winners have become bread winners. Wives are happy, children well fed, well clothed and family life generally revolutionized as compared with the days of the open bar. Public morality, so to speak, has greatly improved, as shown by the immensely lessened convictions for drunkenness and petty crimes, and these would be greatly decreased or virtually quite absent, but for the "fly in the ointment," the permitted importation of drink. This not only accounts for the visible drunkenness, but, what is more serious, for contributory formation of private or secret drinking habits—the pantry habit in the home—which, sad to say, threatens in some cases to fasten itself upon women. In this regard many think that prohibition for the cause stated, does not represent the moral improvement that would come from making it absolute by the prevention of importation of strong drink.

The "city prosecutor" of Vancouver considers British Columbia's Prohibition measure "airtight."

PARTIZAN PATRIOTISM.

The world is more and more amazed, day by day, at the inexhaustible devices of German crookedness to further German interests—blasphemous pietism, diplomatic hypocrisy, lying, spying, intrigue, bribery, are all requisitioned in playing the game of winning at any price. We have evidence both local and general, that the like spirit animates some of our politicians. The government pulls out the win-the-war stop, and claims that in the interests of winning the war, party politics must be put aside—at least till after a party government—partisan to the core—is re-elected.

Everything must bow to this end. We must spare the food profiteers, who fatten upon the country, because, forsooth, criticism of food profiteers will tend to keep out of public life big men whose biggest achievements and whose greatest capacity for service have been to grossly enrich themselves at the public expense.

Now, we are called upon to bury party politics, and permit members supporting the government to be elected, without opposition. On what grounds can Captain Burnham, ex-M.P., claim re-election without opposition and without political discussion? He becomes non-partisan in a moment. During the five years of his representative term he has been a partisan through and through. He has been a steady and thick-and-thin supporter of the Rogers-Borden government. He has supported every move, the entire policy of the government. He has, by his support, helped make the record of the government, which is the chief ground upon which it should be judged. When he has, from eccentricity or caprice, differed from the government, it has been upon non-essentials or subordinate matters that the government could afford to regard with patronising tolerance. Mr. Burnham has stood by the government in the closing days of its career, when it abused its borrowed life by legislation whose only object was to win the election in party interests.

Now, the government that marked the dying days of parliament by prostituting its majority to forcing the most shameless act of legislative partisanship, both in conception and enactment, in the history of the country,—Pressinising parliament in the interests of winning a partisan victory—wants the country to forget every thing. Everybody must become patriots—eschew partizanship, in order to make a partisan victory, a walk-over. We must all take a dip in the Lethe of patriotic oblivion—forget the sins of the government—forget all partizanship, in order that partizanship should—in the coming general elections—win in a canter.

We must of course all help win the war, but are we to do it at the expense—at the price of after-war conditions, that imperil the highest advantages we shall win by winning the war? Must we shut our eyes and blindly do evil that good may come? Is it a patriotic duty to compound political felonies?

In the German Kaiser's view he is the only divinely commissioned regenerator of the world—in some ways, not alone in his delusion.

IN THE BEYOND COUNTRY.

The Governor-General is about to visit the new country beyond North Bay. He will visit Cobalt, Porcupine, Sudbury, Monteaith, Cochrane, Englehart and New Liskeard—the mining country and the new agricultural centres.

"The entire journey by rail north of North Bay will," says a morning contemporary, "be along railways owned and operated by the Province of Ontario and the Dominion of Canada."

It is worth noting that public ownership is operating pretty far north at present. It has only the bare and sparsely populated regions beyond North Bay in which to show what it can do. In that country of the future which stretches across the north public ownership is carrying on railroading for the present. The situation is pretty much what it is here in Toronto as regards trolleys—a corporation enjoys the business in the populous centres of the city, while the municipality is left to operate civic lines in the outskirts, so that the city may grow and the people be served.

The whole thing is too lop-sided, and it is because the situation is what it is that The Star favors the taking over of the C.N.R. as a substantial advance in the nationalization of railways.—Toronto Star.

The Borden government, by taking over the Canadian Northern, seems to value the excellent principle of public ownership very highly, judging by the price it pays for its stock and liabilities—very similar as assets—without the country actually coming into possession and management of the road. In this view all the jibes and charges against the late Laurier government in respect of the extravagant cost of the Transcontinental, from Moncton to Winnipeg, lose a good deal of point. The cost, considering the permanent character of the construction of the Transcontinental, and the fact of real, and not political ownership involved, is a mere bagatelle compared with what the country is committed to by the Canadian Northern "deal."

The latest military development is the addition of the "ornamental" private to the ornamental "colonel," we have had a surfeit of. Yesterday in Toronto, out of seventy-nine men attested for army service, only one signed up to fight on a real battle line.

TAFT SAYS ALLIES MUST FIGHT FOR LASTING PEACE

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—[illegible] William Howard Taft, ex-President of the United States, spoke uncompromisingly on the war and on the terms of peace which the civilized world could accept before the General Conference of Unitarian and Other Christian Churches here this evening. Over 800 delegates are in attendance, and this is the first time the conference has met outside the United Sates. Going straight to the point of his address, which marks the reopening of his campaign as President of the League to Enforce Peace (after the war, futurally), which was interrupted by his illness in the Western States, Mr. Taft said:

PEACE TIME NOT YET.

"The allies have made a stupendous effort and have strained their utmost capacity. Unready for the war, they have concentrated their energy in preparation. In a three years' struggle they have stopped the German advance. In this important respect they have defeated the plan of Germany in shining armor to crush her enemies in their unreadiness. But the war has not been won. Germany is in possession of Belgium and part of northern France. She holds Servia and Roumania, Poland and the Baltic provinces of Russia. Peace now, even though it be made on the basis of the restoration of the status quo, without indemnities and without annexations, would be a failure to achieve the great purpose for which the allies have made heartrending sacrifice. Armaments would continue for the next war, and this war would have been fought in vain. He who proposes peace now, therefore, either does not see the stake for which the allies are fighting, or wishes the German military autocracy still to control the destinies of all of us as to peace or war. Those who favour permanent world-peace must oppose, with might, and main the proposals for peace at this juncture in the war, whether made in Socialistic councils, in pro-German conferences, or by Pope Benedict. The allies are fighting for a principle, the maintenance of which affects the future of civilisation. The allies can not concede peace until they conquer it. When they do so it will be permanent. Otherwise they fail.

GERMANY AFTER THE WAR

Afterly a masterly exposition of the fallacy of world power by the Germans Mr. Taft went on to show why the United States could not idly sit by and see the root of democracy threatened.

"President Wilson," he said, "says the allies are fighting to make the world safe for democracy. Some misconception has been created on this head. The allies are not struggling to force a particular form of government on Germany. If the German people continue to wish an Emperor, it is not the purpose of the allies to require them to have a Republic. Their purpose is to end the military policy and foreign policy of Germany that looks to the maintenance of a military and naval machine with its hair-trigger preparation for use against their neighbors.

"How is the change to be effected? By defeating Germany in this war. (Applause.) The German people have been very loyal to their Emperor because his leadership accords with the false philosophy of the State and German destiny, with which they have been indoctrinated and poisoned. After defeat the German Government will be changed, to avoid a recurrence of such a tragedy as they have deliberately prepared for themselves.

MUST ENFORCE PEACE.

"Men who see clearly the kind of peace which we must have, in order to be a real and lasting peace, can have no sympathy therefore with a patched-up peace, one made on a council table, the result of diplomatic chaffering and bargaining. This war is now being fought by the allies as a League to Enforce Peace. Unless they compel it by a victory they do not enforce it. They do not make the military autocracies of the world into nations fit for a world league unless they convince them of a lesson of defeat. (Applause.)

THE NEW ALLY'S POWER.

"Germany assumed that Britain, burdened with Ireland, would violate her own obligation and abandon Belgium, and would leave her ally, France, to be deprived of all her colonial possessions. They assumed that France was decadent, permeated with Socialism, and unable to make a contest in her state of unpreparedness. They assumed that Britain's colonies, attached only by the slightest ties, and entirely independent, if they chose to be, would not sacrifice themselves to help the motherland in her struggle. How false the German conclusion as to Britain's national conscience and fighting power, as to France's decadence and patriotic fervor and strength, and as to the filial loyalty of Britain's daughters. (Loud applause.) And now at the crisis of the war, when the victory must abide the weight of wealth, resources, food, equipment and fighting men, the German military dynasty, contemptuous of a peace-loving people, brag into the contest a nation fresh in its strength which can furnish more money, more food, and more fighting men, if need be, than any other nation in the world. (Applause.)

It is doggedness that does it. Stamp on all proposals of peace as ill-advised or seditious and then time will make for our certain victory. (Loud applause.)

PEOPLE BACK WILSON.

"While there has been pro-German sentiment in the United States, and while the paid emissaries of Germany have been busy trying to create as much opposition to the war as possible, our allies should know that the whole body of the American people wil learnestly support the President and Congress to win this war.

"When the war is won the United States will wish to be heard, and will have a right to be heard, as to the terms of peace. The United States will insist on a just peace, not one of material conquest.

"Meantime let us hope and pray that all the allies will reject all proposals for settlement and compromise, and adhere rigidly and religiously to the principle that until a victorious result gives security that the world shall not be again drenched in blood through the insanely selfish policy of a military cast in a nation ruling a deluded people intoxicated with material success and power, there will be no peace." (Loud applause.)

UPHOLD PRESIDENT WILSON.

Brushing aside a section among the delegates attending the Unitarian Conference that seemed to have pacifist tendencies, the "beat Germany" element this morning drove through a resolution, at the request of ex-President Taft, who delivered a rousing speech, endorsing the war policy of President Wilson and Congress, and promising loyal support to any measures taken in the United States to carry out the war plans of the Administration.

The repor of the Council of the Unitarian Church indicated that there was a division among its members on the war, though the majority were in favour of the stand of President Wilson and Congress.

STAMP OUT MILITARISM.

Mr. Taft's resolution, which was adopted by 236 to 9, was as follows:—

"That it is the opinion of this Unitarian Conference that this war must be carried to a successful issue to stamp out militarism in this world; and that this Unitarian body approves the measures of President Wilson and Congress, restrictive as they may be and that this resolution be sent to President Wilson and to the Governor-General and Premier of Canada, as expressive of the sentiment of this body."

LONG FIGHT FOR DIVORCE

Husband's Hard Fight to Dissolve Matrimonial Bonds Unsuccessful

—A Wife's Victory

With the close of the recent session of Parliament there came to an end one of the most stubbornly contested Divorce Bills that ever came before that body. The husband, Albert Edwain Gordon, a lumber merchant of Toronto, sought to get an act passed divorcing him from his wife, while the wife contested vigorously for her honour and her rights. The fight began before the Senate and after an exceptionally large amount of evidence had been taken the husband was successful before that body. Then the fight was transferred to the Commons, where the wife finally won. The members of the House were divided, not on party lines.

Mr. Northrup supported the bill, having been for years a strong advocate of a Divorce Court for Canada, and was assisted by Mr. Thorburn, Mr. Carvell, Mr. Bennett, of Calgary, Hon. Dr. Pugsley, and others. Mr. Porter opposed the bill and was assisted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Sam. Hughes, Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Hon. C. J. Doherty, W. E. Knowles, W. H. Morphy, K.C., Mr. Kyte, Col. J. A. Currie and others. This is the second session in which the bill has been considered. Hugh Rose, who acted for Mrs. Gordon on the first occasion, having since been appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario, ceased to act in the case.

Geo. Wilkie, of Toronto, and R. A. Pringle, K.C., of Ottawa, appeared for Mr. Gordon; W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, for Mrs. Gordon.

It's Unwise To Fix Prices When Labour Is Voluntary

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—Professor James Mavor, of the University of Toronto, instructor in political economy, stated in an interview to-day that food prices cannot be fixed so long as he basis of production is voluntary labour. Prof. Mavor agrees with the Food Controller that the fixing of prices would risturb almost all the channels of trade and industry.

The professor emphatically declares that the municipal ordinances in Toronto are adverse to competition, which is one thing that should be stimulated at present. He scores the regulations which prevent farmers from peddling foodstuffs in the city.

MORE WAGES AND HIGH PRICES

When asked if the remedy for high prices was increased wages to maintain the standard of living, Prof. Mavor replied that he thought the standard of living had not suffered much as yet, and that increased wages was naturally a remedy. He stated that from all accounts people were living as well as at any time, and that it was the natural objection to paying high prices which caused the trouble, although people were getting more money to pay with.

"It is a great mistake," said the professor, "to suppose that conditions produced by this war are entirely new. Even the scale, considered in relation to a comparative view of the population is not greater than it has been.

EXPECTS GREATER SHORTAGES

"During the Napoleonic wars the people of England and Scotland were starving. There is no such state of affairs in Great Britain or Canada as that at present. I greatly doubt that the people of Great Britain have reached he bad point they will reach. Certainly conditions in Canada will become worse.

"What Mr. Hanna is trying to do is to create a sentiment of thrift. Anything that will stimulate thrift is a good thing, but reduction of prices would have an opposite effect. So I wouldn't promote any movement for the arbitrary fixing of prices."

TAX THE PROFITS.

"If it is impossible, professor, to fix prices, what is to be done with those who are making great fortunes out of foodstuffs and other materials needed in the war?" asked the reporter.

"Tax the profits," he replied. "It is easy for the Government to do that. Of course as long as production is on a voluntary system, it would not be well to go too far. Something must be left to induce the voluntary efforts in industry. The Government must know how much is being made in these industries, and it is comparatively easy to collect the profits.

A LONG PERIOD OF WASTE

"Canada and the United States have been enjoying a period of low prices for materials, and labour has been high. We have been very wasteful and entirely disregarded the value of materials. A few years ago I went through one of the largest factories in the United States, and found a mass of scrapped material of incredible quantity. Thousands and thousands of tons of iron lay scrapped, due to lack of understanding of value of materials. That recklessness regarding materials couldn't last. The mines from which the metal came were exploited in a careless manner. The only way for that to come to an end is for prices to increase."

Professor Mavor, with the aid of a chart showed that during all wars prices had gone up, and conditions had been similar as to-day, and in some cases much worse. In 1801 the peak of high prices was reached and while Professor Mavor has not worked out a comparison with present prices, he believes the situation then and on other occasions was much worse than at the present time.

MIGHT HARM SMALL DEALERS

Regarding fixing of prices the professor gave an illustration of its possible effect. He said it was quite possible for a big food-producing concern to show a small profit per pound, and yet on its great business to be making a substantial profit. If that price was fixed, a small dealer might not be able to live on the small profit per pound. It might crush out small dealers altogether.

Asked what could be done to regulate prices, the Prof. said an increased sense of justice would help considerably.

"Side by side," he said, "with the medieval method of municipal ordinance, there was an idea of what was known as a fair price. The idea of the fair price is one of the things which ought to be preserved."

"Couldn't that fair price be fixed?" asked the reporter. "The price must be a flexible one depending upon conditions. If the price of any commodity is fixed, then the producer can decide whether to sell or not. If the price is not satisfactory the producer can please himself whether he will produce or not. As long as labour is voluntary prices cannot be fixed arbitrarily."

ECONOMIC EXPLOITATION OF BOHEMIA

(Special correspondence of Slav Press Bureau)

GENEVA, August 15th.—In the early part of August representatives of Austria, Hungary and Germany attended a conference on supplies, which was held in the offices of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Vienna. The purpose of the conference was to arrange for the distribution and the interchange of food supplies among the three states.

It appears that Germany will gain most as a result of the conference; Hungary had to yield a part of its grain crop and Austria a part of its corn and barley. In return for these concessions Germany agreed to supply Hungary with a certain amount of imported fish and Austria with an amount of imported butter and cheese.

Hungary, which up to the present sent only 8,000 head of cattle per month to Austria, agreed to send 30,000 head in the period beginning August 1st and ending September 15. It is not reported what concessions Hungary will get in return; nor is it known what number of cattle will be supplied after the expiration of the above period.

The official communications further warn the population against unwarranted optimism concerning the supply of food stuffs, for the results of the present harvest are not very favorable. It appears that the army is suffering from inadequate supplies of oats, for the ministry of war recently announced that it would pay a bonus of 5 crowns per metric ton of oats to all farmers delivering the same into the hands of the military authorities before the 31st of September; the maximum price of oats is 44 crowns per metric ton, while 49 crowns was offered for this quick delivery.

While Hungary magnanimously agreed to supply Austria with 30,000 head of cattle, Bohemia is being robbed in the most shameless manner. Let us look how Austria is systematically robbing this country.

From June 21st, 1916, to January 1st, 1917, the following number of heads of cattle was requisitioned in Bohemia:

For the garrison at the front	72,731
For two garrisons in the interior	14,917
For other military units	22,917
For Vienna	12,952
For Prague	4,910
For other consumption	5,509
Total	133,945

From January 1st to July 27th, 1917, the following number of heads of cattle was carried out of the Bohemian districts of the Kingdom of Bohemia:

For the garrisons at the front	101,730
For conservation purposes	26,901
For refrigeration purposes	11,233
For the garrisons in the interior	30,166
Total for military use	170,030
For the people of Bohemia	34,366
For the markets of Vienna	16,135
Grand total	221,135

Altogether the farmers of the Bohemian districts were compelled to supply 355,080 head of cattle. It is evident that from this number only 49,283 head were kept for the Bohemian people. But even this is insufficient for the wholesale robbers of Vienna, who recently ordered the farmers of Bohemia to furnish 70,000 head of cattle per month.

This systematic and intentional plundering of the Kingdom of Bohemia is not limited to cattle, but other products are likewise requisitioned and carried out of the country. The following table will explain the situation:

In the year 1916-1917 to the present harvest the following requisitions were made in the Bohemian districts? Carloads—

Wheat	8,783
Corn	9,217
Barley	12,920
Oats	12,910
Bran	450
Total	44,280

In the same period 20,711 carloads of potatoes were likewise requisitioned in the same districts. For these the government paid the farmers at the rate of 7 to 9 crowns per metric ton, and later resold the very same potatoes when partially frosen and decayed to the Bohemian people at the rate of 28 crowns per metric ton.

Requisitions in Moravia.

Towards Moravia, which is also populated by Bohemians, the government has been following a similar attitude. It seems to be determined to ruin these people completely. In the single month of July no less than 97,165 head of cattle were requisitioned in Moravia, and the people in that province were ordered to supply 40,000 head of cattle per month thereafter. It is not a necessity which has compelled the Austrian government to make these enormous requisitions. In Hungary no requisitions have taken place to the present day, and the products of the soil are bought and sold on the open market. As a matter of fact, the following event exemplifies the attitude of the Austro-Hungarian government towards the Czechs. The so-called Gees Syndicate of Vienna was given the power to requisition all of the fruits in 28 Czech districts, the Gees Syndicate is permitted to ship 5,000 carloads to Vienna and 2,000 to Germany. The fruit which the Syndicate was permitted to buy at 70 hellers was later resold at 1 crown and 34 hellers, giving the Syndicate a profit of 38,000,000 crowns on this one transaction alone.

The lands of Bohemia are exploited to such an extent as never before in history. Austria realized that it will be destroyed, but before dismemberment it is determined to ruin Bohemia completely. If there is anyone who had even a spark of friendship left for Austria he must now turn against it, for the above methods show most plainly that Austria has used its non-German population as a tool for the advancement of its pan-German schemes.

TORONTO MAN HAS GAINED 12 POUNDS

Doesn't Believe There is a Medicine on Earth That Equals Tanlac

I have just finished my second bottle of Tanlac and have actually gained twelve pounds, was the remarkable statement made a few days ago by Peter Rosthwick of 115 Lappan Avenue, Toronto. Mr. Rosthwick has been a resident of Toronto for thirty years, and has been employed for the past ten years by the Gunn Packing Co.

"I never liked the idea much of having my name in the papers," he continued, but Tanlac has helped me so much that I feel it my duty to make this statement. Up to the time I began taking Tanlac I had been suffering for about two years with a naggravated case of stomach trouble, and one time was told I couldn't live six months longer without an operation. My appetite was entirely gone and everything I ate no matter what, disagreed with me. Before I would get up from the table I would turn sick and could seldom retain anything I had eaten. My food would sour, sharp pains filled my chest and all day long at my work I had a gnawing sensation in my stomach and the pain at times would almost draw me double. I have spent days of misery at the plant when I would almost collapse, my suffering was so great, and I could hardly do my work. I had fallen off from one hunded and fifty pounds to one hunded and twenty-eight, and was so weak I really don't see how I managed to keep going.

About a year ago I spent some time in the hospital, and during the past two years it seems to me I tried everything, and spent I don't know how much money, but everything failed me until I began taking Tanlac. I had been reading the Tanlac testmonils and finally I told my wife I believed it would help me. It certainly has. The result of the two bottles I have already taken have been nothing less than remarkable. My appetite has improved and my stomach is strengthened until I can eat and retain most anything I want. Potatoes, pork chops, and many other such things that I couldn't eat before agree with me now, and that gnawing sensation, and the pain has about all left my stomach and chest. I now weigh one hundred and forty pounds—have picked up twelve pounds already—and am still gaining in weight and getting stronger every day. I don't believe there's another medicine equal to Tanlac and I appreciate what it has done for me too much to not tell others about it.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by Warne-Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike.

ATTACKS LAUDATIONS OF THE KAISER.

Newspaper Predicts Rejoinders on His Peace Record.

Zurich, Sept. 25.. — In its comment on the German reply to Pope Benedict, the Munich Post (Socialist) protests against half of the German answer being devoted to the attitude of Emperor William. The Emperor it sets forth, is constitutionally only the President of the German Confederation, and when the note says that the German people stand behind the Emperor in the desire for peace it is reversing the situation, as the people stand before the Emperor.

It is not a matter of indifference, either, continues the Post, that the person of the Emperor should be pushed to the foreground.

"We all know very well his declarations on the peace question," it says, "but we also know that during the twenty-eight years of his reign he made utterances extremely disconcerting to foreign nations. Thanks to the small cleverness shown in the composition of this part of the note, it is tolerably certain that the foreign governments will dwell upon these utterances."

The Post deplores the fact that a number of men in "high and royal" positions have begun an agitation against peace, and that instead of being energetically disavowed by the highest quarters, they have been thanked for their attitude.

"But," adds the newspaper, "we can be calm, despite all the war-lusting Dukes, Grand Admirals, Burgomasters, Privy Councillors, ferocious professors, and other colleagues of Count zu Reventlow. The coming of peace cannot be much longer delayed."

MINERS DEMAND INCREASE

Request For 20 to 70 Per Cent. Advance in Wages in the American Coal Fields.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Immediate wage increases of from 20 to 70 per cent. will be demanded by the country's coal miners, it was announced here after a preliminary meeting of operators' and Miners' representatives of the central competitive field. There is every indication that the mine owners will refuse flatly to meet them.

Dr. H. A. Garfield, the Fuel Administrator, addressed the meeting. He said: "Under no circumstances must we allow production to stop. We must put aside for the time being all questions that might separate men under normal conditions and work in the closest harmony."

I don't see why so many women pay so much attention to the pictures on their walls and so little to the rugs on their floors.

INTERESTING FEATURES AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

First of a Series of Addresses on the Church Catechism Will Be Given

Arrangements have been made for two events of more than ordinary interest in St. John's, next Sunday. First, at the Sunday School afternoon session, the first of a winter series of instructional addresses on the Church Catechism will be given. The "Outward and Visible Sign," illustrated charts by the Rev. D. J. Caswell, will be used, and the first address to the upper school will be on Part One, "The Baptismal Covenant." (First four questions). Parents and guardians are urged to see that their children are all present at the first address next Sunday. Candidates for Confirmation will be heartily welcomed. The addresses have been prepared, and will be delivered by Mr. R. J. Devey, Superintendent of the school, who has made a special study of this form of instruction.

Second, Sunday next will conclude the month's ministrations of the Rev. Walter Archbold, D.D., formerly of Peterborough, now of Ocean City, Maryland. At the evening service next Sunday Mr. Archbold will speak on the subject of "Fraternal Societies," their work and influence, and a cordial invitation is extended to all members of such societies to come to St. John's Church next Sunday night, take part in the service, and hear of friendly society work from an experienced clerical member. Forms of the special service to be used will be provided, well-known hymns sung and the service will conclude with united intercessory prayers for the Allied Forces.

NEW OCEAN BOAT IS LAUNCHED

Mr. Harold Legrow, of Hamilton, chauffeur for Mr. J. Steedman, of the Canada Steamship Lines and the Gurney Scale Co., has sent the following clipping taken from the Hamilton Spectator, in reference to the launching of a motor steamer named in honour of his employer's daughter, Miss Jean Steedman.

The clipping is as follows:

"When J. P. Steedman, of the Canada Steamship Lines, returned from a business trip to Fort William, he found waiting for him an invitation from the Cameron-Genoa Mills, shipbuilders, Ltd., of Victoria, B.C., to the launching of the Jean Steedman from the slips at Point Ellis, on the old Songhees Indian reserve, for last Saturday afternoon. He also received a telegram announcing that the launching had taken place successfully at 4.16 on that afternoon, and that Miss Muriel Stewart, daughter of Robert Stewart, of Vancouver, and formerly of this city, had acted as sponsor. Unfortunately, Mr. Steedman had been away for nearly two weeks, and did not get his announcement in time to attend the ceremony, which he certainly would have done had he been at home.

"The Jean Steedman is named after Miss Jean Steedman of this city, and is the third of ten auxiliary motor ships which are being built of wood. Two of the steamers have gone to Australia, and on their arrival there were chartered to the French Government for a period to extend for six months after the declaration of peace. The boats, which are built of British Columbia fir, are 250 feet in length, and 46 foot beam, and are fitted with oil engines."

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—If you will allow me space in your valuable paper, I wish to draw the attention of the ratepayers to the condition of our paved streets at the present time.

I refer to the amount of water that is being sprinkled on the pavement (and the danger it involves to driving horses drawing heavy loads) on account of the frost we have at nights making the pavement so slippery that the animals are unable to keep their feet.

I was driving on Hunter street this morning and my horse fell, but fortunately was not injured. I lodged a complaint with a city official and notified him that I would hold the city responsible if my horse should fall on account of the slippery pavements and be injured.

I was informed that the pavements had to be watered on account of the dust nuisance. I suggested that the city authorities engage the sweeper, which would relieve the situation, and I can say positively, Mr. Editor, and you can verify my statement by any driver in the city that the streets were never so clean or as safe for horses as they were last fall, when they were cleaned by the sweeper.

It would appear to me that the teamsters, as ratepayers, are entitled to consideration, especially when the remedy is available.

I am not aware what it costs to do the work that is being done on the pavements, but you will admit the streets are a disgrace to a city as progressive as Peterborough, and should it cost more to engage the sweeper, in my opinion it would be well spent money, probably saving the city a much greater amount in damages.

My case is not isolated, for to my personal knowledge there are a number of horses falling on the pavement every day.

I should think it is the duty of the Society for the prevention of cruelty to animals to take this matter up and endeavour to relieve the situation.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

Ninety-Two And One-Half Years in Prison

The "Trophies of Grace" Will Spend the Week-end in Peterboro'

The "Trophies of Grace," who are visiting the Salvation Army this week-end with Staff-Captain Cornish and six other officers, have spent 92½ years in prison. The Salvation Army secured their release on parol, and they have "made good" in every way.

They will relate some of their experiences on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon at the Temple, and will also sing some songs of redemption. The special services, with the ten visitors helping, are expected to be the most wonderful series of meetings ever held at the Temple, at least for years. No admission is being charged, so that everybody may get the benefit of the whole week-end meetings.

You will be very welcome.

Great open-air demonstration, both Saturday night and three times Sunday.

SPECIAL MEETING WELL ATTENDED

The meeting conducted by Staff Captain Peacock last evening was very profitable indeed in every respect and was well attended for a week night meeting.

The young peoples workers provided tea and a very enjoyable intercourse followed.

The young peoples' band and songsters excelled in their selections.

Dresses will be seven or eight inches from the floor during the coming season.

WOMEN MAY DIVIDE OVER FRANCHISE ACT

Resolution Condemning It Will Come Before the W. C. T. U. Convention

MRS. STEVENS DECLARES THAT HER REMARKS WERE ONLY INDIVIDUAL OPINION.

CORNWALL, Sept. 28.—Yesterday afternoon the resolutions committee of the Provincial convention of Women's Christian Temperance Union will bring in a motion regarding the Dominion Franchise Bill, which will doubtless divide the convention.

It reads: "That we resent the action of the Government in creating an arbitrary distinction among the women of Canada by passing the Election Franchise Act whereby many of our loyal women who have made noble sacrifices in the war are deprived of the right of the franchise through no fault of their own."

Before the elections were held this morning, the president, Mrs. E. A. Stevens, said that she wanted to make a statement regarding her stand on the Federal franchise bill.

STATEMENT CLEARS AIR.

"I have been accused of committing the W. C. T. U. to the support of the Franchise bill," she said. "I want to say that any action of mine was taken as a private individual and not as president of the W. C. T. N.," she said.

Mrs. Stevens then told of how she had been invited to be a mamber of the Win-the-war Convention, and was one of those who had waited upon the Premier after the last convention in Toronto

"The Premier asked us if the women of Canada would suppor tconscription," said Mrs. Stevens, "As a private individual I told him that I thought they would

"After the Franchise bill came out, Mrs. C. E. Gooderham, Mrs Torrington, Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, and myself met in Toronto to discuss it. Up to that time we had no knowledge as to what the Franchise bill would be. I said that I was in favour of the bill in its present form, because the Premier had promised that he would later extend the full franchise to women, but when I took the stand I didn't act in the capacity of president of the W.C.T.U., bu as a private individual.

"I do not know anything about the politics of these with whom I associated, other than that there were both Liberals and Conservaives. Mr. Godfrey, the president of the Win-the-War movement, is a Liberal, while I understand Mrs. Gooderham is related to a prominent Conservative, but there was no political more in any action of mine.

GETS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

When Mrs. Stevens sat down Mrs. A. B. Ormsby, Toronto, arose: "Mrs Stevens has always stood loyal to the principles of the W. C. T. U.," she said, "I think that we are firmly convinced that, as a Christian woman, she did what she believed to be right and I desire to move a vote of confidence," Mrs. K. L. Maxwell, of Windsor, seconded the motion, and while every member of the convention arose, Mrs. Stevens was called to the platform to receive the vote o fconfidence.

ITALIANS HOLD PLATEAU

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Italian troops have completed their occupation of the entire Bainsizza plateau, which is now firmly in Italian hands, according to official despatches received here to-day.

The troops are consolidating positions won lately, and the principal offensive activity at present is by Italian aeroplanes scouting over the Austrian lines and bombarding depots and columns of troops.

It is the opinion among Italians officials here that the Austrians are trying to fortify their lines so as to have good winter quarters by the time the snows interfere with active operations.

SALARY INCREASE WAS DEFERRED

Plumbing Inspector Thompson Will Be Invited to Give An Account of His Stewardship

Plumbing Inspector Thompson's request for an increase in salary was discussed at last night's meeting of the Property committee. Some of the members of the committee were lacking information as to whether the Inspector was carrying out the by-law in the matter of smoke tests, etc. Mayor Duffus looked over the monthly reports and noted the absence of smoke tests. He said he approved of Inspetcor Thompson getting an increase, providing the work was being carried out according to the by-law. In order to clear this matter up the Inspector will be invited to meet the Council at the regular meeting to be held on Monday evening next. Mr. Thompson asked for an increase of ten dollars a month. He is now getting fifty dollars a month.

Coal Weights.

Mayor Duffus asked for a monthly report on coal weights. An old report that was unearthed on the file brought the matter to the committee's attention. The reports are supplied through the police department on periodical occasions. The old report which was review indicated tha the local coal dealers were supplying good weight to the consumers. In many cases the overweight, according to the municipal scales, ran as high as sixty pounds. The committee agreed to press for a monthly report from the police department.

It was suggested that similar action be taken in respect to bread. The Council have power according to legislative enactment to appoint a bread inspector, but for some reason or other this regulation has not been made use of.

A Toronto steeplejack by the name of Revoy quoted the city the sum of fifty-eight dolalrs as the price of painting the smoke stack at the civic incinerator plant. It was suggested that if the work should be necessary a local man be invited to tender. Ald. Smith was asked to take a look at the stack in company with Ald. Duncan and report back should it be necessary to undertake the work.

BERNSTORFF WAS CHIEF SPY.

"He Knew All Plotting of His Subordinates," Says Roosevelt.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Count Bernstorff, former German Ambassador, was branded by Theodore Roosevelt yesterday as chief of the German spy sytem in the United States before the break in relations.

"Of course, Bernstorff knew all the plotting of his subordinates," said Roosevelt. "These recent revelations simply showed the uninstructed what our Government and well informed people knew two years ago."

Roosevelt was the guest of the National Security League yesterday at a luncheon.

RECIPES FOR WAR BREADS AS GIVEN AT LOCAL DEMONSTRATION

Mrs. (Dr.) Neal Kindly Furnishes Them For Publication —How to Make Boston Brown Bread, Whole Wheat Biscuits, Potato Cakes, Rolled Oats, Bread, etc.

The demonstration on the making of war breads, Wednesday afternoon, was well attended and keen interest was shown by every one present.

War Breads were explained to be any form of bread or biscuits, risen with either yeast or baking powder in which some of the coarser flours or meals were substituted in part for the white flour.

Very many inquiries were lodged with the executive in charge of the demonstration, by visitors, both out of town and city, for recipes for making the breads demonstrated, which Mrs. (Dr.) Neal of the local Council of Women, has kindly furnished them for publication. They are:

Boston Brown Bread.

1 cup rye meal.
1 cup granulated corn meal.
1 cup graham flour.
1 1-2 teaspoons soda.
1 teaspoon salt.
3-4 cup molasses.
2 cups sour milk or 1 3-4 cups sweet milk or water.

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add molasses and milk, stir until well mixed, turn into a greased mould (a one-pound baking powder can makes an attractive shaped loaf) and steam 3 1-2 hours. The cover should be buttered before being placed on mould, and then tied down with string; otherwise the bread in rising might force off the cover. The mould should never be filled more than two-thirds full. For steaming, place mould on a trivet or saucer in a kettle of boiling water, allowing water to come half way up around mound. Cover closely and steam, adding more boiling water as needed.

Whole Wheat Biscuits.

1 cup whole wheat flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
2-3 cup sweet milk.
4 teaspoons baking powder (or 3-4 cup sour milk, 3-4 teaspoon soda).
1 cup white flour.
2 tablespoons shortening.

Mix dry ingredients. Work in shortening and add liquid to form soft dough. Toss on floured board, roll and shape into biscuits. Bake in very hot oven.

Golden Corn Cake.

1 cup corn meal.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
1-4 cup corn syrup.
1 egg.
1 cup flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
2-3 cup sweet milk.
1 tablespoon melted butter.

Mix dry ingredients. Add butter, syrup, beaten egg and milk and stir thoroughly. Bake in shallow greased pan in moderate oven.

Potato Cakes.

2 cups flour.
1 cup mashed potatoes.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
Milk or water to make soft dough.

Mix dry ingredients, add potatoes and enough liquid to make sofe dough. Turn out on floured board and roll and shape like biscuits.

Bake about 30 minutes.

Entire Wheat Bread.

2 cups scalded milk.
1-3 cup sugar or 1-2 cup molasses.
1-4 yeast cakes dissolved in 1-4 cup lukewarm water.
1 1-2 teaspoons salt.
5 cups sifted entire wheat flour.

Mix well, sugar or molasses, and salt. When lukewarm add yeast cake dissolved in warm water, and flour. Beat well, let rise until nearly double its bulk. Beat, turn into greased bread pan, let rise again until nearly double its bulk, and bake for about one hour in a moderately hot oven.

Rolled Oats Bread.

2 cups boiling water.
1-2 cup molasses.
1-2 tablespoon salt.
1 tablespoon butter.
1-2 yeastcake, dissolved in
1-2 cup lukewram water.
1 cup rolled oats or oatmeal
4 1-2 cups flour.

Add boiling water to oats and let stand one hour. Add molasses, salt, butter, dissolved yeast-cake and flour. Let rise, beat thoroughly, turn into buttered bread tins, let rise again and bake.

Rye Bread.

1 cup scalded milk.
1 cup boiling water.
1 teaspoon lard.
1 tablespoon butter.
1-3 cup brown sugar.
1 1-2 teaspoons salt.
1-4 yeast cake, warm water.
3 cups white flour.
Rye meal to make stiff dough.

To milk and water, add lard, butter, sugar and salt. When luke-warm, add dissolved yeast-cake and flour, beat thoroughly, cover, and let rise until light. Add rye meal until dough is stiff enough to knead. Knead thoroughly, let rise to double its bulk, shape in loaves, place in greased pans, let rise until double its bulk and bake.

A Bulletin containing many more recipes for War Breads, may be had by writing to Department of Agriculture, Toronto, and asking for Bulletin No. 254. The number of the Bulletin on Canning is 252.

SANITARY INSPECTOR HAS TROUBLE WITH GARBAGE COLLECTION

Inspector Stapleton Claims That Mr. G. K. Graham is Not Living Up to His Contract

COMMITTEE'S ACTION

At a meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council held last evening it was reported by Sanitary Inspector Stapleton that Mr. E. K. Graham, contractor for the collection of garbage, has been deliquent in the matter of collecting ashes. According to the Inspector's statement the contractor had been noified to secure a special wagon for collecting ashes. This has not been done and when Mr. Graham was again spoken he is alleged to have referred the Inspector to a warmer climate. Inspector Stapleton also complained that the contractor would not dump ashes where he was instructed too by the Inspector. Mr. Graham had complained of some of the ash receptacles being too heavy, but Inspector Stapleton said that with one exception he could life them all without any trouble.

THE PROMISED BONUS.

The matter of the extra five hundred dollars promised to the contractor at the end of the year was brought up. The money was granted on condition that the contractor carry out the work to the satisfacion of the Council. It was pointed out that Mr. Graham's bondsmen had not even taken the trouble to sign the agreement respecting this additional amount despite the fact that they had been notified.

The Property Committee will recommend that Mr. Graham and his bondsmen be notified that if the contract is not carried out to the satisfaction of the Council it will be cancelled and the extra cost, if any, of doing the work until the completion of the contract year be charged to Mr. Graham and his bondsmen. Mr. Graham will also be notified that in any case where he fails to make collections of refuse or ashes the work will be done by a private carter at the instance of the Sanitary Inspector and the cost charged to Mr. Graham.

New Liberty Loan Campaign Is Launched

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 28.—Opening the campaign for the second Liberty loan of $3,000,000,000, Secretary McAdoo to-day called upon the bankers of America to fling back the German hordes on the battlefields of finance. "The failure of a single issue of Government bonds," McAdoo told the American Bankers' Association, "would be worse for America than a disaster upon the field of battle." "America's forthcoming bond issue," he said, "is pitted against a corresponding loan in Germany. Let us by subscription to our second Liberty loan on the 25th of October, nine days after the close of the German loan, make clear to German military despotism that America marshals not alone her brave soldiers upon the field, her invincible navy on the high seas, her industries throughout the length and breadth of the land, but as well her financial resources, and that she is determined to use them all without stint and regardless of sacrifice to vindicate American rights, outraged too frequently by German infamies."

Will Appoint Bread Inspector

Property Committee Favours the Appointment

At a meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council, held last evening, it was decided to recommend that a by-law be prepared to appoint a bread inspector to enforce the provisions of the Bread Sales Act. The appointment will likely go to Sanitary Inspector Stapleton, who will incorporate the work with his other duties.

Peterboro' Soldier Heard From

This morning the family of Pte. Hutchinson, 163 Westcott Street, received seven letters. Pte. Hutchinson, who is a Peterborough prisoner of war, has not been heard of for several months. Some of the letters were dated in May last, while the more recent of the letters were dated August 7th.

Burglars As Crafty As Santa Claus Get $7,000 in Jewelry

Robbery of Homes of Two New York Families at Huntington is Mystifying.

HUNTINGTON, L.I., Sept. 28.—There is only one explanation which satisfies Huntington. They were phantom burglars who robbed the homes of two New York city families in the Bay Crest district here. But there is no phantasy in the loss of more than $7,000 in jewelery from one of the homes. The robberies occurred Sunday night. They were reported by the police Tuesday. Agency detectives have been called in to hunt the ghostly cracksmen.

It was from the summer residence of Alexander P. W. Kinnan, president of the Union Dime Savings Bank, in New York city, that the jewelry was stolen. Mr. and Mrs. Kinnan, both light sleepers, were in adjoining rooms on the second floor. Across the hall lay Mrs. Kinnan's aged mother, attended in her illness by a night nurse.

The burglars left no evidences of their means of entrance. They went into Mrs. Kinnan's room and took six diamond rings, one ruby ring and $60. In Mr. Kinnan's room they got eight scarfpins and diamond-studded cuff links. From his clothes on a rack three feet from Mr. Kinnan's head they took his watch and chain and $80. Mr. Kinnan said to-day he was of the belief that his wife and he were drugged by the burglars.

The home of Dr. F. W. Dearborne of No. 25 West Sixty-eighth street, New York city, was robbed in the same fashion. The burglars took $170 from Dr. Dearborne's pockets as he slept. The two houses are a mile apart.

On Tuesday, Sept. 25th, at St. Joseph's church, Douro, the pretty wedding of Miss M. Gertrude O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice OBrien, Douro, to Mr. Augustus N. Conlin of Peterborough, took place, nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Fr. McGuire.

The bride looked charming in a suit of navy blue gabbidine, while her sister, Miss Anna O'Brien, in brown, acted as bridesmaid. Mr. James Conlin, of Toronto, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The happy couple drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held, dinner being served to eighty-five guests.

Among the guests were: Rev. Fr. McGuire, Misses Ella and Teresa Flannigan, Mr. Clarence and Jack Flannigan, of Cobourg, Mr. and Mrs. Art. Conlin of Peterborough, Mr. J. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. John Grisdale and daughter Eleanor, Mr. and Mrs. John G. O'Brien, Miss Martha B. O'Brien, Mr. Joe O'Brien, Miss Veronica O'Brien, Mr. Stanley O'Brien of Peterborough, Mr. Bud Torpey, of Toronto, and Misses Bernie and May O'Brien, of Peterborough.

The bride received many beautiful gifts, showing the high esteem in which she was held.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Conlin left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for Toronto and Buffalo. On their return they will reside on Sherbrooke street, Peterborough.

OBITUARY

THOMAS ALBERT MARKS

The death occurred this morning of Thomas Albert Marks, infant son of Lieut. and Mrs. Thomas Marks, 64 Aylmer street. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Dougald Brown will conduct the service.

WILLIAM DAVIDSON.

In the death of William Davidson at his residence, 520 Dickson street, on Wednesday, September 26th, Peterborough has lost another of her veteran citizens. During the past two months he had showed a declining health and had been confined to his home for six weeks preceding his death. The deceased was the son of the late James Davidson, of Smith township, where he was born on November 15, 1830. He lived in Smith until 1873, when he moved to Peterborough. For many years he was an active member of the Dickson Company of this city. On November 22nd, 1865, he married Elizabeth Dickson, daughter of the late Samuel Dickson. Their children were the late Mrs. S. M. Munro, of Montreal, Mr. Dickson Davidson, Vice-President of the Peterborough Lumber Company, Mr. J. Roger Davidson, of Frobisher, Sask., and Miss Laura Davidson, at home. The deceased also leaves his wife and two grandchildren, Helen and Gordon Munro, of Montreal. The latter has been on active service for two years in France.

The late William Davidson was a life-long member of St. Paul's church, and in politics a supporter of the principles of the Liberal party. He had been identified with many interests that had for their object the development of this city, to whose early progress he contributed a large share. He was associated with many gentlemen whose numbers are steadily decreasing, but whose work remains in the city they helped to build.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery, with the service at the home at 2.30 o'clock.

HARVEST FESTIVAL IN ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Large Congregation Joined in the Thanksgiving Nature of the Service — Impressive Sermon by Rev. T. A. Nind.

APPROPRIATE MUSIC

The Harvest Festival in St. Luke's Anglican church last evening was attended by a large congregation, who heartily joined in the Thanksgiving nature of the service. The building presented an appropriately attractive appearance, but not too ornate. Entrance, window sills and chancel were laden with fruits of the earth, and a sufficient sprinkling of floral decorations to offer an exceedingly harmonious whole. This sacred building interior is beautiful at all times in its pale blue finish and general architectural design, but on this occasion it was unusually so. Unfortunately, however, a light fuse blew out just as the bell stopped ringing and plunged the church into a state of darkness—visible with but a glimmer of light penetrating the stained glass chancel window in the east, and this source of illumination failed in a very few minutes. The defective fuse was replaced and the service started at 8.25.

The choir was large, its work excellent, and the music selected of a very acceptably joyous character. The anthem sung was "O Clap Your Hands Together," rendered in rich volume, under the capable leadership of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade. Miss Phyllis Dawson was heard to good advantage in the solo part. She possesses a pleasing soprano voice with clear enunciation. The quartette part taken by Miss Phyllis Dawson, Mrs. Perrin, Mr. H. Carter and Mr. W. A. Greenslade, was admirably rendered.

Rev. T. A. Nind, of Bobcaygeon, and Rev. Walter Archbold, of Ocean City, Maryland, assisted the rector, Rev. Wm. White.

THE SERMON.

Rev. T. A. Nind delivered a sermon befitting the occasion. Taking for his text II Samuel, 23, 17—"And David said: Be it far from me, O Lord, that I should do this; is not this the blood of men that went in jeopardy of their lives? Therefore, he would not drink it. These things did these three mighty men"—he applied these words to conditions in the Empire today when men are jeopardising their lives on the battle plains of France and Flanders, and on the sea, in defence of British freedom. David, he said, had longed for a drink of the water from the well of Bethlehem, and when three mighty men had raided Bethlehem taking it to him, he poured it out unto the Lord. To-day we are uniting in harvest festival services in thanksgiving for crops gathered in Ontario more abundant than any harvest during the past fifteen years. This year Canadians should realize more than ever before what a plentiful harvest means, when famine is facing so many lands. Farmers experience many hardships in producing crops, while city people walk in the easier path of life. This principle, he continued applied to every department of life. Men in industrial occupations are dulledly the monotony and materialism of their surroundings, risking life and limb in providing comforts, luxuries and conveniences for others more fortunate than themselves. As a nation we in Canada are enabled to enjoy life's blessings in spite of the tragedy in the old world, by reason of men risking their lives in war and because a glorious British navy stands between us and the foe. We should, he urged, think of these things, and like David of old, make consecration to the Lord by speeding up all patriotic work in support of our brave men at the front and afloat. Such a cause, he said, would be a practical method of thanksgiving, and he exhorted all to make up their minds to heed the Government's call for conservation of food and elimination of waste.

In conclusion the reverend gentleman ardently hoped to see the war eventually usher in a state of righteousness between man and man and the peace of God with all.

Was It the Cow's Fault?

An Argument For Feed Record Forms

Supposing that you keep a cow giving five thousand pounds of milk in a year, for which you receive seventy dollars cash, how much profit does that cow make? This is not a riddle, but simply a query that every dairyman should be in a position to answer. Leaving aside the "higher accounting" side of revenue and expenses per cow—those persistent items of rent, interest, taxes, depreciation, etc., and taking only income from milk or fat, and cost of food, are you then in a position to say definitely that each cow you keep does make a good clear profit above feed cost?

Whether the feed is valued at forty or eighty dollars, whether the income is fifty or one hundred and twenty dollars, is there such profit that a fair return is made to you for the labour expended? For, if revenue and expense just balance, showing no margin of profit at all, there must surely be something wrong, your labour has to be paid for.

Milk and feed records may be had free on application to the Dairy Commission, Ottawa, so that the profit made by each cow may be ascertained. Perhaps some cows would show profit if fed better, some won't. Many men in all provinces on the cow testing register at Ottawa show thirty and sixty dollars clear profit per cow above feed cost. You may have made more than that; if you made less, was it entirely the cow's fault?

$60,000 Is The New Price Of Fair Grounds

The price of the Fair Grounds has increased to $60,000, according to the option which was offered the Exhibition Board at their meeting last night. Not so long ago it could have been purchased for $30,000 and still further back the price was even smaller. A ten year lease is offered the Board at the rate of $500 yearly rental for the first five years and $800 for the remaining five. If the Board desires to buy a certain part of the grounds this can be arranged for $45,000. No action was taken last night.

Secretary Hall will be at Mr. R. Denne's store on Saturday afternoon to pay all accounts, particularly prize-winners.

Many suggestions for the improvement of the Fair were received last night and any other ideas that citizens may have will be welcomed by the Board.

Wanted In Toronto For Theft of Camera

Chief Thompson received a telegram from Chief Grassett, of Toronto, this morning, stating that Robert Black was wanted there on a charge of stealing a camera and an alarm clock. Black was arrested in Havelock on Wednesday for a breach of the Railway Act and with two pals was fined $5 or ten days. They took the short term.

CO-OPERATE IN WAR LOAN.

Delegation from Canadian Fire Underwriters Meets Finance Minister.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—A delegation from the Association of Canadian Fire Underwriters visited Ottawa yesterday on the invitation of the Minister of Finance and discussed the assistance and co-operation which their several company and agency systems may be able to afford in connection with the forthcoming war loan. The association has generously and patriotically offered its services to the full extent to which they may be availed of for the purpose of promoting the success of the issue. The Minister expressed himself as greatly pleased with the interview. J. E. Clement, president of the association, headed the delegation.

There is no necessity for a pot to boil furiously in order to cook the contents. It will cook just as well if it just boils, and this can be done over a very small flame.

Scene "Somewhere in Peterboro" Characters Mr. Director Grasp and Sir Joseph Flathell

Mr. D. G.—Hallo, Sir Joe. What's all this I hear about controlling the price of Pertaters?

Sir J. F.—Oh, that's nothing! There's such a lot this year they'd be cheap anyway.

Mr. D. G.—Well, I guess that's so, but the next thing will be the bacon and eggs and butter, and then where'd we be?

Sir J. F.—Oh, don't worry about that, they won't set any prices on those. We do all the setting on those goods, because nobody else can store 'em, and it'll take ten years for the investigating committee to finish investigating the price investigators' report.

Mr. D. G.—Well, prap's that's so, but what about that feller Paskins cutting the price on Hams? Why, he's selling 'em at 29c a pound.

Sir J. F.—Yes, that is a serious matter. We had a directors' meeting about it, but we couldn't think of a way to stop him.

Mr. D. G.—Gosh! he'll ruin the likes of me if he goes on. Everybody goes there that can pay cash, 'cos he sells everything like that. Lor! Fancy sellin' cabbage at 2c and beets and carrots at 2 bushl. for 5c, and 25c a pound biscuits at 15c to 19c a pound, and 55c a pound tea at 38c and 40c a pound, and ordinary 10c goods at 3 for 25c. Gee! I gets the shivers when I think of it. Why, if he keeps on Ole Bill Hanna will lose his job, and you and me won't be able to make that extra two millions we've set our minds on this year.

Sir J. F.—Well! We'll get busy, and if we can't stop him any other way, we wait round the corner some dark night and hit him over the head. In the meantime, I'll go and have a talk to him. By the way, where is his place

Mr. D. G.—Oh, at the Corner of Hunter and Aylmer, but just follow the crowd and you'll find it. Or call up 'Phone 317, but I guess he'll be too busy to talk to you.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

TORONTOS DROP THIRD GAME OF THE SERIES

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—One of those sloppy, indifferent games that frequently gave the fans the blues during the International League pennant race was foisted on the crowd at the Island Stadium yesterday, when Indianapolis beat Toronto 9 to 3 in the third and final local game of the interleague post-season series. The entire Toronto outfit played poor ball. Pitcher Al. Leake turned in about as shaky a performance as he has been guilty of this season, and that is "going some." The Leafs' fielding was ragged, their base-running bad, and their batting below form. If there is any other respect in which a ball team can lack, they lacked that way, too. They freely admitted it after the game.

Leake at his best can beat Indianapolis, or any other team in the class AA circuits. Some of his games at the Island Stadium and on the road during the recent pennant campaign were exceedingly fine performances. But Albert can be a bad pitcher, too, and he was bad yesterday. When he goes bad he resorts to no halfway measures. That is what makes him an unsatisfactory pitcher. The Leafs wanted yesterday's game to give them two in three with which to open in Indianapolis. True, the Leafs got him, only three runs, but when he is right that is enough to win for him. One never knows when he is going to pitch a shutout, or be knocked out of the box.

TEDDY WOULD LIKE TO GO WITH THE BOYS

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—"Lord, boys, how I wish I were going with you." The 4,000 rookies of the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan were still athrill to-day over that expression of Theodore Roosevelt, which concluded a brief address during his visit there.

Big Wardrobe In Grips Taken With Man In Belleville

Arrested on Charge of Stealing Suit of Clothes and Overcoat From the A. W. Cressman Men's Department

REMANDED THIS MORNING

The man who was arrested in Belleville yesterday on the information of Mr. Cecil Wolff of the Men's Furnishing Department of the A. W. Cressman store, on a charge of stealing a suit of clothes and an overcoat from that store during the week end of September 16th, was remanded in police court this morning. Mr. Wolff was travelling to Belleville yesterday and recognising the stranger's clothes telegraphed ahead to the Belleville police to meet the train.

The prisoner gave his name as J. D. Carold, on the military discharge papers found in his possession his name may be John G. Huntley of New York. There is even a doubt on this point, for the police believe that he is the individual who is wanted at Kingston for the theft of a military service button which was stolen from one of the returned soldiers there a short time ago. There is a suspicion at the station that, if this man sole the button, the discharge papers may not belong to him.

Detective Newhall made a hurried trip to Belleville by motor, and was instrumental in recovering two grips which are said to be the property of Carold. They had been hidden at the station. Their contents, when spread out on the big table at the police station, comprised a wardrobe that was suspiciously complete. Several pairs of boots that had never been worn, of the best quality, too, an autographic camera, opera glasses, ties, and a long list of other articles that may have been properly obtained.

Carold pleaded guilty to shopbreaking and was remanded until October 4th, for further examination.

MRS. HOWARD IS HONOURED

Receives Gifts From the Red Cross Society and Ladies' Aid Society of Trinity Church

Mrs. W. A. Howard has been made the recipient of a handsome umbrella and hand purse from the Red Cross and Ladies' Aid Societies of Trinity Church. Representatives of the two bodies met at Mrs. Howard's home and showed their esteem and regard for her by making the presentation, which was accompanied by the following address:

Dear Mrs. Howard,—The Red Cross and Ladies' Aid Societies of Trinity Church are very desirous of showing their appreciation of one of their most willing workers on the eve of your departure from Peterborough.

You have proved yourself a very faithful and efficient member of both societies. On the memebership roll of the Ladies' Aid your name has stood for one ready for "active service" ready to answer the call of the president and to step into the harness to do your "bit" to swell the funds of the treasury. Indefatigable, courteous, bright and systematic are epithets closely allied with the name of Mrs. Howard.

When we come to your work for the Red Cross what shall we say? Here you have out-rivalled your work on the Ladies' Aid. Every Wednesday found you at your table plying needle and scissors for garments for the boys. "Win the war" was your slogan and by your energy and perseverance we could see the words were for you no empty motto.

We are told that "they who go feel not the pain of parting; it is they who stay behind that suffer."

You are asked to accept this gift (an umbrella and a hand purse) as slight momento of appreciation, and it is given with the prayer that "God be with you till we meet again."

Signed on behalf of the Red Cross and Ladies' Aid Society.

Mrs. J. G. Walsh,
Mrs. M. W. Lyle.

Several papers will be read and an interesting and educative meeting is looked for.

Russia Now "Sick Man Of Europe" Says C. R. Crane

CONFIDENT NEW REPUBLIC WILL RECOVER FROM PRESENT CHAOS.

STOCKHOLM.—Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, a member of the American Commission to Russia, who spent two days in Stockholm on his way from Petrograd to England and France, describes Russia as facing a long period of trial and inner chaos and to be suffering from an over-dose of exaggerated modernism in socialist reform ideas. Russia's many leaders, he declares, are inspired by a sincere desire and intent to find a satisfactory solution and to bring new Russia to her proper place among her present allies.

Mr. Crane sees no immediate prospect of a clarification of the situation. He thinks some time may elapse before Russia gets on her feet again and takes any vigorous part in the prosecution of the war, but he believes much can be done and must be done by America to help her regain her footing and assist her toward reaching a position whence a move can be made forward toward the goal which these leaders have in view.

NO REASON TO LOSE HOPE

Mr. Crane, who, even before the war, knew Russia as few Americans or other foreigners had an opportunity to do, remained in that country after the others of the Elihu Root commission left, studying development and conditions and conferring with the present leaders. He was in Petrograd when the struggle between Premier Kerensky and General Korniloff came to a head, saw the outcome and effects of that conflict and, therefore, is able to picture the Russia of today, which is not the Russia of yesterday, and far less the Russia of the days of the Root commission.

The process of tearing down and of discard, Mr. Crane believes, has not yet come to a pause. Some time may elapse before a positive reconstructive process can begin to show results, but he sees no reason to lose hope in Russia. On the contrary, America, he says, which occupies a special place in the Russian mind and whose efforts and advice are felt to be disinterested and unselfish, is destined to play an important part in the expected turn in affairs from the destructive to the constructive phase. The way to this, he said, has been shown by the American Commission, whose work and influence has been of a positive, definite value and whose members by their breadth of view and grasp of the situation made a deep impression upon the Russians.

RUSSIA IS EUROPE'S SICK MAN

America's contribution, Mr. Crane considered, should be continued along the same lines and the Russian leaders assisted and encouraged by the presence of American specialists in various fields. Everything at present is in a chaotic state, he said, making it difficult to predict just what turn the present struggle for power will take.

"Russia," said Mr. Crane, "is now the sick man of Europe." Continuing the simile, he declared that the danger for the patient lay in the fact that too many quacks and ignorant specialists were contending for the right to be admitted to the bedside and administer nostrums whose value in any case was doubtful and which should certainly be tried under other circumstances before being administered under conditions which might result in the death or permanent invalidism of the sufferer.

"Perhaps," he conjectured, "what Russia needs most is not social medicines, but the rest cure."

The service of these men are needed in connection with the training of recruits obtained under the Military Service Act, and it is desirable that their names and addresses be in the possession of the officer commanding their military district. NEW LITANY HYMN FOR WAR TIME USE

This morning's mail from France brought copies of a "Litany-Hymn" now being used extensively whenever services can be held for the men at the front, and by all denominations in the British Isles.

The copies were sent from Chaplain Major Davidson to Mr. R. J. Devey, and the well-known tune "Capetown" is suitable for the words, which, by the courtesy of the Examiner are here printed. It is here suggested that each congregation have copies printed for their use at least once every Sunday, so that in one great act of intercession this beautiful prayer may ascend to the Throne of Grace from every House of God in this city.

Now In This Our Hour of Need.
(For War Time)
Words by Eva Moynihan: Music by Mrs. Arthur Goodeve.

Our Country.
Now in this our hour of need
For Thy mercy, Lord, we plead;
For our land we intercede:
Hear our prayer, O Lord!

Our Cause.
In the battle for the right
May we ever blameless fight.
Win through darkness into light:
Hear our prayer, O Lord!

Our Soldiers.
Guard our soldiers, leaving all
At their king and country's call;
Be with them whate'er befall:
Hear our prayer, O Lord!

Our Sailors.
Guard our ships that never sleep
In the ceaseless watch they keep
Out upon the mighty deep:
Hear our prayer, O Lord!

The Dying.
When our dear ones faint and fall.
When the pains of death appal,
From the depths to Thee we call:
Hear our prayer, O Lord!

The Dead.
Those who die their land to save—
Those who find a soldier's grave,
Those who sleep beneath the wave—
May they rest in peace!

The Suffering.
Comfort all in their distress—
Prisoners, exiles, fatherless—
In their loss and loneliness:
Hear our prayer, O Lord!

For Peace.
Grant that war at last may cease,
Love and brotherhood increase,
Till all strife be hushed in peace;
Hear our prayer, O Lord!

MOVING THE WESTERN CROP

One hundred million bushels of grain were [illegible] handled over the lines of the Canadian Northern Railway System in Western Canada during the crop year ended August 31st.

In all 86,953 cars were handled over its lines in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, 69,551 cars being moved through to Port Arthur and points east of that Lake Superior port.

Wheat constituted the major portion of the total handlings, and was destined to relieve to a considerable degree, the intense demand of the war-wracked peoples on the other side of the Atlantic.

In 1898, when the influence of the Canadian Northern Railway construction was beginning to be reflected in larger production on the western plains, the entire crop attained to less than 57 million bushels, according to figures of the Department of the Interior. Accordingly the grain loaded and handled over the lines of the Canadian Northern—and a great deal of it produced from territory opened up for settlement since 1898—is almost double the Western Canada production of 19 years ago. The difference is almost incalculable between the cash returns from the two crops to the farmer and to the manufacturers who provide the goods western Canadian need.

No Statistics.

There are no statistics available of the capacity of the grain elevators in Canada in 1898, but official figures of the Department of the Interior show that in 1900, there were in Canada 426 elevators and 97 warehouses of a total capacity of 18,329,362 bushels. In 1916 and 1917, there were 3,360 elevators of a total capacity of 193,844,000 bushels.

Of these Manitoba has a capacity of 23,776,000; Saskatchewan 65,625,000; Alberta 25,896,000 and British Columbia 1,793,000. The capacity of the terminal elevators in Ontario is given at 41,750,000 bushels. These are located chiefly at Port Arthur and Fort William at the head of Canadian Great Lakes navigation. The C. N. R. elevator at Port Arthur, capacity 9,500,000 bushels, being the largest consolidated elevator plant in the world.

Once a week every corner of the ice box should be thoroughly cleaned.

A bread board and knife on the table, so that the bread is sliced as used, save much waste.

A good salad consists of cucumbers, tomatoes and shredded peppers, with just a dash of onion.

Caring for Jewelry

Plain gold brooches, rings, bracelets and chains may be cleaned easily, by washing them in a lather, made by a good, pure, white soap and warm water. Be sure to dry them well, then rub them gently with a piece of chamois skin. That will polish them.

Never put pearls in water, as it is quite likely to darken them. And the same applies to turquoises; water is not at all good for them.

If you get your diamond ring very dirty, you may wash it carefully in good white soap suds, but be sure to dry it carefully and polish it gently with chamois.

One thing that is wise for every woman to keep in her room is a Jewel Box, for holding her Jewelry. We show various designs, engraved and plain, inexpensively priced.
